PRIMARY ELECTION LAW LIKELY TO BE AMENDED BY STATE LEGISLATURE

Battle Royal Will be Fought Over Reciprocal Demurrage.

Useless Committees in the Senate Are Dispensed With.

St. Louis County Delegation is to Organize on Wednesday.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—While iti s not so spectacular a matter as some others that will come up, the legislature is going to have about as much trouble over the primary election law as it is over any other proposition that will come up during the present session.

There is a certain element in the legislature that would like very much to knock out the primary election law completely, and go back to the old convention system, but this element need not be reckoned with to any considerable extent. Those who feel this way would like to see the primary election system killed all right, but they woul very much rather it was killed by somebody else's vote. Indeed, not one in ten of those who secretly feel that the old convention system suited them best will dare to go on record in favor of reverting to it.

Some changes will be made, beyond question. What they will be no man can say. The new primary election system will not take the form laid down in the Calhoun bill, already discussed by The Herald. That is a primary election system in name

TIE-UP ON CHICAGO L.

Causes Fatal Accident to Young Woman Passenger.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Thousands of persons were forced to walk to work today by a complete tie-up in the loop district of all elevated trains. Many of the passengers alighted from the stalled cars and walked along the elevated structure to the nearest station. Officials of the road offered no reason for the sudden shutting off of power.

The blockade was the indirect cause of fatal injuries sustained by Miss Lilian Dahlke, 19 years old. In company with many other people, Miss Dahlke was standing on the platform at Canal street and when the first train stopped at the station she was pushed from the platform in the rush to board the cars. She fell between the train and the platform in such a way that it was found necessary to chop away a portion of the platform in order to extricate her. Her spine was fractured and she received in addition, severe internal injuries. Her recovery is impossible.

WOULD NOT TAKE A DARE.

Italian Attempts to Loop the Loop, and is Killed.

Buenos Ayres, Argentine, Jan. 15.—An Italian named Davis was killed in Buckingham palace Saturday night while looping the loop. Davis had challenged Mephisto, who performs the act nightly, and fell to his death while attempting the feat.

WILL FILE CHARGES

Against Itasca County Board If the Deadlock Continues.

County Attorney-Elect Thwing Would Straighten the Matter.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Itasca county, as one result of the recent division of the county, finds itself in a peculiar situation, under which it has no county attorney and practicaly no board of county commissioners, since the board is at a deadlock and refuses to do any business of any kind. County Attorney-elect Alfred L. Thwing was here yesterday trying to get the matter straightened out, and as a step toward that end he wired the members of the county board yesterday afternoon that if they did not break the deadlock and get busy at once he would file charges against them with a view to removing them from office.

When the county was divided it left only three of the old county board members living within the present county of Itasca, two of them living in Koochiching county, the new county. One of them.

Donahue & Co., printers and publishers. Three new presses, which had just been installed by the Donahue company at a cost of $45,000, were ruined. The fire is thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion. Other firms, whose places of business were destroyed by the fire were the Thalman Printing company; E. The six persons who are taking the treatment are Mrs. Alice Black and her two sons, Dean and Howard, and daughter, Mrs. Eula Owings; Mrs. Owings' husband and D. S. Gordon, all of

RAILROAD TAX SYSTEM OF MINNESOTA UNIQUE

IRON ORE TAX BILLS

Measures Affecting Ore Industry Introduced in Legislature.

Investigation of Duluth and Minneapolis Boards of Trade.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night's sessions of both houses were short, but of uncommon interest to Duluth and Northeastern Minnesota.

Several bills touching upon the iron ore industry were introduced, one imposing a state taxe of 5 cents per ton on the output of iron ore, and the other imposing a tax of 25 cents per ton on the output, to be shaved to 5 cents if the ore is smelted within the state, and to be divided between the state and the county, the state getting the lion's share.

No Exemption From Local Assessments Allowed in Any Other State.

Owners of improved real estate in Minnesota pay 10 per cent or more upon the gross earnings of their property. The railroads pay 4 per cent upon the gross earnings of their property.

The federal census shows the value of Minnesota railroads and equipment to have been $466,734,000 in 1904. If this had been assessed at half its value, and taxed at the low rate of 2½ per cent, it would have paid taxes amounting to $5,834,175. In that year the railroads paid a little more than one-third of that, $1,964,438.42.

Investigation of the railroad tax systems of the country shows a great variety of methods, with hardly two alike. This must be annoying to railroads, and the fact that they do not protest is fairly conclusive evidence that they are getting off lightly, and fear that a change would involve heavier taxes. As a matter of fact, the conclusion is unavoidable that the railroads are lightly taxed everywhere.

Minnesota is the only state in which terminal cities are so harshly treated by the system of railroad taxation. So far as can be learned, it is the only state in which such cities have to pay for local improvements benefiting railroad property.

Minnesota is not irrevocably bound to her present system of railroad taxation, as many imagine. It can be changed by a voto of the people, and if justice is done it will be changed.

The matter of railroad taxation having become of great importance to Duluth, because of its large amount of railroad property that pays no local taxes and assessments, The Herald has been at some pains to get together information regarding the manner in which railroads are taxed in other states, and it presents the results of its investigation herewith.

> Railroad taxation is perhaps of greater importance to Duluth than to any other city in the state. The railroads have large terminals here, running along the water front and fronting upon the most valuable business property in the city. Though all this involves large expense in fire, police and general protection, the entire tax goes to the state, and the city gets nothing whatever in return.

Streets that must be paved adjoin railroad property, and as the railroads are also exempt from local improvement assessments, this expense, too, is thrown back upon the general taxpayers. Much of this paving is necessary because of the presence of the railroads, and it is done that there may be free access to the railroad stations and warehouses. Yet the city bears the whole expense.

For these reasons the Duluth Real Estate exchange has recently given this matter considerable attention, and it has endcavored to find, if possible, some way out of the difficulty.

The first thought is to ask the legislature to apportion the taxes it receives from railroads to the subdivisions in which the railroad property lies, in order that they may get some benefit from the taxes. As it is now, the state takes the entire railroad tax. This method of relief, however, appears to be beyond hope. Residents of sections more or less remote from railroads, and of sections that would benefit comparatively little from apportionment, oppose such a change, and there is little or no hope of ever getting such a law through the legislature. If it were not for the railroad taxes the

NO END TO REFUGEES

List From Frisco at Los Angeles as Big as Ever.

Los Angeles, Jan. 15.—The list of San Francisco refugees dependent on the Los Angeles citizens relief fund is as large as it ever has been. Capt. F. Edward Gray, secretary of the relief commission says he is "puzzled to know when the stream of refugees will end."

About $2,000 a month still is being spent to relieve the necessities of the refugees.

Of the original fund of $100,000, $35,000 has been spent for San Francisco refugees. Ten thousand dollars of the amount has been sent to Chile. In response to a call from the rehabilitation committee of the relief and Red Cross committees in San Francisco, $10,000 was sent north last week by H. S. Gurley, assistant secretary of the chamber of commerce.

MEN OF WEALTH AFTER A TOGA

Three Rhode Island Millionaires Strive for the Senate.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 15.—Three men of vast wealth are candidates for the United States senate, before the Rhode Island legislature today. They are George Peabody Wetmore, the incumbent, who has served two terms; Col. Samuel Pomeroy Colt of Bristol, and Col. R. H. I. Goddard of this city. So uncertain has been the contest that before the legislature assembled shortly before noon for the balloting, it seemed as if the contest could not be settled without several days of voting.

Senator Wetmore and Col. Colt are Republicans and Col. Goddard, while an independent Republican, has been selected by the Democrats.

DULUTH MEN FARE WELL ON ALL THE COMMITTEES

Given Important Chairmanships in Both the Senate and House.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—This was another resolution day in the house. Representative Bendixen of Morgan introduced a joint resolution calling for two senators and three representatives to investigate the condition of the public mineral lands, the resolution pointing out that some iron lands have got away, and that the state's revenues from them are wholly inadequate. Senator Cooke of Wabasha introduced the same resolution in the senate, and both went over to tomorrow. Representative Knutson introduced a resolution providing for a house committee of five to investigate the Hill ore lands deal with the Steel company, stating that it is practically a railroad deal, and that the Great Northern charter does not permit it to deal in ore lands. The resolution was carried without a dissenting vote. W. A. Nolan of Grand Meadow offered a resolution providing for a joint committee of two senators and three representatives to investigate the lumber trust, in view of its exorbitant prices and the fact that it will sell lumber only to dealers. A motion of debate by Representative Rachle sent it over to tomorrow.

Representative Brady of St. Paul offered a resolution providing for a house committee of five to look into the project of providing a governor's mansion in St. Paul, which was carried.

REPORT OF CITY CLERK

Duluth Had Big Revenue From Licenses in 1906.

Four More Saloons in Business Than in 1905.

The annual report of City Clerk H. W. Cheadle contains a few items of interest to Duluthians.

During the year 1906 the city's income from liquor licenses was $176,000, four more saloons doing business within the limits than during 1905.

The 131 hacks and drays of the city paid in to the city $486.96, and 24 pool and billiard tables netted $473.50 in license fees.

Twenty-five employment offices paid $2,081.57, and the 1,798 male dogs in Duluth were each taxed $1 apiece.

Peddlers to the number of 243 were transient members of Duluth's population during the year and they paid license fees amounting to $1,562, while the eighty-six automobiles owned in the city each paid a $2 tax, making a total of $172. These with other minor license fees bring the total of license income of Duluth for 1906 to $185,117.53.

The table of orders signed by the clerk is misleading as it gives no idea of the city's business during the past year. The clerk has nothing to do with park, fire department, water and light plant, municipal court, library or interest funds, and the total disbursements, as shown by the clerk's report, will be something over $1,000,000 less than that shown by the treasurer.

General fund	$155,110.81
Public works fund	112,240.15
Health department fund	9,827.72
Police fund	63,024.51
Municipal court supplies	855.36
Water fund	41,022.93
Light fund	31,486.39
Printing, supplies, etc.	11,228.41
Salary fund	36,947.50
Permanent improvement	62,482.15
Permanent improvement revolving fund	214,599.93
Total disbursements	$740,856.15

HOMESTEADERS LEAVE HOMES

Washington, D. INDUSTRIAL WORKERS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I noticed in your issue of Jan. 5 a Goldfield dispatch concerning the strike of I. W. W. miners at Goldfield in which the statement is made that the I. W. W. miners are fighting for the right to rob their employers. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The I. W. W. were organized less than two years ago with the whole Western Federation of Miners as an integral part of the oragnization. We are an economic industrial organization. We have no political affiliation whatever and we are not, as has been reported, connected with the Socialists in any way. Any man or woman who works is eligible to membership. We ask no questions as to creed, politics or previous union affiliation. We do not believe that any man or women is above the law, or has the right to disobey the law in any particular. We believe in uniting every man or woman who works in one organization for the purpose of advancing the interests of the workers and protecting them in their rights, but we will not use the power of this rapidly growing organization to protect any man who is dishonest with his employer or who will not give an honest day's work for an honest day's pay.

We believe in selling our labor to the highest bidder and then giving the purchaser good work, in return for good money. We have at present something like 70,000 members and are going forward by leaps and bounds. We carry no club for anyone, but are actuated simply by a desire to so improve the condition of the working class that every man will be able to give his family an education such as every child should have, and also to give every workingman as large a share as possible of the wealth created by his labor.

RECLAMATION OF SWAMP LANDS

Provided for in a Bill Introduced by Senator Clapp.

Washington, Jan. 15.—An extensive plan for the reclamation of swamp and overflowed lands will be considered at an early meeting of the senate committee on public lands. The scheme is advanced in a bill introduced by Senator Clapp, which provides for the establishment of a "drainage fund" from all moneys received from the sale of public lands in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin, except the 5 per cent set aside by law for educational and other purposes.

Under the bill the secretary of the interior is directed to make examinations and surveys for construction of works for the drainage of swamp lands and to report to congress on or before July 1, each year as to the result. The reports are to include estimates of all contemplated works, the quantity and the location of the lands which can be reclaimed and all facts relative to the practicability of the proposed projects.

STORE CLOSED.

Popular West End Clothing Store Preparing For Big Sale.

People in the busy Twentieth avenue west district couldn't quite understand at first why it was that the S. W. HILL STORE, 1926 W. Superior St., didn't open as usual Monday morning, but everyone is wise to the fact now that this store is preparing for a big sale, and that the failure to open was a result of the necessity to mark down prices and to re-ticket every article before the sale opens Wednesday.

All day yesterday and today, a half score or more of extra clerks have been engaged in making the necessary arrangements preparatory to the opening day.

Asked as to the reason for this unusual proceedure on the part of Mr. Hill (for Mr. Hill never had a sale before of this magnitude), he replied to the reporter that he had about $10,000 more stock than he wanted at this time, and that as he had in contemplation some extensive alterations, he had found such a sale imperative. The sale gives every evidence of being exceptionally successful, for everyone knows the character of Mr. Hill's business methods and that he caters to the patronage of some of the best dressers in the West end. For this reason scores will board the car and take in the sale, for it seems to be a sort of "save a half and pay a half" sale. Every article in the store is cut, some to much less than cost of goods. See advertisement elesewhere.

BASSETT IS REMOVED

As a Referee in Bankruptcy for Accepting a Fee.

St. Paul, Jan. 15.—Alfred S. Bassett of Faribault, referee in bankruptcy, was yesterday removed from office by Judge Lochren in the United States district court, after hearing arguments by the attorneys.

Bassett was accused of taking a fee for drawing up a schedule in bankruptcy and practically acting as attorney for a petitioner in bankruptcy.

He appeared through his attorney, Charles L. Bachelor, in court, and the plaintiffs, creditors of the bankrupt, were represented by John S. Bradford of St. Paul.

WEST DULUTH

LONG WALK IN THE COLD

Party of Curlers Had to Hike From Car Barns.

Plymouth Congregational Church Will Hold Annual Meeting.

Curling at the bonspiel at Duluth is great sport in the opinion of a majority of the members of the Western club, but when a three-mile walk in below zero weather, in the middle of the night, is thrown in for good measure, the sport is not quite so agreeable. So think the members of one of the rinks which represent the Western club at the bonspiel.

The contests at the big rink in Duluth, last evening, were interesting in the extreme, and the contestants took little thought of the passing time. Several of the Western rinks finished in plenty of time to get to their homes by midnight, but one of the rinks, composed of a number of the best curlers of the Western end of the city, did not leave the rink until nearly 1 o'clock.

When they started to board what they thought was the last car home, the conductor told them that he was going to the car barns only. The car barns are at Twenty-sixth avenue west and only about half way to Duluth, so there was nothing for it but to walk the rest of the way. None of the party seemed to think of getting a cab.

It cooled their ardor for the curling game for a while, but they were all as anxious to get into the fray at the bonspiel as ever this morning, and are going in to win.

YEARLY CHURCH MEETING.

Members of Plymouth Congregational Church Will Hear Reports.

The members and congregation of the Plymouth Congregational church will hold their annual meeting at the church this evening, following a supper served by the women of the congregation to the members and friends. The pastor, Rev. H. W. Johnson, will call the meeting to order, and the reports of the church treasurer, clerk and other officers and of committees will be read.

The church had a very successful year during 1906, and is free from debt, with some money in the treasury. It is still being partly supported by the aid of the mission board, and it is expected that this donation will be continued another year.

The following officers will be elected: Trustee, deacon, church clerk, church treasurer and Sunday school superintendent. Several committees, including one on music, will be appointed.

Monthly Dances.

The monthly dancing party given by the Royal League club will take place tomorrow evening at Wade's hall. The preparations has been completed and the invitations have been out for several days. The entertainment committee has been busily at work decorating the hall and the walls are very prettily strung with bunting and flags.

VITAL STATISTICS OF DULUTH FOR PAST YEAR

Total Number of Births Exceeded the Deaths by 612.

Health Commissioner Will Again Recommend Garbage Collection.

The natural increase in the population of the city of Duluth for the year 1906, was 612, according to the statistics of the health department.

In other words, the number of births for the year exceeded the number of deaths by that number. The total number of births was 1,618 and the total number of deaths, 1,006.

Until Health Commissioner Murray makes his report, it is impossible to accurately arrive at the death rate of the city, although a fairly accurate estimate can be made.

In figuring the death rate it is only fair to the city to subtract from the total number of deaths the number of stillborn children, all sick persons shipped in from outside towns who die in Duluth hospitals, and those who die from accidental causes. This is done in all other cities, and it is the only means of arriving at any death rate that will give an idea of the conditions of the city in regard to the healthfulness of its climate.

In 1905 there were 64 stillborn children, so that 70 would be a fair estimate for 1906. The number of outside patients dying in Duluth hospitals was 207, so that about 225 would be a fair estimate for 1906. The total number of deaths from accidental causes in 1905 was 43, so that 50 would not be an unfair estimate for last year. This would make a total of 345 deaths which should not figure in the death rate, and do not so figure in other cities of the country.

Figuring on a population of 81,000, which the last directory gives the city, the death rate for the year would be about 8.17.

The exact rate cannot be figured out until the employes of the health department go over the record for the year, and figure out the exact number of deaths that should be taken from the reports for the causes given above.

Even then the death rate is more or less of a guess, as the population of the city must be merely estimated.

The statistics in regard to contagious diseases will not show quite such a favorable condition of affairs as they did in 1905, owing to the epidemic of dyphtheria which visited the city last fall. The epidemic got a start, owing to the failure of several families to observe the quarantine regulations, and the health department had to make several arrests before the regulations were observed. The epidemic was then soon under control, and at the present time there are only a very small number of cases in the city. As far as scarlet fever and smallpox were concerned, however, the city has a clean record. There were no native cases of smallpox during the year, and only a few scarlet fever cases.

The city has been very free of typhoid fever, and for weeks at a time, there would not be a single case on record.

The statistics on tuberculosis will prove interesting. The monthly records show that there has been a steady and marked decrease in the number of cases as compared with the corresponding months last year, and this is attributed largely to the effects of the milk inspection ordinance.

The question of the proper collection of the city's garbage will in all probability be the principal feature of Dr. Murray's report to the council, which will be filed next week.

Last year the council took this matter up and attempted to arrange for a system of collection, founded on principles of good sanitation. The deal fell through, however, owing to the opposition that was raised to it in several quarters.

The problem is of growing importance, and it will doubtless be taken up again at an early date. At the present time, the garbage is collected in a hap hazard manner by individuals. No compulsory collection is in effect, and many of the citizens do not dispose of their garbage until it becomes offensive, or until they are ordered to do so by the health department.

The crematory is now in good working order, but it is not furnished with enough refuse to keep it running. The aim of the health department is to establish a municipal system of collection in sanitary steel wagons, and this recommendation will be embodied in the report of the health commissioner.

The report will also contain a review of the work of the Duluth laboratory, where the water supply is tested at frequent intervals, and diagnosis made of diphtheria, tuberculosis and typhoid germs.

The financial report of the department for the year contains nothing of special interest. The department has kept within the allowance made it by the conference commission, and while some certificates of indebtedness may have to be issued to carry it over until March, it will not exceed its appropriation for this year.

BILL URGED ONCE MORE

Council Wants Permission to Bond City for Lighting Plant.

Smithville Dog Tax and Joe Sheehy, Bother Committee.

The municipal ownership of the electric lighting plant was brought into the limelight again at last night's council meeting on a motion by Alderman Wilson that the bill allowing cities of over 50,000 population to issue bonds in excess of the five per cent maximum allowed by law, for the purpose of erecting or purchasing a suitable electric light plant, which was endorsed by the council two years ago, should be again submitted to the state legislature with a second endorsement from the council.

There is some question whether such a bill would be necessary when the bonds are to be used for such a purpose, as the city would have the plant to show for the expenditure, and the bonds would in reality be on the plant, not on the city. The bill is therefore more of a test to determine the position of the legislature on this point than anything else, though its passage would of course permit the issue of such bonds as would be necessary for the construction of "an electric light and power plant, or a plant for the distribution of light and power from electric current, in order that this city and its inhabitants may derive the full benefits to which they are entitled by reason of the development of the local water power furnished by the power company," as Alderman Wilson's motion described it.

Should the bill pass the legislature, it will probably mean another popular vote on the question of purchasing the plant.

For the past two sessions the council has had what it known as a legislative committee appointed from its membership, whose duty it is to guard the city's interests in the state legislature. President Tessman made his appointments last night, and Aldermen Wilson, Haven and McEwen will act on this committee during the coming year.

Another proposed bill which has been before the city fathers before, was again brought forward last night by Alderman Haven. His resolution directed the city attorney to draw up and submit for the approval of the council a bill providing for the exemption from taxation of all municipal, school and county bonds. The object of this move is to make the bonds more tempting to the prospective purchaser, for, while in reality a comparatively small proportion of the holders of bonds are assessed for them, the three per cent tax on them which is supposed to be levied leaves a very small margin of profit for the investor, and proves a very effective block for the sale of the bonds.

This bill was brought before the council last summer at the time the council authorized the issue of the water and light bonds for proposed extensions, and was approved, but no action was taken by the state legislature upon it. Alderman Haven's motion was passed without opposition.

There are six dogs in Smithville. These six dogs, and Joseph Sheehy have taken up most of the time of the committee on police and license since the last meeting of the council, and while the committee reported on the Sheehy matter, they are still deliberating on the dog question.

Sam, Towser, Fido, Rover, Sport and Grover are the dogs' names and the owners of the said dogs are seeking for said Sam, Towser, Fido, Rover, Sport and Grover, a privilege not granted to other canines throughout the city. The citizens of Smithville, in short, don't get police protection, and in view of the fact that they pay for police protection, they want their money back by being exempted from dog taxes. The matter was brought up before the council at last meeting, but the committee was unable to report on it last evening and it was laid over one week.

Joe Sheehy was easier. He is backing McCabe for an employment license, and in view of the council's present attitude toward Mr. Sheehy, prospective candidate for alderman in the Fifth ward, who is also waiting the result of his appeal to the supreme court on a jail sentence given him by the local court for criminal libel on Assistant City Attorney McKeon, said McCabe might have managed better without his backer. Alderman Moore stated that in view of Sheehy's present connections with the city government he thought he was hardly the man to be granting a license to, and the matter was laid on the table indefinitely.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company, in response to a request from the council at its last meeting, announced that if the city would grant them a site at the corner of Garfield avenue and Superior street, for a more definite period than that defined in the term "temporary permission" which the council used in its communication to the company, for a term of three or five years, they would construct a waiting room there similar to that at the foot of the Seventh avenue west incline.

is to be done with it. Gates moved its adoption this morning, and S. D. Peterson wanted to lay it over for a day; Stokes of Minneapolis moved its indefinite postponement, and Peterson then moved that it be laid on the table. This motion was lost, 50 for and 62 against, and then Gates, having learned of the caucus plan, consented to let it go over to tomorrow.

Lieutenant Governor Eberhart issued a statement with his committee appointments that no senators or anybody else had attempted to dictate the selections. The house received a communication from the Duluth board of trade expressing its willingness to co-operate in the proposed investigation of its business. Many bills were introduced, including the following: A. G. Johnson, making electric railways give eight tickets for a quarter; Representative Christenson, putting electric railways under the railroad commission; Randall, placing excise tax of 1 per cent on capital stock of sleeping car companies; Hicks, forbidding all kinds of passes and free privileges; Adams, abolishing private banks; Senator Wilson, creating a state law reform commission of five lawyers to suggest law amendments to legislature; Collier, raising salaries of state officers to following figures: Governor $7,500; chief justice supreme court, $7,500; justices, $7,000; other state officers, $4,000, except $6,000 for attorney general; Wilson, forbidding courts to set aside judgments for error unless the error caused miscarriage of justice; Gunn, paying judges in his district $5,000; Gunn, for a state normal school at Cass Lake Canfield, making voidable all contracts in violation of anti-trust laws; Wilson, requiring patent medicines to be labelled warning public if there is alcohol or dope in them.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

HORRIBLE DEATH

Hanlon, Washington county, Pa., where Mr. Black died several days ago after suffering from hydrophobia, for nearly a week while his six relations watched at his bedside trying to relieve his struggles.

The attending physicians ordered all who helped care for the dying man to come to Pittsburg and take the treatment.

The patients are almost unnerved by their experiences in the death room and their own fears.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

The Grand Marais News of Jan. 10 says: Fred Paine and Dave Caribou left Monday morning for Paine's ranch. Luke Malone, who was spending the winter at the place, was found dead, having been frozen to death. He was dressed, lying in a bunk, with his head covered with blankets. All his clothes, including rubbers, were on. Mr. Paine returned to town Tuesday to notify the coroner. At the time Mr. and Mrs. Paine left the ranch, Luke, as he was always called, was cautioned about the dangers of being alone, and possible calamity, but he was anxious to stay and look after the place, being provided with all necessary food and clothing to make him comfortable. Indications pointed to the fact that he had been drinking gin. This he never drank unless sick. He evidently became intoxicated, went to sleep and never woke.

NAIL IN CHILD'S THROAT.

Piece of Iron Removed After Being Imbedded Nine Months.

New York, Jan. 15.—A two-and-a-half-inch nail, which had been concealed for nine months in the bronchial tube of a 2-year-old boy, has been discovered by means of X-rays at Beth Israel hospital and has been successfully removed. The child, Isidor Berkowitz, was seized with a choking fit nine months ago. Doctors found the throat clear, and specialists, to whom the child was taken, could discover nothing to account for the convulsive choking sensation from which he continually suffered.

The child, worn almost to a shadow, was given up as lost, until, at Beth Israel hospital, an X-rays picture disclosed the nail in the right bronchial tube.

Since the removal of the nail, the child's recovery is assured.

MELBA'S DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

New York, Jan. 15.—Mm. Melba's son, George N. Armstrong, her only child, whom she affectionately calls her "little boy," arrived on the Carmania Sunday with his bride, who was Miss Ruba Otway, an heiress.

Young Armstrong is very tall and slender and resembles his mother. The bride, a beautiful girl, is tall, with a brunette complexion and dark eyes. Her husband is a trifle more than 21 years of age, while she is about 18.

The Armstrongs are to remain in America until March, and then will return to London. They intend to visit all the principal cities of the country.

YOUNG GIRL ELOPES

With 80-Year-Old Man Who Has Had Three Wives.

Sheridan, Mont., Jan. 15.—Miss Mattie Cotter, not yet out of her teens, ran away from her father's home, west of here, a few days ago, and it has just come to light that she eloped to Butte with Abraham Seeley, a man more than 80 years of age, who had already had three wives, when he took her to his home. Before she promised at the altar to honor and obey her aged lover, Miss Cotter required him to sign an agreement that if she should die before he does, he will not marry again.

Seeley objected strenuously, but she insisted that if he did not sign she would not marry him, and finally he attached his signature to the instrument. Miss Cotter is well educated and popular. She had many youthful suitors, but did not choose to marry any of them.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

A UNIQUE RECORD.

Not Another Like It in Our Broad Republic.

To give positive home testimony in every locality is of itself unanswerable proof of merit; but when we add to this the continued endorsements from people who testified years ago no evidence can be stronger. A citizen gratefully acknowledges the good received from Doan's Kidney Pills, and when time has tested the cure we find the same hearty endorsement, with added enthusiasm and continued praise. Cases of this kind are plentiful in the work of Doan's Kidney Pills, and such a record is unique in the annals of medicine.

A. Ebmer of 331 Fifth street east, Duluth, Minn., says: "My experience has demonstrated the fact that Doan's Kidney Pills are a remedy of exceptional merit and one that can be relied upon in treating different phases of kidney trouble. Six years ago I suffered from a most distressing, dull, heavy pain in the small of my back and through the loins. It broke my sleep at night, and in spite of the various remedies I used from time to time I had obtained no relief. At length I got Doan's Kidney Pills, and began using them with the most gratifying results. In a short time I found a cure, and this has proved lasting and permanent. I am an earnest advocate of Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in the local newspapers."

EVELETH ACTS ON TAX AMENDMENT

Appoints Committee to Meet Duluth Real Estate Exchange.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald)—The monthly meeting of the Eveleth Business Men's association was held Monday evening in the council chamber of the city hall with Vice President Neil McInnis in the chair in the absence of President J. H. Hearding.

A circular letter to the members of the Duluth Real Estate exchange concerning the desirability of getting a recount of ballots on the taxation amendment had been received by Mayor Jesmore, which was read to the association. The import of the letter was that the taxation amendment made it possible for the legislature to make all mine taxes payable to the state, thus taking away from the range towns and St. Louis county the larger part of its revenue. Vice President McInnis reviewed briefly the history of mine taxation in this state and stated that he considered the danger a serious one, as at present 90 per cent of the mining taxes went into the county treasury, and by far the largest part of the city's revenue came from the mines. James Falk doubted the possibility of changing the result of the vote by a recount as the amendment had been apparently carried by 12,000 majority. J. C. Poole thought that if the confliction over the tax and road amendments was due to a clerical error they would eventually be knocked out by the courts. On motion of G. A. Perham, a committee of three, Mayor Charles Jesmore, Solomon Sax, and Neil McInnis, was appointed to confer with the proper committee from the Duluth Real Estate exchange on this question.

The treasurer of the association made a report showing that there was a balance of $103.20 in the treasury.

In view of the association's prosperous financial condition it was voted that a banquet be given in the near future, and Dr. E. K. Medler, and Ed Millette were appointed to make arrangements for same.

The question of getting a bill through the legislature which would allow a waterworks board to be established was discussed and finally a committee was appointed to confer with Chisholm, Hibbing and Virginia in order that a bill satisfactory to all these towns might be presented. A bill for this purpose was passed by the last legislature, but was vetoed by the governor because the courts had the power of appointing the board. The bill to be drawn up by the committee will place this power in the hands of the city council. Charles Jesmore, J. C. McGilvery, and T. P. Ferry were appointed this committee.

It was voted to appoint a committee which should see what could be done towards getting a new city charter which would more nearly fit the city's present needs. It is especially desirable that more liberal provisions be made regarding the annexation of new territory.

The exhorbitant rates charged and the execrable service given by the Mesaba Telephone company in this city was then viciously attacked by different members of the association. Solomon Sax, James Falk and B. O. Greening were appointed to present the business men's grievances to the managers of the company. The sentiment of the meeting was that telephone rates were higher than in other localities, long distance rates being especially unfair, and that the present service was unbearably bad.

Last year's officers were re-elected as follows: President, J. H. Hearding; vice presidents, Neil McInnis, G. A. Whitman and C. E. Bailey; secretary, Solomon Sax; assistant secretary, G. A. Perham; treasurer, J. A. Robb.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Young Wife Has Her Husband Arrested for Perjury.

Menominee—Action for perjury has been started in the Menominee courts against Donald Ramm, 18 years old, a New London, Wis., boy, who ran away from home several weeks ago and was married to Miss Della Demarais in this city. The complaint in the action was sworn to by the young wife. Before obtaining a liscense in this city, young Ramm was forced to make affidavit that he was 21. After the wedding the father of the groom locked him in a closet and sent the bride home until her husband should reach the age of 21. It is now claimed that young Ramm has been made to see things from his father's standpoint, and has decided to abandon his young wife. Piqued, it is said, by his continued absence and failure to write, Mrs. Ramm has determined to have revenge, and the perjury action is the result. The father of the young man is very prominent in business, political and social circles of Central Wisconsin.

Ontongon.—Attracted by a handkerchief fluttering from a pole, some woodsmen near Matchwood, found the dead body of Alexander Stevens, an aged man, with his head on his pack and his hands across his breast. He had started to walk to a logging camp on snow shoes and had fallen by the wayside, a victim of heart failure. Evidently he had only strength enough to hoist his crude signal.

Marquette.—Mrs. Margaret Hogan, a widow aged 70, who lived alone in a small house, was suffocated in a fire starting from an exploding lamp.

Ironwood. — Every saloon in Ironwood, Bessemer and Wakefield, Mich., was closed all day Sunday. However, it is not considered that the lid is fastened very securely as it will in all probability be raised again shortly. It is said that the presence of Rev. Mr. Rutledge, president of the Northern Temperance society, stirred the officials to action.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Louis W. Hill at Devils Lake Directing Coal Distribution.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Devils Lake—According to Louis W. Hill, vice president of the Great Northern, who is here, personally superintending the work of rushing fuel into towns facing a coal famine, the work is being greatly hampered by a lack of competent help. Train crews are being worked to the limit of endurance, and many hundreds additional men would be used were it possible to obtain their services.

"It is of the utmost importance in the present emergency," said Mr. Hill, "that help should be competent, and competent men are hard to obtain at any price. Incompetent help has proved to be a mighty expensive experiment in railroading during the past few weeks, and it is doubtful if the situation warrants the smashing of trains and the killing of passengers and trainmen in an effort to crowd things beyond a safe working limit."

Mr. Hill says that his company is doing everything it possibly can to relieve the situation, and that if it is in the power of the railroad company to prevent it, there will be no suffering from lack of either fuel or provisions.

Pembina—A party of fifteen started for St. Vincent across the Red river to attend a whist party. The sleigh was overturned and Mrs. F. G. Myrick, Sr., had her arm broken near the wrist, and Former County Judge Conmy had his shoulder dislocated.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sturgis—A sensation has been created here by the declaration of State Attorney Milek of Meade county that he intends to take action to close all dance halls and houses of ill repute. Popular sympathy is divided, but Milek is firm in his stand. He also announces that saloons must remove screens from their doors and keep minors out.

Pierre—Representative Glass has introduced the most drastic railroad bill of the session. It arbitrarily reduces all railroad, telegraph, telephone and express rates 25 per cent from the existing rates on Jan. 1.

Deadwood—The eight-hour ultimatum has been put before two more of the mines of the Black Hills, the Maitland and the Minnesota mines. The Maitland, owned by Alexander Maitland, of Negaunee, Mich., is one of the large producers of the Hills, while the Minnesota mines, owned by a stock company, whose chief officers are in Minneapolis, is at present building a mill. The managers have been informed that they will be given until Feb. 1 to consult their owners or officers and decide whether they will grant the demands.

HIGH LIFE DIVORCE.

Countess and Her Husband Parted by Rich American.

Paris, Jan. 15.—That a former New Yorker, one of the richest individuals in the world, had fallen in love with a beautiful English countess, has already been told. But it is said now that preparations are being made for divorce proceedings in the English courts which will leave the charming aristocrat free to marry her admirer, a widower, who draws a tremendous income from real estate in New York.

The countess met her adorer and benefactor in this city just before Christmas, and he gave her a magnificent landaulette and several other costly Christmas presents.

The American Croesus, who has lived in England for years and owns a splendid and historic mansion there, is traveling in southern Italy and Sicily awaiting the closing of the divorce proceedings, which will create a tremendous sensation in America, England and France. Efforts are being made, however, to arrange that the suit shall not be defended, so as to minimize publicity.

The gentleman concerned shuns notoriety for the sake of his son and daughter, both of whom have married within recent years happily, it seems, although against their father's wishes.

According to one report here, the countess will bring the suit against the earl on the ground of infidelity and cruelty. But then it will be necessary to induce him not to bring counter charges against her. But the king's proctor might intervene to prove the countess not better than her husband, and thereby render divorce impossible on either side.

The countess and her husband have been seen together once since the report that linked her name with that of the millionaire. But the couple's separation is now complete and irrevocable, apparently.

HOW A BUSINESS MAN KEEPS IN GOOD HEALTH.

A friend commenting on the healthy looks of a man who handles a large amount of business, asked him how he stood the strain so well. "It's a simple matter with me," he replied. "I keep fairly good hours, eat about what I like, and make a practice of taking one or two Beecham's Pills generally before I retire. I certainly owe my good health, in a large part, to Beecham's Pills. They keep the stomach and bowels in order, and have a good effect on the liver and kidneys. I had been troubled a bit with insomnia, but Beecham's Pills make me sleep, and so long as a man sleeps and eats well he's all right."

VERDICT OF SIX CENTS

Jury Decides in Favor of Bunch in Injury Suit.

Gives Him Nominal Damages for Beating on Steamer.

The personal injury case of Charles T. Bunch, against the A. Booth company and John B. McLean, has been decided in favor of Bunch for the sum of 6 cents. The jury in the case returned a verdict a little after 9 o'clock last evening.

The suit was begun by Bunch for $5,000 damages for serious injuries claimed by him to have been received while on board the Booth company's steamer, America, last July. McLean, the steward on the America, it was claimed, assaulted Bunch, injuring him about the face and internally. Bunch had been previously employed on the America but had resigned and was on his way to Port Arthur at the time of the trouble.

The case has been on trial since Friday and considerable testimony has been introduced by both sides. That for the boat company was completed yesterday morning and yesterday afternoon the arguments of John Jenswold for Bunch and of Davis & Hollister for the Booth company were heard. The jury went out at about 4:30.

After the Bunch case had been given to the jury yesterday, another personal injury case was brought up for trial, it being the action of Gesidio Farchione, administrator of the estate of Camillo Farchione, against the International Harvester company. Farchione is suing for $5,000 for the value of a human life, as his brother was killed while in the employ of the company.

The complaint alleges that Camillo was employed by the company with a large number of men, Dec. 19, 1905, at one of the mines on the range, and that while on his way to the dumping ground he was struck from behind by one of the trains, and the engine and eight cars ran over his body.

The dead man left three children and his wife and the brother, Gesidio, who was appointed as administrator, are attempting to get the judgment for their support. J. De La Motte is conducting the case for Farchione, and the International Harvester company is represented by Howard T. Abbott.

AFTER THE CENTRAL

Strong Resolution Introduced in the Illinois Legislature.

Election of Harahan as President is Declared Illegal.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—Senator Evans of Kane county today introduced in the senate a resolution providing for an investigation of the recent election of J. T. Harahan to the presidency of the Illinois Central railway. The resolution declares that the election was illegal in that it was held outside the borders of the state. The resolution, which, under the rules, went over till tomorrow, is as follows:

Whereas, his excellency, the governor, in a special message to our general assembly specifically charges the Illinois Central railway, a corporation created by the state with having grossly violated that portion of its grant, which provides for the payment to the state of Illinois of 7 per cent of the gross proceedure, receipts or income of said railroad corporation, and has requested an appropriation by the general assembly of the sum of $150,000 to be used by himself and the attorney general in proceedings to be instituted against said railroad company to enforce its contract obligatory to the state; and

Whereas, it has also come to the knowledge of this body that the board of directors of the Illinois Central Railway company recently held an election at the city of New York at which said election J. T. Harahan was elected president of the said company, and that the said Harahan holds out and pretends that he is the de jure as well as de facto president of the said company; and

Whereas, this body is advised and believes that the said election is illegal, having been held without the boundaries of the state, in violation of the laws and declared policy of this state; and

Whereas, the present board of directors of the said Illinois Central Railway company is composed of twelve persons, and two of whom only are citizens and residents of this state, the remaining ten directors being non-residents, and

Whereas, Section 11 of our constitution expressly declares that a majority of the directors of any railway corporation now incorporated under, or to be hereafter incorporated by this state, shall be citizens and residents of the state, and

Whereas, the enforcement of obedience to the laws and constitution are quite as important to this government as enforcement of obligation of a contract, and legal proceedings may become necessary to enforce obedience to our laws; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that a special committee, composed of five persons belonging to this body, be appointed by the president to make a thorough investigation and examination of the subject matter, as aforesaid, and to that end to employ such counsel as said committee shall deem necessary, and to report the result of their said investigation, together with said recommendations, as they shall deem advisable, both as to course of procedure against the railroad corporation as well as the amount appropriated for such purpose.

The President on Foreign Soil.

For the first time in the history of the United States the chief executive has gone beyond the confines of our country and has set foot on foreign soil. The Panama canal was the immediate purpose and motive of the visit. In 1853 was the first time the public had an opportunity to test the merits of the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, but since then it has established an unequalled record of cures of stomach, liver and bowel disorders. In June, 1906 the pure food and drug commissioners passed their famous pure food bill and the fact that the Bitters, upon analysis, was found to be compounded strictly in accordance with its provisions, proves it to be a safe medicine to cure indigestion, dyspepsia, costiveness, billousness, colds, female ills or malaria fever. WON BY THREE INCHES.

United States Consular Report: How an American machinery agent secured an order in Japan is related by the commercial agent of New South Wales in the Far East, as follows:

It was a question of some lathes for a large factory which was being started. They were required of a certain size. The agent for the British firm said: "That is three inches longer than they are made, and we can make no alteration." The American said: "I will make them to any size you like." The American secured the order.

CHINESE GAMBLER'S PENANCE.

A Chinese cook, named Chin Kan, had been engaged by a wealthy Chinese in Ho street in Canton, says the Singapore Times. All the money he earned he lost in gambling. On one occasion his master paid him some money for the provisions he supplied. The cook lost all the money at one stake. Finding that his debts were accumulating day by day, on the twenty-fourth day he went into the kitchen and chopped off the forefinger of his left hand as a punishment and warning in order to relinquish his evil habits of gambling in the future. He became unconscious through the pain, but was brought round again in a few minutes.

FALLS INTO ICY WATER

Jacob Wright Has Terrible Experience Early This Morning.

Was Found Clinging to Ice in Sixth Avenue Slip.

Totally exhausted, and almost unconscious from cold and exposure, Jacob Wright was fished out of the Sixth avenue slip this morning by T. Torkleson, barn boss for the Armour Packing company. With the thermometer hovering around 22 degs. below zero, a more terrible experience than that of the unfortunate man can hardly be imagined.

Torkelson, while going to his work in the barn about 5 o'clock this morning, saw the dark figure on the ice in the slip, and hardly believing that it could be a human being, went out to investigate. He found Wright unable to move and barely conscious, clinging to the edge of the ice in the hole where he had broken through. He had long since became so exhausted that only the fact that the sleeves of his coat had become solidly frozen to the ice kept him from sinking into the water below.

Working his way cautiously up toward the man in the water, Torkleson managed to drag him on to the firm ice, and a team was quickly summoned, by the aid of which the unfortunate man was conveyed to the nearest warm shelter. The police patrol was then telephoned for and Wright was hurried to St. Mary's hospital, as it was feared he might be seriously frozen. He is recovering rapidly, however, and it is probable that he will be about again in a few days, none the worse for his adventure.

When first taken from the water, Wright collapsed entirely and had to be carried to the wagon. It was about as nerve racking an experience as any one could endure. Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon, he had not recovered sufficiently to explain how he happened to be crossing the ice of the slip at that hour of the morning, and it is not definitely known how long he had been in the water. It could not have been for any great length of time, however, as no human being could withstand the intense cold for very long.

Smith Has Other Troubles.

Getting a bullet under his scalp for annoying Mitchell, the woodsman acquitted of the charge of assault in the second degree, was not the only trouble that John Smith has run up against since his arrival in the city Dec. 5 last. Swanson Is Found Sane.

An examining board of physicians in the probate court, yesterday afternoon, decided that Olof Swanson is not insane and that his mental condition for several days past must have been produced from knockout drops administered by some person who wished to get his money. Swanson has been released from custody and will start for Norway for which country he was bound when the police picked him up near the union depot in a dazed condition. Swanson claims to have had over $100 left when he purchased his ticket to New York. When picked up he had no money. The police found on his person the ticket to New York and letters of credit of Norway banks of the value of about $250.

It is alleged in Johnson's affidavit that his wife owns two lots in the West end valued at $400 each, a double house on Nineteenth avenue west, valued at $8,500 and some property near St. Croix Falls, Wis., and Beaver Bay, Minn.

Sinclaire, of this city, will continue to act in that position. The bill of sale was entered at the United States customs office yesterday.

Must Pay the Costs.

The clerk of the United States circuit court received a mandate yesterday from the clerk of the United States circuit court of appeals of the Eighth district, which dismisses the case of Frank Cantwell against the Northern Pacific Railway company for want of jurisdiction and allows the railway company the original judgment of $20 against Cantwell, for payment of costs incurred in the trial. The case which was brought for personal injuries, was tried in the circuit court in August, 1905. It was appealed on an error and was heard last September by the court of appeals.

BLUFF BY JAY GOULD.

New York Sun: Recalling early days in the express business, an officer of one of the largest companies recently told this story:

"Gould and Fiske then had hold of the Erie," he said, "and the United States Express company had all the express business on the road. The contract was about to expire and Gould wanted an arrangement more profitable to the Erie.

"'The Erie's doing all the work and you're making all the money,' Gould said to the express people. 'You ought to do some of the work and give the railroad a chance at the money.'

"The express company officials demurred. Their profit, they insisted, was no more than they were entitled to and they refused to shade the contract a penny. Gould insisted on a decrease, but they remained obdurate and eventually let the Erie president understand—what he very well knew—that no other company would compete against the United States for the Erie business. All the companies at that time were in an agreement to maintain rates.

"'All right,' said Gould at the conclusion of the interview, 'you've no objection, I guess, to my going into the express business for myself. It looks better than railroading.

"The express people replied that Gould could organize all the companies he wanted to. They thought it was all bluff, but things that come to their attention soon weakened their faith in this idea. Gould was going around among his associates talking up an express company scheme, officials of other roads were told that a new company would be in the field to bid for their business and the papers began to talk about the new Gould Express company.

"The express officials, however, saw none of Gould's money going into the enterprise and stood pat. Presently it was reported that he had bought twenty-four big express safes. Was this talk or was it business? the expressmen asked themselves. They set to work investigating and they discovered that the report was true. Gould had actually bought and paid for the safes—safes cost money in those days, too—and he was negotiating for all the other equipment required.

"Now, thoroughly convinced of Gould's sincerety, the express company came to terms. Gould got the best contract from a railroad standpoint that had been known up to that time. The clause in the contract that the United States Express company considered most valuable to itself was one stipulating the abandonment of Gould's express plans.

"It was all a bluff on Gould's part, except buying the safes. For that matter the purchase was, of course, part of the bluff, but Gould had actually bought and paid for them unconditionally. Nevertheless he lost nothing on the deal, for as soon as friendly relations were established with the express officials he persuaded them they could use the safes in their business and sold them to them at a little better than cost."

"Was Thomas C. Platt at the head of the United States Express company then?" the man telling the story was asked.

"No," was the reply, "neither Platt nor any other senator."

NOT THE SAME GIRLS.

Portland Oregonian: The heroic days have gone and with them that cherished treasure "the girl I left behind me." She is a victim of the iconoclastic development of the higher civilization. What a memory picture she was to the boys who went to the Crimea in the fifties and our own in blue and gray in the sixties! Clinging, tearful, tender, ah, yes! There was a pang and tightening of the heart as well as of the arms. The goodbys that were sometimes for years and sometimes forever caused a falter in the swinging route step as fife played the notes and drumbeat timed them of the rattling air that should be immortal. Now—well, "the girl I left behind me" sticks her wad of gum on the doorjamb, yells "So long, you diamond back!" watches the tail lights of the troop train whisk around the curve and promptly forgets gum and soldier boy while making a date over the 'phone with the youth who has sense enough to stay at home and earn ice cream and candy money.

NOT UP TO THE MARK.

A correspondent contributes the following, says the Los Angeles Times:

"A vivid recollection comes to my mind of a day spent in the Louvre. Fortune favored me in the undisturbed possession of the forever hallowed place where the 'Venus di Milo' unexcelled preaches the glorious gospel of 'Mens sana in corpore sano.' Lost in the vision of a return of perfect womanhood in the form and expression of this living woman in marble, I was suddenly aroused by the hurried entrance of a young man of the common tourist type. It was easy to see that he was 'doing Paris' in the quickest possible time.

"He was escorted by a guide who tried to arrest his attention at this point of rapid passing through the famous museum. Gesticulating, and using the limited English at his command, the guide pointed to 'this noble brow, this neck and bust unexcelled by any imitator,' etc., carried away in genuine ecstacy, inspired by the sight of that immortal goddess.

"Suddenly he was interrupted by the restless tourist saying:

"'Say, come on! I-g-guess we have prettier pieces of statuary in the states than this dirty one without any arms.'

"A shrug of the shoulders, a last glance at the insulted woman among women, a glance of deepest admiration mingled with humble apology, were the horrified guide's only answer."

TWAIN AS A CRITIC.

A successful young novelist was praising the critical powers of Mark Twain, says the Los Angeles Times.

"I once had the honor of reading a tale of mine to Mr. Clemens," he said, "and, thanks to his criticism, the tale was greatly improved. Originally it was too high-flown; he brought it down to earth, and made it homelier and truer.

"For instance, the tale concluded with these words:

"Mable's lovely eyes dropped for answer, a faint flush tinted her cheek, and she gave him both her hands; and there in the old orchard, in the shade of the heavy-fruited trees, he drew her to his breast, and, raising her long ringlets to his lips, kissed them reverently.

"Mr. Clemens, at this ending, blew a cloud of smoke thoughtfully into the air, and as he watched the smoke dissolve, he drawled:

"'What do you think now, honestly, of a young man who would go nibbling at a girl's back hair when she had her face with her?'"

You didn't know, of course, that your neighbor up the street owned some suburban lots—but you know, of course, that he has a new automobile? Well, he traded those lots for it—and a Herald want ad. made it possible for him to do it.

PROMISES REFORMS

Governor Stuart Will Do All in His Power.

Desires Expenditures on Pennsylvania Capitol Investigated.

"The platform upon which I was elected," the governor said, "promised many important reforms which the people had been demanding for years, and which, in some instances, had been persistently denied them. I gave my word to the people that if elected governor of Pennsylvania I would, to the extent of my power, insist upon the fulfillment of those promises. All of the reform pledges of that platform shall constitute a part of the policy of my administration; and without any assumption of dictating legislative action their early enactment into laws is urgently recommended."

The governor recommends that trolley companies be given the right to carry freight and be given the power of eminent domain. He suggests that a state railway commission be appointed with powers similar to those conferred upon the interstate commerce commission, advocates a maximum railroad passenger rate of two cents a mile and recommends that legislation be enacted to make effective that portion of the state constitution which prohibits railroads from engaging in any other business than that of common carriers.

Governor Stuart makes an appeal for better pure food laws and suggests the advisability of making all pure food legislation conform as nearly as possible to the federal laws upon the same subject. In connection with the prosecution of violators of pure food laws, the governor asks the legislature to consider the advisability of requiring manufacturers or others sending such commodities into the state to have resident agents upon whom legal service can be made, enabling the authorities to hold them responsible instead of innocent retailers who buy food, drugs and beverages on the representation that they are pure.

Stringent legislation for a closer scrutiny of banks and trusts companies is also recommended.

In the matter of controversy over the furnishings and decorations of the new state capitol which was one of the principal issues in the campaign of last November, the governor calls for an investigation by a joint committee of the two houses of the general assembly. He recommends that authority be given him to employ special counsel and auditors, acting under the attorney general, to appear before the committee and assist in the investigation. The state capitol cost more than $3,000,000 of which $5,000,000 was expended for decorations and furnishings. It was asserted during the recent campaign that there were "gross over-charges" in the expenditure of the $5,000,000 and the matter has been under investigation for several months not only by the Pennypaker administration but by other interests.

Investigation to be Made Similar to New York Life.

Perkins and Charles S. Fairchild, has been begun by the district attorney. President John R. Hegeman of the Metropolitan has been asked to appear personally at the criminal court building.

Assistant District Attorney Kresel, has charge of the investigation into the books of the Metropolitan Life. Skips Are Chosen to Take Part in International.

Duluth Rinks Continue to Make a Good Showing.

Four skips were chosen this morning to represent the Americans in the international match, which will be played tomorrow evening at the curling rink.

The four skips are Dunbar of St. Paul; Labatt of Minneapolis; Reedall of Phillips, Wis.; and Hurdon of Duluth.

They will be opposed by Rochon, Carson, Gowler and Waugh of Winnipeg.

The eight rinks will meet in the match for the beautiful silver trophy, and the total number of points will be counted. Should the American rinks win, all the American rinks in the bonspiel will play down for its possession. Should the Canadians win, they will play off for it.

Play in the Duluth and Canadian Soo events was continued at 9 o'clock this morning, and the games were not concluded until nearly noon. Play in the Duluth Curling club trophy is rapidly drawing to a close and it looks as if the possession of the trophy might be decided by tomorrow night. All of the rinks are in the second round of the contest, while four, skipped by Reedal of Phillips, and Hurdon, Duncan and Brewer of Duluth have weathered the second round of the contest and are ready for the third. Reedal and Hurdon were looked to settle their match this afternoon at two, and Rochon, the crack Winnipeg skip, was scheduled to meet Dunbar, the famous St. Paul skip, in the second round of the contest.

This morning Reedal's defat of Macrae was one of the prettiest games of the contest, the Phillips man winning 12 to 10. Duncan of Duluth won by a narrow margin from Grace of Superior, 14 to 13, and Labatt of Minneapolis defeated McLeod, also of the Flour City, by the big score of 21 to 8. Bradley forfeited to Rochon, and Harry Hurdon had an easy time with Lorimer of St. Paul, winning out by 14 to 7. W. D. Brewer succeeded in rolling up a score of 12 points to Gowler of Winnipek's 6.

Three games of the Canadian Soo trophy contest were played off this morning, Hewitt's victory over McGregor of St. Paul being the most sensational, as the West Duluth man was two down at the beginning of the twelfth end, and succeeded in placing three safe ones in the last frame. Dunlop defeated Weir of Calumet 13 to 11, in a pretty game, and Brewer had an easy time with Halcron of Bowesmount, the final score being 13 to 6.

Up to noon today the Duluth rinks were showing up in fine style, and the Western club also had won a good share of its games. Hurdon, Duncan and Brewer have reached the third round of the Duluth trophy contest, while in the Canadian Soo event, Duncan, Dunlop, Smith and Frick are still on deck. Maccauley of West Duluth is also still in the running for the Soo trophy, and Hanchett of West Duluth, MacRae, Duncan, Bradley and Hurdon of Duluth were factors in the St. Paul jobbers event up to noon today.

FRICK AFTER SANTA FE.

Pennsylvania Magnate Said to Seek Stock to Block Harriman.

Philadelphia, Jan. 15.—Railroad men here are discussing a story to the effect that the Pennsylvania is planning, through Henry C. Frick, to secure control of the Santa Fe.

The object, it is said, is to block Harriman's vast plan of railroad conquest revealed in the recent interstate commerce investigation. According to the story another big Eastern road is interested with the Pennsylvania railroad in securing the Santa Fe.

For some time Henry C. Frick, who now is more powerful in the councils of the Pennsylvania than under the Cassatt regime, has been disposing of an immense amount of stock which he owns in other roads. Recently he is said to have bought heavily in Santa Fe and to have increased his Pennsylvania holdings.

Significant in connection with the rumor is the announced intention of the Pennsylvania to ask the stockholders to authorize the issue of $200,000,000 new securities at the annual meeting in March.

RIVALS THE KLONDIKE.

New Gold District in Cape Breton Causing Excitement.

Baddeck, Cape Breton, Jan. 15.—The discovery of a gold district said to be as rich as the Klondike, is causing people here to anticipate a rush to this section. Already upwards of 1,000 claims, or areas, as they are called here, have been filed. Ore which assays thousands of dollars to the ton has been taken out of the various places in the district known as the Wagamatcook region, but the general run is of low grade.

Samples of the ore sent here have graded rather high. The belief that there are vast quantities of gold is causing excitement here. Several large expeditions are being organized here, to start in a week or two.

DRINKS ALL HE WANTS

And Drinks It Whenever He Wants It.

"I want what I want when I want it."

A Mich. man, who perhaps never heard Pruette sing the song, wrote the other day concerning Postum Food Coffee: "I am well and hearty. I drink all the Postum Cereal coffee I want and whenever I want it—the more I drink the better I feel.

"I was broken down in health with acid dyspepsia, as the doctors called it; had been sick for five years and failing all the time. I would drink coffee for breakfast and then bloat up, my stomach would be so full of acid I'd belch up gas and have the water brash.

"Then would come heart burn, and a rumbling and cramp in my stomach all night would keep me awake. Then I'd go two or three days without eating, with some improvement. But as soon as I would eat something and drink coffee, I'd be as bad as ever.

"About three months ago I got so bad I thought I'd have to stop everything. I had read about coffee being hurtful, so I told my wife not to make any for me for a while. I thought I'd see for myself.

"In two days I was lost without coffee—was so sick I couldn't eat anything. (The reaction of the coffee drug.) I bought a package of Postum and my wife made it strictly according to directions. You should have seen the change. The whole family now use Postum, and I haven't sour stomach or bloating, rest well at night, am well and hearty. I drink all the Postum I want and whenever I want it. The more I drink the beter I feel.

"Since I left off coffee and began to use Postum my nerves are steady, my head feels clear, I don't get stupid, tired and lazy any more.

"I positively know that coffee was the cause of my trouble and I positively know that quitting it and using Postum Food Coffee has cured me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs. "There's a reason."

BIG GAINS IN TONNAGE

Customs Office Figures Show Increases for Duluth Port.

Records Are Not Accurate, Being Little Better Than Estimates.

The total tonnage in and out of the port of Duluth during the twelve months of 1906 aggregated nearly 12,000,000 tons, according to the approximate figures furnished by the local customs officers in charge of the port. The figures show an increase over the year 1905 of 3,120,772 tons.

During the past year, according to the customs office figures, the total tonnage amounted to 11,928,389 tons, while for the year 1905 the total amounted to 8,807,517 tons. There was a slight falling off in some of the commodities handled, but generally the receipts and shipments show a good healthy growth.

Although the size and capacity of the boats used in the freight traffic on the Great Lakes is continually being enlarged, the number of arrivals and clearances at the Duluth port in 1906 was considerably ahead of that of 1905. During 1905 the total number of clearances from the port was 2,575, while in 1906 the number had increased to 2,697. The arrivals of 1905 were 2,576, and for 1906 they were 2,667.

The coal receipts at the local port during the year were a little more than 100,000 tons ahead of those for 1905. There were 1,563,964 tons received during 1906, while 1905 had a total of only 1,456,678 tons. The increase over last year will be news to some people, as it was thought that the total receipts of coal here during the year were slightly below those for 1905.

The merchandise receipts show a gain of about 10,000 tons, the past year having 42,331, while 1905 had only 31,286. The receipts of nearly all of the other commodities show an increase, some slight, while others amount to considerable in bringing up the grand total tonnage.

The total shipments of iron ore is what brings the total tonnage up to the high figure that it attained, however, there having been a gain of nearly 4,000,000 tons. The total shipments from the local port amounted to 10,455,675 tons for last year, and for the year before 7,743,322, according to the customs reports, although the Duluth, Missabe & Northern figures show nearly 1,000,000 more.

Merchandise shipments for 1906 amounted to a total of 26,834 tons, a gain of about 6,000 tons over 1905. The wheat shipments, as was expected, show a decrease of over 1,000,000 bushels, those for 1906 being 8,355,833 bushels, while for 1905 they were 9,792,825 bushels. Flax shipments showed an increase in 1906 with 5,907,277 bushels for last year, and 5,163,655 bushels for the year previous. There was more flour shipped, also, during 1906, there being 347,680 barrels to 321,843 for 1905.

The lumber shipments for 1905 amounted to 358,132,000 feet, while those for 1905 amounted to 341,757,386 feet. There was a slight decrease in shipments of shingles, but a little over 1,000,000 increase was made in the shipments of laths. The total shingle shipment was 26,478,000 for 1906, and 27,460,000 for 1905.

The total number of boats clearing for Canadian ports during the past year, counting each clearance as a separate boat, amounted to 262, while there were 332 arrivals from Canadian ports. The registered net tonnage in and out of the port from Canadian ports amounted to 616,509.

None of the figures in the books at the customs office have as yet been revised, and they have been given out only as the approximate totals. Neither can they be counted on as accurate when complete, as they are, for the most part, mere estimates given by the captains.

BRAVE IOWA WOMAN

Saves Lives of Two and a House From Fire.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 15.—Saving first her mother from flames, and then extinguishing with her bare hands the burning clothing of her daughter, while her own apparel was aflame, Mrs. Coral Kent, a young and pretty widow, living two miles from here, is a heroine whose bravery can only be paralleled by that of Kate Shelley.

She first found her mother in bed unconscious, with the sheets on fire from a leaking oil lamp. She pulled her mother from bed, stamped out the flames and started down stairs with a lamp. Her child was on the doorstep, and as Mrs. Kent reached the door the lamp exploded, igniting the clothing of the child and herself.

She rolled the child over and over, and when the flames were quenched, put out the fire on her own gown. Then she went upstairs to attend her mother, who was badly burned. The fire happened early in the evening, the grandmother having retired early.

The bride wore a dainty frock of crepe de Paris made en princesse and a small wreath of apple blossoms was the coiffure ornament. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony and the table decorations were bride's roses and tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Derby left for a wedding trip and after their return will be at home at 1217 East Second street.

STUDY CLASS.

Young Women Debate on Immigration Question.

The Mission Study class of the Young Women's Christian association held an especially interesting meeting last evening when the immigration question, which is the subject of study for the year, was debated. "Resolved, that all immigrants should not be allowed to enter the United States," was the subject of discussion and the affirmative was upheld by Miss Marie Ceska and Miss Freda Ryning while the negative side of the question was presented by Miss Abbie Upham and Miss Mae Bell. The debate was an interesting one, greatly enjoyed by the members of the class, and the judges declared the result a tie.

Another study class which has a large number of interested members is the Bible class, which meets at 6:45 Monday evenings with Rev. Upham as leader. The conversations of Christ is the subject of a series of meetings, and last evening the second lesson was enjoyed. The class is at a most convenient hour and many of the members of the educational and gymnasium classes which meet later in the evening attend this class.

BROWNING CLASS

Hears Able Discussion of Poems of Life.

The Evening Browning class of the Twentieth Century club met last evening at the club-room of the library and Rev. John W. Powell, Jr., the lecturer for the year, spoke on the poems of life of the great English poet. Mr. Powell read with clearness and force some of the poems which touched with especial power the phases of the world's life, and discussed them informally. Browning's individuality in presenting an incident which other poets would have described was spoken of and in illustration Mr. Powell read "The Confessional," "My Last Duchess" and "Count Gismond," in which the story from the inside is presented and the incident is realized in a far more dramatic manner than the narrative would give.

"The Boy and the Angel" was read as the poem of life, which presented an appreciation for the dignity of labor, and "Instans Pyrannus" as showing the independence of the man who has the fear of God in his heart, for he need fear no human authority. The evening was one of much profit and enjoyment to the members of the class.

Lace Shawls Made Into Frocks

FROCK WITH LACE SHAWL DRAPERY.

Lace shawls are made into frocks now and are considered particularly smart for dinner and reception wear. They are really used exactly like the materials of which the robes are made, yet whenever it is not absolutely essential to cut in order to make them fit, these handsome laces—many of them heirlooms—are used at the back, as in the illustration, in a coatlike effect that has the appearance of an Empire model. Worn in this way the lace is only lightly sewed to the yoke at the sides and back to keep it in place.

The more elaborate and longer these shawls are, the more expensive and desirable, and a women who possesses one that will make a train—if only a short one—is decidedly fortunate. These laces, besides being unusual are particularly attractive because of the graceful folds in which they may be draped about the body. They are becoming alike to stout and slender women.

What Retail Markets Offer

Nice ham, 30 cents a lb.
Bunnys, 20 cents each.
Veal stew, 10 cents a lb.
Carrots, 12 cents a bunch.
New beets, 12½ cents a bunch.
Tangerine Oranges, 40 cents dozen.
Eggs, 33 cents a dozen.

Wouldn't ham and eggs taste grand? Thin slices of ham frizzled on a broiler over a bed of glowing coals, served with a golden center of yellow, surrounded by delicately browned white—wouldn't it taste fine, though? But, of course, ham and eggs, formerly known as a dish for the plebeians, has now risen to the dignity of a company dish for aristocrats.

It is about time that the folks who insist upon such things indulged in a stew. That last phrase has a vaguely familiar sound of sporty slang, but the marketer is wholly innocent of double meaning. The kind of stew that is meant is the sort that is made of a part of a calf, boiled and combined with carrots and dumplings and such things. Cold weather makes it less objectionable than it is at any other time.

THE EVENING STORY.

THE RIGHT KIND OF A TRAITOR

By Headon Hire,

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Under the lee of Cape Griz Nez two vessels were hove to within fifty yards of each other. From the maintop of both flaunted the tricolour of France, but with this ominous difference, that on the smaller vessel it surmounted the Union Jack of England.

The brigantine Firefly was in the hands of the French. The lumbering old coaster, bound from London to Chichester Harbor, with a general cargo, had been blown off her course by contrary winds to the wrong side of the channel; the 42-gun frigate Alceste had pounced upon her; and now her skipper, Jacob Dempster, was ruefully giving an account of himself on the frigate quarter-deck.

"Ha! say you that?" exclaimed the French captain, who spoke English well. "Your ships is of Bosham, in the harbor of Chichester? Know you the Manor house at Bosham, owned, but not inhabited, by one Squire Bullard?"

"I do—seeing as I live within 100 yards of it," responded the rugged old mariner, sullenly.

"Certain French officers are residing there—prisoners of war on parole?"

"They were when I left for London—three weeks back," said Dempster.

"My brother," continued the captain, "Lieut. Camille Fournier, is one of the prisoners living at the Manor house of Bosham. He cannot attempt to escape himself because of his parole, but that makes no reason why I should not release him by force. I propose to put 100 of my men on the Firefly, which, as a ship of Bosham, will not be suspected till too late for prevention, and run in and effect my purpose.

Jacob Dempster laughed sourly. "I'd like to see you try it," he replied, sourly. "Don't you know that Basham, though a port, lies six miles from the sea up a creek, which is an arm of the inlet known as Chichester Harbor? You'd be stuck on a mud bank before you'd gone a mile up the creek. Where are you going to get your pilot?"

It was the Frenchman's turn to laugh now. "It is you who will pilot us, my friend—in return for your liberty," he said. "My men will remain below for concealment, while you and your crew work the vessel, as though in due course returning home. Then, when we sail away with the French prisoners, I shall leave you and your men behind. If neither you or any of your crew will steer the brigantine up the creek, I will hang you all at the yard-arm within five minutes."

There was a moment's dead silence, and the old skipper turned and faced his crew.

"What say you, my lads?" he asked, quietly. "I'm for hanging."

A lip or two amongst the married men twitched as they thought of the wives and little ones even now watching for the Firefly to come staggering up the creek, but the answer was unmistakable. "We're with you, Jacob," seemed to settle the question unanimously.

Not quite, however, as it proved. One voice among the Firefly's company was silent, and all eyes were turned on the tall, blue-eyed young fellow in the center of the line in amazement. Was Greg Applegarth of all men going to turn traitor? The hanging head and shamefaced countenance pointed that way, and the next moment his words confirmed the surmise. The French captain, whose quick eye had already singled him out as a dissentient, put the question point-blank:

"You, there are not so foolish as these others—you will steer the brigantine to Bosham?"

Avoiding the withering glance shot at him by old Jacob, the young man raised his head for a second and answered: "Yes, I'll pilot her up the creek—if so be as you'll spare my mates' lives as well as mine."

"But certainly—unless they attempt to thwart me," said Fournier, contemptuously.

Greg Applegath was permitted to remain on deck, but Jacob Dempster and the rest of his crew were thrust into the hold, where they passed their time in cursing their comrade's treachery. That a lad of Bosham should consent to steer what, so far as that village was concerned, was an army of Frenchmen up their sacred creek, passed their comprehension.

And that the traitor should be Greg Applegarth was the most astonishing fact of all—especially to old Jacob, who was aware of certain tender passages between the smart young sailor and his own wayward daughter, Peggy. Till the French prisoners of war were quartered at the Manor house, Greg and Peggy had been regarded as good as promised to each other, and it had only been of late, since Camille Fournier had taken to speaking to the girl, that a coldness had sprung up between them.

The arrival of the half dozen gay French officers, some six months before, was regarded as a very doubtful blessing by the simple villagers. The prisoners of war were permitted by the government to rent the Manor house and live there as they pleased, provided they kept to the stipulations of their parole. The effect of the restriction was that they were always loafing about the village with nothing whatever to do but to kill time by making eyes at the women folk.

Camille Fournier, the brother of the captain of the Alceste had early contrived to scrape acquaintance with Peggy Dempster, and the vovacious village beauty had been flattered into allowing a warmer flirtation than she had, perhaps, intended. Possibly she took delight in piquing the jealousy of her faithful admirer Greg.

The Firefly was captured on a Saturday at noon, and it was not till dawn was breaking on Sunday that Greg was called on to act as pilot, when the brigantine was rounding Selsea Bill. Capt. Fournier, pistol in hand, stood close to Greg, alert for the first sign of treachery.

But, if anything, the young man seemed to err on the side of intense caution in the interests of his new employers. Though the rate of progress was slow Fournier did not grumble, seeing that if the wind held from the same quarter it would serve the more important purpose of taking him quickly out again.

And so, creeping on between the golden corn fields, the brigantine emerged from the narrow gut of the winding creek into the broader waters of its termination at the village, just as the bells of Bosham church ceased ringing for morning service.

The captain gave the necessary orders, and at once set about making his dispositions for landing his entire force, except a sufficient guard for the prisoners.

Though the landing entailed several journeys in the Firefly's boats, it was rapidly effected, and with Fournier at its head started for the Manor house under Greg's guidance. Only 100 yards of marshy pasture-land lay between the creek and the moat, but the young sailor led the Frenchmen a long slant up the meadows and back again before finally approaching their goal. The captain looked at him once or twice suspiciously.

"What is the meaning of this? Why not advance direct?" he asked, tapping his pistol. "You know what to expect if you play me false."

"You don't want your men stuck in the mud?" replied Greg, and he pointed convincingly to a quagmire they were passing.

After half an hour's wandering to and fro in the meadows he led the party up to the bridge over the moat, and they entered the grounds of the Manor house from the rear. As they filed round to the front a group of men who were sitting under a tree on the lawn started up on seeing the familiar uniform, and came running forward. A minute later Capt. Fournier had embraced his brother, and explained the situation.

The prisoners of war were in an ecstacy of delight at the prospects of, as one of them facetiously put it, being "brutally dragged from their parole," but on the captain proposing an immediate return to the boats Camille waved his hand gaily in deprecation.

"Wait a brief time, my brother," he laughed. "The little god Cupid demands it, and we are quite safe from opposition here. There are not twenty able-bodied Britons in the place. Most of them are in church, and they are all unarmed."

"My dear Camille," said the captain, "there are plenty of bright eyes in France to console you, and if we daily too long we may have to slit the throats of some of the villagers before we get away."

"What matter, so long as I gain my purpose?" retorted the lieutenant, brutally. "No; take the others and sail away, if you please. As for me, nothing will move me unless I take the fair Mlle. Dempster."

Capt. Fournier bit his lip, but gave in. At most it must mean waiting till the close of service, which could not be long deferred, and in the seclusion of the Manor house grounds the presence of the landing party would in the meantime remain undetected. They had made their way thither unnoticed, and the inhabitants need not be disturbed till the last moment, when, if they gave trouble, he would make short work of them.

But when the minutes grew into an hour, and the hour into an hour and a half, yet no signal was given by the man posted in the shrubbery to watch the church door, the captain began to fume and stamp with rage. Finally Greg, who had been casting furtive glances in the direction of the Firefly, plucked the captain's sleeve.

"Captain, see there!" he cried, and leading him to the churchyard wall he pointed mockingly at the Firefly. The brigantine lay high and dry on the mud at her anchorage, and would not float again for ten hours at least.

For a moment the brave lad's life trembled in the balance. Then with a muttered oath the captain put up the pistol he had drawn. He saw that there was no hope for himself and his men to get away to sea before an overwhelming force would be upon them, and to commit any sort of outrage would only aggravate the treatment he would receive.

There was nothing for it but to quietly await the arrival of English soldiers, and then lay down his arms. He had been outwitted by the local knowledge of a sailor, who had depended on the fact that the water goes right away from Bosham at low tide, leaving the bed of the creek a vast expanse of oily pools and slime.

"If you do the folk no harm you'll be made comfortable, I expect," said Greg, with a grin. "You see, I remembered now the tide would serve today, and I timed it so as to run you in at church time."

So after all that was the kind of traitor Greg was. His chief reward lay in the removal of all the French prisoners—new as well as old—to safe quarters, as he had hoped from the first. As for old Jacob Dempster, when he was fetched ashore in triumph, and found that the lad's pluck and cunning had not only captured seventy-five of his captors, but restored his vessel to him, he presented Greg with a quarter share of her there and then.

GOOD BILL AT BIJOU.

Mrs. Tom Thumb is the Big Feature This Week.

The bill at the Bijou this week fairly bristles with headliners. Mrs. Tom Thumb, said to be the only original, is the person featured in big type on the lithographs and in the newspapers. She is not the only Lilliputian on the bill, however, as it boasts as well the brothers Magri, the count and the baron.

These pocket editions of human beings appear at every performance at the Bijou this week and have already been the means of drawing extra large crowds to the popular place of amusement.

Madell and Corbley comedy musical artists, make a good impression and Mae Turney sings very well. Car and Jordan call their skit "A dip into Vaudeville" and they make good with it.

Little Trixie, the dainty Parisian, makes good with an act all by her lonesome. The Malcoms are clever rolling globe artists and Isador Silver causes general satisfaction when he sings "Two Little Sailor Boys." The moving pictures disclose the Great Canadian Northwest.

HEART THROBS AT LYCEUM.

Through the play "Dora Thorne," dramatized from her own novel of that name, Bertha M. Clay held forth at the Lyceum last evening and an audience composed largely of readers of her books seemed well pleased with the entertainment.

The play followed the lines of the book closely and all of the thrilling love scenes, which so delight the young girl readers, were there. The young scion of a noble house, who falls in love and marries the lodgekeeper's daughter was there. The stern old lord, his father, the scheming woman, and the villain, were all on hand and were characteristic of the book.

There was no fault to find with E. A. Hammond as Stephen Thorne, the lodgekeeper, except that his voice sounded rather monotonous. S. A. Mitchell was the hardheaded old lord and looked the part, but the remainder of the cast was rather commonplace. On the whole it was a fair presentation of the play.

WHITE IS FUNNY.

Some people have the happy faculty of being funny at all times, without any particular effort and Pat White, principal comedian with the London Gaiety Girls, is one of those fortunate individuals. He does not make the mistake, however, of trying to carry the burden of all the funmaking himself. His methods are not of the drawing room order, nor are they coarse, they were merely broadly humorous: they would be very silly if anyone else used them, but with White, they are very funny. There will be a ladies' day Thursday.

HEIRESS IS SECRETLY WEDDED TO CHAUFFEUR.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Another automobile romance has culminated in the secret marriage of Miss Edith Marguerite Wilber, heiress to a $30,000 estate at Oneonta, to Herbert Cole, a farmer boy, who acted as her chauffeur in a tour of Southern Europe last summer.

When the party returned to Oneonta the young couple had kept their secret so carefully guarded that no one suspected their infatuation.

It is said that there was great opposition to the match from the bride's relatives, but she refused to give up Cole, and the ceremony was conducted so quietly that not even their closest friends were informed until last week.

Mrs. Cole inherited her fortune from David Wilber, her grandfather. It consists largely of farm lands in this vicinity. In April, 1905, she reached her twenty-first birthday and came into the estate. Since that time she has managed it herself and has developed great business ability.

RAILROAD TAXATION.

Elsewhere in this issue The Herald presents the results of an investigation into the methods of taxing railroads in the various states, which it is hoped will be helpful in the campaign to be made before the legislature this winter to bring about fairer treatment of terminal cities like Duluth.

The first thought that will strike those who observe the methods employed in the various states for taxing railroads is that they are remarkably varied. This must be a great nuisance to railroads running through several states, and the wonder that the railroads do not seek uniformity in methods of taxation is disposed of by the inevitable conclusion that in nearly all states the railroads are being taxed very lightly, and that that explains why they do not seek changes in the method of taxation.

The city of Duluth, with a vast amount of railroad property occupying the choicest parts of the townsite, incurs great expenses therefrom, but gets no revenue whatever. Even local improvements benefiting railroad property have to be paid for by the other taxpayers, because the state takes a gross earnings tax of 4 per cent in lieu of all taxes and assessments. The Herald's investigation shows only half a dozen states that deprive communities of their share of railroad taxes, and none except Minnesota in which the railroads are not liable for special assessments for local improvements.

Incidentally, the adequacy of the present system of taxation of railroads in Minnesota is raised. The example given in the article, comparing the tax on the gross earnings of a piece of city real estate with the gross earnings tax paid by a railroad, is eloquent. The owner of a city property pays about to per cent, often more, upon his earnings, and the railroad gets off with 4 per cent.

Another illustration shows that if the railroads were taxed the same as other property, upon their valuations, they would pay nearly three times as much as they pay under the gross earnings tax.

The question whether Minnesota is irrevocably bound to her present system of railroad taxation is also necessarily raised, and The Herald's article goes into this to some extent, with the result of showing that it probably is not, and that it can, at least in the case of most of the railroads, substitute any method it pleases, and force the taxes up to the same proportion that other property pays.

If the terminals cannot get a share of the tax under the present system, a new one should be adopted that will give them a share without depriving the state of any of its present revenue. At least, if the old method is retained, the tax rate should be made high enough to place railroad property on the same basis as other property, and a part of the increased tax should be apportioned to the subdivisions of the state in which the property lies.

The subject is an important one, and it is commended to the legislature. Necessarily, much of the information gathered was crowded out of the article for lack of space, though the main and most important facts are given. The Herald will be glad to furuish any information in its possession in addition to that conveyed in tonight's article.

WELCOME TO THE CURLERS.

To the braw and canny sons of ancient Scotia who have gathered for a week of their country's own peculiar sport of winter, Duluth extends a hearty welcome, even if it be necessarily chilly in order not to mar the perfection of the curling rinks. May they find the ice of just the correct degree of smoothness, the "stanes" moving with exactly the desired speed and the records falling daily before their mightv work!

Curling is the one sport of old Scotland that Dame Nature herself prevents the millionaires and leisure classes of America from absorbing, as they have done their level best to do the other venerable and venerated recreation of the "land o' cakes"—golf. Even if they would, they could not have their rinks in the vicinity of their homes and most of them love their comfort too much to be willing to seek the game where alone it can be played. It is also one of the few sports without sign of taint of mercenariness.

To the great bulk of the American people, the game is a sealed book that they would not open if they could but, to the sons and grandsons of "Hielands" and "Lowlands," it is the acme of winter sport. For this reason, the attendance at the bonspiel is not likely to overtax the rink but, what may be lacking in numbers, the Scotchmen of Duluth may be relied on to make up in enthusiasm for good plays.

The Herald will give full details of the bonspiel from day to day. In behalf of all Duluth, it offers the wish, "May the best rink win!"

HILL'S RAILROAD CONFESSION.

James J. Hill's letter to Governor Johnson in explanation and defense of the car shortage that has inflicted untold millions of dollars damage to the country, has menaced the people of a large portion of the Northwest with fuel and food famines and has hampered commerce and business incalculably, is, when reduced to its ultimate analysis, a plain confession of lack of foresight and inability of the railroad magnates of the United States to handle properly the great interests entrusted to their care.

In the first place, according to Mr. Hill's figures which may be relied upon as thoroughly accurate, the passenger business of the nation increased 95 per cent in the decade from 1895 to 1905, while the railroad passenger facilities were enlarged only 23 per cent, and the freight traffic grew 110 per cent while the railroads added only 45 per cent to their equipments. It is certainly no excuse to plead that in ten years the railroads could not have kept more closely in touch with the advances in business because the locomotive and car works could not, or would not, meet their demands. If the railroads had been thoroughly anxious to keep pace with national development, they could, in ten years, have erected their own independent car and locomotive works and supplied their own needed equipment.

In the second place, the acknowledgement by Mr. Hill that the railroad mileage has had a strangely slow growth of less than 3 per cent in the last twelve years, shows that something is radically wrong with the railroad managements themselves, for they certainly have not encountered any insurmountable obstacles to their progress in nation or state. If they have not increased their trackage even fairly well they have only themselves to blame. If they had been determined to have adequate terminal facilities, they could have done so.

There is no question, as Mr. Hill frankly confesses, that the railroads have been overwhelmed with prosperity, but it is their own fault, according to the very facts and figures of that master mind of the railroad, that they have been so overwhelmed and it behooves them to endeavor, with far more zeal than they have shown in the past, to overcome the difficulties that have aroused the nation as nothing else has done in years.

MAKING THE WOMEN PAY.

Once more are the "blessings" of the high protective tariff to be given practical illustration in the very homes of the American people. And once more must the women of the nation either learn to economize a little more or pay added tribute to an industry that has derived its being from high protection and has, also, made more than one millionaire, directly at the expense of the fair sex.

The Morocco Manufacturers' association—an organization that denies that it is a trust but which, nevertheless, makes its members act with virtually Standard Oil unanimity—has decided that the prices of glazed kid must be advanced in order that the firms handling the product may not have to declare possibly slightly smaller dividends as a result of the recent increase in wages and rise in the price of material, consequent on prosperity's added demands.

The advance in the prices of glazed kid will hit one of the dearest and most pleasing luxuries of the American women. It will increase the cost of gloves at least twenty-five per cent for the glove-makers themselves will inevitably demand such prices as will cover the rise in the value of their materials and will also make this an excuse for getting a little more of the "tariff pie" for themselves.

This increased cost of gloves, coming on the general advance in virtually all household materials, will compel the already hard-pressed housewives of the nation to greater economy than ever in what has become practically a necessary luxury. And, except among the extremely rich, the hands of the fair sex of the country will not be quite so neat and trim in outward appearance on the streets, at church and in the street cars.

The Morocco Manufacturers' association must not be permitted to lower its dividends, however. So lay in little large supplies of benzine and stale bread, ladies, and make the old gloves last just a little longer.

ATHLETIC GIRLS AS WIVES.

Simply because Mrs. Mary W. Butler of New York declared at the recent convention of the American Physical Education association, that the athletic woman makes a less capable wife than the girl of the old-fashioned feminine type who screams at the sight of a bug or a mouse and is of the flowerlike, clinging variety, the young woman of today need not, if she is at all inclined toward wifehood, forswear basketball, tennis, golf, skating, snowshoeing or any of the other sports in which she finds delight.

Nor need the young man whose heart has centered its whole wealth of affection on some girl who prefers a golf stick to a crochet needle or the click of the ringing skates to a Liszt nocturne, be alarmed as to his chances for future happiness if, perchance, he should win the athletic object of his love.

As a simple matter of fact, athletics, especially in youth, tend decidedly toward giving a girl the good sound health that is an almost invariable guarantee of happiness. Nor can Mrs. Butler, or any one else for that matter, bring even a scintilla of proof that the athletic girl is more selfish, less helpful in sickness and more generaliy unsatisfactory as a helpmeet than the flowerlike edition of the femme de luxe.

Making a success of domestic life hardly depends upon ability to play basketball or golf or to skate well but to say that the girl, who indulges in any or all of these sports, and others as well, should be shunned by the eligible bachelor is as reasonable as to say that a man has no sort of a chance to be a good husband if his grandmother had red hair.

Illinois is much worked up because it has been found impossible to bring a man from under a trance of hypnotism into which a woman cast him. There is really nothing in this over which to grow excited for it is not the first, nor even the millionth, time that a man has been put under a woman's hypnotic spell and it has been found impossible to get him out of it.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"As in the case of a bicycle, the greatest expense connected with owning an automobile is the tires," said T. W. Corbett of Milwaukee, Wis., at the McKay. "With ordinary usage a new set of tires will last an entire season, but not much longer. A new set cannot be purchased for less than $200, and that sum of money, even in these times of big incomes for auto owners, is not insignificant. A bicycle tire can be secured at $2 to $5, but then a bicycle itself is a little cheaper than a horseless carriage.

"Auto tires are expensive things to manufacture. They are made so strong that ordinary carpet tacks have no terrors for them. Instances are known where half a dozen tacks and small nails have been pulled out of tires, without showing any evidence of injury. The top of an automobile tire is half an inch thick, and the rubber, thanks to the chemicals, is the toughest and hardest, yet it possesses ample resilient qualities. There are, of course, occasions when a tire is punctured, but these are not so numerous as people imagine.

"When a tire gives out it usually is because it is worn completely through. Manufactures guarantee that one of the articles is good for traveling 10,000 to 15,000 miles over summer roads. At this time of year, of course, with roads frozen, the wear should be greater, but there are not many country runs indulged in these wintry days.

"An auto should never start out without having an extra tire strapped to its side. Accidents may happen at any time, and when least expected, and therefore it is well to be prepared. Every auto is equipped with a strong minature jackscrew, and it does not take more than fifteen minutes to yank off and put another on. With proper care a tire should last at least a year.

"A French inventor who has made a study of pneumatic tires and their weaknesses, has come to the conclusion they should be inflated with nitrogen instead of air. Oxygen, he says, in ordinary air is bad for tires causing them to become dry and brittle. Nitrogen has a much better effect. Laboratory results are said to have shown the good results following its use for inflating purposes. In recent tests of auto tires filled with nitrogen they endured so well that chafleurs show a marked preference for such tires instead of those inflated with air.

"Pumping nitrogen into tires is a simple task. Steel bottles containing it, provided with a pressure gauge, are attached to the valve of the tire, and turning off a stop cock does the rest."

It is understood that G. B. Morrison of Chicago will succeed L. J. Emery as manager of the Spalding hotel. The change will probably soon be made in the management. Mr. Emery resigned to locate elsewhere. Mr. Emery has been manager of the hotel for the last five years, and has made a fine record while acting in that capacity.

Jerusalem's Land Boom.

The Builder: New suburbs around Jerusalem are spreading with rapidity, and an important European town on the plain of Rephaim, a tract of barren, stony ground which stretches from Jerusalem half way to Bethlehem, is becoming covered with houses and gardens.

A supply of water, which formerly was supposed to be non-existent now seems to be sufficient at this point.

The houses are being built in some cases by German workmen, although the majority of the occupants are the indefinable Levantines.

Soon these houses—and among them several manufactory chimneys are visible—will have reached the ridge which separates Jerusalem and the plain of Rephaim from Rachel's tomb and Bethlehem.

Chief Justices Do Not Resign.

Brooklyn Eagle: Chief justices do not resign. From John Marshall's time till now none has resigned. Taney, Chase and Waite died in office. Mr. Fuller has no intention to do otherwise, and is in good health. Nor under any circumstances would he agree with a Republican president to resign, to enable the latter to name a Republican to succeed him.

The Press cannot know the sort of Democrat Mr. Fuller is. It cannot know the force of the custom which makes the chief justiceship an obligation for life, as well as an inviolable life honor. To be sure, Mr. Chase was suspected of desiring the presidency, but he held the chief justiceship till he died. Mr. Fuller regards his office as of equal rank with that of the president and as a place of higher dignity because of longer service.

THE WEATHER.

Twenty-two degs. below zero, the record for the winter by 8 degs.! No wonder the clear, sharply biting cold of early morning made every one whose necessities compelled leaving a warm fireside figure that today was the coldest of the winter. And the records show they were right—on only two other occasions this winter—Dec. 16 and Jan. 4, when the mercury sank to 14 degs. below zero, has it been anywhere near so nippy. Absence of wind, however, made the cold on the streets fairly agreeable, especially to those in the enjoyment of good health. Last night's lowest temperature was 22 degs. below zero and yesterday's highest was only 4 degs.above. In some portions of the Northwest, Duluth's lowest would have seemed almost balmy, while at St. Paul it was 10 degs. below zero. The weather man promises 15 degs. below zero tonight, but a warmer tomorrow.

The sun set at 4:46 o'clock this afternoon and will rise at 7:49 o'clock tomorrow morning. Today there is 8 hours 56 minutes of daylight—a gain of 26 minutes on the shortest day.

A year ago today, it was warm and everything was covered with a heavy wet snow, making the trees look like glimpses of Fairyland.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Northwestern cold wave and high pressure area has advanced to the Red River valley, although the coldest temperature reported was 44 degs. below zero last night at Havre, Mont. In the Dakotas, Minnesota, Montana and Western Canada the 7 o'clock temperatures ranged anywhere from 10 degs. to 30 degs. below zero. The zero weather extends south into Iowa and Nebraska, the southern limit of freezing temperature extends to Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle. The barometer continues low in Nevada. Rain or snow fell during Monday or last night in the Far West. Central and Northeastern districts. Indications favor easterly winds in this section tonight and Wednesday and that condition will tend to greatly modify the present cold wave."

LAUGHING GAS.

Philadelphia Ledger: "So the prisoner skipped bail, did he?"

"He did more than that," responded the Western sheriff, grimly, "he skipped rope by a margin of about five minutes. He'd stole a hoss."

Philadelphia Record: The Western legislator had fire in his eye.

"Mr Chairman," he said, "my soul revolts against the oppression exercised by these railroads. My—"

"Sit down," said the presiding officer; "they called in my pass, too."

New York Press: The second day drew to its close with the twelfth juryman still unconvinced.

"Well, gentlemen," said the court officer, entering quietly, "shall I, as usual, order twelve dinners?"

"Make it," said the foreman, "eleven dinners and a bale of hay."

Philadelphia Press: "Pa," said little Willie, "what is a 'thermometer,' anyway?"

"A thermometer," replied Willie's father, who was looking over his unpaid bills, "is an instrument that goes down when coal goes up, and vice versa."

Cleveland Leader: "One cannot enjoy a quiet walk or drive on the road now that there millionaires in their autos do not fairly envelop one in clouds of dust on the way."

"But, you know, that is the object of a millionaire's life—to be out for the dust."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "She handed him a lemon."

"What did he do?"

"Drank it. It was mixed with sugar and water."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "She seems like a very popular girl. Has a college education, too, hasn't she?"

"Oh, yes. She took what is called the practical course."

"What's that?"

"She skipped the classics for cookery."

Chicago Tribune: The villain in the play was perishing miserably and alone amid the painted scenery.

"Ye gods!" he gasped, "how can I die with this awful secret on me soul!"

"Never mind that!" yelled an excited boy in the gallery. "You go ahead and die! I'll tell the other fellers all about it when they come out again!"

Country Paper Mergers.

Alexandria Post-News: The tendency of country newspapers to-day is to merge, where more than one occupies the same field. The latest merger is that of the Hutchinson Leader and the Independent Times. If this movement is stimulated we may, in time, find but one paper in each county, with each town and village occupying a portion of its columns. The editor of the newly established Osakis paper, the Messenger, is swimming against the tide.

Anti-Pass Compensation.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: By making more and better shoes than any other city in the West, St. Louis is doing all she can to mitigate the dire consequences of anti-pass legislation.

Digging In 1907.

Houston Post: A mining journal says there will be more digging for gold in 1907 than ever before. There will also be a great deal more digging for railroad fare.

Time to Shoot It.

Erie, Kas., Record: The stork has been kept pretty busy about Erie for the past few months. And a few mornings ago a man, whose home had recently been visited by that bird, was preparing to go hunting, when his young son approached him. "Say papa," said the youngster, "I wish you'd shoot that stork if you see it. 'Cause they's enough babies in town, an' if somebody don't kill it, it'll probably be bringin' us another baby sister 'fore long."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

In the session of the grand lodge of Masons at St. Paul, Henry Van Brunt was elected grand senior steward.

The following applications for membership upon the board of trade have been approved by the directors: Mayor J. B. Sutphin, R. C. Burdick and Josiah E. Just of Iowa.

The hose company has decided to give its fifteenth annual ball on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22. The committee on arrangements is composed of J. R. Meining, George Hathaway and Herman Oppel.

Vice President C. D. Wright called the members of the board of trade to order at 3 p. m. yesterday to organize a caucus for the nomination of officers for the ensuing year. George Spencer was chosen chairman, and just before the formal proceedings began, Col. C. H. Graves offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to notify the president of the United States and inform him that the caucus of the board of trade is now organized and is ready to receive his explanation of why the Duluth public building bill was vetoed; also that the committee notify the governor of the State of Minnesota that the caucus is ready to hear his explanation of why a Duluth man was not appointed on the railroad and warehouse commission; also to ask the czar of all the Russias why he don't declare war quickly and put up the market.

The resolution was adopted amid cheers, and the caucus proceeded to nominate the following officers: President, Owen Fargusson; vice president, A. D. Thomson; directors for three years, Messrs. Daggett, Gilbert and O. C. Hartman; director to fill vacancy, George H. Dodge; arbitration committee, Messrs. Paine, Dewey and McLeod.

Anson Northrop, who has been visiting here, said: "When I was county commissioner here, we used to have the courthouse in the Potter block, where Sam McQuade has his packing house now. I intend to go to St. Paul tomorrow and then go home."

Another attempt is being made in congress to abolish the Duluth customs district.

Prominent citizens of Eau Claire have called a meeting to ratify the nomination of Hon. N. P. Haugen for congress.

Frank Meyler, a brakeman, was killed at Northern Pacific Junction on Sunday night.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The Republican party in Minnesota must be rehabilitated. The old saws have lost their teeth; they don't cut any more ice. The men who heretofore have assumed to tell the people how they should vote have become threadbare. After forty years of unbroken Republican ascendency what has happened during the last twelve years? Three times has the party in the state met defeat while McKinley and Roosevelt have carried the state by large majorities. Yes, the party needs to take a new departure, one that will mean something to the people.

Carleton County Vidette: It is estimated that the silver coin in circulation would weigh 100,000 tons. This is not based upon the Vidette's supply.

Hibbing Tribune: The lieutenant governor appoints the senate committees alright. But who makes them up?

St. Peter Free Press: Almost every member of the legislature stands committed to voting for the passage of a 2-cent fare law. Now watch how many will conscientiously stand by their ante-election promise.

Frazee Free Press: The law makers have again commenced to doctor up the state laws. Some will be repealed, others amended and some new laws will be passed.

Buffalo Journal: If the railroads are to be merged there is only one holding company which can be trusted to give the people a square deal, and that is the United States government.

Long Prairie Democrat: Quite a number of representatives and senators have refused to accept any railroad passes—the railroads they insist shall have no collar on them or reasons to expect special favors. It would probably be interesting to the people of this legislative district to know whether the representatives and senator from this district are using them.

Le Sueur Sentinel: The boys have gotten together and now have a fine place to skate. What's the matter with carrying the organization idea further and having a gymnasium? It would be a mighty good thing and could easily be done with proper co-operation.

Ten Strike Tribune: There should be no factions in this little city of ours. Every improvement made enhances the value of all property in and surrounding our town. We should live as one big family, and we believe few towns can show up a more progressive and intellectual family.

Virginia Enterprise: All things may come to him who waits, but we are under the impression that part of this saying has been lost track of, and that is that man should work while he waits.

Hinckley Enterprise: The railroads will have to get their lobbyists busy if they keep a 2-cent passenger rate out of the state.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Go to law today and go broke tomorrow.

Always keep to the right and you won't go wrong.

Don't get critical when your boss tells you to do things.

Naturally a man would rather part his hair than part with it.

Every time a man accepts a 10-cent gift it costs him a dollar.

If you want to see a man act silly: hunt up one who is jealous.

Virtue is its own reward—or its own punishment, as the case may be.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Women seem to like any kind of clothes unless they are useful.

A girl is pretty enough to suit herself when she thinks she is.

One of the worst things about not being married is you are always in danger of being.

A man's idea of being comfortable is wearing something it makes his wife mad to have him seen in.

An awful nice thing about being rich is the way you can despise your poor relatives without their daring to try to get even with you.

Mineral Land Taxation.

Hibbing Tribune: The newspapers and the statesmen of Southern Minnesota are now openly advocating methods of taxing the mineral lands of the state which, if enacted into law, will bankrupt every city and village upon the iron range.

The truth of the matter is that Southern Minnesota knows very little about the conditions that obtain in the Northern part of the state. It has always been regarded as a region on the other edge of civilization, and now that it has discovered that we have something worth while, it has about as much conscience about taking it from us as the early comers to the continent had about taking North America from the Indians.

To trust Minnesota to do justice to us would be about as safe as to bank one's money in a snow drift.

Work For Chisholm.

Chisholm Herald: Now, for work and good hard work. Work for yourself, primarily, but secondarily for your town. Make it a record year for Chisholm as it promises to be for the whole range. A little work from each of you will do it. Stop "knocking" at the people here and the town itself; say a good word for them at every opportunity and you will do a great deal of good, and will be surprised at what has been accomplished at the end of the year. Try it, at least, for one year.

Rail-Making Changes.

Buffalo News: Bessemer rail goes out as open hearth comes in. Each is very good but one is a trifle better than the other and cheaper to roll. Besides, Bessemer ore is less abundant than other kinds.

Finlayson's Progress.

Finlayson News: There is no town in this county or in the state where the business men are so active in improving their places of business as they are at this place. Every man engaged in business at this place is making extensive improvements which ranges in price from $300 to $1,000.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Eveleth Star: Governor Johnson wisely and justly declared that he will not stand for a tonnage tax. That it is an unfair tax for townships and other local governments. This manly declaration of the governor simply means that if any bill is passed, that he will veto it if it aims to take away from the county and its cities and villages its just revenue in taxes.

Buffalo Journal: Governor Johnson's message to the legislature put the legislature in a position where they have to do business or furnish ammunition for the Democrats at the next election.

Marshall News-Messenger: Without doubt the strongest and most important document ever sent to a Minnesota legislature, was the message of Governor Johnson. It abounded in clear and forceful expression of the demands of the people of the state upon their representatives, with an absence of seeking political effect, and an earnest plea for non-partizan effort in promoting the best interests of the state at large. The interests of these are unanimous in commendation of the governor's effort, and nearly unanimous in support of his recommendations. The one peculiar criticism of the message is its unusual length, with the comment that every line is worth reading.

Verndale Sun: Governor Johnson's message to the legislature was a lengthy one but it contained many good things. Now watch for some highly sensational side stepping. Here is where the representative of the people who will stand without hitching loons up like a hired man at the dinner table.

Hinckley Enterprise: Governor Johnson's message to the legislature is like himself, strong and dignified. He makes many recommendations but most of them are statements of the demands made by the voters of the state that have been voiced by the country press.

Akely Herald: Governor Johnson's message is a lengthy one and brim full of clear sighted suggestions for the good of the state and its people.

Pine Poker: The governor's message displays a thorough study of existing conditions, and manifests a laudable desire on the part of the governor to keep the state, in the matter of advanced legislation, in line with the most progressive states.

Fosston Thirteen Towns: If the present legislature can "discover" any question worth while occupying their attention, not already considered by the governor in his message, they will certainly create a surprise.

My Winter Girl.

My summer girl is fair to see,
In snowy white she pleases me—
She looks so cool, so light and free,
My summer girl.

My winter girl has such a charm,
She looks so breezy yet so warm,
Her ruddy cheeks the gales disarm,
My winter girl.

Which do I like the very best?
Which holds the first place in my breast?
No need to put me to the test—
They're both the same.

Slam at Menominee.

Crystal Falls Diamond Drill: A young man at Menominee shot his father for awakening him in the morning. Menominee has been asleep so long that it must be very trying on the nerves to be awakened.

St. Cloud's Opportunity.

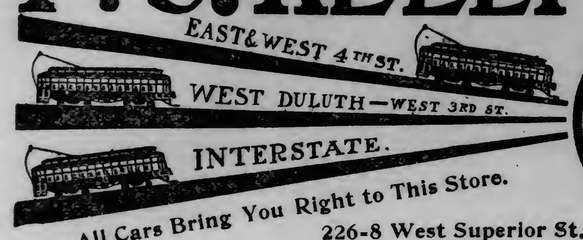

St. Cloud Journal-Press: That St. Cloud has an abundant supply of pure water seems to be assured. Now let it utilize the 150-horse power it has in the dam, and do it—right quick. What good business man would be buying power when he has plenty of it going to waste?

DULUTH HAS HIGH PLACE

Ranks Fourth in Increases in Building Operations for 1906.

Transactions in 50 Cities for Last Two Years.

Official reports from fifty of the leading cities of the country, tabulated since the first of the year, show that Duluth ranks fourth in building transactions, with an increase of 66 per cent over the building operations of 1905.

Seattle and Chattanooga have tied for first place, with an increase of 77 per cent each. Evansville, Ind., ranks next with an increase of 72 per cent.

The next city ranking below Duluth in point of increase in building operations is Wilkesbarre, Pa., which shows an increase of 60 per cent over 1905.

Syracuse, N. Y., showed the largest decrease in building transactions, its loss per cent of 1905 being 31. Indianapolis was next, with a loss of 23 per cent.

The total per cent of gain in building operations over the United States for 1906, over those of 1905, was 2 per cent.

Some people had prepared themselves for a substantial decline in building operations for 1906, and to these the results will come as something of a surprise.

The total building operations of the fifty cities in the table were $591,283,571 for 1906, compared to $578,205,949 in 1905, a gain of $13,077,622.

This result is taken to mean that the building movement is still on and undiminished over the country. The losses have been widely distributed, and probably depended largely on local conditions which would not argue much against future prospects.

Considering the gain as a whole, the showing is considered a very favorable one, and it demonstrates that the building movement is moving steadily forward on solid business lines, rather than in response to the fitful and uncertain demands of speculation.

The reports from the various cities seems to indicate that the present year will equal if not surpass the one just closed.

The following table showing the gains and losses in building operations in the fifty cities mentioned, may prove of interest:

BIG FINANCIAL DEAL PENDING

Involves Merger of Gas and Power Companies in California.

San Francisco, Jan. 15.—A financial deal of great interest and importance to San Francisco and California is now being conducted in New York and will probably be consummated within a few days. The transaction will involve a merger of the Western Gas & Electric company and the Western Power company, an Eastern corporation, operating in counties of Northern California.

Promoting this vast combination to furnish power, light and heat to all cities and towns of Northern and Central California are the Goulds and Edwin E. Hawley in the East, and John Martin and Eugene De Sabla of California.

The Great Western Power company was recently incorporated under the laws of California, with an authorized capital of $25,000,000 as the operating company for the Western Power Company of New Jersey. The latter is a holding company with $18,000,000 authorized capital stock. Edwin Hawley is president of the company.

The proposed merger takes in, it is said, the property of the Pacific Gas & Electric company, which includes a combination of the Independent, the California Gas & Electric company and other corporations furnishing gas, heat and power in this city, which had been absorbed by the original gas company. The California Gas & Electric company was controlled by John Martin and Eugene De Sabla. It supplied light and power to several towns and cities in Northern and Central California, including Sacramento, Oakland and San Francisco. In this city, power was furnished to the United Railroads and other large consumers.

The Great Western Power company has just issued bonds, valued at $25,000,000 in New York, for the purpose, it is said, of financing the proposed merger.

AVOID LUNG TROUBLE.

Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours. It is said to break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable.

An eminent authority on lung trouble says if this simple and effective formula was known and generally used, throat, lung and bronchial affections would seldom reach an acute stage. Care should be used in selecting pure ingredients, and to avoid substitution it is best that they be purchased separately and mixed in your own home.

The Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vials put up expressly for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name —"Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)"—plainly printed thereon. Only the cheaper Oils are sold in bulk, but these produce nausea, and never effect the desired results.

LAKE CARRIERS AT WASHINGTON

To Insist on a Central Canal Through Minnesota Point.

Washington, Jan. 15.—There is sharp conflict of opinion between the Lake Carriers' association and the delegations here representing Duluth and Superior over the question of what should be done for harbor improvements at the Head of the Lakes.

The Duluth and Superior men were feeling pretty good over Sunday, but with the appearance of G. A. Tomlinson and other representatives of the Lake Carriers' association yesterday, a new phase is put upon the situation.

The lake carriers are dead set against a breakwater and insist on the central canal through Minnesota Point. They claim that such a canal will save a vast amount to shippers in reducing the cost of transportation and diminishing fixed charges of vessels. Efforts made during the day to hold a joint meeting between the contending factions proved fruitless.

Chairman Burton of the rivers and harbors committee agreed to hear the lake carriers at 5 o'clock last evening, but they did not appear and the hearing was postponed until today.

Bailey, president; Mrs. Porter Nye, senior vice president; Mrs. Bertha C. Huntosh, junior vice president; Mrs. S. C. Bailey, treasurer; Mrs. George French, secretary; Mrs. J. J. PRIMARY ELECTION LAW only; in practice it would be a complete reversion to the old convention system, with its bosses and machines.

Those who oppose the primary election system generally base their arguments on the ground that it has "broken up the majority party." This is absurd.

The party that has really suffered from the primary election system, as a party, is the minority party; in Minnesota, the Democratic party.

In the old convention days the Democrats always nominated a full ticket, no matter how hopeless the fight was in their respective counties. Even if there wasn't much show of success, they put up a ticket and made the Republicans spend money to get their coveted offices.

Now, on the other hand, they very seldom put up a complete ticket, and in many counties they put up no candidate at all. The Republicans have things all their own way, and they have lost no offices through the primary election system.

The Republican party in Minnesota is badly disorganized, no doubt. It has lost the governorship in two successive elections, the second time by a phenomenally overwhelming majority, the greatest ever given any candidte for governor in the history of the state.

It was not the primary election system, but the convention system, that was at fault for this condition.

The Republican state convention of 1904, when R. C. Dunn was nominated for governor, was about as convincing an example of the evils of the convention system as the state has ever seen. The chances are that if the convention had not involved itself in a disgraceful row over the seating of delegates there would have been no such result at the polls as there was. Governor Johnson, popular and magnetic as he was, would have had a much harder fight on his hands if he had not had to assist him a split in the ranks of the Republican party growing out of the abuse of the convention system that brought about Dunn's nomination.

After Governor Johnson had been in two years, and had shown the people what he could do, it would have made no difference what kind of a system his opponent had been nominated by. Governor Johnson would have won against any candidate, no matter how he was nominated.

But the point is that the convention system gives the bosses a chance to deserve defeat by corrupt manipulations, and that was the cause of the downfall of the Republican party in this state; not the primary election system.

While it is undeniable that Democrats have voted in Republican primaries in certain Republican counties, it has also been true that in certain Democratic counties the Republicans have voted with their Democratic friends.

But cases where they have done this to nominate weak candidates has been very rare indeed. In most cases those who wandered into the wrong primaries went in to help out friends, and they voted for them at the general election if they were nominated.

It is not the comfort and convenience of politicians and candidates that should be considered in framing election laws; it is the welfare of the people and the good of the public service.

The primary election system, by cutting out the political middlemen whom men call bosses, and by bringing the selection close to the people, has improved the class of office-holders, and bettered the public service.

It has come to stay, and those who seek to defeat it are battling windmills.

• • • •

The battle royal of the session will be on the reciprocal demurrage bill.

There will be no fight at all on the 2-cent fare bill, judging from the present outlook, and probably little fight on the anti-pass bill.

But the reciprocal demurrage bill will be bitterly opposed by the railroads, and they have organized lobbies in both houses that will do all they can to kill it, as they did in the senate two years ago.

The 2-cent fare bill will not be strenuously opposed by the railroads. They may put up a show of fight, and then, with ostentatious reluctance, concede the point as a sop to the public, hoping that it will be considered as a sufficient advance for one session, and that their yielding on this point will help them to win out on reciprocal demurrage.

But the shippers of the state are in earnest in this matter, and they will leave no stone unturned to gain their point.

The fight is in charge of George S. Loftus of the Minnesota Shippers' and Receivers' association, who conducted the fight two years ago. The association is enlarging its membership, and will be able to bring strong pressure to bear upon the legislature during the session.

Senator Laybourn of Duluth has received a bundle of petitions largely signed by Duluth men of varying degrees of prominence, urging the passage of the initiative and referendum bill, which simply provides that the people shall have a chance to vote on the proposition. More petitions are to follow, and they will come in from all over the state in numbers large enough to compel serious consideration of the measure.

The senate committee on rules has adopted last year's rules with a few changes. Among the most important are those relating to the standing committees of the senate. Several useless committees are dispensed with, the work of others is divided, and there are a couple of entirely new ones. Those to be eliminated are as follows: Public health, dairy and food; geological and natural history survey; federal relations; retrenchment and general reform, and internal improvements.

The new committees will be as follows: Dairy products and livestock; public health and pure food; state fair and agricultural societies; general legislation.

The judiciary, reapportionment and flanance committees are all enlarged.

The most important new committee is that on general legislation, which will share part of the work formerly given to the judiciary committee. The house has had such a committee for years, but in the senate bills that did not seem to fit any other committee were sent to the judiciary committee. The result has been that that committee had been flooded with work, much of which will be taken over by the committee on general legislation.

One of the most interesting features of the opening weeks of a legislative session is the development of floor leaders in both houses.

It is yet too early to tell who the leaders are going to be in either house. Picking leaders is very ticklish business. Sometimes those who seem most likely at the beginning flatten out before the finish, and on the other hand men who are very conspicuous at the start frequently bud into strong leadership.

It the house A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota, Ambrose Tighe of St. Paul, Burdette Thayer of Spring Valley and Elias Rachle of Madison, will be among the most active men among the old members. The new ones have not had a chance to develop yet, but Clarence B. Miller of Duluth, L. W. Bills of Park Rapids and L. C. Spooner of Morris are looked upon as comers.

In the senate E. E. Smith of Minneapolis will, as usual, be the kingpin of what is known as the "combine," and though he does little speech making he will be a strong factor in shaping legislation. Senators Calhoun of Minneapolis, Laybourn of Duluth, Dunn of St. Paul, Wilson of Minneapolis, and Stephens of Crookston will be particularly active among the Republicans, while in the minority party Senators Schaller of Hastings, Coller of Shakopee, and Fitzpatrick of Winona will be leaders. Among the new Republicans, Senators Seward of Marshall, Gunderson of Alexandria, Clague of Lamberton and Sullivan of Stillwater seem likely to be prominent, and among the new Democrats, Senator Works of Mankato will be active. The lone Populist, Sageng of Otter Tail county will be conspicuous.

The St. Louis county delegation will get together Wednesday and perfect an organization. As the dean of the delegation, Senator Laybourn of Duluth will probably be made chairman. It is the sense of the members that bills of a public nature, sent down from St. Louis county, shall be introduced by the delegation instead of by individuals. In the past there have been some slight manifestations of jealousy, when individuals got bills first and hustled them in as their own bills without consulting the rest of the delegation, and this will be avoided by the new arrangement. Several bills are already here, and these and any others that will show up later will be considered at the delegation meeting.

Representative Milo H. Young of Royalton has been talking up the idea of an organization of the new members of the house, in order that they may be more sure of their ground on pending matters of legislation. He has received considerable encouragement from the new members with whom he has talked, and the organization is likely to be perfected at an early date.

It is not that the new members are suspicious of the old ones, but as Mr. Young puts it, the "interests" are likely to be very much in evidence during the session, and old members are more likely to have "entangling alliances" than new ones. Therefore he evolved the scheme of organizing the new members for the discussion of pending measures, and the scheme seems to have taken well with the new members. STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

At Deer River Charged With Misappropriating Police Funds.

Deer River, Minn., Jan. 15.—On a warrant charging "misappropriation of police funds," Justice of the Peace Chill was arrested and taken before the court commissioner at Grand Rapids. He was released on $300 bonds to appear at the next term of court, the sureties being F. F. Seaman and G. M. Blasing. It is claimed that Chill received money amounting to $200 from certain parties collected in the shape of fines which he failed to turn over to the village authorities. It is alleged that Chill had been repeatedly notified to turn the money over, but had failed or neglected to do so. Hence this summary action. Chill claims he has no fears of the outcome of the case.

Sometimes it may be as important to one man to find a quick purchaser for a second-hand desk as it is for another man to find a purchaser for a carload of perishable freight. In either case it usually happens that a Herald want ad. is "the best broker."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Andrew Carnegie will be the heaviest personal taxpayer in New York if the list of assessments made public by the assessors is not amended. The value of his personal property is fixed at $5,000,000 and that of John D. Rockefeller at $2,500,000.

After Edward J. Russell had finished his argument in the New York supreme court Monday in his efforts to secure his release from Dannemora prison for the insane, Justice Truax ruled that Russell was still insane and remanded him back to the prison. Russell made a dramatic plea in his own behalf. He claimed to be the victim of a conspiracy headed by Former Governor B. B. Odell, and others.

W. J. Bryan and President E. A. Bryan of the Washington state college were thrown into a snowbank at Pullman, Wash., Monday. The team drawing them from the college to the depot ran away and the sleigh was upset. Their clothing was filled with snow when they were rescued and both were severely chilled.

The January session of the Hancock county grand jury at Findlay, Ohio, reported Monday evening, returning 939 indictments against the Standard Oil company, six subsidary companies and John D. Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers and seven other officials of the alleged trust.

Chief of Police James Daily and Officer John Peterson of Red Wing, Minn., were shot and probably fatally wounded Monday night by August Bloom, a barber, whom they were endeavoring to arrest. Bloom, who is believed to be insane, made his escape and has not yet been captured.

Does Not Color Hair

Ayer's Hair Vigor, as now made from our new improved formula, does not stain or color the hair even to the slightest degree. Gray hair, white hair, blonde hair is not made a shade darker. But it certainly does stop falling hair. No question about that.

This is an entirely new preparation, just placed on the market. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Modern Samaritans Hold Joint Session to Admit New Members.

The Modern Samaritans of the West end had a merry time of it last evening at Columbia hall.

Both the men and the lady Samaritans were present and about twenty new members were introduced to the inner mysteries of the order. Beneficient degree No. 2, and Samaritan degree, No. 2, Beta Council, had a hand in the jollification and everyone apparently had a good time.

After the twenty new members, who were of both sexes, had ridden the goat with proper grace and done all the other things which newly initiated members of a lodge are expected to do, refreshments were served and dancing followed.

merce, passed the house without opposition.

The resolution is not understood to be hostile, but in view of the charges that had been made against the grain business by Attorney General Young and others, it was deemed advisable to make an investigation, in order that the matter may be cleared up. It is understood that the Duluth and Minneapolis bodies will welcome the legislative probe and will offer every assistance in their power toward making it satisfactorily thorough.

The resolution provides for a special committee of five members to be appointed by the speaker.

The 25-cent tonnage tax measure was by R. H. Jefferson of Bingham Lake, who used to live in the Zenith City before most of its citizens were born, and who is a brother of E. R. Jefferson of Duluth.

It provides for a tonnage tax of 25 cents a ton, to be imposed in addition to the existing valuation tax, on all ore mined in the state, whether shipped or in stockpiles, and it is framed to become effective at once, and to reach all iron ore that has been mined but that is not yet shipped out of the state, whether it is in stockpile or on docks or cars. The tax is to be a lien on the mines, railroads and other property of the miners, and if the ore is smelted in the state, 20 cents per ton is to be rebated, making a net tax of 5 cents per ton.

For the purpose of enforcing the law, there is created the office of state mining tax commissioner, to be appointed by the governor and to hold for four years, to whom the mining companies must make annual reports of their output, to be investigated by him.

The tax goes to the state in the first instance, but one-fifth of it is to be apportioned to the mining counties, two-fifths to the permanent state school fund, and two-fifths to the state general revenue fund.

H. O. Bjorge of Lake Park introduced a bill providing for a 5-cent tonnage tax, to go entirely to the state, for certain specific purposes in addition to the present tax on the valuations of the iron mines. This tax is in lieu, however, of all other taxes on the products of the mines, or the profits and income derived from the sale or conversion of the ore. Real and personal property of all kinds is to be taxed as at present. The companies must make an annual return of the ore mined, sold or disposed of during the year. The state treasurer collects the tax, and half of it goes to the drainage fund and half to the road and bridge fund. A penalty of 20 per cent is imposed for failure to make the prescribed reports.

Mr. Bjorge also introduced a bill taxing dogs for the maintenance of a state Pasteur institute, where residents of the state, who are bitten by mad dogs may be treated free, and non-residents for a charge to be fixed by the state board of health, by which the institute is to be directed. The tax is to be $2 for male dogs and $3 for female dogs, and it is to be collected by city and village clerks, who are to retain 20 cents for each license and turn the balance into the county treasury. The county treasurer is to give the state one-quarter of the fund for the institute, and the remainder is to go back to the cities and villages. Each license is to have printed upon it a description of the symptoms of hydrophobia.

Mr. Bjorge seems likely to assume the mantle of the immortal Nels Nyquist of dog-tax fame.

John G. Lennon of Minneapolis, introduced a bill providing jail sentences for rebuters. The penalty is to be one to ten years in prison for those that give rebates, and those that accept them are guilty of misdemeanor, to be punished more mildly.

Senator V. L. Johnson of Chisago county introduced two bills affecting the leasing of state mineral lands. One makes the royalty 50 cents instead of 25 cents per ton, and provides for an annual increase of 4 cents per ton for an indefinite period, which the author of the bill said he had left to the legislature to fix. The minimum output is to be 5,000 tons annually for five years, after which it is to be 20,000 tons.

Another bill by the same author provides that when the state issues permits to explore for iron ore, those holding the permits must make monthly reports of their findings to the state auditor, with blue prints showing all the work done, and with all assays of ore that are made.

W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis introduced a bill in the house raising the personal property tax exemption from $100 to $200, and another providing for a state legislative reference department, which is a copy of the senate bill already described.

S. D. Peteron of New Ulm offered a bill appropriating $5,000 for a monument at Shiloh to the First Minnesota battery, and appointed L. F. Hubbard, C. C. Andrews and Henry S. Hurter as a commission to purchase the monument.

G. M. Bendixen of Morgan offered another anti-pass bill in the house, providing a punishment of one year, a fine of $500 or both, for giving or receiving passes.

• • •

S. D. Peterson, chairman of the house Republican caucus, has appointed Representatives Hicks of Minneapolis, Hugo of Duluth, and Rockne of Zumbrota, as a committee to call republican caucuses in the house when they are deemed advisable.

A. A. Tone of Northome, moved over the line into Itasca county, Northome being close to the boundary, and continued to act as a member of the board. However, this left a board of four members, and it was up to that board to redistrict the county and appoint a fifth member. The board stands two and two, and thus it cannot agree upon any proposition. The bond of the new county attorney, Mr. Thwing, is not yet approved, so he cannot act. George H. Spear, the old county attorney, has vacated his office, so there is no county attorney.

One matter on which the county is split is on the poor farm property, which is supposed to overlie important iron deposits. Wishing to have the property explored and a mine developed, in order that Grand Rapids might have the benefit of its payrolls and of the assessed valuation of the mine to help out on taxes, the board gave an option on the property to W. C. Gilbert for $65,000. Gilbert gave an option to the steel trust for $100,000, and the company began exploring. The option expired before anything was found, and the steel company wants a renewal. It was over this that the board split. It is said that Gilbert offered to throw up his rights, and to let the county board give a direct option to the steel company at $100,000, but the board cannot even agree on this.

Matters stand thus, and meantime business languishes and nothing is done. At first it was proposed to put a bill through allowing the chairman of townships to appoint a commissioner at large, in order to break the deadlock. Now it is proposed to file charges and try to have the entire board removed if it fails to get busy at once.

DISCHARGES POLICEMAN

Superior Police Commission Ousts Frank C. Altenberg.

Because he accepted a gold watch from one of the women in the red light district and sold opera bags to the denizens of that district, Police Officer Frank C. Altenberg was dismissed from the service by the Superior board of police and fire commissioners, yesterday afternoon. Altenberg admitted receiving the watch and selling the opera bags, but claimed that he had violated neither the statutes nor the moral law.

Philip Perkins, attorney for the discharged officer, claimed that if Altenberg were the only officer on the Superior police force to figure in a deal of the kind he would have nothing to say in the attempt to justify the act. Mr. Perkins claimed that other Superior policemen have accepted presents. He cited a case where silk suspenders, socks and cigars had been given members of the department a year ago. Mr. Perkins charged Chief McKinnon with having received a pen from a woman on lower Hammond avenue a year ago and accused the chief of playing favorites by singling out Altenberg for an example.

Mr. Perkins' accusation made Chief McKinnon wrathy and he told the commission that he received a pen, but it came through the mails and there was no way of telling who sent it. Chief McKinnon challenged anybody to prove that he gave out the charges against Altenberg to the newspapers, or that he refused to treat the discharged officer fairly. The chief claimed that he gave Altenberg an opportunity to resign.

Three of the commissioners voted to oust Altenberg and one commissioner voted in the negative. The one commissioner thought the commission should suspend the officer for sixty days, instead of discharging him.

MODIFIES INJUNCTION.

Judge Vinje Permits Gas Company to Collect Old Debts.

Judge Vinje of the circuit court of Douglas county, Wis., has modified the injunction brought by Mayor Linley of Superior, against the water and light company. The court orders the gas company to put up a $5,000 bond under which it may keep on collecting the gas rentals at the present rate, until the case is determined in the courts.

Mayor Linley charged the company with exhorbitant gas rates and sought to enjoin it in the name of the city. The hearing of the temporary injunction will take place in circuit court, Feb. 5.

MITCHELL ACQUITTED

Jury Decides That He Used Gun in Self Defense.

His Story of Shooting Affray Differs From Smith's Version.

Henry Mitchell, the woodsman, indicted for assault in the second degree, was acquitted by a jury in the district court last evening. Mitchell was accused of shooting John Smith and Peter Niemen, near the corner of Fourth avenue west and Michigan street, Dec. 5. Smith was shot in the head, the bullet making a scalp wound, and Niemen received a slight flesh wound in the neck.

Conflicting stories concerning the shooting affray were told by Smith and Mitchell, but the jury seemed to have accepted the latter's version and accepted his plea of self defense as the reason for his gun play.

Mitchell said he got on the Iron Range train at Ely, Dec. 5 and that at Knife River Smith and Niemen boarded the train. Mitchell claimed that he had a seat by himself and a telescope satchel, which he placed on the floor at his feet. The witness said that Niemen sat down in the seat with him and that when he, Mitchell, got up to get a drink of water, Smith sat down in his place.

Mitchell told the jury that he protested against Smith's action in taking his seat, when the latter became angry and stamped his foot upon the satchel. This made Mitchell angry and there was an altercation, the brakeman finally breaking it up by taking Mitchell and his satchel to another seat.

It was claimed by Mitchell that Niemen came back to his seat and started the argument again when he, the witness, told Niemen to attend to his own business, that the matter had been dropped.

Mitchell claimed that after he left the train in this city he discovered Smith and Niemen walking in front of him on Michigan street. He alleges that the two men turned around with the evident intention of making trouble when he, Mitchell, told them to go on about their business, or he would appeal to the police. The witness claimed that instead of leaving him alone Smith and Niemen drew knives and started toward him, when he drew a revolver and fired at both, believing that they intended to attack him.

Niemen, who was wounded in the neck, disappeared after he left the hospital and the state has not been able to locate him.

After the verdict was read last evening, Mitchell was discharged. He remained at the jail all night, however, intending to leave for his home today.

IN STUPOR IS VICTIM OF A HYPNOTIC GAME.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 15.—The Rev. R. T. Booker of Scottsville, Ill., who became unconscious while playing a game of "hypnotizing," as laid down in some of the recent publications on "How to Pass a Pleasant Evening in Amusing Games," is still in a critical condition at the dormitory of Kentucky university, where he is a second year student.

Miss Ray McGarvey, the young woman who hypnotized young Booker, is prostrated over the affair. After hypnotizing young Booker according to instructions she was unable to break the spell, and physicians who have seen him say it is a peculiar case. They declare that the trouble was probably brought on by the excitement of the game.

Miss McGarvey, who is a granddaughter of the Rev. J. W. McGarvey, a professor in the College of the Bible, where young Booker is studying for the ministry, said there was no intention really to hypnotize the young man, but that they were playing the game, having a code of signals by which those being hypnotized were told what they were expected to do. Booker did not understand the game, nor did he known that those who had been hypnotized before him were only playing. When she first tried him he was not affected. Later he asked to be tried again, saying that he did not believe he could be hypnotized. He became unconscious and fell from the chair.

state's direct tax levy would be much larger, and the farmer legislator realizes that this would be at the expense of his constituents, and he, therefore, opposes it, even if he admits that it would be a simple act of justice.

Therefore, the Duluth Real Estate exchange is considering the plan of asking the legislature to increase the railroad tax, and to apportion the increase to the subdivisions in which the property lies. This would afford considerable relief, without harming any other section of the state.

St. Louis county has two ore-carrying railroads, which pay large gross earnings taxes into the state treasury. A third ore-carrying railroad, drawing business from this county, runs into Superior. Altogether, there is no doubt that St. Louis county contributes, through the gross earnings tax, in the neighborhood of $750,000 a year into the state treasury, for which it gets nothing back.

> The loss of taxes itself is bad enough, but the exemption from local assessments is something that does not exist, so far as The Herald has been able to learn, in any other state in the Union. It is peculiarly vexatious and injurious to Duluth, because of the situation of the city in relation to its railroads.

Under the Minnesota system of taxation, all railroads pay into the state treasury "in lieu of all other taxes and assessments," 4 per cent upon their gross earnings within the state. Prior to the law adopted by the legislature of 1903, and approved by the people at the general election in 1904, the railroads paid but 3 per cent.

No other state in the Union has a system just like this. A few approach it nearly, but none are just like it, and because of this injustice it works to terminals, it is quite the worst system in the country.

As to the difference between our method and those of other states, and as to whether Minnesota railroads pay enough taxes now, which will become an important question if the proposal to raise the tax is submitted to the legislature, this article will have more to say later on.

The first impression received from the returns furnished The Herald by the tax officials of the various states is that the systems in use are extraordinarily varied. The second is that it must be a great nuisance to the railroads to be compelled to figure with so many different systems, and one naturally wonders why they do not protest, and ask for a uniform system. A road running through several states will probably have to deal with as many different systems of taxation as there are states to pay taxes to.

Why do they not protest this annoyance? One can only guess, and The Herald's guess is that it is because they do not pay burdensome taxes in any state, that they pay very much less than they should in nearly all states, and that they fear, as a result of a reorganization of tax systems, that they will be compelled to pay at the same rate as owners of other property. So they are not asking for changes in the systems, but are figuring out their taxes as any state wants them to, providing it does not want them to figure them out too high.

Do the railroads pay enough taxes in Minnesota?

There was an answer to that in the recent railroad hearing before the railroad and warehouse commission, when one railroad official practically admitted on the stand that if railroad property was taxed the same as any other property, his road would pay twice as much taxes as it does now.

Here is another way to answer it: Suppose you have a piece of real estate, worth $20,000, on which your gross revenue is $3,000 a year, or 15 per cent on its value. That property would be assessed for purposes of taxation at about half its actual value, or $10,000. The taxes upon it would be at the rate of about 5 per cent, or $300 a year.

That is 10 per cent of your gross earnings on this property, and the railroads pay 4 per cent on their gross earnings.

Here is still another answer to it. The census bureau at Washington recently put out a bulletin showing the value of various sorts of property in the country in 1904. It showed Minnesota's railroads and their equipment to be worth $466,734,000.

Suppose that property were taxed the same as real estate. It would be assessed for half that sum, or $233,367,000. It would be taxed by as high a rate, perhaps as 2½ per cent, which is much less than the rate of taxation in most cities and villages of the state.

At that rate it would yield taxes amounting to $5,834,175 annually.

> The railroads, in the year covered by that report, paid into the state treasury in lieu of all taxes and assesments a tax on their gross earnings of $1,964,438.42.
> That is just about one-third of the amount they would have paid had they been taxed on the same basis as other property.

So in Minnesota, at least, the existing system of railroad taxation is a pretty good thing for the railroads, and they will not be found, very soon, knocking at the door of the legislature with a request to have it changed.

Somebody else will have to make that request, and unless The Herald is mistaken it will be made very shortly. The railroads would call it confiscation if the state doubled the gross earnings tax rate, yet it would appear that it must be at least doubled to make the railroads pay their proper share of taxation.

If it is impossible to get proper taxation of railroads in this way, surely the railroads could not object to going back to the ad valorem system of taxation, and being taxed on the same basis as other property. Of the feasibility and advisability of that, and as to the obstacles in its way, The Herald will return later on in the course of this article.

To sum up briefly the results of the inquiry shown in detail later on, it is worth noting, first above all, that only three states in the union, Delaware, Maine and Minnesota, depend wholly upon an earnings tax to reach the railroads, and of these three Delaware and Minnesota are the only ones in which the entire tax goes to the state. Maine apportions her railroad gross earnings taxes, in the manner shown in the detailed list below.

Eight other states apply a gross earnings tax in addition to an ad valorem tax, as follows: New York, Ohio, Vermont, Virginia, Maryland, South Carolina, Pennsylvania and Texas. Of these states, Vermont is the only one which gives no part of it's railroad taxes to its subdivisions.

Only five other states besides Minnesota take all the railroad taxes, as follows: Delaware, Vermont, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, and in all of these states railroad property is subject to assessment for local improvements, from which the road gets a benefit. In Rhode Island the state gets no revenue from railroads, all going to the counties.

In Minnesota, though the railroads get just as much benefit from local improvements as any other property, they pay no share of the cost whatever, the general tax on their gross earnings being in no sense, the law to the contrary notwithstanding, in lieu of this obligation. They simply escape scot free in Minnesota, and it is the only state in the Union that is so easy with them.

As to the percentage of earnings taxes in the states using this method, Delaware levies 10 per cent on net earnings, not gross earnings, besides 1 per cent on the capital stock of the roads. Maine levies ½ of 1 per cent up to 4 per cent, depending upon earnings. Virginia, Ohio and Texas, which help out the ad valorem taxes with earning's taxes, impose 1 per cent on gross earnings. Vermont, in addition to the valuation tax, imposes a gross earnings tax of 2½ to 4 per cent. Maryland imposes 1¼ to 2½ per cent, all of which goes to the state, while the ad valorem taxes are apportioned.

The ancient and primitive method of taxing railroads is to let local assessors make the valuations, just as they do on other property. This is done in Georgia, Indiana, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Washington, Maryland and Texas, though in most of these states a state board of equalization, under that name or some other, supervises the assessment and equalizes it between the subdivisions. Without such equalization, railroad property may be valued differently in every county of a state, subject to the whims of the local assessors. This method is, of course, grossly inadequate and unfair.

The next step in advance is the creation of a state board to fix values upon railroad property, and the adoption of laws requiring the railroads to make reports of their property and giving the assessing bodies power to enforce attendance of witnesses, etc., in order that they may have full power to get at the exact situation. This is done in thirty-three out of forty-five states; a proportion substantial enough to make it the general rule. It is, of course, the only proper way to make the assessments, since railroads must be valued in the lump, and not from the viewpoint of local officials who see only that part of them which lies within their respective jurisdictions.

In most states this duty is turned over to the state board of equalization or its corresponding body by some other name, but a number of states have special bodies for this purpose. To others it is a part of the work of the railroad commission. Every state, however, should have a tax commission, or a tax commissioner, to handle all such matters, and Governor Johnson is going to recommend that the Minnesota legislature make such a provision for this state.

Aside from the few states that take the whole tax, in all states it is apportioned between the state and its subdivisions. Usually this is done on a mileage basis, only a few states having tried to apportion it upon a valuation basis. One way to reduce the entire value, franchise, right-of-way, rolling stock and all, to a main line mileage, and apportion the value to each county, to be taxed there the same as all other property. In other cases, side track mileage enters into the calculation, thus giving terminals more advantage. A few states apportion the taxes on the basis of local holdings of railroad stocks.

If the mileage method were used in Minnesota, the chances are that in order to preserve to the rural districts their present advantage, the division would be made upon a maintrack basis. Thus a mile of country track would get as much valuation for purposes of taxation as a mile of city terminals. The value of the city terminals would be spread all along the line. Even this would be better for the cities than the present method, under which they get nothing at all.

Which is the best method? None is perfect.

The chief aim of tax reformers is to separate the sources from which the states and their subdivisions get their revenues. This is done to provide local option in taxation, and to stop the practice by which counties seek to keep their valuations down in order to dodge their proper share of the state taxes.

The ideal system is one wherein the state's revenue comes entirely from corporations and privileges, and wherein local revenues are raised by the taxation of local property.

> It would seem at first blush as though Minnesota's systems was a long step in that direction, since she gets a large share of her state revenues out of the railroads. It is a step, but it cannot be a permanently satisfactory one because of the rank injustice it involves to terminal points.

This difficulty is overcome in several states by taxing railroads separately for state and local purposes. For instance, a gross earnings tax for state purposes, in addition to an ad valorem tax for local purposes. This is probably the best method yet devised. The state, by imposing a franchise tax upon the railroads through the gross earnings tax, leats the subdivisions raise their revenues by other corporation taxes.

The impression seems to prevail in many quarters that it is a part of the constitution, and that the state is tied up to it forever.

It is not a part of the constitution, except indirectly, and the state is not bound to continue it forever, though it may be difficult to change it, if it is desirable to do so. The main advantage of the present system is that it provides a central system of collection of taxes, by which the railroads are relieved of the necessity of paying to every county treasurer. This is a good thing in its way, but it does not compensate for the losses of taxes that the state is not getting, and that it ought to get.

The gross earnings plan of railroad taxation seems to have been adopted by the legislature in very early days as a part of the charters given certain railroads then in existence or about to come into existence.

This proceeding was unconstitutional until the people adopted, in 1871, as an amendment to the constitution, what is now section 32 of article 4 of the state constitution. This, which is the only connection between the constitution and the gross earnings system, simply provides that the system shall not be repealed or amended except by a vote of the people. The section follows:

"Any law providing for the repeal or amendment of any law or laws heretofore or hereafter enacted, which provides that any railroad company now existing in this state or operating its roads therein, or which may be hereafter organized, shall, in lieu of all other taxes and assessments upon their real estate, roads, rolling stock and other personal property, at and during the time and periods therein specified, pay into the treasury of the state or certain percentages therein mentioned of the gross earnings of such railroad companies now existing or hereafter organized, shall, before the same shall take effect or be in force, be submitted to a vote of the people of the state, and be adopted and ratified by a majority of the electors of the state voting at the election at which the same shall be submitted to them."

Therefore, when the legislature in 1903 increased the rate from 3 to 4 per cent, the law had to be submitted to the people at the 1904 general election, where it was approved.

So far as the constitution or the statutes go, a law repealing the gross earnings tax system altogether could be adopted and put through the same course.

However, such a move would come in contact with the holding of the United States courts that exemptions from ordinary taxation granted in this manner are contracts which cannot be impaired by subsequent legislation." In other words, the gross earnings system is a part of the charters of certain roads, and to take away from them this privilege—for it is a privilege—would be to impair the obligation of a contract, according to the view of the United States courts.

This is only true, however, of the roads whose charters include this privilege, and this is by no means all of them. Indeed, unless The Herald is very much mistaken, it applies only to the roads whose charters were granted in the '60s, and all other roads, including most of the mileage of the state, could be required to submit to any other system of taxation the state might elect to impose.

A change would be fought, of course. Before the rate was changed from 3 to 4 per cent the railroads claimed that the rate, too, was in the contract, and that the state could not increase it without going against the famous Dartmouth college decision wherein the highest court in the land held that a state could not violate the obligations of its contracts.

However, the change from 3 to 4 per cent has come about without friction, and a change to 8 per cent, while it might involve a test fight, is equally feasible. A change to any other system is by no means impossible, if the state sees fit to make it.

As to the charters under which some roads might claim a right to continue under the gross earnings system, many of those charters would bear close examination in the view to determining whether the roads themselves had not forfeited them?

> Two other things seem to be clear: Minnesota is not getting enough taxes out of its railroads, and terminals like Duluth are being unjustly treated when the state takes all the taxes it does collect. Especially is the terminal being harshly treated when it not only has to stand the general taxes caused by the presence of the railroad terminals, but has to pay for improving streets from the improvement of which the railroads benefit as much as any other property.

Some change must be made, to right this injustice. Either the system of taxation must be changed, to give subdivisions of the state a share of the taxes from railroads while giving the state an ample revenue from them as well; or the rate must be increased, and a share of the increase given to the counties for distribution to the subdivisions.

Below will be found in as condensed a form as possible, a description of the method of taxing railroads in every state and territory of the union, together with a statement of what disposal is made of the tax:

Alabama.

Valuations are fixed by a state board, which apportions them to the counties on a mileage basis, to be taxed for state and local purposes, the same as other property. Local property, not on the right of way, is locally assessed and taxed the same as property of individuals.

Arizona.

Returns of railroad property values are made by the companies to a territorial board of equalization, which assesses the property at about 25 per cent of its commercial value. The state board apportions the valuation to each county on a mileage basis, and it is taxed by the county for state and local purposes, the same as other property.

Arkansas.

Railroad property is taxed upon an ad valorem basis, though earnings are considered in fixing its value. The railroads are required to make sworn statements of value to a board of assessors, composed of the governor, auditor and secretary of state, which places the assessment at about 50 per cent of what it considers the actual cash value. The assessment is fixed at so much per mile, and the secretary of state certifies to the various counties the number of miles of railroad in each county and the assessed value per mile. Rolling stock is pro rated upon a mileage basis. Personal property, other than rolling stock, and real estate other than trackage, is assessed locally the same as any other property. Even sleeping car, express company and telegraph company values are apportioned upon a mileage basis. Taxes are collected by the county the same as any other taxes, and apportioned between the state and its subdivisions in the same manner. A subdivision with no railroad property thus gets no railroad taxes. Railroads in Arkansas were not taxed until 1883, when the present method was adopted. A. E. Moore, state auditor, says the system could be improved upon, and favors an earning tax, to be distributed between state and subdivisions, perhaps on a basis of population.

California.

Railroad property is now taxed upon an ad valorem basis, but efforts are being made to put it on a gross earnings basis. The state board of equalization assesses franchises, roadbed and other property of all railroads operated in more than one county, and the values are apportioned to the counties on a mileage basis. The taxes are collected by the state controller, who pays each county its proportion. Depots, station grounds, etc., are taxed locally, the same as other property, and railroads running in but one county are also assessed locally. This method was adopted in 1879, prior to which all railroad property was assessed by local officers, and tax collected by them.

Colorado.

Railroad property is assessed by a state board, the value reduced to a mileage basis, and then pro-rated to the several counties, taxes to be levied, collected and divided between state and subdivisions in the same manner as other taxes.

Connecticut.

The railroads are taxed only upon the market value of their capital stock, fixed by a state board of equalization composed of the treasurer, comptroller and tax commissioner, which obtains it by averaging the market price of the stock during tae preceding year. The entire tax goes to the state, and none is apportioned. Frank E. Healy, state tax commissioner, says this method is very satisfactory, though there is some agitation in favor of apportionment of the taxes to the subdivisions of the state. This method has always been the rule in this state.

Delaware.

Railroads pay a flat 10 per cent on their net earnings for the state only, besides a tax of 1 per cent on such proportion of the total capital stock as the mileage within the state bears to the total mileage.

Florida.

The ad valorem system of assessment is used here. The mileage of each road is obtained from sworn statements by railroad officials, giving the total mileage of main and side tracks, and their value; also the value of terminal facilities, an itemized statement of rolling stock, which is also reduced to a mileage basis. The state board, consisting of the comptroller, attorney general and state treasurer, then fixes the valu per mile, and the valuation of the railroad property for each county. The comptroller returns this valuation to the county assessors, who compute the taxes and collect them. If they are unable to collect by April 1, they report to the state comptroller, corresponding to our state auditor, who collects the taxes and distributes the proceeds. The taxes are apportioned between state ad subdivisions the same as those on any other property. Terminal mileage is given a larger valuation, and this gives terminal points their due share of taxes. This method has been in effect since 1883, prior to which the county assessors fixed the valuations.

Georgia.

The state values the special franchises of the railroads, and real estate, including tracks and rolling stock, is assessed by the state and apportioned to the counties to be taxed locally. The value of the special franchises is fixed by the state comptroller, who considers the capital stock and its net earning power. The railroads are given an opportunity to arbitrate if they object to this valuation. The rolling stock is divided to the subdivisions of the state in the proportion the located property in each subdivision bears to the entire located property of the road. The franchise value is apportioned in the same manner. Prior to 1889 railroad property was taxed only for state purposes, and franchises were made payable in 1902. William A. Wright, comptroller general, expresses his belief that Georgia's method of taxing railroads is the best in use, with some minor amendments.

Idaho.

Railroad companies are required to make annual returns of their property to the state board of equalization. The board assesses it and apportions it among the counties, to be taxed the same as other property. Local property, not on the right of way, is assessed and taxed locally.

Illinois.

The railroads make annual reports of their property and its value to the state board of equalization, which fixes the assessment for purposes of taxation. Railroad property is assessed on the same basis as private property, at about 20 per cent of actual value. The total valuation is apportioned to the several counties in proportion to their maintrack mileage, and taxes collected just as other taxes are collected. The proceeds are divided between state and subdivisions the same as other taxes. Terminal points receive no special benefit, except that side tracks are also assessed and taxed locally. Buildings on right-of-way are taxed where they stand, while in Minnesota, if they are used for railroad purposes, they are exempt. This method has been in effect since 1872, and the state auditor, James S. McCullough, reports that it is not altogether satisfactory. Capital stock and franchise values are assessed, but in only four roads out of 130 do they amount to more than the valuation of fixed property, which valuation is deducted, and a tax levied upon the remainder. The railroad mileage in the state is 10,751 miles, and it is assessed this year at $8,029 per mile, which is considered 20 per cent of the fair cash value. The electric roads, covering 521 miles, are assessed at $14,024 per mile, and taxed in the same way.

Indiana.

Railroad property is assesed at its cash value, the same as other property, the value being fixed by a state board of tax commissioners, which takes into account the condition of the property and its earning capacity. The assessment for each county is certified and taxed locally the same as other property, the taxes being divided between the state and its subdivisions, according to the several tax levies, the same as on other property. The valuation is reduced to a mileage basis, and buildings, etc., are locally assesed where they stand. Sleeping car companies, telegraph companies, etc., are also reduced to a mileage valuation and apportioned. This method has been used since 1891, prior to which local officers made the assessments, which were reviewed by a state board of equalization. John C. Billhelmer, state auditor, thinks the Indiana system is the best one he knows about.

It is interesting to note here that the railroads are made to bear the burden of making sworn statements of property values, and of apportioning these values to the counties, making returns to the county auditors. Side tracks and terminals are assessed in the counties in which they are located. The railroads must even subdivide their valuations in each township, city and village.

Iowa.

Iowa has an excellent system of getting full reports from its railroads, covering gross earnings, operating expenses, and net earnings, for the system and for the state separately. The railroad property is assessed upon an ad valorem basis, though earnings are considered in fixing values, which is done by the executive council of the state, the basis being about 25 per cent of actual value. The valuation for each county, after the totals have been reduced to a mileage basis, are certified by the council to the several counties in which there is railroad property, and the taxes are collected by the counties and apportioned to the state and the county and its subdivisions, just as other taxes are. Since the distribution of value is purely on a mileage basis, terminals get no special consideration. For instance, the value of the $3,000,000 Boone bridge on the Chicago & Northwestern is distributed from Council Bluffs to Clinton. The same method has been in use for thirty-five years, and A. H. Davidson, secretary of the executive council, says that the distribution is most inequitable. He believes the railroad taxes should all go to the state, in order to exempt local subdivisions from a direct state tax. The railroads of Iowa now pay enough taxes to furnish the state's revenues, if the constitution permitted the state to take them all, which it does not. "So far as the cities are concerned," says Mr. Davidson, "the relief from a state tax would be equivalent to letting them tax terminals. Sections that have no railroad property, but that contribute business and give railroad property its value, should share in the benefit." The gross earnings of Iowa roads were $63,792,307.25, and at 4 per cent the tax would have been $2,511,692.29; the state got, as it was, $2,089,351.74.

Kansas.

The value of tangible railroad property is fixed by a state board, earnings entering into consideration, and the assessment is apportioned to the several counties as nearly as may be in relation to the value of the railroad property in each county. The taxes are collected by the counties, just as other taxes are collected, and the state's share is remitted. Terminals are cared for by the effort of the state board to apportion the total assessment according to local values. The state auditor, Seth G. Wells, approves of the Kansas method, and believes each subdivision of the state should receive railroad taxes in proportion to the value of railroad property within its borders.

Kentucky.

Valuations upon railroad property, including the franchises, are fixed by a state board, and the valuations apportioned to the counties on a mileage basis. The state collects its own tax and the counties collect local taxes. The franchise tax was provided for in 1892. S. W. Hagen, state auditor, reports that the system is eminently satisfactory.

Nevada.

All railroad property is valued by the state board of equalization and the values apportioned to the counties on a mileage basis. The tax is on the same basis as all other property, a tax of 75 cents per $100 valuation being collected for state purposes, and local taxes according to local needs.

Louisiana.

Railroad values are fixed by a state board of appraisers, consisting of a member from each congressional district, with the state auditor. The values are apportioned to the several parishes (counties) on a mileage basis and the taxes collected by the sheriffs. Railroad taxes are apportioned to the state and its subdivisions on the same basis as other taxes. The system of assessment by a state board was created in 1899. Several Louisiana roads are exempt from taxation by reason of a constitutional provision exempting roads built during a certain period of development when roads were badly needed. Even these roads, however, are not exempt from local special taxes, like the levee taxes.

Maine.

The railroads make annually sworn statements showing the amount of their capital stock, the number and par value of the shares, a complete list of stockholders with places of residence and the number of shares held by them on April 1, the entire length of the line, the length within the state, and the assessed valuation of stations and other local property that is taxed by the municipalities. Each railroad pays an annual excise tax for the privilege of exercising its franchise, which is in lieu of all taxes except those on buildings, on or off the right of way, and land and fixtures outside the right of way, which are taxed the same as other real estate. The state apportions to the communities in which stock is held an amount equal to 1 per cent of the value of the stock April 1, providing this does not exceed the amount received by the state in the case of any railroad, and provided that the amount so paid out is not, in the case of any railroad, a greater part of the whole tax received from it than the proportion of its capital stock held in Maine bears to the whole amount of its capital stock. This excise tax is graduated. When the gross receipts of a railroad are under $1,500 per mile, it is one-half of 1 per cent, when they are from $1,500 to $2,000 it is three-fourths of 1 per cent and so on, increasing one-fourth of 1 per cent with each $500 of gross receipts until it reaches 4 per cent, which would represent gross earnings of $8,000 per mile. The railroads must pay the salary and expenses of the board of railway commissioners. Palace cars pay 4 per cent on their gross earnings. It should be noted that while this is a gross earnings tax, it is apportioned, in addition the local railroad property is taxed and assessed for local purposes.

Maryland.

Railroads are taxed upon their gross receipts for state purposes only, besides an ad valorem tax for local purposes. The gross earnings tax is 1¼ per cent for the first $1,000 of gross receipts per mile, 2 per cent for earnings from $1,000 to $2,000, and 2½ per cent for earnings over $2,000 per mile. The state officials fix the ad valorem value of railroad property, and apportion it to the counties upon a mileage basis for taxation the same as other property for local purposes.

Massachusetts

Visible property is taxed locally, and the franchise is taxed by the state and the tax apportioned. The tax commissioner fixes the value of the franchise from its market prices, and deducts the value of tangible property and the value of that part of the railroad which lies outside of the commonwealth. The right of way, if 4 rods in width, and all things erected thereon, is declared exempt from taxation by the supreme court. After making the above deduction, the remainder is the assessed value of the franchise, and it is taxed at a rate thus determined by the commissioner of corporations by dividing the total amount raised by taxation in property in the different cities and towns for the year by the total valuation of the property therein, which gives approximately the average rate of taxation in the state. This was $17.25 per $1,000 in 1905 and $16.87 in 1906. This tax is paid directly to the state treasurer, who distributes it to the cities and towns in proportion to the number of shares held by residents in the several roads. The amount applicable to shares owned by non-residents is used by the state.

Michigan.

Railroads are taxed by the state upon an ad valorem basis at the average of the general rates throughout the state, and the whole tax thus raised is paid to the several counties for the primary schools. This method has been in use since 1902, before which there was a gross earnings tax. James B. Bradley, the auditor general, thinks this is a just tax, because it is based upon the same rate as landowners pay, and it is, therefore, equal taxation. In reply to the question whether the tax should be taken by the state or apportioned, Mr. Bradley says: "It depends upon the other means of state support. Our constitution requires specific taxes to be paid for the support of primary schools. When we changed to ad valorem taxation of railroads we could not withhold the amount theretofore paid to schools and put it into the specific tax fund, as it had been under the old system. The use of the money is not material. If it is used for state purposes, then the counties must support the schools entirely; if it is used by the counties, the counties must raise a state tax of approximately the same amount."

The valuation upon the railroads is fixed by a state board of assessors, which also finds the average rate of taxation and applies it to the railroad valuations to fix the amount of the tax. The tax is collected through the auditor general and distributed from the "primary school fund," to the various counties for the payment of teachers' salaries. This tax gives the primary schools a per capita allowance of $5 per year.

Mississippi.

Railroads are valued upon a mileage basis by the railroad commission, varying according to classification. First-class roads are valued at $15,000 to $20,000 per mile, second-class roads at $12,000 to $15,000 per mile; third-class roads at $8,000 to $12,000 per mile, and one new road is valued at $3,500 per mile. The railroads also pay the state a "privilege tax" of $10 to $22 per mile. The taxes are collected by the county for state and county purposes, and for the municipalities by the municipalities themselves. The county pays the state its proper proportion. This method has been used since 1892, and it is reported by the state auditor as entirely satisfacory.

Missouri.

Railroads are valued on an ad valorem basis, reduced to a main track mileage, and distributed to local subdivisions accordingly, and taxes for state and local purposes levied just as other property is taxed. The railroads report to the state auditor their mileage, local property and rolling stock, duplicates reports going to each county clerk giving the property in each county. The county court—known to us as the county board—examines the returns, and if found correct, reports them to the state auditor. If the reports are wrong, they correct them, and if property is omitted, it is taxed at double its cash value. The state auditor lays the result of all this before the state board of equalization of railroad property, composed of state officers, which equalizes the values between the several counties. Local property not included in these reports is assessed and taxed locally just as though it were privately owned.

Montana.

Railroad property is assessed by a state board of equalization, and the values apportioned to the counties on a mileage basis. The county collects the taxes and returns to the state its proper share. Terminals get no special advantage, getting taxes only for the main track mileage they may have. The state auditor reports that this system is an inheritance from territorial days, and that some complaint is heard about it.

Nebraska.

Nebraska assesses and taxes railroad property just about the same as any other property. Railroad property is valued locally and taxed local for both state and local purposes. This method has been used since the organization of the state.

New Hampshire.

Railroad property is assessed at its actual value, and taxed at the average rate of taxation throughout the state. The taxes are apportioned in an interesting manner. Three-quarters of the total goes to towns on the lines of road in proportion to the amount of capital expended on buildings and right-of-way, and the remaining three-quarters are apportioned to the whole number of shares of stock in the roads. Each town receives the proportion for shares owned by residents, and the state gets the proportion for shares owned outside of the state. Solon A. Carter, state treasurer, reports that this method is not entirely satisfactory. If the tax is to be apportioned, however, he believes the new Hampshire system to be as fair as any. The cities are cured for by the plan of distributing a part of the tax in proportion to the capital invested in railroad improvements therein. In distributing the tax on the stock basis, allowance should only be made, however, for actual bona fide individual stockholders, and all corporation holdings, where one corporation holds the stock of another, should be excluded from the share distribution and the taxes retained by the state. In 1905, out of a total railroad tax of $405,183.03, to the state got $166,086.96, and the subdivisions received $237,106.66.

New Jersey.

Steam railroads are assessed on ad valorem basis, though street railways pay an income tax, which goes to the municipalities. Railroads are assessed at their full value by a state board of assessors, and the state tax rate is applied. The state collects its own share and the municipalities collect their own, so that the property is taxed separately for state and local purposes. A recent decision by the New Jersey supreme court is interesting in this connection. Railroad property had been assessed at its full value, according to law, while private property, as the custom is in most states, had been assessed at much less than full value. The railroads claimed that this was unjust, and appealed to the state board of equalization for relief, which was refused. The supreme court upheld this refusal, and said that the board had no right, under the law, to do otherwise. It might have ordered a reassessment of other property to bring it up to the level of railroad property, but it did not, and the railroads must continue to pay a larger proportionate share of taxes than other interests.

New Mexico.

All railroad property is reduced to a mileage basis, and the tax is collected by the counties, which turn over about 30 per cent to the territory, and keep the remainder for local uses.

Railroads are assessed and taxed locally for local purposes, the same as other property. The value of the railroad franchises is fixed by a statebaord of tax commissioners and assessed and taxed the same as other property. Railroads are subject to a state tax, in addition, of one-half of 1 per cent of the gross earnings, and also upon the capital stock at the rate of one-fourth of a mill on each 1 per cent of the dividend when it is 6 per cent or more. If it is less than 6 per cent, it is taxable at not less than the difference between the assets and liabilities of the corporation, and not less than the average price at which the stock sold during the year. If there is no dividend, the tax is three-fourths of a mill on each dollar of par value. State and local taxes are entirely separate.

North Carolina.

Railroad property is taxed on an ad valorem basis, and there is also a small privilege tax. A state corporation commission fixes the value of the property by considering earnings, value of stock, etc., and the assessed valuation is about 75 or 80 per cent of the actual value. This valuation is reduced to a mileage basis, and apportioned to counties according to the main line mileage in each. The state collects its own taxes, and a pension tax of 25 cents for each $100 of valuation, and the county taxes are paid to the sheriff or tax collector of each county. The city taxes are collected by the city tax collector. This method has been in use for fifteen years, before which the counties assessed and taxed railroad property. The privilege tax is graduated as follows: Roads earning $1,000 per mile or less, $2 per mile; earnings of $1,000 to $2,000, $3 per mile; earnings of $2,000 to $3,000, $4 per mile; earnings over $3,000 per mile, $5 per mile. This entire tax goes to the state.

North Dakota.

Railroad property is assessed on a mileage basis by the state board of equalization, the value is apportioned to the counties, and the taxes are collected by the county treasurer. For instance, the Northern Pacific is assessed at $9,000 per imle on its main lines and $1,500 on sidings. The state's share is turned over upon state auditor's draft. This method has been in use for twelve years, before which the gross earnings tax was used. "This would have been all right," says Carl O. Jorgenson, deputy state auditor, "if we had kept the books of the railroad companies." He believes the valuation system to be the best, as all subdivisions get the benefit of the taxes from property within their limits.

Ohio.

Railroads are taxed upon an ad valorem basis, with the addition of a 1 per cent gross earnings tax. The cash value of all railroad property is fixed by a board composed of the auditors of counties through which the roads run. The counties collect the taxes, the value of the roads being apportioned to each, keeps its own share and remits the state, its proportion. This is on a levy of 1.35 mills for state purposes alone. The values are apportioned on a mileage basis. The gross earnings tax of 1 per cent goes entirely to the state. The state auditor reports that the system is very satisfactory, and that he believes the best possible system of railroad taxation is ad valorem taxation for the subdivisions and a gross earnings tax for the state.

Oklahoma.

Oklahoma is just becoming a state, and many changes her system, but now railroad property is assessed and taxed the same as other property, at about 25 per cent of actual values, and territory and subdivisions get their due proportions. L. W. Baxter, state auditor, says that there should also be a tax on earnings and franchises, and that all taxes should be properly apportioned between state and subdivisions.

Oregon.

All fixed Oregon property is assessed in the counties in which it is situated, and taxed the same as other property. Rolling stock values are fixed by the state and apportioned to the counties, to be taxed therein, upon a mileage basis. Oregon has a board of tax commissioners that is framing a new system of taxation.

Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania has a very interesting system of taxation, under which the state gets ample revenues from corporation taxes, inheritance taxes, etc., and under which all real estate has been exempt from state taxes since 1866. Railroads are taxed just the same as other corporations: 5 mills on the actual value of the stock, 8 mills on gross receipts, and 4 mills on the indebtedness. Manufacturing corporations are exempt from the capital stock tax. There is also a personal property tax, of which three-quarters goes to the subdivisions for local purposes, and the balance to the state. This year's state revenues amount to $25,700,000, about 70 per cent from corporations.

Rhode Island.

The state gets no revenue from railroad property, which is assessed by each subdivision for local purposes only. Rhode Island has a constitutional provision on taxation which is remarkable for its latitude. It leaves the whole thing to the legislature.

South Carolina.

The state has both an earnings tax and an ad valorem tax. The state imposes a license tax of 3 per cent on gross intrastate receipts, that is on receipts for intrastate business, which it keeps itself. In addition, it takes a share of the ad valorem tax, which is imposed by the counties the same as on other property. A state board fixes the value of the railroad property, and it is apportioned to the subdivisions on a mileage basis.

South Dakota.

Railroad property is assessed by a state board of equalization on railroad reports showing mileage, equipment, gross and net receipts. Assessment is 20 or 25 per cent of actual value, and after being reduced to a mileage basis the valuation is apportioned to the counties to be taxed the same as any other property. J. T. Halladay, state auditor, says that if there were large railroad terminals the mileage system of apportionment would be bad. South Dakota's system is not entirely satisfactory, in his opinion, but it is as good as any. "No satisfactory system has yet been devised." Railroad taxes should be apportioned.

Tennessee.

The valuation is fixed by the state railroad commission and apportioned to the counties on a mileage basis. The state collects its own tax, and the subdivisions collect theirs separately.

Texas.

Texas has both ad valorem and gross earnings systems, the latter being at present in litigation. The object is to provide a gross earnings tax for the state and an ad valorem tax for subdivisions. The assessment is made by the counties, the state levying 20 cents per $100 for state purposes and 18 cents for school purposes. The proposed earnings tax of 1 per cent is for state purposes only. J. W. Stephens, state comptroller, states that the gross earnings tax has been in use but a short time, before which there was a tax of 1 per cent on passenger earnings only. He believes the double method, ad valorem and gross earnings taxation, is the best. Railroad property is hard to value at a sufficient level, and the gross earnings tax helps to make up what the railroads save by keeping their valuations low. A state tax board should value the railroads, and apportion values to the counties, instead of letting the counties fix the valuation.

Utah.

Valuations having been fixed by a state board, they are apportioned to the counties on a mileage basis, and taxed the same as other property for state and local purposes. This method has always been in use so far as the method of assessment is concerned. It was turned over to the state board in 1892, and franchises were first assessed in 1896. J. J. Thomas, secretary of the state board of equalization, says the railroad taxes should certainly be apportioned. The total demands upon the state revenues now are greater than could be met if the state reserved the right to draw its revenue from corporations only, while some counties, large in area but small in population, would not be able to maintain themselves if the railroad tax was taken from them.

Vermont.

Railroads are taxed 1 per cent on their appraised valuation, with the option to the railroads of paying a graduated gross earnings tax of 2½ per cent on the first $2,000 per mile of earnings, with the addition of ¼ of 1 per cent for each $500 per mile of earnings until the maximum rate of 4 per cent on earnings of $4,500 per mile and over is reached. The appraisal is by the commissioner of state taxes, and the state collects and keeps the entire tax. There is no direct state tax, the state's revenues being derived entirely from railroad and corporation taxes. This method has been in use since 1890, and in 1904 the rate of taxation was increased from 7-10 of 1 per cent to 1 per cent, and the gross earnings rate from a flat 2½ per cent to the graduated basis. Says J. E. Cushman, commissioner of state taxes: "All of our railroads are, comparatively speaking, small carriers compared with the roads in your section of the country. We are compelled to a certain degree to undertax them in order to induce investors to build any new roads. Our average rate of taxation in the state is about 1.6 per cent, and has been for several years. Our railroad tax has been less than half as much. Everything considered, the graduated gross earnings tav seems most nearly to meet local conditions. In a state like yours, I should suppose a tax on appraised values could be levied which would equal the average rate in the state without making the tax burdensome."

Virginia.

Virginia uses a gross earnings tax of 1 per cent for state purposes, besides an ad valorem tax for both state and local purposes. A state board fixes the values and apportions them to the counties upon a basis of valuation in each. The state collects its own taxes, and the subdivisions levy their taxes on the values found by the state board corporation commission. Real estate not on the right of way, including depots and warehouses, is assessed and taxed locally the same as other property.

Washington.

Washington has a very primitive method. Railroad property is assessed by local officials, according to their individual whims, and taxed the same as other property. J. E. Frost, tax commissioner, says this method is not satisfactory, and that railroads should be assessed by a central state body and taxed at the average rate in the entire state, and that the entire tax should go to the state. Public utilities should provide the state's revenue, and local property should provide the local revenues.

West Virginia.

Railroads report their property and its value to the tax commissioner, who lays it before a board of public works composed of state officers, which makes the assessment. The state auditor apportions the values to the counties, and the county courts—county boards—apportion in turn to the subdivisions of the counties. The local taxes are levied by the respective boards, all levies are certified to the state auditor, and he makes up the amount of taxes due. He also collects the taxes, and apportions them where they belong, to the state and its subdivisions. The constitution does not permit a gross earnings tax, but many favor it. Arnold C. Scherr, state auditor, favors a gross earnings tax for state purposes and ad valorem taxation for local purposes.

Wisconsin.

The Wisconsin system of railroad taxation is interesting, because it has resulted in providing the entire state revenue, together with other corporation taxes, and in abolishing the direct levy for state purposes, the chief end of tax reform. The state tax commission fixes the values, and the state collects and keeps the entire tax. Combined with the ad valorem system is a license fee system, which was in use prior to 1904, when the present method was taken up. When the value of a railroad's property has been arrived at, the average rate of taxation throughout the state is applied to it, and the result is the ad valorem tax. From this is substracted the amount of the license fee tax, which has already been paid. The license fees are as follows: 4 per cent on gross earnings of $3,000 per mile and over; 3¼ per cent on $2,500 to $3,000; 3 per cent on $2,000 to $2,500

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

SKIING IS THE THING

Norse Sport Has Tremendous Hold on All Northwest.

Reports of Big Tournaments Coming From All Directions.

Skiing has taken hold of the Northwest with a vengeance. Whether the unusually heavy fall of snow so far this year, or whether simply the growing popularity of the sport has been the cause of it, the great Norse game has advanced farther in a shorter time than almost any other sport which Americans, and Americanized foreigners have taken up. Reports of ski tournaments are coming in from all over the country, and on every hill and snow drift which offers sufficient inclination for the work, a crowd of riders may be seen on almost any pleasant day.

The Duluth Ski club will hold its big annual tournament next Sunday at Chester creek hill, and an elaborate program of events has been announced, skilled men coming from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Red Wing, Ishpeming, Ashland, Bovey, Hibbing, Superior and Starbuck. Duluth will contribute its quota to the total and some records are expected to be broken before the close of the day.

At Cameron, Wis., the Fram Ski club is planning to hold its tournament Tuesday, Jan. 29, and a big program of events has been outlined, including a match for the juvenile skiers of the town, limited to boys under 15 years of age.

At Ishpeming, on Feb. 22, the ski club will hold its big affair, and plans are already well under way toward it.

The Stillwater devotees of the sport will get together on the Lily Lake run on Feb. 12, for their big contest, and as the club is one of the largest in the Northwest, it will probably be a big affair.

The main interest, however, centers about the national tournament at Ashland, where riders from all over the country will gather during the second week in February for what the committee in charge promises will be the biggest and best tournament ever held outside the borders of the Scandinavian peninsula. Prizes, aggregating $500, have been donated for the various events, which include, in addition to the jumping, a twenty-mile tramp and a big torchlight parade. The tournament has been well advertised throughout the country, and Ashland is preparing to accommodate one of the biggest crowds in her history, the committee having gone so far as to announce that there was a probability of President Roosevelt being on hand to witness the event.

RICHARDSON WILL BE A DELAWARE SENATOR.

Dover, Del., Jan. 15.— Henry Richardson of this county, was last night declared the Republican nominee for the United States senate on the ninth ballot in the caucus of the Thirty-sixth assemblymen of the lower branch of the Delaware legislature. The ballot resulted: Richardson, 20; Allee, 10; Burton, 1; Marshall, 1; Addicks, 1; Layton, 2; Pennewill, 1.

J. Frank Alee's supporters stood by him to the last but the gradual defection of the Addicks men to Richardson made the present senator's selection by the caucus practically impossible. The action by the Republican assemblymen virtually assures Richardson's nomination as United States senator.

What Water Means to Beer

The important part that water plays in brewing beer was not discovered for nearly 1000 years. Formerly any water was used, after boiling, but in recent years it has been learned that the chemical composition of the water used is one of the principal considerations in brewing.

The fact that proper water is found at Burton-on-Trent, England, has made that the greatest brewing center of the world.

The Scientific American has shown that the water of the Great Lakes and especially Lake Superior, of all the water in the world, is the best adapted to making beer.

Fitger's Beer

is made exclusively from filtered Lake Superior water. This, in part, accounts for its superiority. The malt and hops used are selected with care, and the business is conducted on scientific principles. In machinery nothing but the best would do. We installed the first refrigerating plant in Minnesota at enormous expense.

Thus in every detail FITGER'S BEER has stood for all that is best in brewing for the past 25 years.

Your home deserves a case.

The fight between Jimmy Britt and Joe Gans, billed for next March, will take place on Sunday.

If the fight promoters aimed at killing the fight game in Nevada, they could not have taken a better means of doing it.

The finish fights, with the big purses, were just about all the opponents of pugilism would stand for, even in Nevada, and now that the Sunday fight is about to be tried, it will probably mean an agitation that will result in this last stronghold of the prize ring adherents being wiped out.

A finish fight on Sunday is apt to prove a little too much even for Nevada.

A glance at the formidable list of ski tournaments arranged for the next month will give a pretty fair idea of the popularity the great Norwegian sport has attained, even if Duluthians were not already fully aware of it, from the countless numbers of young people who can be seen any afternoon or evening on the hills in every part of the city.

Skiing has attained a vogue this winter that is little short of phenomenal.

To keep pace with the bonspiel now in progress at the Duluth curling rink is no easy task for a newspaper. Five sets of games are played each day, and there are ten games in each set or "draw," as it is known to the curlers. There is one draw in the morning, a second at noon, a third at 4 o'clock, a fourth at 7 o'clock and the last at 9 o'clock.

Each afternoon The Herald will publish the complete standing in all the events in progress, up to the last game played the night before. The results of the morning and noon draws will then be given in another part of the paper, and by referring to the tables the standing up to the minute of going to press can easily be figured out.

CALUMET LOSES TO SOO SEVEN

Copper Country Puck Chasers Defeated by Canadians, 8-5.

Calumet, Jan. 15.—In a sensationally fast game here last evening, Calumet lost for the second time this season, the Canadian Soos scoring eight times to the local's five. Wilson, who took La Londe's place at center in the second half, scored five of the Soo's eight tallies and distinguished himself by brilliant head stick work throughout the game.

The line-up:

Can. Soo.	Position.	Calumet.
Gehman	Goal	Nicholson
Brown	Point.	McDonald
McRobel	Cover	Shields
Taylor	Rover	Mallen
LaLonde, Wilson.	Center	Morrison
Schaefer	Left	Decorie
McNamara	Right	Scott

Referee—Stevens. Attendance—2,000.

WIGGINS AND BUSHA TIE.

Superior Man Shows Up Well in Home Rink.

At the Broadway roller rink in Superior last night, Walter Wiggins and Phil Busha raced the third of their series of five races for the roller skating championship of the Head of the Lakes, and after going a fast mile, the judges were unable to decide which man was in the lead at the finish.

Busha was on his home rink, and took the lead on the first turn. It did not take Wiggins long to get used to the course, however, and he slowly, but surely crawled up on his opponent till they crossed the line too nearly together to warrant a decision.

Things certainly look good for Wiggins' title, as he has two of the five races to his credit, and a tie race on the enemy's rink is almost as good as a victory. The Duluth boy's friends are putting their money on him for the next heat which will probably be held at the Temple rink here.

Ball Game Postponed.

Owing to the fact that the naval reserves had arranged for the hall for a dance on that date, a postponement of the indoor ball game between the Hibbing and Big Duluth nines, which was to have been played next Friday, was necessary, and the contest will probably be pulled off next week.

BENTON HARBOR TRAGEDY.

Two Persons Shot and Then Assailant Attempts His Life.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 15.—Deputy Sheriff Rodney Pearl, Mrs. Mary Moore and the latter's husband, L. T. Moore, are in a hospital here in a critical condition as the result of Moore's resistance to Mrs. Moore's attempted recovery of some property from the Moore home. A volley from Moore's revolver greeted the deputy and Mrs. Moore when they approached the house and knocked at the door.

Deputy Pearl was shot in the breast and shoulder and Mrs. Moore in the arm. Moore then fled but being under fire from the wounded officer's relative, turned into the barn. There he shot himself twice through the head and gashed his wrist with a dull knife after setting fire to the building. Neighbors pulled him out before the flames reached him and he was taken to the hospital with the other two injured.

NO INVESTIGATION FOR S. GUGGENHEIM.

Denver, Jan. 15.—By a party vote twenty Republicans to eleven Democrats, the state senate yesterday defeated and then expunged from its records a resolution for an investigation of the so-called smelter trust. The preamble to the resolution declared that "Simon Guggenheim is now and has habitually been engaged in violating the laws of the United States relating to the receiving rebates, specific testimony whereof is offered to any court."

Mr. Guggenheim has been endorsed by the Republican caucus as candidate for the United States senate.

CONDITIONS PERFECT FOR ANNUAL BONSPIEL

Keen Ice Brings Out Good Curling on Opening Day.

Duluth Rinks Are Showing Up Well in All Events.

Perfect ice and ideal weather conditions, brought out the keenest kind of curling on the opening day of the big bonspiel, and the games were run off without a single hitch.

Forty games were played yesterday, and this morning found three events under way. The first and preliminary rounds of the Duluth event are completed, with the exception of but two games, which were to be played this morning, and the Canadian Soo event was also far enough along so that the first and preliminary rounds would be finished up this morning.

Nine games have also been played in the St. Paul Jobbers' event.

Secretary J. H. Blackwood is proving an expert in the art of handling a bonspiel, and the games are moving with the regularity of clockwork. If the weather holds, and there seems to be no reason to doubt that it will, the events will be pretty well cleaned up by Thursday night.

The "Canucks" are getting bumped on all sides or at least they received more than their fair share of the bumps yesterday.

The Waugh rink was put out of both the Duluth and Soo events. Orde of Minneapolis, turned the trick in the Soo event, and Duncan of Duluth, was responsible in the Duluth event. Mr. Duncan's rink also won a notable victory in the evening over Rochon of Winnipeg. The game was one of the most spectacular of the day, and was won by Mr. Duncan on his last shot.

Rochon won his game in the Duluth event, however, getting revenge on Mr. Duncan's brother-in-law, A. W. Frick.

The Carson rink was put out of the Duluth event by Hurdon of Duluth, but won in the St. Paul Jobbers, defeating Dunlop of Duluth.

The Gowler rink also had one defeat and one victory, winning from Graham of Calumet, in the Duluth event, and losing to Bradley in the Soo.

Macrae won two games, defeating Halcrow in the Duluth event and Orde of Minneapolis in the Jobbers.

The Hurdon rink won both of its games defeating Carson of Winnipeg and W. D. Brewer of Duluth.

The Bradley rink probably made the best showing of any of the rinks yesterday, carrying off three victories. It won from the Barnes rink in the Duluth event; from Gowler of Winnipeg in the Soo; and from Frick in the Jobbers.

A. H. Smith won both of his games, defeating McCutcheon of Minneapolis and Barnes of West Duluth, and the Myron rink also won twice, defeating Weir and McDonald.

The Dunbar rink was watched by an interesting crowd of spectators while it was on the ice. It won both of its games, defeating McGregor of St. Paul and the C. D. Brewer rink of Duluth.

Far from fearing the Dunbar rink, every rink on the ice is anxious to meet the famous skip, feeling that there is every thing to win and nothing to lose.

The Western curlers from West Duluth struck rough sledding yesterday, and A. G. Macauley was the only one able to win his game, the other rinks being put out of the events. Better luck is hoped for today, in the other events however, for the Westerners were undoubtedly playing in hard luck.

There was a big crowd of spectators on hand throughout the afternoon and evening, and the games are creating not a little interest among Duluth people.

Following is a complete record of yesterday's games and the standings in each event up to this morning's draw:

TO END THE HORSE CARS.

New York Street Car Line to Change to Electric.

New York, Jan. 15.—President Vreeland of the New York City Railway company announced yesterday that the company is to do away with the horse cars which for years have been traversing the streets of New York. President Vreeland made this announcement after action by the board of directors of the company directing the president of the road to proceed at once to make contracts and order materials and do everything necessary to expediate the work of changing from horse power to electric.

President Vreeland and Oren Root, Jr., general manager of the New York City Railway company, have been making the plans for this work for several months. The board of state railroad commissioners was notified of the decision, and President Vreeland also wrote a letter to property owners on the East side saying that work would be begun on First avenue as soon as the frost was out of the ground and that the job would be completed at the earliest possible date.

PANIC IN CHURCH.

Several Persons Injured in Burning of St. Alphouse at Kenosha.

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 15.—Several persons were slightly injured and one woman slightly burned during a panic, resulting from the burning of Alphonse Catholic church, in New Munster, Kenosha county, Sunday. The pecuniary loss is estimated at $25,000.

Father Schiefen, in charge of the church, remained at the altar until the last person had left. His presence of mind undoubtedly prevented a catastrophe.

MELANCHOLY POEM IS WRITTEN BY THE CZAR.

London, Jan. 15.—Much interest is shown here in a poem said to have been written by the czar and sent to a friend, accompanied by a photograph of the imperial family. It sums up the situation in his distracted country as the ruler views it, and it is as follows:

My happiness was born at night
And suckled in the gloom;
My pleasures have dissolved in flight,
Heartstricken at my doom;
My soul strives blindly for relief,
Chilled as by driving snow,
By doubts which mock at the belief
Of finding peace below.

RAILROAD PROBLEM

Has Become of Vital Importance, Says President J. J. Hill.

Railroad Magnate Sends Governor Johnson Some Startling Figures.

St. Paul, Jan. 15.—President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern railroad, yesterday sent a leter to Governor Johnson in which he gives his views on the various phases of the railroad question in the United States, the reason for the existing conditions and a remedy. The letter says in part:

"Hon. John A. Johnson, Governor of Minnesota:

"Dear Sir: The business of the United States is today so congested that from every portion of the country arises clamor for relief. The railroads everywhere are taxed beyond their power. The people of the United States, therefore, are face to face with the greatest business problem that has ever threatened the nation. During recent years the volume of business has increased and is increasing with extraordinary rapidity, while the necessary additional trackage and terminals have not been equal to the demands upon them. The resulting situation is a freight blockade of enormous proportions especially at the terminal points. How to remedy this is a problem, financial, mechanical and physical. No time should be lost in applying such measures of remedy as may be possible. And the first step toward this is to reach a proper understanding of actually existing conditions. The following figures, compiled from the official reports of the interstate commerce commission, and covering the growth of the railroad business for the last ten years, exhibit the significant facts:

T'l mileage...	180,657	218,101	21
Locomotives..	35,699	48,357	35
Pass. cars...	33,112	40,713	22
Freight cars..	1,196,119	1,731,409	45
Ft. in mlge...	85,227,515,891	186,463,109,510	118

"These figures show the cause of delay in the national traffic movement which threatens to bring industry to a standstill. Within the last ten years the volume of railroad business in this country has increased over 110 per cent. Meanwhile the railroads have endeavored to meet it. Equipment is being increased as rapidly as capital and labor can do it. There are and will be cars enough to carry the country's traffic if the cars can be moved, but engines and cars must have tracks upon which they may be run.

"A striking tale is told by the statistics of railroad building in the United States. Not only is it true, as stated above, that there has been in the ten years ending 1904, an increase of but 21 per cent in mileage, but the most impressive fact is that railroad building has, within a generation, fallen off just as the demand for trackage has increased. At this moment, when that demand is greatest, and the whole country is clamoring for relief, it is the smallest in years. These are the figures:

Year.	Tl. Mlg. Inc	Inc. Pct	Inc Pct Per Annum
1890	166,507	69,926 14.6	7.46
1904	213,904	50,307 30.75	2.19
1906 (estimate)	220,000	6,250 2.9	1.45

"The limit of service of a common carrier has been reached when it has been moving at all times over its system as many cars as can be run upon its tracks with safety, and transferred and dispatched from its terminals and junction points without unreasonable delay. The disparity between the growth of traffic and the additions to railroad mileage, and the extension of terminals, shown by new mileage of less than 21 per cent since the year 1904, to take care of a traffic increase avering 11 per cent a year for ten years past, presents and explains the real problem. The best judgment of many conservative railroad men in the country is that an immense addition of not less than 5 per cent per annum to the railroad trackage of the country, for, say, five years, should be made to relieve the situation and put an end to unreasonable delays in the transaction of business.

"Investigations recently made by public officials and facts accessible before these investigation, disclose that the railroads of the country have been endeavoring to meet the growing demand upon them. In order to handle this enormous addition of 110 per cent more locomotives, and 45 per cent more track, they have utilized as never before the carrying capacity of each mile. Not only were there 35 per cent more locomotives and 45 per cent more cars in service in 1905 than in 1895, but each engine and car did much more work. The passenger miles traveled per locomotive increased from 1,218,967 to 2,048,558, or more than 68 per cent, and the ton miles per freight locomotive from 4,258,821 to 6,690,700, or more than 57 per cent. Trains run faster, cars are larger, locomotives are more powerful and methods of handling the business are so improved as to increase the great efficiency.

"But the trouble of business is not confined to any section of the country. And it is in the great centers that the inadequacy of terminal facilities prevents the free flow of traffic. The Great Northern Railway company has thirty-four switch engines in use in the Twin Cities, while only twenty-eight engines are used in hauling freight into and out of the same.

"No additions to equipment and no increased efficiency in operation can take the place of the imperatively required new trackage and terminal facilities. The country must have, as rapidly as it can be built, additional tracks and terminal facilities.

"Suppose that only 25 per cent additional track with necessary terminals and equipment is to be built during the next five years; for with less the country cannot conduct promptly the volume of business even now in sight. Our total railroad mileage is about 220,000 miles. A 25 per cent increase would mean the building of 55,000 miles of new track, much of which would be additional tracks to existing lines; and, if five years were allowed for the work, it would be necessary to build 11,000 miles each year. But that is not all. One-third would have to be added to this amount for the terminal and passing tracks. Add 33 per cent to 55,000 miles, and the total is 73,333 miles; or, say, before the end of five years, in round numbers, 75,000 miles of track as the requirement for the country to meet immediate needs.

"No practical man would accept a contract for furnishing the facilities required, including additional equipment and terminal facilities, for less than $75,000 per mile. The question of terminals alone is almost prohibitive. Terminals now in use were acquired when property was cheap and can be enlarged only by heavy outlay. In many cities it is not even a question of cost, since the area necessary to handle railroad business properly is not to be had at any price. The new work, then, would amount to $5,500,000,000 in round numbers or a yearly average of $1,100,000,000. That is the sum which would be spent before the commerce of the country can be moved properly. It is just twice the total amount of the bonded debt of the United States after the close of the Civil war. It is more than twice the entire currency in circulation in the country and only a little less than twice the deposits in all the savings banks of the United States put together.

"Almost all the complaints made, either by shippers or by operating railroad men, of obstacles and dangers in transportation service are due to insufficient trackage. The defect can be corrected only by building more track. The average speed of a freight train is from twelve to fifteen miles per hour. The average distance traveled by each freight car is about twenty-five miles per day. That is, the entire freight equipment of the country is employed to the fair limit of its capacity but two hours out of the twenty-four. On single track lines, freight must wait on sidings while passenger trains have the right of way. Cars stand for days or weeks in yards or at transfer points awaiting their turn.

"The pressure of traffic increases in a constant progression. It has reached its greatest severity just at the time when railroad construction is at the lowest ebb. Take the last five years, within which business has been flourishing everywhere. The following figures, compiled from Poor's Manual of Railroads, shows the intence activity of the last five years as compared with the decline in railroad construction:

Frt. mlge...	141,162,109,418	187,375,621,537	32.7

"The number of passenger miles traveled in this country for each mile of railroad in it, according to these figures, has increased 30 per cent in the ten years and the number of ton miles for each mile of track has grown 18 per cent. It is a wonder that, with this extra work to do per mile, a work not equally distributed, the limit of effective operation has been reached. The highest direction and the best economy is to have trackage, equipment and other facilities properly adjusted to the volume of business and then keep moving in a harmonious and useful way.

"The problem and the necessity are enormous. At 140 tons to the mile, it would require 2,000,000 tons of steel rails every year to furnish the 15,000 miles of track required. This is nearly two-thirds of the product of all the rolling mills in the United States. It would call for the labor of 200,000 men in grading, besides track layers, bridge builders and others. Labor, even for such ordinary extensions and improvements as are now being made, is not to be had in sufficient quantities on any terms. And it demands, as has been seen, the investment in permanent railroad plant of $1,100,000,000 a year for five years to provide the railroads of the country with means to handle properly the business already in sight, not allowing for future growth. This is the real railroad problem of the United States, and it is one which people have been singularly slow to perceive and reluctant to realize.

"Two remedies must be found. The prohibitory expense now attached to enlargement of terminals at many points, and the absolute lack of available space at any price, may be met by a de-centralization of traffic. There must be more points for export, more interior markets. A 15-foot canal or channel from St. Louis to New Orleans would go further to relieve the entire Middle West and Southwest than any other work that could be undertaken. With such a depth of water, a single powerful tow boat would carry thirty to forty train loads. Terminal troubles admit of more general diffusion of business by permitting transfers to take place and forwarding to be done where lands can be secured in adequate quantities and at more reasonable prices. To this the traffic systems of the country must be adjusted. The heavy transfers must be made away from the larger cities.

"It is not by accident that railroad building has declined to its lowest within a generation, at the very time when all other forms of activity have been growing most rapidly. The investor declines to put his money into enterprises under the ban of unpopularity and even threatened by individuals and political parties with confiscation or transfer to the state. This feeling must be removed and greater confidence must be mutually established if any considerable portion of the vast sum necessary is to be available for the work.

"First, there must be a realization by the country of the embargo upon business and of the fact that the cause is insufficient railroad trackage. This fact has strangely enough, come upon the public by surprise. Even now, and even among those who should be more alert and best informed, there is little apparent comprehension of the desperate need that business already feels. It will require the best thought and the best effort of this generation to avert the evil that now casts its shadow upon farmer manufacturer and merchant; to arrest the progress of paralysis that is laying its grip upon the heart of commerce and to restore the wholesome circulation without which there cannot be life and growth in either individual of the commonwealth."

BAILEY WINS IN THE FIRST ROUND

Committee to Investigate the Charges Brought Against Him.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 15.—In consequence of the effort of certain members of the Texas legislature to investigate United States Senator J. W. Bailey and his alleged connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil company, the senate adjourned at 10:20 o'clock last night after being in continuous session since 1 o'clock.

When the senate adjourned last Friday until Monday, pending action upon the part of the house on the resolution to investigate Senator Bailey, it was with the understanding that the senate would not consider the matter in any form until yesterday afternoon and then only in committee for the future action by the senate. Early yesterday morning, however, the investigation resolution was called from the committee and a substitute thereof providing for the appointment of a committee to ascertain as to whether or not an investigation was in any degree necessary. These two resolutions have caused all the agitation in the senate. On last Friday the anti-Bailey forces favoring an investigation had the best of the proposition by a majority of two, but yesterday morning it was claimed and soon seemed to be manifest that the Bailey forces had the better of it by one vote, an absent anti-Bailey man and a changed vote representing the difference. With this condition of affairs confronting them, the Bailey forces tried to rush through an adoption of their substitute resolution, but were prevented by a debate which was begun early in the day.

Hundreds of women and men were in constant attendance upon the debate in both houses.

Senator Senter was taken off the floor shortly after 9 o'clock, after speaking over seven hours, by a point of order that he was talking to consume time.

After several amendments to the substitute resolution proposed by the anti-Bailey forces had been voted down, the substitute resolution was adopted by a vote of 18 to 12. The substitute provides for a committee of seven senators to investigate the charges against Senator Bailey preferred under oath and report to the senate if an investigation of the charges be deemed advisable.

Omega Oil

For Rheumatism A good doctor says that while people are using Omega Oil for Rheumatism, they ought to drink two or three glasses of water at night and two or three more glasses in the morning. The Oil goes in through the pores, destroys the acids which cause Rheumatism, and the blood carries the destroyed acid to the kidneys, where it is filtered out. By drinking plenty of water, the kidneys are well washed out, and in this manner the rheumatic poisons are removed from the system. You have probably noted that in all sickness the simplest treatments do the most good. Nothing is simpler than drinking pure water, and rubbing the body and muscles, and tendons, and joints with Omega Oil. 10c., 25c., 50c.

Omega Oil is also good for Sore Throat, Cold in Chest, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises.

RAILROAD MEN WORK TOO LONG

Labor Many Hours in Order to Increase Compensation.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Yesterday's investigation by the interstate commerce commission into the block signal system in use on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad showed that men engaged in the operation of trains work an excessive number of hours without a sufficient period of rest intervening. It was developed that no restrictions are placed upon the hours trainmen shall work and that they take advantage of the opportunity to labor for many hours in order to increase their compensation. The company, according to the testimony, relied upon its men to claim rest when they feel the need of it. The commission dwelt at length on the question of hours of trainmen, because it is believed by the commission that the facts brought out by this particular phase of the investigation will accelerate the passage through congress of the bill limiting the hours of those engaged in the transportation service of railroads.

The most important points were brought out by General Manager Fitzgerald, Trainmaster Kelly and W. M. Dutrow, the operator at Silver Springs. Mr. Fitzgerald testified that his road had never neglected an opportunity to test any safety appliance offered that would in any way materially lessen accidents. He predicted that the "surprise" check system would be adopted in keeping a watch on operators and those who have to do with the use of signals. Accidents, he said, largely occur as the result of failure of men to take the proper time to rest.

HAS THE EVIL EYE.

Turns It on Mrs. McKinley's Pig and Pig Dwindles.

Morristown, N. J., Jan. 15. — Mrs. William McKinley of Madison complained to the Morris County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals that an Italian, known as No. 3, employed on Florham Farm, Hamilton McK. Twombly's estate, was exercising the evil eye over her cow and pig. Agent Vandyke who was sent to investigate, found that the Italian was a neighbor of Mrs. McKinley, and according to an itemized list of the grievances suffered by her at the hands of No. 3, her house had been stoned, her celery stolen and her dogs and chickens poisoned.

But the most serious accusation made by Mrs. McKinley is that No. 3 has the evil eye and that by its use he has caused the McKinley pig to dwindle to a skeleton and has caused the family cow to go dry in the middle of the season when milk sells for 10 cents a quart. Agent Vandyke told the woman he could do nothing unless Mrs. McKinley and some other witnesses saw No. 3 actually perpetrating his misdeeds of which he is accused. This, Mrs. McKinley said, was impossible. She added that she hoped the justice of heaven would not be so blind as that of Morristown and Madison.

AMADOR'S LOVE AFFAIR CAUSE OF HIS RECALL.

New York, Jan. 15.—It has been learned that Dr. Raoul Amador, consul general in New York of the Republic of Panama, and youngest son of Dr. Manuel Amador, president of that country, has resigned his high post and returned home in secret.

Dr. Amador's resignation came fast on the heels of the publication of the consul general's burning love letters to Mrs. Bertha K. Gresham, the beautiful young widow of Lieut. Gresham, U. S. N. These letters revealed many diplomatic secrets and exposed the influence of William Nelson Cromwell, the New York lawyer, in the canal zone.

At the Panama consulate it was denied that Dr. Amador had been preemptorily recalled by his father, the president; and Mrs. Amador, although estranged from her husband and living apart from him, also said that the consul general had retired without compulsion. But, according to a reliable source of information, the appearance of New York papers in Panama with the account of Dr. Amador's disastrous love affair caused a cabinet commotion and it is said that the matter was immediately put before President Amador and that he immediately cabled his son to at once resign and return.

Dr. Amador is to be replaced by his elder brother, Martin Amador, at present Panama's diplomatic representative in Hamburg. Since all the publicity that she obtained through her suits against the consul general, Mrs. Gresham has been living alone in an apartment up town. When informed of the resignation of Dr. Amador and his secret departure from the country, she expressed gratification.

"Panama, at least, will now be represented by a gentleman," she said. "Martin Amador, who is to come here, is a striking contrast to his half brother."

Mrs. Amador would not discuss the case except to say that she intended bringing suit for divorce.

The last few weeks of Dr. Amador's stay in New York as consul general revealed his estrangement from his wife and his love for Mrs. Gresham. The remarkable story was brought to light by the arrest of the consul general on complaint of Mrs. Gresham.

Mrs. Gresham pleaded with him to support the child that had been born to them, a beautiful brown-eyed girl. To these requests Dr. Amador turned a deaf ear and his arrest followed. Some sort of a settlement was made and the case was dropped.

It was revived, however, when Mrs. Gresham brought two suits, each for $10,000 through Attorney Harman J. Witte. But, claiming exemption as a diplomatic representative of a foreign country, Dr. Amador evaded service. As a final resort, the matter was put into the hands of the state department and there it now rests.

HOW KEENE LOST FIGHT

Union Pacific Came Near Losing Control of Southern Pacific.

Keene Had Plans All Made for Managing the Road.

New York, Jan. 15.—When the interstate commerce commission resumes in this city, later in the month, its investigation into the affairs of the Harriman railroad system, Wall street will probably learn the details of a story, perhaps never surpassed in interest in the annals of struggles for railroad control. At the same time will come out what is probably the real explanation of the sale by the Union Pacific to William Rockefeller in 1903 of a large block of Southern Pacific stock, which Mr. Rockefeller later resold to that road. The chances are that the story in detail will be told by E. H. Harriman himself, who, of course, will be called to the stand to round out all the information already obtained from other Union Pacific witnesses.

How very near, indeed, the Union Pacific came to losing control of the Southern Pacific, in which it had invested $30,000,000 in cash, is brought out very clearly by the fact, which now comes to light, that James R. Keene was so confident of the success of his campaign to oust Mr. Harriman from the control of the Southern Pacific that he had all his plans laid for the management of the road during the ensuing year.

Mr. Keene had his directors chosen and the officers who were to manage the property had been picked out. Some of those who were to have been made directors besides Mr. Keene himself were his counsel, Edward Lauterback; his son, Foxhall Keene; his son-in-law, Talbot J. Taylor, and the latter's brother, James Taylor.

The directors of the Southern Pacific at that time, who would have been ousted by Mr. Keene, were T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., W. D. Cornish, George J. Gould, Edward H. Harriman, Edwin Hawley, H. E. Huntington, James H. Hyde, Otto H. Kahn, D. O. Mills, W. S. Pierce, Jacob H. Schiff, James Speyer, James Stillman and Charles H. Tweed.

Mr. Keene's friends thought then that all that kept him from successfully carrying out his plans was the failure of Judge Lurton of the United States courts to make permanent the temporary injunction he had already granted, preventing the Union Pacific from voting its holdings of Southern Pacific stock. It would seem, however, that plans had been carefully laid to defeat the effort of Mr. Keene, even in the event of the injunction being made permanent. The sale of $30,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock to Mr. Rockefeller, with the understanding that the Union Pacific was to take it back in a year or earlier at its convenience, will in all probability turn out to have been part of this plan.

The $30,000,000 of stock taken over by Mr. Rockefeller was just the amount known to have been held by the Keene pool. The transfer of that amount to a powerful dummy was made to be sure to vote the stock in the interest of the Union Pacific brought it within Mr. Harriman's power to offset the stock which Mr. Keene would be able to vote at the annual meeting on April 8, 1903. Had all the Union Pacific's $90,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock been tied up by injunction Mr. Keene's $30,000,000 of stock would have controlled the anual meeting, with the result that the Union Pacific would have been ousted from the Southern Pacific management and left without an effective voice in the direction of its most important investment.

E. H. Harriman was as loath to see the property he controlled pass to other hands in this way, and he jeopardized, as he thought by being placed under the management of the Keene pool, as J. P. Morgan was to see the Louisville & Nashville remain in the hands of John W. Gates. Apparently, he knowingly sailed pretty close to the wind in the matter of legal technicalities to save his ship from what seemed to him certain shipwreck.

It was not an irrevocable sale that was made to Mr. Rockefeller, and Mr. Harriman and his associates, it is believed, will not wast time trying to prove that it was.

The fact that the stock nominally sold to Mr. Rockefeller was included in the Union Pacific's annual report of 1903 among the Oregon Short Line's holdings of stocks indicates that Mr. Harriman looked upon those 300,000 shares as the actual property of the Union Pacific, the arrangement with Mr. Rockefeller notwithstanding. It will probably be found that title to the stock never passed to Mr. Rockefeller and that the stock itself never went out of the possession of the Oregon Short Line, which held it for the Union Pacific.

It was recalled yesterday that final payment for the stock was never made by Mr. Rockefeller. He paid only $6,000,000 on account and the Union Pacific will probably contend that until the full amount had been paid the stock was still its own, though a bill of sale had been made out to be used in case of emergency. Indeed, Mr. Rockefeller appears to have assumed the risk of the transaction becoming known, in which case an injunction might have been obtained against preventing the resale of the stock to the Union Pacific.

Mr. Rockefeller personally would the have become the owner of $30,000,000 of Southern Pacific, which at the time he may have had very little desire to own, especially if by any chance the property had passed into the hands of interests hostile to those with which he is identified. From this point of view Mr. Rockefeller may say that he thought he was performing the service very cheaply when he did it for 6 per cent interest and a commission of five-eighths of 1 per cent.

As it turned out, the temporary injunction granted on March 31, the day after the nominal sale of $30,000,000 Southern Pacific to Mr. Rockefeller by the Union Pacific, which had foreseen the possibility of an injunction, was not made permanent and when April 8 came to the Union Pacific was free to vote its 600,000 shares directly and 300,000 shares through Mr. Rockefeller—a total of 900,000 shares—against which Mr. Keene's 300,000 were powerless.

It was a narrow escape for Mr. Harriman and the Union Pacific, and according to these new facts there is little doubt that the refusal of Judge Lurton to make the temporary injunction permanent was a source of no small relief to Mr. Harriman and his associates, despite the precautions which they took to make the injunction nugatory, had it been granted.

SUBMITS FOUR TIMES TO KNIFE

King's Eldest Daughter May be Victim of Cancer.

London, Jan. 15.—The greatest secrecy has been preserved as to the real nature of the illness of the king's eldest daughter, the Princess Royal, duchess of Fife.

The Court Circular issued from the palace has mentioned vaguely from time to time that "that her royal highness is progressing favorably after her operation." This is a most unusual course. Never before has the Court Circular omitted to mention the complaint from which a royal personage is supposed to be suffering.

As a matter of fact, both the king and queen have been very anxious about their eldest daughter, as it was feared that she was suffering from cancer of the breast. It is vaguely intimated now that the growth is a tumer, and not a malignant growth.

But against this lies the fact that instead of the one operation alluded to, the princess has undergone no fewer than four, three of which were never mentioned officially.

It is known that the royal family is most distressed over the illness of the duchess. Her condition requires the constant attendance of a physician, who either sleeps in the house, or pays midnight visits to see the royal patient.

The precautions against any excitement are so strict that the scik princess was denied the pleasure of seeing her baby nephew, Prince Olaf of Norway, when he came to England, although his good behavior was certain.

It now seems certain that the princess will for a long time be unable to resume her morning walks with the duke in Oxford street, where "her royal shyness," as she is called in the family circle, was a familiar but unrecognized figure.

WRONG, SAYS PREACHER, FOR PEOPLE TO MARRY.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 15.—A sensation was created in religious circles when Rev. John W. Daugherty, pastor of the Apostolic church, flatly refused to conduct religious services over the remains of Joseph Heywood, who was killed by the premature fall of a smokestack. When asked to explain his authority for the course pursued by him, Mr. Daugherty said:

"My authority is the Word of God as to the burial of dead bodies. I, of course, raise no objection. It is a necessary and sanitary practice. My protest is raised only where religious observances are called in. I hold this to be a violation of the principles and practices of Christ.

"For instance, Christ came to resurrect, not to bury the dead, and though himself buried, burst from his sepulcher, defying death and the carnal customs of those who would bury the dead. My mission is to save the living."

These radical views, however, have created no more comment than the recent determination of the same preacher to sustain from the performance of marriage ceremonies.

"As to my views on this point," said the preacher, "listen to the Word of God:

"If ye would please Christ ye will abstain from matrimony, and if you do otherwise ye seek to please yourselves. Some ministers will say that Christ commanded young women to marry and bear children; but did not the apostle say that God had given him grace to abstain from matrimony?

"Moreover, the Lord was never married, and his mother was a virgin. If there must be marriages I would have the ceremony performed by an officer of the state.

"The New Testament, speaking of marriage as an honorable state, commends it only in the nature of an expedient."

REFUSED TO BE RESCUED

Crew of Wrecked British Ship Resisted Attempts of Tug.

Hamburg, Jan. 15.—The captain of the tug Vulkan tells a graphic story of the attempts to save the crew of the British ship Pengwern, from Chile for Falmouth, which went ashore off Scharhorn. When the captain noticed that the Pengwern was steering directly toward the Scharhorn reef, he turned the Vulkan about to warn Capt. Williams of the Pengwern of his danger, but before the tug reached the doomed vessel, she had struck, and the breakers, which were whipped up by the gale and a strong tide, threw her on her beam ends. The Vulkan steamed alongside the Pengwern, acually grazing the stranded vessel's side, but the crew, despite repeated requests, refused to jump. One of the apprentices, who attempted to do so, was held back by his companions. The tug eventually succeeded in passing a hawser to the Pengwern, but her crew declined to attempt to cross it. In trying to pull off the wrecked ship the hawser broke and the Vulkan started toward the Elbe lightship for a life boat. Before she returned the ship had been engulfed by the waves and the crew, numbering twenty-five officers and men, were drowned.

The Pengwern, which left Taltal, Chile, Oct. 6, for Falmouth, with a cargo of saltpeter, was a three-masted iron ship of 1,648 tons, owned at Liverpool by the Pengwern Shipping company. Scharhorn, where the vessel grounded, is about ten miles northwest of Cuxhaven.

BILL MAKES IT A CRIME TO STRIKE

Proposed Labor Law of Canada Makes Arbitration Compulsory.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 15.—Minister of Labor Lemieux's bill for the prpevention and settlement of strikes and lockouts has been placed in the hands of all members of parliament. From a labor standpoint it is perhaps the most important bill that ever came before the house.

Under it boards of conciliation and investigation may be constituted, one member being selected by each party to a dispute and the third by the two so appointed, or by the minister of labor. Full powers regarding the summoning of witnesses are conferred on these boards. Until disputes have been referred to the board and fully investigated it is made an offense either to lock out or to strike.

After the board has made its recommendations the parties are free to accept or reject its findings.

A special provision makes it an offense for any person to incite others to declare or continue a strike or lockout prior to or pending a reference of a dispute to a board of conciliation and investigation.

It is made an offence for employers to declare a lockout simply because any of their employes are members of a labor organization. Similarly it is made an offence for employes to strike simply because an employer employs non-union men.

As the bill has the support of the labor representatives and practically all the Liberals, it is almost sure of passing, though it may be slightly amended. A vital point about it is that the boards of conciliation will have power to summon witnesses, take evidence under oath, compel the production of documents and to commit for contempt.

ATTORNEY BANS ALL GIRL TELEPHONE OPERATORS.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 15.—Circuit Attorney Sager is not going to trust secrets that pass through his office and the grand jury room to a girl telephone operator.

"No, sir," he said, "I couldnt; why, there wouldn't be any secrets around here at all if a woman got 'next' to all the things I necessarily have to transnot over the telephone."

A private system is to be installed in the Four Courts in the spring, with new switches, and Sager says that there'll have to be a man to operate from the central point or it won't be operated.

"Why, just suppose," continued the circuit attorney, "that Hiram Johnston should be indicted for something. Well, I might want to know something from one of my assistants, or the sheriff or somebody in the building about the whereabouts of Hiram, and if there's a girl out there on the telephone why she'll be certain to hear it.

"Then the very first thing when she sees her chum or steady, it'll be, 'Have you heard about the indictment of Hiram Johnston—isn't it awful—poor man—and his poor wife!'

"Then Hiram will know, and skip. No, sir, I consider that a girl telephone operator around here would defeat the ends of justice."

HAIRDRESSER TOOK GEMS.

Went to Sleep and Lost $1,500 Diamonds From Ears.

Pittsburg, Jan. 15.—Miss Sadie Abels, a hairdresser, formerly of New York, is under arrest charged with stealing diamond earrings worth $1,500 from the ears of Mrs. B. C. Graff while she was marvelling Mrs. Graff's hair at her home.

Mrs. Graff went to sleep during the operation and Miss Abels left without waking her. When Mrs. Graff did wake up she discovered that her earrings had been taken.

Mr. Graff reported to the police and Miss Abels was arrested. She stoutly maintained her innocence, but a search of her rooms revealed the missing jewels in the mattress of her bed. Miss Abels was held in $1,000 bail.

FORMER JOCKEY GOES TO UNITED STATES SENATE.

Topeka, Kan., Jan 15.—Charles Curtis, who began life as a race horse jockey, then drove a hack for a livelihood, educated himself for the bar, became county attorney, then congressman, will be the new United States senator from Kansas.

The Republican legislative caucus gave him the nomination and the caucus dictum is equivalent to election. Thus Curtis steps into the line of the "fatal Lane succession." He takes the seat temporarily occupied by Benson, after it had been vacated by Burton, when the latter was forced to resign his seat in the United States senate in order to begin a term of imprisonment in the federal penitentiary.

Curtis is a Kansas product. He was born in Topeka on Jan. 25, 1869, and has a strong strain of Indian blood in his veins. His only school education he received in Topeka. He earned his first money riding horses at county fairs and later is a hack driver in Topeka. But while he was driving a hack in the daytime Charles was studying law by night and it was thus that he fitted himself for admission to the bar in 1881. Three years later he was elected county attorney on the Republican ticket.

WHEAT GOES OFF AGAIN

The Market Has a Weak Tone in All America.

Flax Slightly Off at Close of Dull Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 15.—Wheat had another weak session in the American markets and there were declines everywhere. The fact that the receipts in the Northwest were considerably smaller than a year ago and that a decrease in the world's visible supply was reported did not affect the market. Liverpool closed ½d to ½d lower.

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅝c in Chicago, New York and St. Louis, ⅝-¾c in Minneapolis, ¼c in Kansas City and ½c in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅝-½c in Chicago and St. Louis, ¼-⅝c in Minneapolis and ½c in Kansas City.

May corn closed ¼-⅜c lower in Chicago and was unchanged to ⅛d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 486,000 bus, last year 630,000 bus. Shipments 214,000 bus, last year 250,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 204,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 829,000 bus, last year 714,000 bus. Shipments 323,000 bus, last year 450,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 266,000 bus.

Wheat trading was quiet in the Duluth market. May wheat opened unchanged at 78⅞c, declined to 78¾c by 9:35, rallied to 79c by 10:44 and declined by the close to 78½c, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. July wheat opened ⅛c lower at 79½c, advanced to 79¾c and declined by the close to 79⅛c, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday.

Durum wheat was unchanged and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of ½c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull here. The foreign flax markets were unchanged from yesterday. January flax opened unchanged at $1.18½, advanced to $1.18¾ and closed at $1.18½, unchanged from yesterday. May flax opened ¼c lower at $1.22, fell off to $1.21⅝, rallied to $1.22¼, fell off to $1.21⅞ and rallied by the close to $1.22, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July flax was inactive at the opening, sold at $1.23, fell off to $1.22⅝, rallied to $1.23 and closed at $1.22¾, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday.

Oats to arrive closed ⅛c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Easy and Fairly Active---Northwestern Receipts Small.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—The wheat market today opened easy and fairly active. Cables were lower and receipts in the Northwest were very small. The latter fact, however, did not seem to greatly influence the market. Pit traders were active sellers. May wheat opened unchanged at 76½c and sold at 76¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 271 cars against 366 cars last week and 670 cars a year ago.

The close was weak with May ⅝c lower at 76¼c.

The corn market was quiet and steady. Local receipts were smaller than had been expected, and this offset the cold weather, which is expected to increase the amount of contract corn. May corn opened a shade lower at 43⅝c and sold at 43¾c. Local receipts were 530 cars, with 3 of contract grade.

The market became firmer in the last half of the session on covering by shorts. The high point for May was 44. The close was firm with May ⅛@¼c higher at 43⅞c.

Good buying by cash houses, which was based largely upon small local receipts, held the oats market firm. Trading was in fair amount. May oats opened unchanged at 36¾c, and after selling at 36⅝@⅞c, sold up to 37c. Local receipts were 152 cars.

The provisions market opened strong on a 5c advance in the price of live hogs, but soon weakened on selling by commission houses. May pork opened 2½@5c higher at $16.72½, sold up to $16.75 and declined to $16.65. Lard opened 2½c higher at $9.60 and sold down to $9.55. Ribs were 2½c higher at $9.20 and sold at $9.15@9.17½.

Close: Wheat—May, 76¼c; July, 75⅞c. Corn—May, 43⅞c; July, 43¾@43⅞c. Oats—May, 35@35¼c; July, 33⅝c. Pork—May, $16.65; July, $16.80. Lard—May, $9.65; July, $9.60. Ribs—May, $9.22 Jully, $9.32½. Rye—Cash, 57@60¾c. Barley—Cash, 44@56c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 73½@74c; No. 3 red, 70@73c; No. 2 hard, 73@74c; No. 3 hard, 66@73c; No. 1 northern, 80@81c; No. 2 northern, 78@80c; No. 3 spring, 66@79c. Corn—No. 3, 40@40¼c. Oats—No. 2, 35½c; No. 3, 35.

New York Grain.

New York, Jan. 15.—Close: Wheat—May, 82¼c; July, 81¾c. Corn—May, 50¾c; July, 51c.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Jan. 15.—Flour market was unchanged. Millers did a fair amount of new business yesterday afternoon. The demand, however, from individuals indicated that they were not disposed to take supplies for more than limited amount amounts. Shipments, 44,168 barrels. First patents, $4.30@4.30; second patents, $4.05@4.15; first clears, $3.25@3.35; second clears, $2.30@2.60.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Most of the news for wheat traders was bullish, the coarse grains were firm and higher, the weather conditions were anything but favorable and yet wheat closed at the bottom for the day. The La Salle street leader who was the most pronounced seller yesterday, sold this morning on the hard spot and was selling through brokers before the close.

Corn—Corn advanced early largely in sympathy with oats, and part of the gain was lost at the close. Believe natural condition and natural movement of corn will give us lower price in near future.

Chicago Record-Herald: All of the winter wheat markets showed a decrease last week in stocks of wheat in store. Fort William and Port Arthur together increased 565,000 bushels and all Canadian points increased 566,000 bushels. This shows that there was an actual decrease in the visible supply of wheat in the United States last week, as the total increase in the visible was only 531,000 bushels.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Minneapolis mills bought 250,000 bushels wheat Saturday and Monday. Omaha and Nebraska people were large buyers of cash wheat at Kansas City yesterday. Elevator men have made large purchases of spring and soft and hard winter wheat within a few days.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market conditions up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 15.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 1 point, the near months being higher in response to better cables than expected and covering. New Orleans made a relatively poor showing, however, and the market immediately after the call sold off to a net decline of about 1@2 points under near pressure and liquidation promoted by the expectation of continued large receipts. At the decline there was a good deal of covering by recent sellers; also some buying on the reaction and the market rallied during the middle of the morning to a net gain of about 6@7 points. Trading was moderately active but mostly local.

Spot closed steady, 10 points higher. Middling uplands, 10.80; middling gulf, 11.05. Sales none. Futures closed very steady; January, 9.29; February, 9.35; March, 9.45; April, 9.55; May, 9.61; June, 9.65; July, 9.70; August, 9.63; October, 9.60.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 15.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 1 point, the near months being higher in response to better cables than expected and covering. New Orleans made a relatively poor showing, however, and the market immediately after the call sold off to a net decline of about 1@2 points under near pressure and liquidation promoted by the expectation of continued large receipts. At the decline there was a good deal of covering by recent sellers; also some buying on the reaction and the market rallied during the middle of the morning to a net gain of about 6@7 points. Trading was moderately active but mostly local.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

At the Close, But the Undertone Continued Strong.

An Issue of Northwestern Rights Caused Much Selling.

New York, Jan. 15.—The course of prices at the opening of the stock exchange today was hesitating and irregular. Transactions were on a small scale and fluctuations narrow. Canadian Pacific rose nearly a point and Erie declined ⅝.

An interval of heaviness followed the opening, after which the list moved up smartly. Northwestern declined abruptly, but heavy buying orders appeared for Reading, St. Paul and the Harriman stocks and the advance was resumed. Northwestern loss reached 4¼; with a recovery of 1⅜. St. Paul and Allis-Chalmers preferred improved 1⅝ each; Reading and Northern Pacific 1¼ each and Union and Southern Pacific, New York Central and National Biscuit 1 each. Among the weak features were Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis, which yielded 1¼ and Baltimore & Ohio 1.

There was an active demand for St. Paul, carrying it up 2½. The general market was intensely dull, but prices slowly hardened. Cripple Creek Central rose 4; Allis-Chalmers preferred 2¾; Great Northern Ore and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred 1¼ and Smelting, Allis-Chalmers, Union Bag and United States Pipe preferred 1 each. Delaware & Hudson fell 1. Bonds were heavy.

The market eased off somewhat after midday, but promptly stiffened again when Atchison became strong. Atchison crossed 107 and the rest of the favorites recovered to about the highest figures of the morning. New Haven & Chicago Great Western preferred sagged 2 and Pullman 3½.

Operations in the market reflected only a limited interest in stocks. The undertone, however, continued strong and the best figures of the day were being made at 2 o'clock. Kansas City Southern was marked up 1. Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific 1⅜ each, St. Louis Southwestern preferred 2½, St. Paul preferred declined 1.

The market closed rather irregular. The rise in Missouri Pacific brought out heavy realizing which forced the price back to last night's level. Liquidation was renewed in Northwestern with an extreme decline of 6¾. Reading first preferred fell 2⅜; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 4⅝; St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred 2; American Linseed 1; and Mexican Central, Chicago & Alton, United States Rubber preferred and Chicago Union Traction preferred 1 each. Canadian Pacific's gain reached 2; Reading 1¼; Twin City Rapid Transit and Minneapolis & St. Louis 1½ and North American and Virginia Iron 1. There was a rise in the late dealings.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened irregular and selling of yesterday's character was in evidence. Early trading was entirely professional. Money continued easy and was not a disturbing factor. Support of a good character came into the market after mid-day and, with the exception of Chicago Northwestern, the list closed strong. We see nothing better than a trader's market for the present.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was very professional and in the hands of traders. The issue of Northwestern rights had a bad effect and caused a good deal of selling. During the middle of the day the market was very dull. There was some short covering before the close, but the market lacked snap and the buying power was very limited. We look for a traders' market for the rest of the week.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Jan. 15.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market fair. All heavy classes of both extra and medium quality moved briskly at going prices. Orders from the country are of unusual volume. A large number of buyers are on the market, a number of them being heavy buyers of medium chunks and mares for farm use. A large number are here for the mid-week sales tomorrow.

Copper Gossip.

Sturgis to Gay & Sturgis: The local market boiled today again and in some issues is boiled over. The opening was the fiercest yet with Range the leader. This stock and Mohawk reached prices that were beyond the fondest hopes of their friends. There was no particular feature beyond these two except that everything was strong and advanced.

RAILROADS OFFICIALS IN DULUTH

Are Exerting Themselves to Relieve the Pulpwood Situation.

Milwaukee Road to Press Stock Cars Into the Service.

The shortage of cars for pulpwood shipments has assumed such serious proportions that T. A. Lawson of Chicago, assistant general superintendent of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, is in the city to see what can be done to relieve the situation. With him are T. W. Kennedy of Eau Claire, Wis., superintendent of the Omaha road, the feeder of the Northwestern, and George L. Ossman of St. Paul, car service agent of the Omaha. They are working with Mr. Lawson to the same end.

The Milwaukee road and the Omaha, in conjunction with the Northwestern, handle practically all the pulpwood business out of the Duluth district. The big Wisconsin mills are located along these lines, and it is as of great importance to the roads as to the mills themselves that the shipments be moved as promptly as possible, for they not only get the raw product as freight, but the finished product as it leaves the mill as well.

The Milwaukee road is making strenuous efforts to relieve the situation also, and is now considering leasing cars to put in this service. An effort is being made by this line to secure stock cars from other divisions for the pulpwood, but if this fails equipment will doubtless be leased. The shipments of stock are beginning to show a falling off, and it is thought likely that some of the cars used in this business will shortly be available for the Duluth district.

"There is a good deal of difficulty just now in getting enough cars for these shipments," said one of the local railroad men this morning, "but I am of the opinion that by the end of the next two weeks the roads will be in a position to handle the movement in fairly good shape, although there will still be some delay. Enough cars will be obtainable, however, to drive away any fears the shippers may entertain to the effect that heavy losses will develop as a result of the shortage.

"The movement will be the heaviest in years. I do not believe it will run over 5,000 cars, or 5,000 at the most, although there are dealers who are trying to tell us that 12,000 cars of the wood must be moved. These figures are, I believe, greatly exaggerated. Because of existing conditions the indications are that the shipments will run farther into the spring than usual, but there is every reason to believe that the railroads will be able to handle all the pulpwood offered."

Most of the wood comes from along the Duluth & Iron Range, the Missabe and the Fosston branch of the Great Northern. It is a rule with the two first-named lines that none of their cars shall go south of Duluth, and for that reason all cars loaded with pulpwood must come from foreign lines.

HEAVY COAL MOVEMENT.

Four Hundred Cars Leaving Duluth and Superior Every Day.

The movement of coal out of the Head of the Lakes at present amounts to about 400 cars daily. Complaints from certain districts through the Northwest are still coming in to the effect that there is a coal famine. The fact that some of the roads are blocked on account of snow has a good deal to do just now with the scarcity of coal at interior points.

Probably never before in the history of Duluth have the January shipments of coal from local docks been so heavy as they are now. For one thing, the population of the tributary country has increased at such a remarkable rate during the last year or two that the demand for coal for ordinary use is much heavier than it ever was before, and this is one of the primary causes for the existing shortage. While the shippers object to their use, open cars for fuel shipments are still being loaded in considerable numbers. There are not enough of the closed variety to meet the demands.

At the present rate of growth of the Northwest in general, local railroad men who have made a study of the situation express the opinion that coal shipments out of Duluth and Superior will practically double within the next few years. This will mean the building of more new docks. It stands to reason that the present dock facilities, wit hthe improvements in this line now under consideration, will be inadequate to handle all the coal that will be coming to the Head of the Lakes when the resources at interior points reach a fuller stage of development, calling for a larger population in the tributary territory.

COMPOSES NEW CONCERT MARCH

Charles Fremling Will Dedicate It to Evening Herald.

Charles Fremling, a well-known composer of Duluth, has just completed a new concert march which he will dedicate to the Duluth Evening Herald.

The new piece will be heard for the first time at the band concert given by the Third Regiment band at the Armory next Sunday. An excellent program of music has been arranged for the afternoon, in addition to the rendering of this new march for the first time.

Mr. Fremling has had considerable success as a composer of march music, having been the composer of several of the most popular of the late pieces. Among those which have come during the last few years and which are the result of his work are "The Blue Label," march; "The American Bugler" and the "Yankee Honor." He considers the new piece one of his best.

Mr. Fremling has been connected with the Third Regiment band for several years and also with several other musical organizations. His march pieces have met with great popularity in Duluth and have been played by many of the bands and orchestras in other cities in the state.

AMERICANS AFFECTED

By King Alfonso's Decision on the Nicaraguan Boundary.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 15.—The Picayune today says: "The dispute which existed several years between Nicaragua and Hoynduras as to the boundary line on the north has been settled. This question was left to the king of Spain as referee and on Dec. 25 he rendered his decision giving to Honduras all that was claimed by President Manuel Bonilla and more in addition.

The interests of an American company headed by Dr. Dietrich of Pittsburg the statement continues, are seriously affected. This company's concession from Nicaragua is said to have included much land which by King Alfonso's decision lies in Honduras territory.

COLD WAVE WORST YET

Whole Northwest Is in Grip of Zero Temperature.

In Duluth the Official Thermometer Said 23 Below.

Forecaster Richardson has pronounced this as being the coldest day yet this winter, and there are few Duluthians who will dispute his word.

At 7 o'clock this morning, the official thermometer at the weather station recorded 23 degs. below the zero point and, compared to many cities in the Northwest, Duluth was fortunate in having it no colder.

The cold wave is general today over all the states of the Northwest, including Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and Western Canada. Over all this district the temperatures average from 10 to 30 below zero today, and at Havre, Mont., the weather department reports a temperature of 44 degs. below. This is the lowest recorded from any part of the country today.

The famine stricken people of North Dakota will find it a hard blow to their hopes of continued warm weather, as the temperature throughout that state averages from 10 to 30 below. At Devil's Lake there was a temperature of 36 degs. below at 7 o'clock this morning and other smaller towns showed even lower temperatures.

At Duluth, the cold wave began to make itself felt in the early evening yesterday. The temperature fell rapidly after 4 o'clock and at 7 in the evening, the thermometers registered 2 below. At 11 o'clock, there was a temperature of 10 below and this morning it was an even 23 degs. below the zero point.

The weather man does not expect the weather to warm up much before tomorrow afternoon. At present there are prospects of an easterly wind this evening, and if it comes, the temperature tonight will probably go below 10 degs in Duluth. On the ranges, however, where the lake wind does not have the effect that it does in Duluth, thermometers will probably register anywhere from 10 to 30 degs. below on the average.

Think of it! The best Columbia Suits can now be bought for $17.50 — former eighteen suits may be had for $12.50—and the third price of $7.50 does not only buy good ten and twelve dollar suits, but many odds and ends that were fifteen and eighteen.

CLAIMS SKATES WERE DEFECTIVE

Edward Gagnon Sues Roller Rink Proprietors for $3,000.

The trial of the damage case of Edward Gagnon against John Shea and J. N. Le Beau, proprietors of the Temple roller rink, was begun in Judge Dibell's room yesterday afternoon. The action is one in which Mr. Gagnon alleges that he was furnished with a defective pair of skates some time during last March, and that while he was skating the front wheels came off one skate and he was thrown to the floor, breaking one of his legs and causing other injuries. He demands $3,000 for his injuries.

The proprietors of the rink claim that the skates were in good condition when they were delivered to Gagnon, and they allege that the accident was due to his own carelessness and recklessness.

The personal injury cases of Ambrose Kundar and Joseph Roberts against the Shwango Furnace company are likely to be given to the jury late this afternoon or tomorrow morning. The actions were tried together in Judge Cant's room.

The personal injury case of Claus Puck against the Duluth Street Railway company was scheduled for trial before a jury in Judge Ensign's room this afternoon. Mr. Puck, in attempting to stop a runaway horse on Superior street some time ago, came in contact with a street car and sustained injuries. He alleges that his accident was due to carelessness on the part of the motorman. He is represented by John Jenswold, Jr.

ONE KILLED AND THREE INJURED

In Rear-End Collision of Trains on Nickel Plate.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Jeremiah Mulcahy was killed and Conductor R. M. Cousins and Brakeman C. T. Shaw were probably fatally injured, and Fireman Bert Gardiner was slightly injured in a rear-end collision of freight trains on the Nickel Plate road, near Blaisdell, this morning. The engine of the train was thrown on the tracks of the Pennsylvania, which parallels the Nickel Plate, and before signals could be displayed, a Pennsylvania freight ran into it and was thrown into the ditch without, however, injuring any one. The dead and injured were all from Conneaut, Ohio.

GIRLS SOLD TO HIGHEST BIDDERS

Traffic in Human Beings Practiced in North La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 15.—The county authorities today began an official investigation of charges laid before them, to the effect that girls under the age of consent, which in Wisconsin is 14 years, are being sold to the highest bidder in the Syrian colony, at North La Crosse. The investigation was ordered as the result of an attempt to secure a marriage license for a girl of 13 years to a Syrian transient merchant. Evidence was then submitted that the girl had been bid in for $300 in behalf of the prospective groom, and that her parents, on receiving a bid of $150, in a later mail from a Syrian at Oshkosh, were attempting to repudiate the first sale.

The Wisconsin law provides a severe penalty for traffic of this kind, and an order has been issued to sift the cause to the bottom.

CLAIMS TAXES WERE TOO HIGH

John McAlpine Asks Substantial Reduction by the Court.

John McAlpine, the local lumberman and logger, has filed his answer in the district court to the proceedings started by the state to enforce the collection of the personal property taxes for 1905 which were delinquent in 1906.

Mr. McAlpine claims that the city assessor's valuon of his personal property within the county May 1, 1905, was arbitrarily raised by the county board of equalization from $27,416 to $67,416. He claims that this valuation was made on the basis of $7, per thousand feet for No. 2 common and better lumber, and $3.50 for No. 3 common and grades below No. 3. The amount of taxes Mr. McAlpine was called upon to pay was $2,217.99.

Mr. McAlpine claims that he did not own lumber in St. Louis county May 1, 1905, to exceed 30,000 feet of No. 3 common and below, and he alleges that his assessed valuation for lumber should have been only $105, and his taxes should have been only $3.25. He asks that the court reduce the assessed valuation from $67,416 to $105 and his taxes from $2,217.99 to $3.25.

MINING LANDS INQUIRY PROVIDED BY SENATE BUT LAID OVER BY HOUSE

W. A. Nolan Secures Delay After Senate Committee Is Named.

Upper House Also Names Board of Trade Investigators.

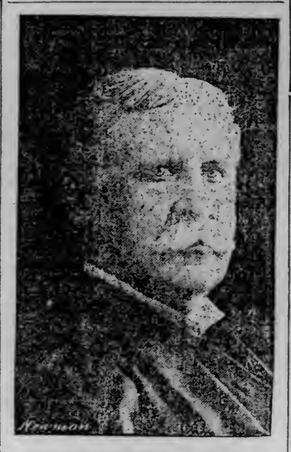

Representatives Call on Governor for Local Option Views.

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate this morning passed a joint resolution providing for a committee of three senators and four representatives to investigate mining lands and mining taxation, and President Eberhardt appointed Senators Cooke, Laybourn and V. L. Johnson.

When the resolution came to the house Representative Thayer moved its adoption, but W. A. Nolan said there were so many such committees that they were trying to figure out some way of combining their work, so it went over until tomorrow.

The senate also passed a resolution providing for a joint committee to investigate the Duluth board of trade and Minneapolis chamber of commerce, and Senators Thorpe, Pugh, Wither-

MANY ARE INDIGNANT

House Republicans Disgusted With Caucus on County Option.

Half a Dozen Proposals For Investigations Now Pending.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The resolution of J. A. Gates of Kenyon, by the passage of which the house will call upon Governor Johnson for a special message on the county option question, bids fair to be a casus belli in more ways than one before the session is over.

The action of the caucus of house Republicans yesterday in deciding to stand by te resolution practically meant that it woud pass beyond any question, but there is much feeling over it, and Republican house members are bowing to the inevitable with rather bad grace.

In the first place, many of them consider the entire proceedings as childish and absurd. County option may be very important to some members, but at a time when the Republican party has to watch its steps very carefully, it is

CANAL BIDS ARE HELD UP

Panama Commission is Making a Thorough Investigation.

Washington, Jan. 16. — Although it has been several days since the opening of bids for the completion of the Panama canal by contract, nothing definite has been done in the matter of actually drawing up the document authorizing the commencement of the work.

At the office of the isthmian canal commission today, it was stated that the various bids are being carefully investigated, not only as to their regularity but also as to the financial responsibility of the bidders. Many other questions, it was said, will need to be disposed of before the actual contract is entered into.

Although formal charges have not been preferred there are already intimations that some of the bidders will enter protests against the award of the contract to the combination submitting the lowest bid.

WIRE TAPPING BEAT POOL ROOM

Montana Telegraph Operator Accused of Working $2,000 Game.

Great Falls, Mont., Jan. 16.—After winning $2,000 in a local pool room on the results of the races at Oakland and Ascot, William H. Molden, an operator of the Postal Telegraph company, was yesterday arrested on a charge of sending false messages. The pool room management alleges that he was a party to a successful wire-tapping scheme.

Molden commenced betting with $40, and made three bets which netted him $1,950. It was later learned by the manager of the pool room that false returns had been received over their wire, as two of the horses on which Molden had cashed bets were not winners on the day's card.

When arrested, Molden declared that he had done the betting for another man, a stranger, to whom he had turned over his winnings, and from whom he received $100 for his services. He was unable to describe this man. No other arrests have been made.

RECORD SNOW MENACES MONTANA'S LIVE STOCK WITH SEVEREST LOSSES

Range Conditions Reported Worst in All History of State.

More Complaints of Fuel Famine Sent By North Dakota.

Railroad Magnates Telegraph They Are Doing All They Can.

Glendive, Mont., Jan. 16.—The range conditions in this section of Montana are the worst in the history of the country. The range is covered with snow from a depth of ten inches to three feet. In the Big Dry and Missouri river country the snow is fully three feet deep, one foot of which fell in November.

A rain in early December fell on this snow, making a crust which holds up a team. Stock in that country that is not supplied with food and shelter will be a total loss. Sheep men will suffer the severest, as horses and cattle can be driven out to some extent.

The sheep men in this immediate section are all pretty well supplied with food, and those who are not are trail-

Deadly Explosion of Locomotive on Reading Railroad.

One Man Literally Torn to Pieces by Rended Steel.

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 16.—The boiler of a Philadelphia & Reading railroad freight locomotive exploded at Bridgeport today and five trainmen, who were on the engine, were killed. The explosion is thought to have been due to low water in the boiler.

The dead are: Charles Stein, conductor; John Noblock, fireman; Roy Scheder, brakeman; Elmer Kane, brakeman; unknown man in charge of a car of live stock.

The rear portion of the boiler was hurled about 150 yards, while the wheels of the engine remained on the track. Scheder received the full force of the explosion and was torn to pieces. The others were shocked and scalded to death.

CATHOLICS MUCH APART

Two Distinct Parties at Conference of French Episcopacy.

Irreconcilables Believed to be in a Strong Majority.

Paris, Jan. 16.—The cardinalate, archbishops and bishops in session at the Chateau de la Muette are divided into two distinct parties—ultramontanes, who are irreconcilable and determined to persevere in the efforts to compel the state to negotiate for a settlement with the Vatican, and those whose organ is the Croix, which openly advocates, as the only means of possible victory, the organization of a political campaign by the Catholics, under the leadership of the clergy, in order to secure a change in the government's attitude, and the Liberals, or more liberal minded prelates, who believe that the high dignitaries of the French church should do everything not specifically interdicted by the pope in order to maintain religious peace.

The latter consider that it is necessary to reckon with public opinion, which they believe, will condemn open rebellion, especially as the government continues to affirm its desire not to close the churches and accuses the episcopate of obeying the suggestions of the reactionary political parties.

As the pope's condemnation only covers the separation of church and state law and the new Briand law, amending the separation measure, the Liberals favor taking advantage of the law of 1901 to form cultural associations under the common law. The Catholic papers, however, believe that the ultramontanes are in the majority.

WARRANT FOR F. C. FAIRBANKS

Son of Vice President Wanted on Perjury Indictment.

Steubenville, Ohio, Jan. 16.—Sheriff Verhees sent a telegram to the sheriff of Clark county, at Springfield, Ohio, today, to place Frederick C. Fairbanks, son of Vice President Fairbanks, under arrest, under his indictment here yesterday by the grand jury, for perjury in connection with his procuring a license to marry Helen Scott, a daughter of the millionaire iron master, James Scott, of Pittsburg.

CASTAWAYS ARE SAVED FROM PACIFIC ISLAND.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 16.—Capt. Melville and crew of fifteen men of the American bark Carrollton were landed here last night by the cable laying steamer Restorer. The Carrollton left Newcastle with 2,200 tons of coal for Honolulu on Oct. 7, and when some days out sprang a leak which made five inches of water an hour. Fresh water was exhausted and while running to Midway island for a fresh supply the vessel stranded and became a total wreck.

BUFFALO STRIKE ENDS IN CONCESSION TO MEN.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 16.—The strike of switchmen on the Buffalo Creek railroad was settled yesterday and the men returned to work last night. The state board of arbitration and mediation took a hand in the settlement of the trouble. The men won their principal point, which was a demand for recognition of a committee as representatives of all the employes. Other demands were waived. No question of wages was involved.

KINGSTON IN DIRE RUINS

Four Hundred Killed and Thousands More or Less Injured.

Docks and Warehouses Destroyed by Following Conflagration.

English Statesman Believed to be Among Disaster's Victims.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 16.—Kingston was overwhelmed by an earthquake at 3:30 on Monday afternoon. All the houses within a radius of ten miles were injured and almost every house in the city was destroyed.

Fire broke out after the earthquake and completed the work of destruction. The business section of Kingston is a heap of smoldering ashes. The killed number about 400 and thousands were injured.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 16.—The churches, public offices and hotels are all gone, but there were no fatalities at the Constant Spring hotel.

Among the killed were Sir James Ferguson and prominent merchants and professional men.

London, Jan. 16.—That a great disaster from earthquake and fire has overtaken Kingston, Jamaica, is beyond question, but while the United Fruit company of Boston reports several hundred killed and vast damage done, official dispatches and messages received by various steamship and cable companies, indicate that the early reports of the destruction of Kingston and great loss of life were exaggerated, but still report the disaster of a grave character.

Ruin and desolation are said to stretch for miles outside the city of Kingston. The shocks were felt from fifty to sixty miles away and one dispatch from the temporary cable station at Bull Bay says that not a single house between there and Kingston is safe.

The destruction wrought by the earthquake at Kingston, and the subsequent conflagration, according to an

FLOOD PUTS PEOPLE OUT

Dwellings at Springdale, Pa., Menaced by High Waters.

Hundreds of Feet of River Bank Washed Away Already.

Pittsburg, Jan. 16.—Three hundred feet of the west bank of the Allegheny river at Springdale, Pa., was washed away during the night as a result of the bursting of the government dam yesterday and the erosion continues.

This morning a large unoccupied frame building was carried down the river and nine other dwellings and the Heidenkamp Mirror company's plant are in imminent danger.

The occupants of the houses have all removed their household goods to places of safety and have deserted their homes.

At 10 o'clock the river was within ten feet of the West Pennsylvania railroad tracks and families beyond the railroad were preparing to move out.

WEATHER FORECAST—Snow tonight and Thursday. Warmer tonight with lowest temperature about 15 degs. above zero. Easterly winds.

COLE BACK FROM SOUTH

Says Properties in Cananea District Are Looking First Rate.

Copper Stock Market Closes With a Sick Tone.

T. F. Cole returned to Duluth this noon, after a trip to several of the important copper camps of the Southwest. Most of his time, while away, however, was spent at Cananea, where with others interested prominently in the Greene-Cananea company, he inspected the concern's property and went over plans for the work.

"As to my trip, there isn't much to say," said Mr. Cole this afternoon. "While we were at Cananea, we inspected the Greene-Cananea properties and you can say that they are looking first rate. The property is an excellent one and we expect improvements to go ahead and work to progress rapidly from now.

"I also spent some time at Bisbee. All the properties we are interested in there are showing up well. All of them are coming up to our expectation in every respect."

An effort was made by The Herald to question Mr. Cole about rumors regarding his personal plans and those of the Cole-Ryan interests for the near future, but the reporter was waived aside.

"Don't talk to me of rumors," said Mr. Cole, in a tone so weary that it gave evidence that he had been plied with such questions ever since he had been away. "Don't listen to all the rumors that you hear. I refuse to discuss any of them. Everything that needs to be known will come out when the proper time comes."

Country Club Meeting.
The adjourned annual meeting of the Northland Country club will be held at the Spalding Hotel sun parlors, Saturday evening, Jan. 19, at 8 o'clock.

Going to Convention.
Simon Clark will leave this evening for Dallas, Tex., to attend the annual convention of the Retail Grocers of America. Mr. Clark has been boomed in many quarters for president of the organization, and stands an excellent chance of being accorded the honor. His support comes in part from the friends he has made through his activity in support of the pure food measures.

Reception For Minister.
On Friday evening of this week, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Cotfin, a reception will be tendered to Rev. and Mrs. Parles by the Glen Avon church congregation. All the people of Glen Avon, Hunter's Park and Woodland are invited.

Sends Child to Asylum.
Lettie St. Clair, aged 12 years, the daughter of Mrs. Sarah St. Clair of Duluth Heights, was examined for insanity in the probate court yesterday afternoon and an order was made committing her to the state hospital. When the girl was 2 years old she suffered an attack of meningitis which left her mind weak. At times she has been subject to fits of uncontrollable temper and all efforts to subdue her were futile. This is the first case in many years where a person so young has been sent to the state hospital from St. Louis county.

Concern Changes Name.
Nolan Bros. & Laird, the St. Paul lumber firm that has been conducting its sawmill business on the St. Louis river at Skibo, Minn., for the past several years, have centered all their interests under the name of the Skibo Timber company. The change was made the first of the year. The Skibo Timber company was incorporated in 1906 to handle the timber purchase of the firm, but it will now cover the manufacturing as well. While the name changes the personnel of the company does not. The mill at Skibo is in full winter operation and will saw its usual stock for the spring markets.

Company Loses Logs.
During the heavy wind on Lake Superior, several days ago, the Red Cliff Lumber company is said to have lost about 1,000,000 feet of logs that were banked near Red Cliff, Wis. When the banking of logs was started there was about five inches of ice on the lake and it was not thought necessary to take precautions against the ice going out before spring. The heavy wind carried out the ice together with the logs and a large percentage of the latter are likely to be lost.

Ladies Will Meet.
The Park Point Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian Ladies' Aid society will meet with Mrs J. P. Burg of 2722 Minnesota avenue, tomorrow afternoon.

Is Reappointed.
Many Duluthians will be interested in the appointment by Governor Johnson of Dr. R. S. Holden of this city, to the state dental examining board. Dr. Holden has served one term of three years and has been reappointed by the governor.

Dies of Typhoid.
Iver Anderson, a woodsman boarding at 603½ West Superior street, died yesterday afternoon of typhoid fever. His funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms, and interment will be at Park Hill cemetery. Anderson was an unmarried man, and as far as could be learned has no relatives in the city.

"CUTE."
Jack London has a great affection for children, says the Los Angeles Times. In San Francisco there two twin sisters, little girls of 6 years, of whom Mr. London is very fond.

On the way to his boat one morning, Mr. London met one of the twins. He stooped and shook her hand.

"Good morning, my dear," he said. "And which of the twins are you?"

"The little girl answered gravely: "I'm the one what's out walkin'."

LEPERS AS POLITICIANS.
The lepers at the leper settlement on the island of Molokai have a new amusement, says the San Francisco Chronicle. For the first time in the history of the settlement it has a real election, and the entire community is devoting itself to the matter to the exclusion of all other things. Under the new country act, the settlement is created a country, but all the functions of government are given to the board of health, except the election of a deputy sheriff. A large number of candidates for this office have arisen and a campaign which surpasses anything ever known anywhere else is in progress.

The conditions at the settlement are ideal for political campaigns. The people have absolutely nothing to do but take part in political compaigns. They do not have to work for a living, for the territory supports them. They are housed and of at public expense. A political campaign offers them excitement and relief from the wearisomeness of monotony. The result is that the entire community has given itself up wholly to politics. Campaign meetings are being held almost continuously. Campaign oratory is never silent.

WORLD'S UNLUCKIEST ISLAND.

If there is an unlucky spot in this old globe of ours it is surely Cuba, where fighting of the most bloodthirsty kind is again in progress, says Pearson's Weekly. In most other places war is a more or less spasmodic evil; there it is perennial.

Discovered in 1492 by Columbus, who thought it "the most beautiful country it had ever been his lot to look upon." It quickly became the scene of merciless raids by armed adventurers, by whom the original population was practically destroyed.

Later on the buccaneers made war upon the Spanish settlers, and very nearly wiped them out of existence in their turn, even the city of Havana itself being stormed and taken by the arch pirate, Morgan, whose savage followers committed atrocities unmentionable upon the unfortunate inhabitants.

Next came rebellions of the slaves imported from Africa, and these were put down with fire and sword; or, rather, in the case of the prisoners, with sword and fire, for these wretched beings were invariably lopped and mutilated in the most horrible manner before being burned at the stake in the principal square of Havana.

Cruelty begets cruelty, however, and the memory of such unmentionable horrors does not readily die, as the Spaniards found to their cost later. The Creole insurrection, which began in 1850, was marked by almost as much savagery as anything that had gone before; and as late as 1891, not only was no quarter given on either side, but torture of prisoners preparatory to execution was regarded as quite a matter of course.

The Americans, when they intervened, stopped, or were supposed to have stopped, such savagery as this; but in 1897, when Guisa was captured by the insurgents—mostly escaped convicts—under Callxio Garcia, scores of wounded prisoners were deliberately roasted to death over slow fires.

And this is the land they have christened "The Pearl of the Antilles!"

HOW TO GET LOST.

But if a sense of direction is the prime requisite, thoroughness presses it close, says Stewart Edward White in Outing. It is sometimes very difficult to command the necessary patience. At the end of a hard day, with the almost moral certainty that the objective point is just ahead, it is easy, fatally easy, when the next dim blaze does not immediately appear, to say to one's self: "Oh, it' near enough," and to plunge ahead. And then, nine times out of ten, you are in trouble. "I guess this is all right" has lost many a man; and the haste too great to be sure—and then again sure—has had many fatal results. If it is a trial, then be certain you see indications before proceeding. Should they fail, then go back to the last indication and start over again. If it is new country, then pick up every consideration in your power, and balance them carefully before making the smallest decision. And all the time keep figuring. Once having decided on a route, do not let the matter rest there. As you proceed, keep your eyes and mind busy weighing carefully each bit of evidence. And if you become suspicious that you are on the wrong track, turn back unhesitatingly, no matter how time presses.

HOW A GIRL KILLED A BEAR.

Windermere Cor. Toronto Star: A big black bear which had been lurking around Windermere, Muskoka, was killed under interesting circumstances.

Miss Edna Hough, a girl of 13, together with her younger brother and Dick King, a strong mill hand, had been out rowing near Windermere and were turning to go home when the girl saw an animal in the water ahead of them. They went ashore, got stones and threw at the dark object, but no movement followed. They got some more missiles and a club, but this time the object moved and struck for the shore. The three in the boat arrived at land first, and as the bear scrambled up the rocks, Dick deftly clubbed him on the head. The animal, half stunned, again endeavored to climb ashore. The girl, whose father is reputed to be the strongest man in Muskoka, grasped the brute by the back of the neck and doubled its head back, while Dick cut its throat.

Windermere people could hardly believe the story, but a photograph which was taken shortly after by Matthew Macron, Dr. Elmore Harris' engineer, proved the story true.

HAD A FALLING OUT.

Judge John M. Harlan and James B. McCreary canvassed Kentucky together as the Republican and Democratic candidates for governor thirty years ago, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

They traveled about the state on a joint debating trip, and in many small mountain places had to sleep in the same bed. They were warm, personal friends, and so did not object to this intimacy.

One night Mr. Harlan got into bed first. Senator McCreary was not far behind, and just as he entered the bed Judge Harlan raised his bulky form—he is a large man—and said, in his stentorian voice: "McCreary, there is one thing certain, the next governor of Kentucky is in this bed."

As he spoke the bed slats broke, and Judge Harlan rolled to the floor. Senator McCreary caught and held himself in bed, and as Judge Harlan reached the floor, said:

"John, you are right, the next governor of Kentucky is still in this bed."

WOLVES ARE VERY WARY

Poison Being Used by Hunters More Than Traps.

Deer Said to be Easy Victims for Hungry Brutes.

Three St. Louis county residents presented wolf pelts at the auditor's office this morning, and each received the $15 bounty paid by the county and state. The recipients of the bounty were: J. B. Thiry of Culver, W. J. Miner of Skibo, and James Walsh of Burntside Lake.

The trappers and hunters who are occasionally bringing in the pelts for the bounty claim that there is practically no more trapping of wolves being attempted. They claim the wolves have become so wary that it is impossible to get them near a trap, and that the only way to get them is to use bullets or poison.

The latter method is most generally used and gives the best results, for the hunters, unless they happe to be lucky, rarely ever get a good shot at the wolves. It is claimed that where poison has been applied to the carcasses of deer killed by wolves, it has been as long as two or three weeks afterward before the animals attempted to eat the poisoned meat. The trappers argue that either the wolves are slaying the deer simply from the pleasure of the hunt, and do not go back to the carcass until hungry, or they are very wary and do not touch meat they suspect has been tampered with until driven to do so by hunger.

The deep snow in the woods is said to aid the wolves in their chase of deer, by reason of the curst on top, which will bear up the wolf, but through which the deer breaks and flounders at every jump.

A HOLE IN THE AIR.

American Magazine: One of the strange experiences of a balloonist is that of falling into "a hole in the air," which Mr. Rolker reports as follows:

"So you continue sailing, enjoying the present with little thought of the startling surprise that may be before you. Ahead of you, unseen, may be what the balloonist calls a 'hole in the air,' resembling the votex of a maelstrom, and down this you may literally fall at a rate which is terrifying until, by sacrificing two or three bagsful of sand at once, your pilot checks your downward flight. But these 'holes' are scarce, and as a rule the atmosphere is of uniform carrying power."

FORMULATE DEMANDS

Reduced Fare Agitation Will Be Brought Before Directors.

City Attorney Draws Up List of Concessions Wanted.

The reduced fare question for Duluth and the Twin Cities is to be brought into prominence again.

Some time ago when a committee of citizens from Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis went down to Minneapolis and waited upon Messrs. Goodrich and Lowry in an effort to procure the desired concessions along this line, the street car people told them to return and formulate their plans in a more concise way and they would consider the proposition.

This has been done and City Attorney Bert Fesler is now engaged in drawing up the list of desired reductions in a form to be presented to the street railway officials.

The demands will be, briefly, six fares for a quarter for Minneapolis and St. Paul, and half fare for all school children in Duluth.

The movement for half rates was started some time ago by Bishop McGolrick of this city, in an interview in The Herald. The visit of the committee to Minneapolis was rather unsatisfactory, and no definite answer was made to their demands. Mr. Lowry, in fact, intimated that he would on no condition grant the requests of the committee, but the formal presentation of what the people of Duluth and the Twin Cities want along these lines will definitely determine the position which the traction companies will take on the subject.

The six fares for a quarter project, for which the Twin City people are working, will probably be worked on the same plan as in many Eastern and practically all Canadian cities, where tickets are sold at the reduced rate, while in many places the rate is still further reduced for the benefit of workingmen, between certain hours when they patronize the lines most freely.

The committee in charge of the Duluth end of the movement is composed of Aldermen Lyle, Staples and Getchell.

CAN'T STARVE CHICKEN.

A New Orleans man has proved that a chicken can live twenty-three days without food or water, says the New York Tribune. He makes affidavit that when his family moved recently a chicken securely nailed in a box was in the cellar of the new house, having been forgotten by the former tenants. Twenty-three days later the cook was moved to explore the cellar and discovered the chicken, emanciated, but still much alive.

WEST DULUTH

BUSINESS WAS GOOD

West Duluth Merchants Generally Had Especially Busy Year.

Members of Congregational Church Hold Yearly Meeting.

Practically all of the dry goods and grocery stores of West Duluth have either completed the yearly count of stock or else are in the midst of this proceeding at the present time. The drug stores and confectionary stores have also been taking the annual inventory.

Most of the merchants last year experienced a very good business, the amount of which was considerably over that for the year before.

The number of traders who come from outside points has increased considerably during the last year, West Duluth having become the most popular point for New Duluth and Smithville people as well as those of other nearby towns.

HOLD YEARLY MEETING.

Congregational Church Members Hear Reports and Choose Officers.

About fifty of the members of the congregation of the plymouth Congegational church attended the meeting of the church last evening. The meeting was preceded by an informal supper served by the ladies of the church.

Rev. H. W. Johnson, the pastor of the church, called the meeting to order and the reports of the various officers and committees were read. In all departments the church has been very prosperous, and the year has come to an end with a handsome balance in the treasury. Last year was an especially successful one for the missionary department of the church.

H. C. Brown was chosen a trustee for a three year term and R. M. Weaver was elected to the position of church clerk and treasurer for the ensuing year. Ray O. Kindy was elected superintendent of the Sunday school.

The Ladies' Aid society elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. H. W. Johnson; vice president, Mrs. C. R. Keyes; secretary, Mrs. J. H. Browne; treasurer, Mrs. J. Keefe; secretary of missionery department, Mrs. C. C. Salter.

ONE TERM ENOUGH.

John Cashin Says He Will Be Satisfied With Two Years.

John Cashin, the West Duluth candidate for the office of surveyor general of logs and lumber, says that, if he should be appointed by Governor Johnson this spring, he would be satisfied with a two-year term, and would be willing to pull out in 1909.

"Although the log and lumber business is falling off considerably every year," said Mr. Cashin, this morning, "I am still anxious to get the surveyor general appointment, and I will be satisfied with it for a couple of years."

MINIATURE AERIAL BRIDGE.

Ed Winters, West Duluth Boy Genius, Finishes His Masterpiece.

Cutting out small pieces of pine wood and afterwards putting them securely together, so as to make an almost perfect imitation of the famous Duluth aerial bridge in miniature, is a feat which not many young boys are capable of unless they happen to be of the genius variety.

West Duluth has such a boy, however, in the person of Edward Winters, who is employed as the hotel boy at the Phillips. Young Winters has always shown himself adept in the use of his jackknife, and is a good deal of a genius in this line. Recently he completed his masterpiece, the miniature aerial bridge.

The bridge is about four feet long and a little over two feet in height, and is constructed out of pieces of pine which the boy had cut into the correct shapes. A miniature car is suspended, and from a short distance it looks to be an exact reproduction of the real bridge. Young Winters has presented the miniature to a boy friend, who prizes it greatly.

MANY LIVES WERE LOST

In Accidents on American Waters During Fiscal Year.

Fatalities on American waters during the fiscal year ending last June 30, amounted to a total of 500, which is 24 over the losses during the previous twelve months, according to the annual report of the supervising inspector of steamboats to the secretary of the department of commerce and labor for the fiscal year. The report has been received at the office of the local inspector.

There were sixty-five accidents during the year, including collisions and fires, which number is twenty-one more than the year before.

The largest losses of lives occurred by the wrecking of the folowing vessels: Savona, Sept. 1, 1905, on Lake Superior, 7; Iosco, on Sept. 3, Lake Superior, 19; Ira H. Owen, Nov. 28, Lake Superior, 19; Matsafa, Duluth harbor, Nov. 28, 9, and Valencia, on the south coast of Vancouver Island, Jan. 22, 1906, when 121 people perished.

In the Duluth district there were 200 certificates of inspection issued and the gross tonnage of the vessels inspected amounted to 203,798. In this district there were seven vessels which were wrecked, there were three collisions and two fires. Twenty-two lives were lost and seventeen saved by the use of the life-saving appliances. Forty-one original licenes were granted to captains and pilots and and thirty-four were renewed for a five-year period.

DIRECT VOTES ON SENATORS

Nebraska's New Senator-Elect Takes a Decided Position.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 16. — Norris Brown, senator-elect, in his speech of acceptance to the legislature today, came out openly for the selection of United States senators by direct vote of the people, saying, "I believe the federal constitution should be amended so that the people shall have the right by direct vote to elect United States senators. There is no justification for making one set of lawmakers directly responsible to the people for another set of lawmakers directly responsible to somebody else."

Referring to the tariff, Mr. Brown said: "I believe the present industrial system of the country is right and should be maintained. Tariff schedules may be changed, but the protective principle should not be abandoned or impaired."

RAILROAD NEWS

ARE AFRAID TO TRAVEL

Few People Leaving Duluth for Points in the West.

Trains All Delayed—Hill Orders Snow Shovelers Here.

Passenger business out of Duluth to far Western points is almost at a standstill as a result of the heavy snows through the Northwest, which are completely blocking traffic. People who had planned going to the Pacific coast, or to points between the Dakotas and the coast, during the present month, are delaying their start until more favorable reports are received concerning traffic conditions in the West. No one is buying tickets for stations in the snow belt except those who absolutely have to be at their destination this month. Consequently ticket receipts locally are showing a falling off.

Several of the local employment agents have received orders from the Great Northern road for snow shovelers. There is virtually no limit placed on the number of men that may be sent. Free fare out and back is offered, with wages fixed at $2 a day. Returning, the men may come either to Duluth or Minneapolis. From here they will be sent to Larimore, and thence to points along the line where they may be needed the most. It is said that 1,500 men already have been taken out of the Twin Cities to shovel snow on the Western roads, and the labor supply in St. Paul and Minneapolis is exhausted.

According to James J. Hill himself, there is more snow along the Great Northern now than ever before in history. Many of the box cars are literally snowed under, and nothing but a crew of men with shovels can dig them out. Passenger trains are lost sight of entirely, and are running from a day to five and six days behind their regular schedules. Snow plows sent out to rescue them are themselves frequently snowbound, and more plows have to be sent ahead to dig them out. The passenger and freight business is simply paralyzed, and with these conditions existing, it naturally follows that the average person does not care to travel unless it is absolutely necessary.

Duluth is feeling some of the direct effects of the cold weather and snow in the matter of train delays. The majority of trains entering the city have been late for the past three or four days. Some of them have been running five and six hours behind time, and scarcely any are arriving on schedule. The bulletin board at the Union depot this morning showed only one train on time, the Northern Pacific from Ashland, due at 11:45 a. m. The incoming trains last night were late almost without exception. Some of the delays are due to the fact that the Duluth trains are expected to wait somewhere down the line to make connections with late trains from other points.

NEW STATION

To be Erected by the Canadian Pacific at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 16.—It is learned on what is regarded as undeniable authority that the Canadian Pacific road will build a passenger station here double the size of the present one. It is understood that the new structure will be located on the north side of the tracks, opposite the present station. The station now in use was erected a little more than a year ago at a cost approximating a half million dollars. The executive offices located in the building are already cramped, and with the development of the system in the Northwest, and the great growth of traffic the new situation is considered a necessity.

DOLLIVER CONFIDENT.

Says They Cannot Beat Him for United States Senator.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 16.—Senator J. P. Dolliver arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and declares he has absolutely pledged enough votes to secure his election on Jan. 22 to the senate without question. He says some politicians are trying to make it embarrassing for him and he has stayed away from Des Moines so as to avoid any trouble. He has been in Fort Dodge since last Saturday and local leaders have been wiring all over the country for him.

"As to Chase and Tobin," said the senator, "I have not made any promises. It is a question for the delegation to settle. The chances are the senatorial election will come off before the meeting of the delegation as I intend to remain here and visit with the legislators for some time, probably until after Jan. 22, the day of the election."

EVANSVILLE MAY LOSE POSITION ON THE RIVER.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 16.—Boats today began using the new channel cut by the high water in the Ohio river yesterday. The stream may permanently change its course, and if, it does, Evansville will be left high and dry. The high water threatens the water works.

WORK WILL SOON BEGIN

A. Guthrie Gets Contract for Great Northern Cut-Off.

Will Shorten Ore Haul—Camps Now Being Built.

It is now an established fact that the proposed cut-off of the Great Northern road for shortening the ore haul will be completed by the time the shipping season opens in the spring, or shortly thereafter. The contract for the work has been let to A. Guthrie & Co. The new piece of track will measure something over twenty-five miles in length, so it may not be finished in time for the early shipments.

Camps are now being built along the right-of-way, and actual work probably will begin within the next ten days or two weeks in clearing away the timber and brush. A large crew of men will be employed on the contract, and every effort will be exerted to have the tracks in readiness for use early in the summer, if not in the spring.

The present line runs from Kelly lake east through Hibbing, and then almost at right angles to the south, making a long detour from Kelly lake through Hibbing to Zim. The new road will run direct from Kelly lake southeast to Zim, shortening the haul about twenty-five miles.

It is also expected that the Great Northern will this year double track its line between Brookston and Swan River, Minn., a distance of thirty-four miles. This will practically give the road a double track from the mines to the Head of the Lakes docks. The engineers are also estimating the cost of reducing the grades and shortening the curves between Swan River and Kelly lake.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS. PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Buildings Valued at $20,000 Totally Destroyed at Velva.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—Fire broke out Monday in the blacksmith shop of William Foy, of Velva, and before it was checked, buildings valued at $20,000 were totally destroyed. There was little of the loss covered by insurance. No one knows how the fire started, except that it broke out somewhere in the blacksmith shop of William Foy while he was away to lunch. The chief losers are William Foy, whose shop was totally destroyed. His residence, valued at over $2,500, was wiped away. The butcher shop of O. Leden was destroyed and also the general store of Barney Frank. His loss is being placed at $10,000, with insurance of $5,000. The Newberry hotel, which stands near the buildings, was saved from damage, but it was a close call.

There is authority for the statement that the Soo has perfected plans for the erection of a new station at Minot this spring. It is said that the improvements contemplated involve an expenditure of $100,000. The new station is to be of stone and brick, modern in every respect, with electric lights, steam heat, sewerage, etc., and will be the finest station the Soo has in North Dakota. The business of the road at this point has rapidly increased and Minot now is the most important North Dakota point on the system. The present accommodations are inadequate, not only for officers and employes of the road, but for the traveling public.

Bismarck — It is unofficially announced that Frank Wilson of Bathgate, editor of the Pink Paper, will be appointed state oil inspector.

Ex-Judge Templeton of Grand Forks has been appointed to fill the vacancy on the district bench, succeeding Judge Fisk, who has been promoted to the supreme court. The appointment has been under consideration for some time, and Mr. Templeton has been a leading candidate from the start.

The Retail Merchants' associations of North Dakota met here yesterday. The address of welcome was made by Mayor Webb and responded to by H. L. Reade. A large number of delegates are present.

Park River.—A wolf hound, Dan, belonging to County Register of Deeds Frank Welch, put in ninety-six hours—four days and four nights—recently in a wolf trap, two traps, in fact, a front foot caught in one and a hind foot caught in another. In this condition, without food, the weather at the time being below zero, the dog held onto life and the traps held onto the dog. The man who has charge of the Tombs farm heard the dog's howls and made three trips in that direction before he discovered the imprisoned animal. The snow was very deep and the dog was entirely out of sight. The snow had kept him from freezing to death; as it was the two feet caught in the traps were frozen some. When the man released him the dog struck out for home, but in its maimed and famished condition he was easily caught and taken to the farm home. Mr. Welch was notified and the dog was taken home and will soon be in good shape again.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sisseton.—Thomas Carney, a bartender at Peever, eight miles south of here, who was stabbed in the abdomen by Adolph Lundstrom, a farmer, is dead of his wound. For years Carney made Sisseton his headquarters and was known as a sporting man and gambler. He was about 35 and was single. Lundstrom has been arrested and will be arraigned upon the charge of murder.

Pierce.—A. Norby, a banker of Sisseton, Roberts county, was yesterday appointed regent, and Nick Trewick was reappointed inspector of mines. Both were confirmed. The first committee report favors the passage of two school land bills. New house bills yesterday: By Drake, for the establishment of an inebriate asylum at Mitchell; by Lanum, repealing the free high school bill.

Sioux Falls.—After having eluded his pursuers about three weeks, Dell Morrison, wanted in Nebraska on the charge of horse-stealing, has been captured in Sioux Falls. The charge against him is the theft of a team of horses and a wagon from a farmer residing near Wakefield, Neb. His captor has been informed that the stolen property was sold to a man named John Hogan in Nebraska.

Volga.—Fire yesterday destroyed the Van Dusen elevator. Twenty thousand bushels of grain was lost.

Elk Point.—Mrs. E. H. Dailey slipped on a small patch of ice and broke the neck of the right femur or thigh bone. She lay on the ground for nearly an hour before she was found. She is 70 and lives alone, her husband having died several years ago.

Deadwood.—Hereafter all offenders against the rules of the Deadwood high school will be tried before a court composed of one member from each of the classes and a judge appointed by the principal from the senior class.

ALDERMEN FACE BRIBERY PROBE

Four New York City Fathers Appear Before Grand Jury.

New York, Jan. 16.—Four aldermen appeared at the federal court building today ready to go before the grand jury in answer to subpoenas issued for them yesterday in connection with the alleged bribery to procure the election by the board of aldermen of a successor to John W. Goff as recorder. They were Henry Clay Peters, Joseph Flak and William Rowcroft of the borough of Brooklyn and Thomas J. Mulligan of the borough of The Bronx. Before entering the grand jury room, all denied knowledge of the alleged attempt at bribery.

CEMENT MEN IN CONVENTION

Northwestern Association Opens Annual Conference at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A three days' convention of the Northwestern Cement Products association opened at the Armory this city today with about 200 representatives present from Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, and Illinois. The feature was an exhibit of all kinds of machinery used in the manufacture of cement products.

The meeting was called to order by President C. A. P. Turner of Minneapolis. The morning session was devoted to a welcoming program, and the appointment of committees. This afternoon there will be reports of officers and the reading of papers on technical topics.

The officers of the association are: President, C. A. P. Turner of Minneapolis; vice presidents, O. U. Miracle of Minneapolis, J. McLaughlin of Lisbon, N. D., William Hurst of Glendive, Mont., Lee Stover of Watertown, S. D., and T. Down of Minneapolis; secretary, Martin T. Roche of St. Paul; treasurer, J. M. Hazen of Minneapolis.

RUNAWAY IS CAPTURED.

Grand Reunion Follows Return of Woman Who Ran Away.

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 16.—His wife, Mary, tried to flee to Germany last Saturday with $1,000 he had given her to save, but Frank Hoegrel has decided to take her back and a big reunion was held here yesterday. Mrs. Hoegrel is 50, and was intercepted at Milwaukee with a through ticket for New York, with the evident intention of making for Germany, where it is claimed her undivorced first husband is living. It seems, according to neighbors, that both Mrs. Hoegrel and her first husband were imprisoned in Germany, but she was released first, and came here and married, and now her first husband is free and she tried to flee to him and took her American husband's clothes as a present. This fact made it possible to hold her on a charge of larceny, but she could not be held for taking the $1,000, as she was voluntarily made custodian by her husband and what a wife has is her own, says the law.

ENDS HIS LIFE BEFORE CROWD

Crazy Bohemian Leaps From Roof of New York Building.

New York, Jan. 16.—Adolph Pallock, a Bohemian, 50 years old, hurled himself to death from the roof of a five story building in Avenue A today in the sight of a crowd of several hundred persons, which had been attracted by his peculiar actions on the roof. Several times he was seen to approach to the edge of the roof and look over into the street and then fall on his knees in an attitude of prayer. Finally he rose, and, placing his hands over his eyes, sprang out into space. His body was crushed almost to a pulp.

FOR UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE.

Radical Reform Promised by Crown Prince in Swedish Elections.

Stockholm, Jan. 16.—The Swedish parliament was formally opened today with a speech from the throne, delivered by Crown Prince Gustave in his capacity as regent. After a reference to the "gratifying change for the better" in the condition of his father, King Oscar, and the good relations between Sweden and the foreign powers, the prince discussed the domestic affairs of the kingdom. The principal legislation foreshadowed in the speech was a comprehensive electoral reform measure, introducing universal suffrage and limiting the election of members of the house to six years. Municipal franchises also will be extended, so as to include wider sections of the community.

The victim was shot three times by Sellhorz with a repeating rifle. Sellhorz was arrested. There were no eye witnesses to the shooting. The Greatest Pre-Inventory Sale

Your Store—

The People of Duluth and Vicinity Have Ever Seen or Heard Tell of, Will Begin in This Store

THURSDAY, JANUARY 17th

Your Store—

WE ARE just about to close the most phenomenal year's business we have ever had. On January 26th we take our annual inventory. During the past week a member of this firm has thoroughly ransacked every department and every nook and corner in the establishment—from cellar to garret—for merchandise that might accidentally have gotten side tracked or lost—merchandise that is soiled or mussed—all odds and ends. Goods of this kind we never take into stock—a price is always put upon them at our pre-inventory sales that sells them.

Then Again—We are about to make some important changes in the buyership of several of our departments and it is our wish that those departments will be in a clean and up-to-date condition when the new buyers take possession.

In Addition to This—We are making some important alterations in out Millinery, Boys' Clothing, Infants' Wear and Cloak departments, that necessitate a general clean-up in order to get out of the way of cabinet-makers, plasterers and painters.

Every Department in the Big Store Will Contribute Its Wealth of Bargains

Not one of them has been overlooked. Some of them have more bargains than others. We would advise looking them all over—it will pay you. The great sale begins Thursday and will continue until Saturday night, January 26th. GET YOUR MONEY READY. Note the separating prices. "Enough said."

GREAT ANNUAL

French & Bassett DULUTH, MINN.

Cor. First St. and Third Ave. West.

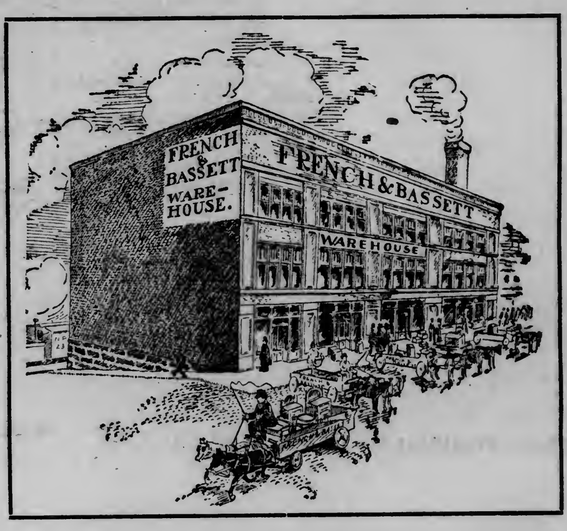

MID-WINTER SALE!

10 to 50% DISCOUNT

on Furniture, Carpets, Rugs, Draperies, Crockery, Lamps, Stoves and all House Furnishings. Sale Began Monday Morning at 8:30 and Continues Until February First.

This will be the most sweeping mid-winter clearance sale we have ever made and we are making it the last half of January instead of in February, as usual, for the reason that our basement must be cleared for the contractors to begin alterations on Feb. 1 and owing to delays in material our new warehouse will not be ready on time so we must make room by selling the goods and to do this we have placed the larger discount tags throughout the stock with a lavish hand.

First St. and 3rd Ave. W.

This picture shows the greater French & Bassett store as it will appear when enlarged and remodeled, with a new story added above and practically one below. For the storage will be removed from the avenue floor to our new warehouse on Michigan street and the space transformed into a handsome salesroom for Crockery, China, Stoves and Housefurnishings. A spacious new entrance will be made to this floor on the corner nearest Superior street.

The entire building will by degrees be completely remodeled, decorated and arranged with every modern convenience and improvement, and we intend to make it one of the handsomest and most agreeable stores of the kind in America. When complete this store and warehouse will contain nearly four acres of floor space devoted to the sale and distribution of house and office furnishings and kindred lines, making one of the largest west of Chicago and about as large as all similar stores in Duluth combined.

An Immense Stock to Select From.
The Greatest House Furnishing Event Duluth Has Ever Known.
You cannot afford to miss this opportunity. Come Early.

In this store at all times goods are marked in plain figures at their correct selling prices, which are, in most cases, lower than prices in the ordinary store. During this sale a special tag is attached to the regular price tag, indicating the various discounts from 10 to 50 per cent according to color as follows:

314-16 W. Michigan St.

This picture shows our new warehouse which is now nearing completion, at 314 and 316 West Michigan street, extending back to the railway tracks. This building is most conveniently located, only one and a half blocks from our store, and contains four floors, with electric elevators and every convenience for the care and distribution of goods. Railway cars can be placed within four feet of our rear doors and goods unloaded directly into the warehouse, thus saving much expense in cartage and breakage. In fact, it means that furniture can be loaded into a car at the factory anywhere in the United States and be unloaded directly into our new modern warehouse without rehandling, and from there delivered to your home or office at the smallest possible expense.

This all means better and more prompt deliveries, with furniture in better condition and at lower prices.

HILL SEES PARALYSIS

Great Northern President Makes Striking Address to Lumbermen.

Raps Minnesota for Checking Proposed Capital Increase.

Minneapolis, Jan. 16.—"This country is facing, in a commercial sense, the disease one might call slow paralysis," declared James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, at the opening session of the Northwestern Lumbermen's association, in the courthouse yesterday.

"The railroads today," Mr. Hill went on "are blamed for everything, practically, that is wrong. The Great Northern road is blamed! I am blamed because it is intimated that I own the Great Northern railroad. The truth of the matter is that I own less than 7 per cent of the stock of the Great Northern road. There are 3,200 shareholders in the company, 1,100 of whom are women. You never knew that before, but that is the situation, and when we ask our shareholders to subscribe $60,000,000 more stock to our already large capital in order that we may build more trackage to carry the business of the West to the East, we are made defendant in a suit brought by the state of Minnesota."

Such was one of the most emphatic, most interesting and most eventful statements ever made by President Hill in a public address, and every lumberman and business man who heard the address went away convinced that the Great Northern road, as Interstate Commerce Commissioner Harlan had said, was doing its utmost to better present conditions.

"It seems," Mr. Hill said, "but a short time ago—1896—when I first visited Puget Sound, with a view of seeing what that country had to offer as an inducement for us to build a railway there. There was more land staked out as town lots than was under cultivation; but they had the finest forests a man ever saw. Such trees. An old lumberman friend said to me: 'The first time I have ever seen trees so high that I had to take two looks to see the tops of them.' Now, as late as 1897 we carried about seventy-five carloads a week east from Puget Sound. Today, if the demand could be filled, there would be going over the two northern lines not less than 500 carloads a day.

"Lumber is a necessity; a necessity for shelter. Human beings must have it, in order to protect themselves from the inclemency of the weather. It is one of the necessaries of life. But while we have had magnificent forests in the East, they are practically gone and the supply has to come from west of the Rocky mountains. I asked the lumbermen why they did not ship East. Well, they could not. 'What rate would enable you to do so?' 'Sixty-five cents.' As long as we can find merchandise to go West in our cars, we will draw lumber East, at a price that will enable you to sell to the people living north of the Ohio river and east of the Rocky mountains.' They thought a rate of 65 cents a hundred would do.

"I remember, when I came away from the meeting, I told a friend with me that they did not know what they were talking about; they had to have a lower rate. We made them a rate of 40 cents on fir and 50 on cedar. That rate has been in effect since 1893—the time when our line was completed. We have had plenty of opportunity to raise it—plenty of solicitations to raise it—but we have not raised it.

"The remedy today is more trackage facilities and we cannot increase those facilities without more money. It is not more cars, but more movement of the cars already in use, which will solve the car shortage problem."

DRUNKENNESS CURED

It will be gratifying to all lovers of temperance and a happy home to know that a simple and a scientific cure for the whisky and beer habit has been discovered. Orrine never fails to cure drunkenness if it is used in accordance with the simple directions in the package, and the discoverer has so much confidence in the treatment that we are authorized to sell it with an absolute guarantee, to effect a cure or the money will be refunded.

It is in two forms: No. 1 to be given secretly, and No. 2, for those who wish to be cured, $1 each. SYMPHONE CONCERT.

The St. Paul Symphony orchestra concert will be given this evening at the Lyceum, and it should be one of the musical events of the season.

The orchestra, which has been in existence but a few months, has rapidly forged to the front as one of the premier musical organizations of the country. This is the first trip of any importance outside of its home city, but the concerts have proven very popular with St. Paul audiences, and there is little doubt but that they will be appreciated here.

COMEDY AND AVOIRDUPOIS.

Women of considerable weight seem to be the most successful as stage comediennes. May Irwin is no lightweight and neither are Marie Dressler, Evie Stetson and many others. Nettie Grant, who is at the Metropolitan this week with her London Gaiety Girls, has all of those mentioned beaten in size and is not lacking in the funmaking qualities. The company will give a matinee for ladies tomorrow.

MILK MEN UP IN ARMS.

Threaten Madison With a Boycott Because of Hostile Legislation.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—Because the council passed an ordinance calling for a careful examination of cows to prevent the spread of tuberculosis, farmers furnishing milk to Madison are planning a boycott. Local dealers are trying to block it, but are helpless. There is talk of raising the price of milk from 6 to 8 cents a quart on Feb. 1, and even if the farmers do not enter the boycott this will be done. But a boycott appears inevitable.

The farmers say they cannot afford to lose their cattle as the result of a drastic ordinance passed by Madison council, and rather than take the chances they say they will not bring milk to the city, and that Madison can seeks its supply elsewhere.

MABELLE'S PLANS.

Prospective Bride of Corey Says They Are in Indefinite Shape.

Paris, Jan. 16.—Miss Mabelle Gilman has at last broken her long silence. She says:

"As my plans are in rather an indefinite state, it is impossible for me to make any positive statement about them. I am still studying singing with Jean de Retzke, and expect to continue studying with him for some time to come:"

It has been learned authoritatively that Miss Gilman's marriage to W. E. Corey will not occur for several months. Mr. Corey again positively states that he will not get married this trip, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary.

STOCK FOR EMPLOYES.

Steel Corporation Offers Block of Preferred at Cut Price.

New York, Jan. 16.—The United States Steel corporation will announce within a few days to its employes a profit sharing plan for 1907. It will offer a big block of preferred stock to its employes at $102 a share, or a $5.37½ a share below the closing market price of yesterday. The stock, however, has within the last year sold as high as 113¼.

In 1906 the price was $100 a share; in 1905, $87.50 a share; in 1904, $55 a share, and in 1903, $52 a share. The number of employes who have the privilege of subscribing at $102 a share is about 200,000. Up to date the employes have purchased under this plan about 125,000 shares at a cost of $9,800,000. The present market price of their stock is $13,000,000, so that they have a profit of $3,200,000.

SPOILED THE WEDDING.

At Eleventh Hour Groom Sends Word He is Not Coming.

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 16.—The marriage of Miss Corinne Dixon of Springfield, to Joseph Eddy, nephew of Lloyd Osborn, the novelist, which was to be held here today has been postponed indefinitely. Miss Dixon received a telegram from Eddy, saying he would not be here today to marry her. Many wedding presents had been received, and the guests from a distance had begun to arrive. Her friends are wondering why Eddy cannot he here today, and whether he is coming at all. Since he was graduated at Drury college, this city, he has been in California.

MINERS NOT IN CONCORD

President Mitchell and Vice President Lewis Openly Apart.

Losses in Membership of National Union Reported.

Indianapolis, Jan. 16.—The eighteenth annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America was opened here yesterday morning. The entire time of both sessions was devoted to the rights of delegates representing unions that had failed to pay the extra strike assessment of 50 cents per week to be seated, and to hearing the reports of the general officers. The matter of seating the delegates whose seats were contested was referred back to the credential committee.

In his annual address, President John Mitchell said the past year had been most eventful with its suspension of work to enfore the restoration of the wage scale of 1903, and he believed the policy adopted had been for the best. While the membership showed a decrease of 35,910 on the records on account of the exoneration from dues of many members who had been on strike, there had in reality been an increase.

The anthracite fields shows a decrease of 32,220 members, and the president insisted upon increased activity in organization. Unless otherwise instructed he will put a number of organizers in that field. For the first practically free from strikes. Less money is being expended by unions for idle men than at any previous time.

The address urged the re-establishment of the interstate conference and recommended that the executive committee negotiate with the operators of the central competitive field during the present year for an interstate meeting prior to April, 1908. To show the importance of machine mining, the address stated that last year 14 per cent of the bituminous production was machine mined. Attention was called to an increasing number of casualties in mines. Legislation was asked for providing for an examination of persons permitted to be employed in mines. Speaking of the effect of the action taken by the miners in their last national convention, in permitting signing of scales by districts and locally, the address said: "Taking a retrospective view of the whole struggle in the anthracite and bituminous fields from its inception to its close, I am constrained to the belief that, all things considered, the wisest policy was pursued and the best results obtained that could be secured under the circumstances. I am, of course, not unmindful of the fact that there were many disappointments; that in some sections members were forced to yield conditions which they regarded as essential to their welfare, in order that the interests of the whole number might be reserved and promoted. When it is considered, however, that more than 400,000 employes were involved, representing a population of approximately 2,000,000, directly dependent upon them, and that we entered the contest with only $400,000 in our treasury, I feel that we can well forget our vexations, congratulate ourselves upon our successes, join in a renewed effort to regain our comparatively small loses, and struggle on with untiring zeal for a larger and still large share of the wealth that we produce."

Vice President T. T. Lewis, in his report, deplored the action of the last national convention of miners in adopting the policy of permitting the signing of a wage scale by districts and locally. He insisted that the organization must maintain a national character and claimed that, as a result of the action of last year, the membership of the organization had decreased 50,000.

"Sectional settlements of wage differences," said the report, "cannot and will not permanently improve the conditions of the miners. Sectional settlements will not maintain our wages or bring the unorganized up to our standard. If the United Mine Workers is a national organization it should establish national reforms and make them apply to all alike. If states or districts are allowed and directed to legislate for themselves on questions of a national character, then there is no need of a national organization of miners."

Secretary-Treasurer J. B. Wilson then submitted his financial report for the year ending Nov. 30, 1906. The present balance in the treasury, according to the report, was $337,860.71.

ASHLAND GIVES BIG MAJORITY

In Favor of Municipal Ownership of Lighting Plant.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 16.—With the thermometer registering 12degs. below zero when the polls opened, and not going above zero the entire day, the citizens of Ashland declared for municipal ownership of the electric light plant by a vote of 1,033 to 288. It is the intention of the city to build a station on White river, at a cost of $80,000, and to pay for the same by issuing bonds against the plant itself. The fight that has ended was a bitter one, the existing electric lighting company making a strong campaign in opposition to the plan of municipal ownership proposed by Mayor Williams.

William Seeger and Thomas McMullen were convicted of running blind pigs on the White river road, in municipal court yesterday, and fined $50 and costs. McMullen paid his fine and Seeger will appeal his case to the circuit court. Neither of them had either town or state license.

CRANE ELECTED SENATOR.

Boston, Jan. 16.—The state legislature voted yesterday, 207 to 53, to retain W. Murray Crane in the United States senate, to which he was appointed on the death of George F. Hoar. Five Democrats in the senate and nine in the house voted for Crane.

SPOONER VS. TILLMAN

Wisconsin Senator Scores His Fiery South Carolina Colleague.

Negro Lynchings Given Lively Airing in the Upper House.

Washington, Jan .16.—Goaded by frequent interruptions from Mr. Tillman, the speech of Mr. Spooner in the senate yesterday on the resolution for the investigation of the negro soldiers' affray at Brownsville, Tex., was changed from a constitutional argument in defense of President Roosevelt's course in discharging a negro battalion of the army to a severe arraignment of the South Carolina senator.

Mr. Spooner quoted from Mr. Tillman's utterances defending lynching as a means of controlling negroes and said that to encourage such mob violence was a disgrace to civilization.

Mr. Tillman was not permitted to reply, but at the conclusion of Mr. Spooner's attack declared that at an early date he would take occasion to defend himself against "the insulting allusions made to him."

Discussing the great discretionary powers placed in the hands of the president as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, Mr. Spooner said that he agreed that in bad hands that power might protect the vilest of murderers, the most dangerous assassins, but it was necessary to locate this great authority somewhere, and it was thought best to trust the responsibility to the executive. "If the president abuuses his privilege," he added, "if he violates his oath of office, this is not the place to question his course. The method for his punishment is provided for through the other end of the capitol."

Mr. Spooner said he wished the procedure in discharging the negroes had been different. It would have been much better if there had been a court of inquiry, where all of the suspected soldiers could have been examined and the witnesses against them or for them cross-examined. But he thought the question of power hinged on article four of the articles of war which seemed to him a perfectly plain proposition, giving the commander-in-chief the right to discharge men from the army without honor.

Mr. Spooner also spoke of the natural regret of the president over the course which he had found himself impelled to pursue. "Sharing with them, black as they were, the fame of a soldier in Cuba, none can doubt that he arrived at his conclusion with deep reluctance and none can doubt his sincerity in the course he has pursued upon," he said impressively.

Mr. Tillman asked Mr. Spooner to yield to him and the Wisconsin senator said he would do so for a question but, when Mr. Tillman began his question with a statement, Mr. Spooner said he had not yielded for a speech.

Mr. Tillman's question related to the charges against the men for whom warrants were issued, and Mr. Spooner said an answer would not illumdnate the subject at all.

Again Mr. Tillman sought recognition but Mr. Spooner first undertook to learn the length of the question he purposed to ask.

"I'll make my question like a bullet," said Mr. Tillman.

"And shoot it very slowly, I suppose?" said Mr. Spooner.

The question at last admitted, was as to why the president had not adopted Maj. Penrose's recommendation for the ferreting out of the guilty.

"The president of the United States will never require any defense from the attacks from the senator from South Carolina," was Mr. Spooner's reply. "He has developed a mania for attacking the president, I did not intend to branch off on such a discussion, but I have never been so surprised by any man's attitude as I have been by that of the senator from South Carolina. He is so filled with animosity for the president and has so often taken occasion to express it that I do not believe his attacks will be taken seriously by the people."

Mr. Tillman attempted a reply, but Mr. Spooner declined to yield. He went on to criticise Mr. Tillman for the harsh words he had hurled at the president in untempered speeches, which the Wisconsin senator declared were ungracious and unjustified. He condemned Mr. Tillman for impeaching the motive of the president and ridiculed Mr. Tillman's claim that he stood for the fundamental principle of liberty.

"Quote me accurately," shouted Mr. Tillman.

"You quote yourself," replied Mr. Spooner.

The South Carolina senator then said that he had declared that it was the fundamental principle of English and American liberty that every man was innocent until he had been proved guilty.

Mr. Spooner said that was the correct principle and that the South Carolinian, contrary to that principle had begun his speech on the race question by convicting the whole black race. He scored Mr. Tillman for the sentiment before uttered that "We shot 'em; we killed 'em,and we'll do it again." He said that frequently he had heard Mr. Tillman utter those sentiments in defending lynching in the South.

Mr. Spooner quoted from Mr. Tillman's utterances defending the burning of negroes at the stake and said: "No man ought to encourage such a horrible thing as that. It is a crime against civilization to encourage it." Continuing, he said he had looked with admiration upon the efforts of Governor Vardaman and other executives of Southern states to suppress mobs taking lives of negroes without giving them trials on account of the crimes they were suspected of having committed. "I have been shocked," he said, "by the attitude of the senator from South Carolina on more than one occasion when he has spoken in justification and support of the continuance of lynching. If there is one man who ought not to encourage it, it is the man who sits here as the maker of laws."

"And I want to say here," Mr. Spooner continued, "that any man who encourages lynching, murder and lawlessness will have much to answer for, and, the higher his position and the mightier his influence, the more will he have to answer for. No man can come here with good grace to impeach the president for his dismissal of men because they were not identified as criminals, he comes to that accusation from a lynching bee or who justifies one."

When Mr. Spooner took his seat Mr. Tillman remarked that he had expected to have a few words to say to the senator from Wisconsin, "in view of the direct personal attack he has made on me this afternoon. But the latter part of his speech has widened the scope of the reply I wish to make and therefore I will take occasion in the near future to have something to say on this question and in answer to some of the insulting allusions he has made."

From Chicken-Pox to Cholera

Cure-Alls No Longer Tolerated.

In early days every barber shop was an operating room and the town physician resorted to bleeding as the sure cure for all ailments from chicken-pox to cholera. As a result, many, including our first president, died prematurely.

The present low rate of mortality is due in large measure to the advances made in medical science and the knowledge of the specific treatment needed for each disease known.

There is no disease more common among American and English people than dyspepsia. So prevalent has it become that thousands suffer with it half unconsciously, consider the symptoms as natural to their physical constitution and resign themselves to living on in that condition.

There is a remedy for dyspepsia, and only one, recommended and endorsed generally by physicians: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the test of years of use by millions of sufferers, have been subjected to governmental analysis in Europe and America and alone have been found to contain the elements which nature has put into the stomach for digestion—pepsin, diastase and other ferments.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach and bowels in a perfectly natural way by helping them do their work. If the stomach is weak in gastric juice, Stuart's Tablets make up the deficiency. If the muscles are inactive, Stuart's Tablets invigorate them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of food entering the stomach, one grain of the active principle of these Tablets being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of meat, eggs and other foods. They are not cathartic pills—their action is simply that of a digestive.

We will gladly send you a trial package to prove the truth of our claims. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be gotten of all druggists at 50 cents. F. A. Stuart Co., 59 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

INJURED MEN GET VERDICTS

Kunder and Robets Are Each Awarded $1,999 Damages.

Verdicts awarding damages to Ambrose Kundar and Joseph Robets, in the sum of $1,999.90 each, were returned in the district court late yesterday afternoon. The verdicts are directed against the Shenango Furnace company, which formerly employed the men, and in whose mine shaft they were injured.

Kundar and Robets claim that when they got in the bucket to descend in the shaft, as had been their custom, the receptacle suddenly shot to the bottom of the shaft, throwing them out and causing them serious injuries. They claimed the engineer was not competent, and that by reason of the accident the company was responsible.

NEW CHANNEL IS CALLED FOR

Lake Carriers' Association Offers Compromise to Duluth.

Washington, Jan. 16.—A final hearing on the Duluth-Superior harbor needs was held yesterday by the house rivers and harbors committee. The Lake Carriers' association agreed to support the project outlined in the report of the board of engineers for the entrance into Superior. They also agreed to the project of enlarging the inner harbor of Duluth to the extent of 180 acres and of dredging the same.

The carriers asked as a concession from the Duluth people to move the channel southward at least half a mile. Some of them wanted it to go further south than that.

There is certain to be some provision incorporated in the harbor and river bill, but whether there will be any direct appropriation of money is a question. Chairman Burton and other members of the committee can use some of the differences of opinions expressed by the Lake Carriers' association and the Duluth and Superior people to postpone definite action until a visit is made to the Head of the Lakes by the committee.

Mothers who give their children Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup invariably indorse it. Contains Honey and Tar. Conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by all druggists.

HOSTS OF GOOD PEOPLE

All Over This Blessed Land Rise Up and Praise Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines.

Common Gratitude Prompts This Sentiment in Favor of Dr. Pierce's Medicines.

These people, so ready and anxious to recommend Dr. Pierce's Medicines, have themselves been cured, or some friend or loved one has been cured, by these medicines. Naturally, a sense of gratitude prompts such persons to recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to other afflicted ones. Notwithstanding that these medicines have been on general sale, in drug and medicine stores, for more than two decades, yet their sale continues to grow as it could not were they not medicines of more than ordinary merit

Although base attacks have sometimes been made upon Dr. Pierce's medicines which temporarily injured their sale, as in the case of the maliciously, false, thedelous and libelous article published in 1904 in the Ladies' Home Journal of Philadelphia, yet their sale is greater to-day than ever. The publishers of that paper were brought to account and judgment obtained against them in consequence of their malicious article concerning Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The falsity of its statements were proven in open court and judgment was obtained against its publishers for a substantial amount.

Thereupon Dr. Pierce decided to take a bold step and publish to the whole world a full list of the ingredients entering into his medicines, and this completely confounded his malicious traducers and vindicated both the Doctor and his medicines. In consequence, his medicines have enjoyed a popularity and increase in sale of late, amounting almost to a boom, and it is believed that this greatly increased demand is due largely to the fact of Dr. Pierce's open, honest way of treating his patrons and patients by reposing confidence in those who trust in him and his medicines. He has no secrets to withhold from them. He publishes the composition of his medicines openly and above board, so that all who use them may know exactly what they are taking. Thus they are placed in a class all by themselves and cannot be considered as either secret or patent medicines, for they are in fact neither.

Briefly, the answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative, or blood-purifier, and tonic, or invigorator, and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder curing a large percentage of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is generally successful in affecting cures. In fact the "Golden Medical Discovery" is without doubt, the most successful constitutional remedy for all forms of catarrhal diseases known to modern medical science. In chronic Nasal Catarrh Dr. Sages Catarrh Remedy should be used for washing and cleansing out the nasal passages while taking the "Discovery" for its blood cleansing and specific, healing effects upon the mucous lining membranes. This combined local and general treatment will cure a very large percentage of the worst cases of chronic nasal catarrh, no matter of how many years' standing they may be.

As to the "Favorite Prescription" it is advised for the cure of one class of diseases only—those weaknesses, derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. It is a powerful, yet gently acting, invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, strong, vigorous condition of the whole system.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most of our obstinate and most fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and, in confirmation of this firm conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Not less marvelous in the absorptive cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of leucorrhea, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines had failed.

Both these world-famed medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots, found in our American forests. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each of their wrappers. They are both made of such native medicinal roots as have received the strongest endorsement and praise for their curative virtues from the most prominent writers on Materia Medica in this country. What is said of their power to cure the several diseases for which they are advised may be easily learned by sending your name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a little booklet which he has compiled, containing copious extracts from numerous standard medical books, which are consulted as authorities by physicians of the several schools of practice for their guidance in prescribing. It is FREE TO ALL. A postal card request will bring it.

You don't have to rely solely upon the manufacturer's say-so as to the power of Dr. Pierce's medicines to cure, as with other medicines sold through druggists. You have the disinterested testimony of a host of the leading medical writers and teachers. Send for this copious testimony. It can be relied upon to be truthful because it is entirely disinterested.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Many imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

EPISCOPAL CHURCHMEN

Celebrate Three Hundredth Anniversary of Church In America.

The Plan of a Men's Thank Offering Is Explained.

Churchmen of Duluth celebrated the three hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Episcopal church in America, at St. Paul's church last evening.

All of the clergymen who attended the meetings of the Duluth deanery at the church in the morning and afternoon, were present and delivered appropriate addresses, and the gathering was also made the occasion for an exposition of the "men's thanks offering," which is designed to raise money to further church interests in the United States. It is proposed to raise $2,000,000.

"Jamestown, Virginia, 1607," was the subject of the address by Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, rector of St. Luke's and Holy Apostles' churches. He referred to Robert Hunt, who read his prayer beneath a sail tacked to trees on the shore of the James river, and the marriage of John Rolfe to Pocohontas, after she had been converted.

Rev. Frank Durant, rector of the Episcopal church at Hibbing, spoke on "The Three Hundredth Anniversary." He spoke of the magnificent progress made by the church in America and the pride that Episcopalians ought to feel in it.

Bishop J. D. Morrison spoke on "The Reasons for the Men's Thanks Offering," and Judge Page Morris referred to the offering plan to some length. Both speakers referred to the appropriateness of the occasion—the end of the third century of the church in America—for the taking of a men's offering.

A special musical program, arranged by A. F. M. Custance, was given.

At the morning and afternoon meetings of the Duluth deanery, held at St. Paul's, the speakers were Rev. W. J. Cordick of Superior, Rev. R. S. Read, Rev. A. R. Parker and Rev. A. H. Wurtele.

DEATH AND DESOLATION BY EARTHQUAKE AND FIRE

official telegram received this morning at the colonial office, was by no means so widespread as indicated in the first reports.

Although the total number of killed and wounded has not yet been ascertained, apparently it is not very large and only a small portion of the city, including, however, wharves and warehouses, suffered from the fire that followed the earthquake. The greater number of casualties seemingly was in the camp hospital, where thirty colored soldiers were killed.

The telegram, which was sent by Governor Swettenham, is undated, but is presumed to have been sent on Monday. The text is as follows:

"Severe earthquake shock this afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock, causing considerablo damage to the houses at Kingston. It was followed by a fire which continues, though it is confined to about one-sixteenth part of the town, containing wharves and warehouses. The camp hospital was destroyed and thirty men were killed. There were no officers among them. Maj. Headyman was seriously injured. The town hospital is crowded with some 300 injured persons. The fire is now decreasing. The Myrtle Bank hotel has been destroyed and also the cable office. The conference delegates and the members of Sir Alfred Jones' expedition are believed to be uninjured and are now at Port Langston. In the harbor, numbers were killed or wounded, but the figures have not yet been ascertained. Slighter shocks continue."

The steamship and cable companies here have received belated messages dated Monday, via Holland Bay. A dispatch to the Royal Mail Steam Packet company says:

"Kingston wrecked and most of the wharves and warehouses burned, but our main wharf, sheds, coal and cargo safe. Office wrecked. Constantine, Jamaica superintendent of the company, and Capt. Young, commander of the Areno, were killed."

The Areno is a small steamer belonging to the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, and it is presumed that the superintendent and the captain were killed in the wreck of the company's office.

The message to the Royal Mail company at the agricultural cotton conference, is "missing," and adds that Governor Sweetenham had asked the local representatives of the company to sell provisions to those requiring them.

Chairman Phillips of the company cabled to the governor placing all the available provisions and stores of the company at his service for the relief of the sufferers from the earthquake and fire, and also cabled to the New York offices of the Royal Mail to send provisions to Kingston by the Atrato and other steamers with all possible speed. The company has not heard of any damage having been sustained by their vessels in Kingston harbor.

Other cable dispatches from Kingston say that the offices of the Direct West India Cable company were wrecked, but that no fatalities occurred among the members of the staff. Mr. Codner, one of the clerks, was severely injured. The Colonial bank of Kingston was burned, but the vaults with the books and cash are safe, and the members of the staff escaped uninjured.

The latest information received here from Kingston said that the fire was under control and that the number of West Indian soldiers killed in the camp hospital was forty instead of thirty, as previously reported.

The Colonial office this morning was besieged with inquirers who asked for news of relatives or friends in Jamaica, but the officials had nothing further to communicate for the present, except that the officials of the Colonial office had every reason to believe that the fatalities among the Europeans at Kingston were light.

The Colonial office has instructed the government authorities in Jamaica to take all necessary steps to relieve the distress among the earthquake and fire sufferers, and the admiralty has ordered the cruiser Brilliant, now at Bermuda, and the cruiser Indefatigable, at present at Trinidad, to proceed forthwith to Jamaica, and assist in the relief work. They are both vessels of 3,690 tons and their combined crews number about 550 men, which will enable them to land strong detachments for police and other duty.

Kingston and other points of interest of the island are at this season of the year thronged with tourists, from both America and England, and the greatest apprehension is felt for the safety of many persons who had recently arrived at the Jamaican resorts. The most distinguished of these were members of a party of English statesmen, agricultural experts and men of affairs, who, under the leadership of Sir Alfred Jones, had arrived in Kingston within the past few days to attend an agricultural conference there. Among those in the company were: Hall Caine, the novelist; Viscount Montmorres, H. O. Arnold-Forester, M.P., Sir Thomas Hughes, Sir Thomas Shann and others of equal prominence. The earl and countess of Dudley also were passengers on the steamer which carried out the Jones party.

The first great shock was felt about 3:30 o'clock, Monday afternoon, and as in the San Francisco and Valparaiso disasters, flames immediately sprung from the wreckage to carry on the work of destruction. Tuesday afternoon the fire was still burning, although it was believed to be under control.

The Myrtle hotel, the principal hotel at Kingston, which probably sheltered the great bulk of visitors on the island, is reported destroyed. The great military hospital was burned and forty soldiers are reported dead.

Sir James Ferguson is said to have been instantly killed, but according to London reports no other Englishman, Canadian or American is believed to be missing. Sir James was a man of considerable prominence. He served in the Crimean campaign with the Grenadier Guards and was present at the battles of Alma and Inkerman, where he was wounded, and the siege of Sebastopol. He was under secretary of state for India and the home departments in Lord Derby's third and in Mr. Disraeli's first administrations. He was made governor of South Australia in 1868, governor of New Zealand in 1873 and governor of Bombay in 1885. He was under secretary of state for foreign affairs in 1886, and from 1891 to 1892 he served as postmaster general.

The city is one of low lying buildings, clustered along the shores of one of the finest and most securely land locked harbors in the West Indies. The population, which numbers 50,000, is largely made up of native blacks. Many steamers carrying tourists to Jamaica were enroute to the island when the earthquake occurred, but it so happens that, according to schedules, none of the ships from New York or Boston was in Kingston harbor Monday afternoon.

It transpires that the Hall Caine mentioned as being among the members of the party of visitors to Kingston, headed by Sir Alfred Jones, president of the British Cotton Growers' association and president of the Liverpool chamber of commerce, is William Hall Caine, brother of the English novelist. The latter called at the colonial office this morning and was assured that the members of Sir Alfred Jones' party were safe.

The West Indian & Panama Cable company's office at Bull Bay cables that all the people in Kingston are camping in the open and that the earthquake extended as far as Holland Bay, where the West Indian & Panama Cable company's station is seriously damaged. "Between Bull Bay and Kingston," the message adds "there is not a safe house. Ruin and desolation are everywhere."

John Armstrong, an official of one of the largest establishments in Jamaica, informed the Associated Press today that the latest advices he had received foreshadow the disaster, owing to the unusual meteorological conditions and the phenomenal drop in temperature.

Calls were made today upon the of the leading fruit merchants dealing with Jamaica, but they all were without any direct information regarding the earthquake, and were awaiting replies to cabled inquiries.

New York, Jan. 16.—Few additional details of the earthquake disaster at Kingston, Jamaica, reached this city during the night. The brief messages that came from Holland Bay, the cable station on the island of Jamaica, located forty miles from Kingston, brought reports that the disaster was not so great as had been at first feared. Only a part of the town was ruined by the earthquake shocks and the loss of life is placed at sixty, while 300 persons are reported injured.

The fire, which had started after the tremor, is said to have been brought under control late on Monday night. The panic in Kingston was apparently short lived, as it was stated that the work of rescuing and caring for the injured was under way. Many persons, however, fled from the city and took refuge in the surrounding country, fearing a recurrence of the shocks.

At the office of the Western Union Telegraph company today it was said that the telegraph companies in Jamaica are hampered by the interruption of the land lines, the destruction of their offices and instruments in Kingston and a very heavy traffic, which, owing to the trouble in finding the people to whom messages are addressed, is being disposed of with difficulty.

Boston, Jan. 16.—The United Fruit company in this city received a cablegram from Jamaica today, stating that several hundred persons were killed in Kingston. The message follows:

"Mercantile section of Kingston, including our office, completely destroyed by earthquake and fire. Several hundred killed." The steamer Dewey will sail from this city for Jamaica today with a miscellaneous cargo of freight.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 16.—The British cruiser Brilliant, which arrived at Bermuda yesterday from Newfoundland, where she has been on special duty in connection with the Newfoundland fisheries has been ordered to proceed at once to Kingston, Jamaica, to render assistance at the scene of the earthquake and fire. The Brilliant is coaling and will sail tomorrow.

PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS

Interesting Programs Are Prepared for Meetings at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Jan. 16.—At a meeting held in Minneapolis on July 18 last, the preliminary steps were taken for organizing a state association in Minnesota, having for its object the prevention and relief of tuberculosis. Officers were elected, a board of directors was named, and the preliminaries for organization carried through.

The president, George C. Christian of Minneapolis, was instructed to appoint an executive committee of five, the president and secretary of the association to serve as ex-officio members. This committee was appointed and consists of Prof. F. L. McVey, Minneapolis; J. E. McElroy, Minneapolis; J. H. Skinner, St. Paul; Dr. H. L. Taylor, St. Paul; Mrs. J. L. Washburn, Duluth.

The president was also instructed to appoint a committee to prepare a constitution and bylaws. This was done.

At a meeting of the executive committee Oct. 30, it was decided to hold the first meeting of this state association during the national tuberculosis exhibit in Minneapolis, and in conjunction wth the Western Conference on Tuberculosis. The exhibit in Minneapolis will open Feb. 2, and continue through Feb. 13.

The Western Conference on Tuberculosis will meet Feb. 5, in Minneapolis. George C. Christian, president, has directed that the Minnesota Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis be called together for its first meeting on Feb. 6.

It is expected that an interesting program will be arranged for both of these meetings. The papers will be broad and educational—not too technical. The laity is expected to take a deep interest in this work. E. P. Bicknell, general superintendent of Chicago bureau of charities, and Dr. John S. Fulton, secretary of the Maryland state board of health, have consented to be present and take part in the addresses. There will be other good speakers, both from within the state and from distant points.

PLAN A SECOND OXFORD.

Educators Start Movement to Bring Virginia's Colleges Together.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16.—Joseph Bryan, proprietor of the Times-Dispatch; Dr. S. C. Mitchell, president of the Richmond college; Dr. Emory Blackwell, president of Randolph Macon college; Dr. Moore, president of the Union Theological seminary, and representatives of other institutions for education in the state have been in conference relative to establishing in Richmond a university center along the general plan of that maintained at Oxford and Cambridge.

Joseph Bryan announced that he would donate his one-tenth interest in a tract of 196 acres of very valuable land as a site and would use his influence to induce the other nine gentlemen interested in the property with him to do likewise.

It is understood that Dr. Mitchell recently advocated the scheme to Andrew Carnegie, and that the financier was very much interested in the practicability of the scheme. It is probable that Mr. Carnegie will lend financial aid to the movement.

FIND BODY LOST SIX YEARS.

Hunters Discover Coffin Swept Away by Galveston Flood.

Galveston, Tex., Jan. 16.—A report has reached here that the body of the late Charles Coghlan, the English playwright and actor, which has been lost since the great storm of Sept. 8, 1900, has been found in its metallic coffin on the mainland in an out-of-the-way place, by hunters.

The huntsmen came across the casket, almost buried in the marsh and hidden by weeds. The remains appeared well preserved and description answers the casket in which Coghlan was put away in a valut in a cemetery a few months before the Galveston flood. The search for the casket was kept up for a year after the storm and the Actor's club had a standing reward for its recovery for nearly three years.

CONCERNING WOMEN

"I want a dark blue mackinaw, please, with red trimmings," announced the young woman who is contemplating snowshoeing.

"We haven't any. But here is a nice warm, scarlet one," says the obliging clerk.

"It's so common. I don't want red. What else have you?

"Here's a nice gray plaid," in a wheedling tone.

"That's so dingy," fretfully. "Well I want some german sox. Have you any grey ones? Red ones? No. Well have you anything that a person is likely to want," and she flounces off to see about moccasins.

"What number?" inquired the business-like clerk.

"Nine," she says and blushes fearfully. "You know you wear so many stockings," she explains.

"Haven't any," says the clerk. "That's the size they all wear."

Such are a few of the trials that confront a person who would snowshoe. When you have the color scheme of your costume all thought out, you encounter the difficulty of wearing a red mackinaw or no mackinaw. Plain, coarse, german sox that make a silk educated foot revolt, are all that the stores carry, and there are few of those. Moccasins are scarce. Whether the merchants had no inkling of the awful fever of devotion to snowshoeing which was going to strike Duluth or not, certain it is that there is not a store in town that is well supplied with the accessories that are essential. One is offered red mackinaws or none, plain black german sox, and take them quick or they will be gone, and it is more than likely that you will have to wait for the next importation of moccasins. It is most annoying, particularly as just now the moon as new as though it had never been seen before is here, and within a few days will be flooding the adjacent woods with a silvery and ethereal light that make the snowshoeing pleasure one so keen that it almost hurts. Try it, even though you will have to go with black german sox and sagging skirt and a red mackinaw, and looking so much like every other girl that you walk home with the wrong man.

HILL-KREITTER.

Quiet Wedding Service is Followed by Large Reception.

A quiet wedding took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Kreitter when Miss Wenona May Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hill, became the bride of Primus Dana Kreitter. The rooms were prettily decorated in flowers and green. In the parlors pink and white carnations were used, and the wedding ceremony took place under a canopy of hyacinths and ground pine the service being read, at 7 o'clock, by Rev. M. S. Rice of the First Methodist church. The wedding music was played by Emily Ellis Woodward, and before the ceremony Arthur Kreitter sang two solos. Only the immediate families were present for the wedding ceremony, but a large reception followed. There were no attendants. The bride wore a dainty gown of white chiffon batiste and carried a shower bouquet of white hyacinths and wore the same flowers in her hair.

During the evening more than 100 guests called. Assisting about the rooms were Emily Ellis Woodward and Mrs. Palmer of Superior. In the dining room Mrs. Thomas P. Bradley presided, and assisting were Miss Sadie Black, Miss Adele McClaran and Miss Florence Clark.

"SCOTTISH WRITERS."

Is Subject of Interesting Talk By Mrs. Macleod.

The members of the Travel class of the Twentieth Century club listened to one of the series of special lectures which are given during the year in addition to the regular study program. The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. John Macleod, who had as her subject, "Some Scottish Writers," and her talk was a delightful one, thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of club members and visitors present.

Mrs. Macleod is always able to present her subject with force and power combined with the enthusiasm and appreciation of the real Scotchwoman. Yesterday afternoon she spoke of the work of Scott, Stevenson, Barrie, and Drummond and contrasted the personality and work of these representative writers. Selections from "Marmion" were read and from Robert Louis Stevenson's "Child's Garden of Verse" poems were read in illustrations of his tender sympathy and understanding of child character. Through personal acquaintance with Henry Drummond, Mrs. Macleod was able to present an especially keen appreciation of his life and work.

Events of Interest.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Towne were hosts last evening at dinner at the Kitchi Gammi club. The decorations were of simple elegance, the centerpiece being a large wreath of asparagus ferns fastened with a large bow of white tulle. Covers were laid for eighteen.

Young green onions, 4 bunches for 10 cents.
Radishes.
Shrimps, 3 5cents a lb.

"Good morning," said the housekeeper who thought she would have a combination salad for dinner all sliced thin in clever little rows of crisp cucumbers, pinkish white radishes, a suggestion of tomatoes and the whole imbedded in a softly curving nest of lettuce.

"Good mornin'," was the chirpful rejoinder of the quick little man of the market.

"How much are those very sslender cucumbers?" she further inquired.

"Only 30 cents each."

"How much are tomatoes?"

"Just 30 cents a pound."

"And head lettuce?"

"Twenty cents a head."

The idea of the combination of the salad went glimmering and the spirit crushed marketer droned in a lack luster voice "Send us up half a peck of onions."

The EVENING STORY.

FOR THE HOME-SEEKERS' BENEFIT

By Theodore Waters.

(copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Did you know, Hocky," remarked Mr. David Gimbold to his partner, Mr. Israel Hockheimer, "did you know that just previous to his death, Roswell P. Flower was planning a corner in zinc?"

"No, I did not know it," replied Mr. Hochheimer, reflectively, gazing out of the window of their Wall street office.

"I've been thinking, Hocky," went on Mr. Gimbold, "that we might take up the matter where Flower laid it down. I have a notion that we might corral the necessary funds simply by modifying Mr. Flower's methods. In fact, I believe we could get the government to help us."

"Ah!" Coming from Mr. Gimbold, this last sentence was so pregnant with meaning that Mr. Hochheimer whirled around in his chair, and waited expectantly for his partner to proceed.

"Nearly all of our zinc comes from Arkansas and Missouri. There is a trust, but it is a puny affair, down at Joplin, with a paltry half-million at stake. For a peculiar condition exists. Most of the land in the zinc country is government land, subject to the homestead law. The government charges a fee of about $14 for every 160 acres of land, but every applicant must live five years on the land before he gets his title. Now, if we could get that government land we would be able to control almost half of the zinc output of the district. And we could force the trust to buy us out."

"Very good,' said Mr. Hochheimer, as Gimbold paused for breath. "But since no man can secure more than 160 acres, and since each applicant must swear that he intends to establish a home, and is not taking the land for purpose of speculation, how are we to get around it?"

"Hocky," replied Mr. Gimbold, waving his hand around comprehensively, "there are many poor fellows in this city who would be glad to own land in Arkansas or in Missouri. You know a great many, and so do I."

"I know a great many poor fellows—too many," murmured Mr. Hochheimer.

"Well, then, if we showed those poor fellows how to get land free in Arkansas and Missouri—if we paid the government fee for them, and bought them railway tickets to their new homes, don't you think they would be grateful enough to assign us the right to mine whatever ore might be under the surface of the land?"

"Davy," said Mr. Hochheimer, feelingly, "you are a wonder."

"But that isn't all," said Gimbold. "I believe there are many benevolent old persons in this city who would be delighted to subscribe to a fund which we would be glad to manage, and which would be used to transport those poor fellows to their new homes."

"Beautiful," said Mr. Hochheimer. "Simply beautiful."

"Of course, it would not be necessary to say anything about the option on what is under the surface, either to the benevolent old persons or to the poor fellows, until after the latter had started on their way."

"Well, you see," replied Mr. Gimbold, "as managers of the fund we would go to the railroads and secure transportation in bulk. There ought to be a good commission in that. Of course, those poor fellows will want their household goods sent on ahead. We will be glad to do that for them, but we will not give each one a ticket until just before the train starts. I am sure that not one of them would object to signing the option on the spot. In case any one refuses, it will be very easy to have one of our investigators' suddenly find that under the rules of the benevolent fund the ungrateful fellow is ineligible."

Now it often happens that men of comparatively small mind project ambitious schemes which with time attain gigantic proportions. Hence, while Gimbold and Hochheimer were nothing more than trick speculators, they were yet able to give a very considerable impetus to their scheme. The government supplied them with maps of the zinc lands, and they employed a mineral expert to pick out the most desirable sites. They formed a company to work the ore bodies which they were to acquire when the necessary options were obtained from the prospective homeseekers and they published a gorgeous prospectus in three colors, in which the heartrending conditions of the New York slums was contrasted vividly with the superlative possibilities of life on Bald Knob.

Gimbold went 'ato the churches and the charity bureaus and among the old gentlemen, and appealed in the name of all that is kindly and true for the relief of the suffering poor. From the moment it got fairly launched, the scheme began to take care of itself.

"Great Caesar, Hockey, look there!"

It was the morning after that memorable Sunday when the three color prospectus had formed the basis of so many sermons. Hochheimer and Gimbold had come down town together somewhat late. They went up to their office in a crowded elevator, and when they got off at their floor the crowd went with them. The corridor was jammed from wall to wall with an indiscriminate mass of humanity male, female, respectable, disreputable, well-dressed, unkempt, native, foreign—pushing and crowding, babbling and gesticulating.

There was no turning them away, those poor fellows, for not only were there clergymen among them, as Gimbold had seen, but reverend gentlemen were in many cases leaders of special contingents of homeseekers, and many others in the crowd carried letters from contributors to the fund which were not to be ignored. It was late in the day before the last application was received, the last dreary explanation made, the last golden promise uttered. Day after day the crowd surged into the office and out again. And it grew not only in size, but in its exactions, for humanity in general is very insistent in the matter of its rights when they involve free-for-all schemes. Then the notoriety which the newspapers gave the scheme not only brought in a couple of government inspectors, who wanted to know if it was being thoroughly explained to each applicant that the non-speculative clause in the government contract would be rightly enforced. It also brought in a "plain-clothes man" from Mulberry street, who caused the partners additional concern.

To ship the homeseekers off in dozen lots had been their plan, for by that means they could extort the options with almost no risk of exposure. But when the number of applicants got into the thousands, and the newspapers took to recording the number from day to day, and the railroads competed with one another for the privilege of carrying them in mass, the partners began to view the situation with apprehension.

The contributions so far received were, ironically enough, no more than sufficient to pay the expenses of all those for whom governmental fees had been forwarded and favorable answers filed. They decided to close the deal at once, and the conclusion was forced upon them that under the new conditions it would be impossible to exact the options in the railway depot. The very labor of it would require hours to perform. They must risk getting them beforehand.

They set out upon their task with callous disregard of the consequences. They were sending a horde of unfortunates thousands of miles away from familiar associations, to mountain fastnesses which in many cases would yield nothing to the plow, and in return they were exacting the only product which made the land worth the acquiring. Summoned to their office the homeseekers came one by one, and in the private room the question was put to each. Some of them, poor innocents! were eager and willing to do anything in return for the boon of a promised home. Some had to be coaxed, some wheedled, some threatened, and a few, who saw through the whole business, placated. But on the morning of departure Gimbold and Hochheimer had secured signed options on mineral rights from three-fourths of the homeseekers. The rest were considered too risky to approach.

On the morning of the departure they went over to the railway station. Nothing but the fascination of seeing the last of their handiwork took them here.

In the depot they were given a rousing reception, and they beamed from one to another of their dupes, and went among the mothers and their children, helping them to seats in the train and bidding them Godspeed with a benign courtesy that was beautiful to behold.

In the end they were compelled to make a speech—Gimbold made it from the rear platform of the train—a speech so inspiring in its patriotism, so tender in its pathos, that the enthusiasm invoked was tremendous, and the people struggled with one another to get to the orator, who was forced to retreat into the car. There he met the government inspector face to face. Back of the inspector stood the "plain clothes man" from police headquarters.

"And now, Mr. Gimbold," began the inspector, without preamble, "and now that you have excited those innocents until their feelings are at the breaking point, what do you think they would do to you if I were to tell them that those options of yours rendered their homestead claims invalid?"

"Why, I—I—" stammered Gimbold, taken aback, "—I—don't know what you mean."

"Oh, yes you do," replied the inspector, calmly. "You have with you signed options on all the ore bodies underlying the claims of these people. Suppose I tell them they have invalidated their titles?"

"I don't believe it," blustered Gimbold, hotly. "It's a point of law—it would have to be proved!"

"Granted," said the inspector; "but those fellows wouldn't wait for the law to settle it if I told them of my doubts."

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" demanded Gimbold, reverting to that time-worn defiance.

"Why, I'm going to tell them, unless you hand over those options."

"Never!"

"I guess you'd better give them up, Gimbold," put in the "plain-clothes man. "I don't believe the chief would like it to be found out that you had disregarded his advice."

Gimbold thought a moment. Then the futility of resistance must have struck him, for with an imprecation he pulled a thick wallet from his pocket and handed it to the inspector.

The crowd outside surged up the steps and into the car, calling loudly for Gimbold and his partner. The people wanted to see more of the men who had done so much for them.

While the enthusiasm was at its height the conductor called "all aboard." The crowd instantly forgot its gratitude and rushed for their places in the train.

"Well, what do you think, Hocky?" asked Gimbold at last.

"I think," replied Mr. Hochheimer, bitterly, "I think we have been working for the benefit of the poor."

Kindly Discipline Best For Children

The importance of early discipline cannot be too clearly put before parents. Mothers too often flatter themselves that indulgence, which they suppose to be the offspring of parental love, will, as a matter of course, be followed by a cheerful and perfect obedience; but in this they are generally disappointed.

I have seen mothers punish their children severely and then, to prevent their crying, give them the very thing which they had just declared was not proper for them to have.

Instead of punishment talk quietly with the little one about its disobedience, or misbehavior. Make plain to the small girl or boy why she or he is in the wrong and encourage the child to give a reason for its misconduct. In kindly tones tell them how to avoid a similar difficulty in the future. In other words, make love the basis of discipline and obedience will be prompted by the thought that father or mother may be displeased, even grieved, with an unkind act, or a repetition of the deed that the child had, with its parents, decided not to do again.

Mothers and fathers should take a higher and nobler view of their responsibilities as parents than to merely provide for the temporal wants of their children. Our children are soon to take our places and it will take wise heads and good hearts to wield successfully the destinies of life.

None but the thoughtless and vulgar —and to be thoughtless is to be vulgar—indulge in excesses of any kind. Everything which refines our habits enobles us. To sneer at the mistake of another does not cover our ill-breeding, but emphasizes it.

All attempt at distinction by means of dress is vulgar, and children should be made to understand this. To flaunt the airs and dress of society people among the plainer classes is nothing short of vulgarity.

Dress is a means to an end, as Shakespeare says: "Let thy cloak be costly as thy purse can bear, rich but not gaudy; for the coat oft bespeaks the man."

Beware of fads. Wigs were inflicted on our forefathers by a bald monarch. Stiff cravats and high collars by a king who had an ugly scar on his neck. Long skirts to hide a pair of ugly feet. Hoops to make a queenly waist look smaller than it was. We are bound to yield to the general trend of fashion, but we have a right, without the loss of cast, to discard any fads which are manifestly absurd and undesirable.

Another requisite in dress is simplicity, which should be coupled with harmony of color. This simplicity, particularly for street dress, is the only distinction which the well bred should aspire to in the matter of clothes and it must not proceed from a desire to be elegant, but a nicety in reality. You must not be simply ill dressed, but simply well dressed. The rules of simplicty are the rules of good taste.

Dress that is appropriate and simple never offends or renders its wearer conspicuous, although it may distinguish him for his good taste; to be well dressed freshness is essential, and it may be a consolation to know that a visable newness in our clothes is even worse than patches and darns.

Teach children personal cleanliness. Be economical with your dressmaker and tailor, but extravagant with your laundress. Linen is the one thing in dress where we may say quantity is better than quality. Change linen whenever it is soiled. At times to be "undressed" is to be very much dressed and let it be impressed on the children that a good pair of shoes, a pretty pair of gloves and a clean pocket handkerchief does more toward being well dressed than the most costly jewelry.

Perhaps it would be well not to cultivate in children a desire for jewelry, but for those parents who do not object to it, let everything be real and good. Let it be simple. A boy should never wear more than one ring, and let its value be its curiosity rather than its brilliancy. A bit of old jewelry, particularly if it is a family piece, is worth the most splendid creation of the goldsmith's shop of today. When wearing a piece of jewelry always let it have some use, and jewels should never be worn by boys.

DULUTH'S BUILDING RECORD.

Duluth's building record for the year just closed—showing, as it does, an increase of 66 per cent over the preceding twelve months—is one of which all of her citizens should be proud and the Commercial club, the board of trade and the merchants generally should cause if to be made known throughout the length and breadth of this country by every means in their power.

Of the three cities that alone surpassed Duluth in percentage of increase, Seattle is notably a boom center that was spurred to far more than even usual boom activity by taking a perfectly legitimate advantage of San Francisco's earthquake paralysis, while much of the increase in Chattanooga was due to the rebuilding of structures destroyed by recent destructive fires and a large part of Evansville's advance was directly attributable to the necessity of replacing buildings erected before the Civil war.

Duluth's progress forward, on the contrary, was not due to boom, nor to fire nor yet to the wearing out of old edifices, but to the steady and sturdy growth of the city, to the urgent demands of business for larger facilities and to the goodly growth in population that compelled the erection of many new homes.

The same causes that produced the really surprising great advance in 1906 will, there is no doubt, be found equally cogent in 1907. Building projects already mapped out, even this early in the year, assure this. And it does not require ultra-optimism to make the prediction that the record of 1907 will be at least as good as that of 1906.

THE 2-CENT FARE DEMAND.

Practically unanimous and vigorously insistent is the press of all parts of the state in its demand that the legislature shall enact a 2-cent maximum passenger rate law during its present session, with provisions for immediate enforcement. And as the press, especially that of the smaller towns, unquestionably voices the wishes of the people of those communities, this demand may well be said to be that of the people themselves.

That the stringent anti-pass provisions of the new interstate commerce law have little to do with this demand is beyond queston, for the great bulk of the traveling public who are urging this reduction have never even so much as seen a pass, much less ridden on one. Their insistence is based simply and solely on their desire to travel more frequently and, to carry out this desire, they want the rate fixed at such a figure as not to require so great personal sacrifice as at present.

The people are undoubtedly influenced to a degree also by the widely disseminated knowledge that the 2-cent fare system has been put into force in Ohio, Indiana, Connecticut, Massachusetts and half a dozen other states and has been found, by reason of the greatly increased traffic, to be more profitable to the railroads than the old 3-cent system. They know also that by purchasing mileage books of sufficient size they can get a 2-cent rate, and they cannot see how those who have extra money at their command should be thus unduly favored. They further understand that a precisely similar movement is under way in a score or more of states and is almost certain to succeed.

The railroads, or some of them, undoubtedly will use all of the power at their command to induce the majority of the legislators to turn deaf ears to the insistent demand of their constituents. But all of the valid arguments—great increase in the state's population since the 3-cent fare system was established, rapid growth of traveling sentiment in recent years, prosperity of the railroads from their passenger service, the fact that it costs little more to haul a crowded train than one three-quarters empty and the further fact that the excursion business at very low rates is immensely profitable—are on the side of the people.

It will be well for the legislators, especially those under suspicion of having accepted favors from the railroads, to give heed to the call of the people and, as recommended by Governor Johnson, place on the statute books a 2-cent mileage law.

CHICAGO'S RELIGIOUS REVIVAL.

One year ago Chicago was in the midst of a carnival of crime, details of which occupied columns in the daily papers while Law and Order leagues were being organized and conditions on the streets were declared to be such that unprotected women were afraid to venture out of doors, even at dusk.

Today, in most agreeable contrast, the people of the great Western metropolis are in the midst of a revival that has not had its counterpart since the days, long years ago, that Moody and Sankey stirred the place. Thousands are crowding the meeting places and other thousands are being turned away nightly. The influence on the city generally is reported by the papers to be good for there are fewer hold-ups than for some years while attacks on women and girls, a year ago of daily record, have apparently ceased.

To the good old Methodists of Chicago, who have united in one grand crusade for good and for the uplifting of their city, belongs the credit for this religious revival and, probably also, for the bettering of the general conditions. The strongest speakers in that great denomination have been enlisted in the work and right well are they performing their Master's service. The ultimate good to Chicago, and indirectly to the entire West, must be incalculable, especially as the Methodists propose not to cease with the close of the revivals proper.

Great as is this work, and possibly spurred to larger activities by it, the Methodists propose now to raise $1,000,000 to be devoted to home mission work and revivals in all parts of the country, to establish a home missions paper and to separate the foreign and home missionary societies. The new paper is to be called "The Christian Republic" and Dr. J. Wesley Johnston, pastor of the old John Street Methodist church in Philadelphia, the cradle of American Methodism, is to be its editor. That it will be no difficult task to raise the $1,000,000, all interested in the movement believe.

That the good work, so well begun in Chicago, shall spread to all parts of the nation and bring about a general uplifting of the masses is the hope not of the Methodists only but of all other people.

WHAT THE BIG SNOWS MEAN.

It is conservatively estimated that each solid inch of snow that has fallen already and that may fall during the remainder of this winter throughout the Northwest will be worth several million dollars to the farmers of each of the states in this section and will be of at least equal benefit to the merchants of the towns and cities that dot the region.

That this is by no means overdrawn the records of the production of wheat and other crops during the farming seasons following snowy winters show without a break since the first settlement of the Northwest. The farmers may, therefore, be absolutely counted on this year to do their full share in 1907 toward not only prolonging but also adding to the unexampled tide of prosperity of the year 1906.

The only possible cloud on the horizon is the question that pressed down with signal force on the farmers and merchants alike early last fall and that still continues a vivid issue. Will the railroads be prepared to do their share in the right way when the virtually assured larger crops shall be ready for movement? With nine months of warning, however, given by the present snowy season, there is hope that they will do vastly better next fall than they have succeeded in doing the past four months.

Let the people of Duluth and the other cities and towns of the Northwest, therefore, not grumble over the extra work the frequent snows impose this winter. For each added inch means millions of good sound money to the entire region. On the contrary, let one and all, like the boy in the old school recitation, shout with each new storm: "Hurrah for the snow! The more the merrier."

MILLIONAIRES AND OTHERS.

Michigan and Kansas have, so far this year, shattered the popular belief that, in the northern states at least, the possession of a bank account of at least a million is a prerequisite for membership in the United States senate, often denominated by disrespectful newspaper writers, "The millionaires' club." It is assured also that, most surprising of all, Montana will send just a poor young lawyer to replace a hundred-millionaire.

West Virginia, that will re-elect Trust Millionaire Stephen B. Elkins; New Jersey that is expected to return Insurance Millionaire Dryden; Rhode Island in which no less than three millionaires are battling tooth-and-toenail for Senator Wetmore's place; Colorado that has given what he sought to Smelter Millionaire Guggenheim, and Oregon with Millionaire "Jack" Bourne, will, however, keep the present aggregation of millionaires from feeling that the "common people" are bent on endangering their exclusive little circle.

On the other hand, Former Newsboy William Alden Smith of Michigan, Former Jockey Charles Curtis of Kansas and Former Schoolmaster Dixon of Montana will not find themselves entirely without associates from north of Mason and Dixon's line because La Follette of Wisconsin, Warner of Missouri, Beveridge of Indiana, Burkett of Nebraska, Dolliver of Iowa, Clapp and Nelson of Minnesota and one or two others cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be classed with the millionaires.

THE PASSING SHOW.

Wall street is reported more hopeful than for some months. A new crop of lambs must be in sight.

The Storers have not had one word in the press for some weeks now. Did Roosevelt's "big stick" knock the spirit out of them or are they biding their time?

The United States senate which has had the negro soldiers discharges matter before it ever since the beginning of the session, to the virtual exclusion of all else, evidently does not agree with the magnate.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"While timber has advanced 300 per cent in price within the last few years, the price of lumber is only 200 per cent higher," said A. N. Wellman of Chicago at the St. Louis. "The difference comes out of the lumber dealers' profits. Even at that men in the business seem to be making plenty of money to buy bread and butter with, with a few automobiles and palatial residences thrown in for good measure.

"People who sold their timber lands four or five years ago, or even two years ago, are now kicking themselves because they did not hang on for a higher price. The price of the raw material has advanced at a remarkable rate, until now it has reached a figure that is enough to make some of the old-time lumber barons turn over in their graves. In places where the forest was considered valueless because it was so hard to get at fifteen years ago, the timber now commands a bunch of money about twenty times greater than any one would have thought of predicting when the supply was plentiful and the prices low.

"Despite the rapid raise in price, it is a ticklish business for individuals to hang onto their timber holdings, on account of forest fires. A man with valuable claims of this kind can never tell how long it will be before the fire hits him, and a good old-fashioned blaze can play havoc with a big piece of woods in a very short space of time, even though the timber is all green. When one of these fires gets fairly started, it sweeps everything before it, and hundreds of men who have thought themselves well fixed in a worldly way have been made as good as penniless by such a fire."

"It is a revealation to visit Oklahoma and note the improvements which have been made within the last few years," said E. O. Parker of Minneapolis at the Spalding. "In 1889 the original Oklohoma, a territory comprising 3,000,000 acres of fertile land, was thrown open to settlement. In 1893 the Cherokee strip, containing something over 6,000,000 acres of good tilable land, was given over to the settlers. Other additions have been made to the original territory, until now Oklahoma has an area of over 24,000,000 acres.

"And although the oldest portion of the territory has seen but seventeen years, the improvements to be found there are worthy of districts in the oldest settled portions of the country is nothing short of remarkable. To those who were familiar with the region it was surrounded by the Indians, it hardly seems possibly that such a transformation could be wrought within such a short period. The wonderful fertility of the soil is the only explanation for it.

"The early comers, while pioneers in a sense, had easy sailing compared with the original sod breakers of the prairie states. The Indian Territory remained a prize guarded from invasion until surrounded by civilization, and the wild country was whipped into submission. Consequently when the great rushes took place, with the various openings authorized by congress, it was but a short time until the residents were on an equal basis in a financial way with their neighbors of adjoining states. The railroads came almost with the original boomer. Other modern advantages of the more advanced civilization followed, and it didn't take long to put the territory on an equal footing in every way with the older states.

"Wonderful records have been made in Oklahoma. It is something to brag about when a country can show that in less than a decade it has produced a station which ships more potatoes than any single one in the United States, and another station which beats the world as a local cotton market, yet this has been done in the cases of Shawnee and Ardmore. In one season the local dealers purchased 53,000 bales of cotton from growers in the immediate vicinity. It is a great country, and one of the richest in the United States in an agricultural way."

The Lenox hotel has engaged the services of a full force of Japanese bell boys. First-class hotels all through the West are hiring the Orientals, under the belief that they are much more satisfactory than any other individuals. American bell boys, as a rule, are very much of a nuisance. They cannot be depended upon to do as good work as the little men from the East, and the hotel managers never know how long they are going to remain. They are something like the lumberjack in that they are constantly changing positions, and these frequent changes are very annoying to the managers. Most of the white boys insist on mixing a certain amount of play with their business, while the Japs attended strictly to business all the time, and can be depended upon to do as they are told, and to remain in one place for a reasonable length of time.

We All Know Him.

What good is he a-doin'
In this world, left and right?"
"The world has gone to ruin,
And heaven's out o' sight!"

Just give a hint of trouble,
He'll have a talkin' fit;
"It's goin' to strike us double—
You hain't seen nothin' yit!"

His ax the world would splinter—
His desolating cry;
Ef we don't all freeze this winter
We'll burn up next July!"

—F. L. STANTON in Atlanta Constitution.

THE WEATHER.

Chilly, but still perceptibly less cold than yesterday morning when the low note of the winter was struck by the storm king—that was the condition that greeted the early birds at the coldest hour of this morning. The later pedestrains found the situation still more moderate. Clouds gave early promise of still more snow and more work for householders and janitors, but they were largely dissipated later and snow signs disappeared. Last night's lowest temperature was 6 degs. below zero while yesterday's highest was 2 degs. above. The weather man says it will snow tonight and tomorrow and be decidedly warmer.

The sun set at 4:47 o'clock this afternoon and will rise at 7:48 o'clock tomorrow morning, giving the people within two minutes of nine hours of daylight.

A year ago a moderate cold snap came to end several days of slushy, disagreeable weather and to help on the bonspiel that began that day.

Says Mr. Richardson of weather conditions: "Easterly winds in connection with falling pressures throughout the West and a low barometer area in the Southwest caused snow or rain Tuesday or last night in most Northern districts and the Southwest and a marked rise in temperature from Missouri, Kansas and Wyoming northward to Western Canada. The Red River valley high pressure has moved to Lake Superior, but pressures remain high in the Northwest with continued low temperature in Saskatchewan 30 degs. below zero occurring in that section this morning. In Minnesota and the Dekotas temperatures range generally from slightly above zero to 15 degs. and 20 degs. below. Indications favor a further rise in temperature in this locality tonight probably reaching 20 degs. to 25 degs. above zero during Thursday."

SMILING REMARKS.

Cleveland Leader: Mrs. Jawback—I married you because I pitied you. Nobody else would.

Mr. Jawback—Well, everybody does now.

Philadelphia Press: "She's very wealthy, of course."

"Oh! immensely."

"And quite a society woman, I suppose."

"Oh! gracious, no. Why, she has children and actually insists upon seeing them every day."

Chicago Tribune: Railway Magnate—I don't see how the accident could have happened. We run our road on the block system.

Unreasonable Person—I know it. You're so busy running out blocks of watered stock that you can't pay any attention to the way you run your trains.

Harper's Bazar: The Sphinx had propounded her riddle.

"What would you do if I got on a crowded car and you had a seat?" she asked.

Once again mere man was compelled to give it up.

New York Herald: The Professor's Wife—Bobby has been very naughty, my dear, and you must whip him at once.

The Professor (wearily)—Must it be done?

"Yes; I gave him his choice—getting whipped or going to your lecture."

Baltimore American: "I notice you are sticking it out," said the Needle to the Pin.

"Thank you," said the latter, "and how are you coming on?"

"Oh," replied the Needle, "sew, sew!"

Philadelphia Press: "History ought to be able to teach us now something about these railroad accidents."

"In what way?"

"Why, in former times, people frequently lost their heads by the block system."

Washington Star: "Some of the American millionaires are people whom I wouldn't think of inviting to our homes," said the snobbish English woman.

"Perhaps," answered the English woman who is not snobbish, "and if it weren't for some of the American millionaires, a number of us wouldn't have any homes."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A woman's remarks are either tactful or catful.

There wouldn't be much fun in gambling if you could afford it.

Men could be lots more religious if it weren't for the plumbing.

If men didn't insist on eating their wives could have lots more furs and jewels.

Giving Tone to a Lynching.

Indianapolis News: Among the other improvements of our advanced civilization is the tone of the mob. According to a dispatch from Charles City, Iowa, "four or five ministers and a large number of women" were in the crowd that lynched a wife murderer there.

Time's Changes.

New York Telegram: Men in the trade say the red-topped, copper-toed boot for boys has dropped out of existence. Sign of the times. Times was when you walked up to your enemy, tweaked his nose and then soundly kicked him. Nowadays if you want to get even you don't face your man, but work underground, scare the life out of him with a Black Hand letter or shoot at him with a weapon carrying for eight miles a projectile that will turn corners.

The Editor's Fuel Reserve.

Brauk Rapids Sentinel Free Press: When coal gets too high, the editor can always turn to his pile of unused manuscripts.

"Plums" Come Scarcer.

Baltimore Sun: Among recent notes of weather influence the statement is made that Washington trees have been attempting to bud. The plum tree does not, however, bloom in congressional gardens at any time of the year so freely as it used to.

Courting Uncle Sam.

Baltimore News: Nothing could possibly exceed the affection that the kaiser now shows toward Uncle Sam, but it is at least emulated by John Bull. Both want to be our best friend. We can be good friends to both without being subservient to either.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

The Burlington & Northern survey is completed from Connor's to Rice's Point. It begins to look as though the Burlington would be the next railroad to reach Duluth.

The Duluth Odd Fellows have sold their lot, on the corner of West First street and Second avenue west, and have purchased the lot on the alley between Superior and First streets, on the east side of Lake avenue. The lodge will soon build a fine three-story block. The building committee is composed of H. Speier, Ernest Kugler, John Wallman, F. Hall and H. M. Todd.

Representatives of Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winona, Eau Claire, Des Moines, Milwaukee and Oshkosh attended the meeting of the Northwestern Baseball league, at La Crosse, yesterday. M. J. Roach, sporting editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, was elected president, and H. Quin of Milwaukee was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Judge Shapleigh of Crookston is stopping with Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Stearns.

Byron Segog's hand, which was damaged in the fracas on election day, is nearly convalescent, but he still keeps it dressed up in a toboggan suit.

The following officers of Willis A. Gorman post, G. A. R., have been installed: Post commander, E. R. Jefferson; senior vice commander, Charles E. Chamberlain; adjutant, Edwin B. Force; quartermaster, E. R. Jefferson; surgeon, G. H. Holden; chaplain, R. S. Scoville; officer of the guard, John E. Taft; sergeant-major, E. J. Crossett; quartermaster sergeant, V. S. Wilkinson. A fine ballot box was presented to the post by Capt. A. C. Weaver of Maj. Doughty post, Lake City, Minn. A fine United States flag was presented by Capt. John E. Taft, the flag having been through many a hard-fought battle of the Rebellion.

Capt. Ray T. Lewis and Col. B. A. McNair have formed a partnership and have started a real estate business in Room 62, Exchange building. Mr. McNair was one of the first men to deal in Duluth dirt in the days of yore.

Patrick O'Brien was sworn in as as justice of the peace for Park Point by Recorder Budden, with impressive ceremony yesterday.

Nick Young has formed a partnership with Nicholas Witt, the Superior street butcher.

The nominations for the appeals committee of the board of trade were Col. C. H. Graves, W. T. Hooker and J. H. Smith. For the inspector committee the following were nominated: A. Bailey, M. J. Davis, George Rupley, J. M. Smith and George Spencer.

St. Louis county rolled up a large majority for Governor McGill, but in the list of appointments to state offices no Duluth man's name appears.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Hubbard Enterprise: There has been a material improvement in business conditions in Park Rapids during the year just closed. The writer has had occasion to call upon a large number of the business men of Park Rapids during the past two weeks, and in nearly every instance, when the question of business during the year 1906 has been raised, a favorable report as compared with other years, has been given.

Virginia Star: The prospective rapid growth of Virginia imposes burdens upon the citizens that cannot be evaded. There is every indication that the next year will witness a remarkable increase in the local population, and if this proves correct certain definite improvements should be provided for.

Red Lake Courier: The local creamery association shows a very creditable and flourishing condition. This is one of our "infant industries" that should be nursed to a healthy growth.

Wheelock's Weekly: Representative C. L. Alexander in his ante-election platform declared his abhorrence of free passes, and said he favored an anti-pass law. By the way, Charley, did you travel on a free pass when you went to St. Paul last week?

Appleton Press: We understand that the legislators have been given railroad passes. Verily, if this be truue, gore is likely to flow. When the legislator tries to deliver the goods this winter there will be trouble.

Moorhead Independent: It is reported that very few of the legislators walked to St. Paul or paid their fare. Must have gone there in automobiles.

Virginia Virginian: Who will build a roller rink for Virginia? The craze is on in all parts of the country and there is little doubt that a roller rink here could be made to pay big money.

Moorhead Independent: It would appear as though the candidates for the coming mayoralty campaign are rather bashful about making their announcements. There are a number who want to be candidates, but each is waiting to see what the other fellow's platform is going to be before jumping into the ring to be sacrificed.

Albert Lea Tribune: Several bills regulating passenger fares on railroads and the abolishment of passes in the state have already appeared in the legislature and there seemed to be a scramble to see who should introduce the first drastic measure. The disposition of these bills is the important part of the work of the legislature and it will be interesting to see the dodgers and leg-pullers get in their work.

Women.

What rights have women?
What are they
But blades of grass
Dried into hay?

What rights have women?
What are they
But weaker vessels
Made of clay?

What rights have women?
Though displayed
And made the last they Won't stay maid.

What writes have women?
Oh, great Scott!
The "six best sellers"
Show you what.

What rights have women?
Hully gee!
Compared with them,
Man's 23.
—W. J. L. in New York World.

He Slipped.

I clamped the skates upon my feet,
I stepped upon the ice.
I smiled to hear my friends repeat
Their quite well-meant advice.

I skated when I was a boy;
I skated quite a lot.
The pastime I could still enjoy,
I knew I'd not forgot.

I glided out a yard or so,
My stroke was pretty fair,
When, just as I began to go,
My heels flew in the air.

I saw old Saturn and his rings,
And Venus, shining bright;
A comet and some other things
Burst then upon my sight.

Orion and the Milky Way,
Mercury and Mars—
I saw, thought it was bright noonday,
A perfect blaze of stars.

They showed me later where I fell—
They said it was the place;
I know it wasn't, very well,
Because I'd left no trace.

I knew that this was just a joke—
Some foolish monkey trick.
The ice they showed me wasn't broke,
Though scarce twelve inches thick.
—Chicago News.

"Information" vs. Advice.

Wabasha Herald: We notice a bill has been introduced in the state legislature calling for a bureau of information for the legislators. Don't stay out too late at night, gentlemen, and don't look too deeply into the glass that cheers. St. Paul booze will get you, and her red light district is not what it seems. Don't get too curious, and don't try to see all of St. Paul even with the assistance of a bureau of information. Beware of Sullivan and his bill.

Prayer vs. Performance.

Sacramento Bee: In the assembly the chaplain prayed to the Almighty to remove from the members the temptation to graft.

The Lord must have been hard of hearing that day, for the prayer was immediately followed by a resolution dividing the patronage pie in large and luscious chunks.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Perham Enterprise: Governor Johnson's message to the legislature is a clear, forcible document which is worthy of careful perusal by every citizen of the state. If the legislature carries out the reforms suggested by the governor, the people will have no cause for complaint.

Rochester Bulletin: If you have not read the governor's message you should do so. On railroad matters the message is very strong and pointed. Comparing railroad earnings in this state with those of others, the governor finds that rates are entirely too high in this state. Reform through the railroad and warehouse commission, is too slow.

Virginia Star: Governor Johnson wisely and justly declares that he will not stand for a tonnage tax. That it is an unfair tax for townships and other local governments. This manly declaration of the governor simply means that if any bill is passed, that he will veto it if it aims to take away from the county and its cities and villages its just revenue in taxes.

Hutchinson Leader: Governor Johnson read his annual message to the legislature on Wednesday. The address was a long one and ably covered the questions of state policy which will be uppermost in the legislature this session. Every voter should read it, as it furnishes much light and information on live questions which are before the people of Minnesota at this time.

Wheelock's Weekly: Governor Johnson's message to the legislature teems with practical suggestions looking to a more equitable division of the burdens of government, and a better control of all governmental functions in the people's interests.

Crookston Journal: The message of Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota to the legislature which has just convened is one of the most able documents of the kind ever prepared by a governor—no state and no governor being excepted. The message is peculiarly indicative of the character of the man who wrote it. He is distinctively a man of the people and his message is distinctively a message for the people.

Detroit Record: Governor Johnson keeps in close touch with public sentiment upon all subjects of great public interest and importance, and no matter how one may disagree with him upon certain Democratic principles it must be admitted that he has a clear conception of state's needs, and the ability to express his views clearly.

Albert Lea Tribune: The governor's message reads well and should have the careful perusal of all intelligent people and they can then better judge the work of the legislature.

Crookston Journal: His message to the state legislature certainly added another feather to Governor Johnson's cap.

Eveleth News: Governor Johnson is a master on messages. The recent one is long, but it does not require reading on the "buck the line" principle to get through. If the legislators will read it off and on they will need no other chart for their guidance.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: A warm heart isn't always associated with soft hands.

Sponges swell up when made to take water; men are different.

It's hard for the girl that throws herself at a man's head to make a hit.

An accident policy doesn't help a man out when he is in love.

WORKING WOMEN, WHAT THEY SHOULD KNOW

MRS. SADIE ABBOTT MRS. PREE McKITRICK

Women for the most part spend their lives at home, and it is these women who are willing and ambitious that their homes shall be kept neat and pretty, their children well dressed and tidy, who do their own cooking, sweeping, dusting and often washing, ironing and sewing for the entire family, who call for our sympathy.

Truly the work of such a woman is "never done" and is it any wonder that she breaks down at the end of a few years, the back begins to ache, there is a displacement, inflammation or ulceration of the abdominal organs, a female weakness is brought on, and the struggle of that wife and mother to continue her duties is pitiful.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, is the exact medicine a woman needs whose strength is overtaxed. It keeps the feminine organs in a strong and healthy condition. In preparing for childbirth and recuperating therefrom it is most efficient. It carries a woman safely through the change of life and in making her strong and well assists her to be a good wife and mother.

Mrs Sadie Abbott, of Jeannette, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"I suffered severely with pain every month and also a pain in my left side. My doctor prescribed for me but did me no good; a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I wrote you in regard to my condition. I followed your advice and am a perfectly well woman. The pains have all disappeared and I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pree McKitrick, of La Farge, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"For six years I suffered from female weakness. I was so irregular that I would go from three weeks to six months, so I thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

"Now I am once more well and can do my work without a pain. Any one who wishes, can write to me and I will answer all letters gladly."

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of female ills. Every suffering woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

GIRL FLEES ON CAMEL'S BACK

Escapes From Convent Near Jerusalem and Reaches New York.

New York, Jan. 16.—A very pretty 16-year-old girl, who escaped on a camel's back from a convent near Jerusalem and came all the way here alone to look for her mother in this city, is now at the Clara de Hirsch home on East Tenth street.

The slight, raven haired girl, attired in her oriental robe, arrived here on the steamer La Bretagne. She was taken to Ellis Island by the authorities and from there went to the Hirsch home.

The girl said that when only an infant just able to walk she was placed in a convent on the outskirts of Jerusalem and was known as "Little Sabrina." When she was 10 years old she was permitted to go to lectures at the London Jewish society in Jerusalem, where she mastered six languages.

A wealthy New York woman, whose name the girl does not know, called on her one day and told her that her full name was Sabrine Rosenweig, and that her mother lived at No. 128 Ridge street, Manhattan. The visitor gave the girl some money.

Sabrina's little gifts had accumulated until she could buy a passage here. Then early last month she stole away from the convent at night, obtained the aid of a camel driver, who carried her over the sands to Jerusalem, where she bought a ticket for New York.

The girl found her way to the Ridge street house, but the tenants said her mother had left there only last week, without giving an address. The girl was told that she has two uncles in this country, Morris and David Schwartz, but their whereabouts are unknown to her.

The attendants at the de Hirsch home are trying to find a place of employment for the girl, where she may employ her skill as a linguist.

"My child was burned terribly about the face, neck and chest. I applied Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The pain ceased and the child sank into a restful sleep."—Mrs. Nancy M. Hanson, Hamburg, N. Y.

IMMENSE SALT DEPOSIT FOUND IN UTAH DESERT.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 16.—During 1906 wonderful progress was made on the construction of the new Pacific coast line of the Denver & Rio Grande. Thirty-nine tunnels are being bored through the mountains. There is one 75-mile stretch of track that will cost $100,000 a mile to build. The object of this expenditure in construction is to obtain a direct and low grade route through the mountains.

Track is already laid from Salt Lake City nearly to the Nevada state line, a distance of nearly ninety miles. In California the track is laid into Oakland and Stockton. It is believed the entire line through to the coast will be in operation by January, 1909.

Among the curious things encountered in the construction work is an enormous deposit of pure salt, found on the west side of the Utah desert, not far from the Nevada state line. This singular deposit is 15 miles long and eight miles wide. Excavations to a depth of more than six feet are still in solid salt. The salt that has been found is suitable for stock, and can be readily refined for table use.

Unquestionably this section was once the bed of the great Salt lake, and even now may have a subterranean connection with that mysterious body of water, more than a hundred miles distant.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

NO LIMIT TO ITS POWERS FOR EVIL

Contagious Blood Poison has brought more suffering, misery and humiliation into the world than all other diseases combined; there is hardly any limit to its powers for evil. It is the blackest and vilest of all disorders, wrecking the lives of those unfortunate enough to contract it and often being transmitted to innocent offspring, a blighting legacy of suffering and shame. So highly contagious is the trouble that innocent persons may contract it by using the same table ware, toilet articles or clothing of one in whose blood the treacherous virus has taken root. Not only is it a powerful poison but a very deceptive one. Only those who have learned by bitter experience know by the little sore or ulcer, which usually makes its appearance first, of the suffering which is to follow. It comes in the form of ulcerated mouth and throat, unsightly copper colored spots, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, offensive sores and ulcers on the body, and in severe cases the finger nails drop off, the bones become diseased, the nervous system is shattered and the sufferer becomes an object of pity to his fellow man. Especially is the treacherous nature of Contagious Blood Poison, shown when the infected person endeavors to combat the poison with mercury and potash. These minerals will drive away all outward symptoms of the troubles for a while, and the victim is deceived into the belief that he is cured. When, however, the treatment is left off he finds that the poison has only been driven deeper into the blood and the disease reappears, and usually in worse form because these strong minerals have not only failed to remove the virus from the blood but have weakened the entire system because of their destructive action. S. S. S. is she only real and certain cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is made of a combination of healing blood-purifying roots, herbs and barks, the best in Nature's great laboratory of forest and field. We offer a reward of $1.000 for proof that S. S. S. contains a particle of mineral in any form. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and by cleansing the blood of every particle of the virus and adding rich, healthful qualities to this vital fluid, forever cures this powerful disorder. So thoroughly does S. S. S. cleanse the circulation that no signs of the disease are ever seen again, and offspring is protected.

START FOUR BIG SUITS

Heirs of Moore Kerr Claim They Are Being Defrauded.

Action Directed Against John J. Rupp and His Relatives.

Four suits involving large tracts of Northern Minnesota lands said to be valuable for their timber and mineral prospects, have been commenced in the district court of St. Louis and Lake counties by the residuary legatees of Moore Kerr, of the firm of Rupp & Kerr, of Saginaw, Mich., a concern that is well known in this part of the country by reason of its holdings in lands in St. Louis, Lake, and Cook counties.

The papers in two of the actions were filed with the clerk of the district court of this county yesterday. In one action the residuary legatees seek to restrain John J. Rupp, the surviving partner of the firm, from appropriating or disposing of certain of the firm's interests. In the other case the residuary legatees seek to have the court set aside certain conveyances which John J. Rupp is alleged to have already made, of valuable property to his relatives, for nominal considerations.

The suits started in Lake county are similar in nature.

The alleged facts as set forth in the complaints now on file are about as follows:

Moore Kerr and John J. Rupp formed a partnership at Saginaw, Mich., twenty years ago and, in the course of their business, the acquired large interests in Northern Minnesota lands.

Moore Kerr died in Saginaw, in 1901, and John J. Rupp has since been acting as manager of the Kerr estate, as executor under the Kerr will, along with Fred C. Brewer, another Saginaw man, and as surviving partner in the firm. Mr. Rupp is said to claim under some contract which he holds that he is at liberty to wind up the affairs of the estate in any way he pleases and at any time he chooses.

By will, Moore Kerr made his nephews and nieces, fifteen in number, all residing in Michigan, his residuary legatees.

All the debts of the estate and the specific legacies are said to have been paid up long ago, but the residuary legatees are dissatisfied with the way John J. Rupp, the executor has been doing business, and they claim that there is no reason why the Kerr estate should not be closed up.

The complaint charges that the executors have been handling the estate to their mutual advantage and for the benefit of others than the legatees. The actions have been started to restrain Mr. Rupp from disposing of any more of the holdings of Rupp & Kerr and to set aside such conveyances as he is claimed to have already made an accounting is had by the legatees, who claim they are being defrauded.

It is charged that Mr. Rupp has already conveyed a five-forty-eighths interest in certain lands in section 33, 59-15 to his brother, Christian Rupp, for a $1 consideration, and a similar interest to his brother-in-law, Henry Nienstedt, for the same consideration. It is further claimed that Mr. Rupp has made certain conveyances to other parties for a nominal consideration, and that he and Fred C. Brewer, in their capacity as executors, have conveyed to themselves valuable lands belonging to the partnership.

Mr. Rupp is claimed to have effected a settlement with seven of the residuary heirs, but the settlement was set aside by a probate court in Michigan.

Notwithstanding the alleged value of the lands for minerals and timber John J. Rupp and Fred C. Brewer are claimed to have inventoried them at 10 cents per acre. They are said to have inventoried Moore Kerr's separate interest in the estate at $110,000 but, on the demands of the residuary legatees, a further inventory was made in November, 1904 and a supplementary inventory was filed showing the value of the firm's property to be $334,436. The legatees claim that this supplemental inventory is still incomplete, that it does not show all the assets and that Mr. Rupp knows it.

It is further alleged that under the partnership agreement all of the lands dealt in belonged to the partnership regardless of whose name the transactions were made. The legatees claim that in regard to some of the transactions Mr. Rupp has been acting, to say the least, very arbitrarily.

John J. Rupp and Fred C. Brewer were appointed executors of the Kerr estate in the probate court of this county on the petition of Mr. Rupp. It is claimed by the legatees. The executors' bonds were fixed at $200 each. Their bonds in the probate court in Michigan were fixed, it is claimed, at $10,0000 each.

Owing to the alleged great value of the lands involved and the prominence of the people interested, it is expected that the trial of these cases will develop a number of interesting things.

Some of the residuary legatees in Michigan are represented by Weadock & Weadock of Saginaw, Mich., and others by Carton & Bray of Flint, Mich. Mart Monoghan of this city is the local legal representative of all the residuary heirs. Mr. Monaghan filed the papers in the two cases.

FISH TOWED CAKE OF ICE WITH YOUNG WOMAN ON IT.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Dan Donaldson and Miss Van Gilder, pickerel fishing at Mink Pond, Pike county, Pa., had great luck, catching something like 50 pounds by noon. They were about to depart for home when a peculiar accident happened to Miss Van Gilder.

Warm weather had melted the ice near the center of the pond. Two holes in the ice through which the young woman was fishing were within 20 feet of this open water. Getting a hard bite Miss Van Gilder drew up on her line. The ice cracked and the big cake on which she was standing was pulled by the fish into the open water.

There was no boat at hand and Donaldson could not go to the young woman's aid. The fish towed the ice cake with the woman upon it back and forth, but she never let go of the line.

Donaldson cut a long pole from the underbrush, and when the fish had towed the ice cake with its human freight near enough Miss Van Gilder clutched it with one hand, still holding on to the line with the other. Donaldson drew the cake to the solid ice and the young lady was safely landed—so was the fish, which was a 6¼-pound pickerel.

Miss Van Gilder said she always has had good luck on Fridays.

DISPLAYS OF RICH JEWELS

New York Opera Goers Blaze Forth Millions in Gems.

New York, Jan. 16.—The opera season in New York is in full swing, and so is the gorgeous displays of jewels by rich women in and out of the 400.

Every night at the Manhattan opera house, where Melba and the other stars are singing, millions of dollars of gems sparkle in the audience.

On the first night of her appearance, Mme. Melba wore $500,000 worth of jewelry and it is estimated that the women in the boxes carried $50,000,000 more.

New York has become the great diamond market of the world, and within the last five years the demand for the gems has increased so enormously as to call attention to the fact that several New York families own collections which rival the crown jewels of many reigning monarchs.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay has one sapphire which alone is valued at $150,000. It is four-tenths of an inch in diameter. She also has diamonds that cost over $100,000.

Mrs. J. J. Astor has a collection containing $135,000 worth of diamonds and sapphires. It includes a diamond crown worth $50,000, a tiara of diamonds and emeralds worth $30,000, a necklace of the same jewels worth $25,000 and a bowknot of rubies and emeralds worth $10,000.

Mrs. George Gould has a collection of jewels which has been estimated at $480,000, of which $20,000 are rings. One solitary ruby is valued at $7,000. The most valuable piece is a diamond and ruby necklace worth $35,000.

The Vanderbilt family owns $4,000,000 worth of jewels. Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt added about $100,000 worth of diamonds to the family collection, including a necklace valued at $80,000.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney has two enormous diamonds tiaras, one valued at $40,000, and five costly aigrettes and comb worth $10,000. The gem of her collection is a necklace worth $30,000.

Mrs. Bradley Martin has jewels valued at over $500,000, some experts claiming that it is the finest collection owned by any American woman. The most notable piece is a diamond breast plate which covers the front of a low-cut bodice literally clothing the owner with jewels. It is valued at $10,000. A collection of tiaras, necklaces, bracelets and pins of carefully matched stones is valued at $200,000.

But, of course, these are only a few of many notable collections.

ANNUL SON'S MARRIAGE

Is the Determination of Prince Amedee Broglie of Paris.

He Is Very Wroth At the Action of His Heir.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—If Prince Amedee Broglie of Paris succeeds in his efforts to annual the marriage between his son, Prince Robert, to Estella Alexander, is will not be on the strength of any help he is likely to receive from Henri Merou, French consul in Chicago, where the marriage was performed.

Consul Merou's office has been flooded with requests from Broblie pere for information which will aid the latter in his effort to set aside the ceremony. The consul has no help to give him.

Prince Amedee persists in believing that Consul Merou himself performed the ceremony. Consul Merou says the knot was tied by a justice of the peace.

The difference is material. If M. Merou married his young countryman and the latter's sweetheart at the consulate, it was, to all intents and purposes, a marriage on French soil. It was performed without the necessary three weeks' preliminary anouncement in the arrondissement in which Prince Robert lives when at home. This would invalidate a French marriage anywhere on the globe.

But it wasn't a French marriage, says the consul—it was an American marriage, performed by an American justice of the peace, under United States laws. As such, it is a binding marriage in France or anywhere else.

Broglie pere makes another claim which Consul Merou punctures as effectually as he does the first. Prince Amedee says a slip of the pen made "Broglie" read "Bogile" in the wedding certificate. So it did, says the consul, but the mistake was at once noticed and corrected, making the marriage perfectly legal, so far as American statutes go.

Despite these explanations Paris dispatches says Prince Amedee has begun suit in the French civil court to set aside the marriage because, as alleged, the marriage was in French form, but not in compliance with French law and because Broglie was incorrectly spelled in the certificate. Prince Amedee does not consider Estella Alexander a suitable wife for his son.

The same messages say the senior Broglie is much alarmed, however, by his son's threat to accept an engagement as an orchestra conductor at the Olympia music hall, while his wife sings and dances in the same house. He says he will create such a disturbance if the plan is carried out that the police will have to close the hall.

Prince Robert is quoted as assuring his father that, though his marriage may be set aside, he will only have to wait until he reaches Paris to have it performed again under the very eaves of the Broglie palace.

Madame Broglie, known as Mrs. Vlet, wife of a well known American business man in Paris, often sang in French salons, though not on the stage. She suddenly left her husband a few years ago, quite as suddenly appeared in San Francisco and later rejoined Prince Robert in Chicago.

ASK CENTRAL HOW COLD IT IS

Weather Man Makes Arrangement for Convenience of Citizens.

With anywhere from 100 to 200 inquiries coming in over the telephone every day when the weather takes an extraordinary turn, Weather Forecaster Richardson has finally registered a protest. The protest is not against the curiosity of the citizens of Duluth, but only against the manner of their satisfying it.

These inquiries generally come in between the hours of 7 and 9 in the morning and as this period is the busiest one of the whole day at the weather office it is a good deal of bother to answer each inquiry. Yesterday morning, everyone knew that it was a cold day but they wanted to know just how cold and other particulars that the weather man is supposed to know about. At least 150 calls were received at the weather station yesterday morning.

In order to avoid this troublesome telephone inquiry about the weather Mr. Richardson has arranged to give the temperature every morning to the central station of each telephone company and each of the centrals is informed of the conditions. Therefore, when any of Duluth's citizens want to know how cold it is or how warm it is, they need not telephone to the weather bureau but need only ask the telephone central and will be informed.

"During the early part of the morning we are just as busy as we can be," said Mr. Richrdson yesterday, "and we don't have time to answer the 'phone to tell people how cold it is. We are as busy at that time of the day as are the people in a newspaper office just before press time. We hope that Duluthians after this will simply ask 'central' about the weather."

GRAND DUKE REFUSED TO HAVE HIS HEIR HONORED.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—The Grand Duke of Hesse Darmstadt is rapidly making a name for himself as the most unconventional ruling prince in Germany. The other night certain Darmstadt associations determined on a torchlight procession before the palace to express their joy at the christening of an heir to the grand ducal pair. The town of Darmstadt contributed $400 for torches, flags, etc., and it was to be a magnificent affair.

To the consternation of all concerned the grand duke sent word to the leaders of the affair that the evening promised to be unpropitious, that he did not want any one to catch cold, and that he would like all the money to be given to the poor, rather than expended on torches and flags in honor of his baby.

Not long ago the grand duke invited a number of Socialists to a parliamentary evening at his palace, and chatted and drank moselle wine with their leader, Herr Ulrich; but, although he was taken to task for this, he did not seem to mind much, and shortly afterward he confirmed the election of certain Socialists to positions on the communal arbitration boards.

IOWA WOMAN

Descends Into Verse to Say Mean Things of Marriage.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 16.—A divorce petition in rhyme was filed in court here by Mrs. John Wade, wife of a local traveling man. Mrs. Wade is a middle aged, good looking woman, and this is her second divorce case. She entitles her effort "A Matrimonial Idyll." When the petition was read in court the judge and spectators roared. Here are two stanzas:

A substitute for man is the latest hit,
Just keep a dog to growl and a cat to spit.
A domestic parrot can both jaw and swear,
A monkey to dispute and pull your hair.

Don't think wou need man to strike even a match,
There are better places a light to scratch.

But brimstone attachments show where plans are laid.

WEDDING PRESENT

To Queen Wilhelmina Was Nearly Six Years Overdue.

The Hague, Jan. 16.—When Queen Wilhelmina was about to be married, six years ago, a committee was formed to offer a wedding present in the name of the citizens of the East Indies. This present is now completed, and last Saturday the committee was received by the queen. The gift consists of an "Indian room," arranged in the palace at The Hague. The ceiling is decorated with sculpture, representing details of the Boeroe-Boedoer Temple of Java. In the room are two cabinets, containing models in filigrane from buildings on the western coast of Sumatra, rich tissues in brocade made by the wives and daughters of the Javanese chiefs, Indian arms and other products of Indian home industry.

The committee in charge of the slow-arriving gift consisted of Lieut. Gen. Roetje, Mr. De Meester, minister president and former vice president of the Indian council; Capt. Cohen Stuart, Vice Admiral Stokhuysen, Mr. Abendanon, Carpentier Alting, Mr. Van Lawick, Mr. Kruseman and Mr. Vas Es, who has arranged the Indian room in the palace.

HORRORS OF SLAVE TRADE

Between Turkey and Tripoli Depicted in the Darkest Colors.

Constantinople, Jan. 16.—Advices from Tripoli depict the horrors of the slave trade between Turkey and Tripoli in the darkest colors. It is openly asserted that it is exclusively as a source of supply that the Porte cares to maintain the connection between Tripoli and the hinterland.

In the regions of Nadal, Baghirmi, Gehra and the adjacent countries slave raiding is marked with all the hideous butcheries with which Europe was familiarized twenty years ago. The trade is openly carried on by Arabs and Turks solely for the supply of the Turkish market.

In these raids the adult population is mercilessly butchered, both men and women. Girls in particular and some boys are alone wanted. The miseries they endure in the long march to the Tripolitan coast are said to be indescribable.

Turkish ships make monthly trips, and always sail by night with their human cargo. The price of a girl between 8 and 20 is from $20 upward.

ENGINEERS WIN CONCESSIONS

Final Agreement Made Affecting 27,000 Men All Over West.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—A final settlement was reached here yesterday between commitees representing the railway managers and the locomotive engineers and an agreement was entered into which included all roads west of Fort William, Canada, St. Paul, Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans to the Pacific coast and south to the Mexican border. The new schedule is to go into effect Feb. 1, and will affect 27,000 engineers.

The terms of the agreement follow: Freight engineers receive a flat increase of 40 cents per day of ten hours or less, 100 miles or less, overtime pro rata; engineers in switching service, first class yards, advaced to $3.75 per day of ten hours or less and second class yards advanced to $3.50 per day of ten hours or less, overtime pro rata. In the work train and helper service, on engines having cylinders under eighteen inches or more in diameter, $4 per day of 100 miles or less.

The engineers asked for an eight-hour day but withdrew the demand when the managers offered other concessions.

BRIBERY FOR HIGH OFFICE

Eleven New York Aldermen Concerned in Recorder Boodling.

New York, Jan. 16.—Alderman William S. Clifford, and David Mann, a foreman of a stone yard, were arrested yesterday on charges of bribery in the election of a recorder of the court of general sessions, to succeed Recorder Goff.

The district attorney's office alleges that it has uncovered a plot by which eleven aldermen have been approached to sell their votes for recorder for $500 each. According to the district attorney's office, $6,000 in marked bills was found on Mann, who is accused of being the go-between. It is alleged that Clifford accepted a bribe of $6,000 in return for which he was to deliver the votes of himself and ten other aldermen for Ex-Judge Rufus R. Cowing for recorder.

The district attorney's office declares that Judge Cowing knew nothing of the attempt that would be made to induce aldermen to support him.

Mann professed ignorance of inside information concerning the transaction and offered to aid the officers in making further arrests. It was said that several additional arrests in connection with the alleged bribery would be made.

At the board of aldermen meeting yesterday voting for the several candidates for recorder resulted in a deadlock.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

AMATEURS WAKING UP

Copper Country Hockey Not Given Over to Professionals.

Duluth Teams Will Play There Before Winter Is Over.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Amateur hockey for the northern portion of the central states is due to take a great boom from the present outlook. The Copper country teams start their play this week, the first game of the season being played at the Amphidrome in Houghton, between the Houghton and Calumet Juniors, Thursday night. For the junior championship of the upper peninsula, John T. McNamara of the Portage Lake management and the manager of the big Amphidrome skating palace, has ordered a beautiful and costly silver cup.

Mr. McNamara also boosts high school hockey, and has ordered a silver cup, beautiful in design and workmanship, to be turned over to the officials of the Upper Peninsula Interscholastic league. This cup is to be played for by high school teams only, and any school of the upper peninsula may enter a team for it, under the Intercholastic league's rulings. The cup will probably be played for during the winter by the Houghton, Sault Ste. Marie, Escanaba, Calumet and Dollar Bay teams, and perhaps teams from South Range and Lake Linden. It is not known yet whether or not Marquette, which has just acquired a skating and hockey outdoor rink, will enter a team for the cup.

It is probable that this winter the cup will remain in the Copper country, as the Sault Ste. Marie and Escanaba teams are made up of youngsters who have played but little, it is understood. The Calumet boys probably have the strongest high school team in the upper peninsula. Hancock has decided not to enter teams for either cup, giving Houghton a good show to take the junior championship and trophy.

Soo teams are to be heard from in regard to games, although it is probable that they will be communicated with in the near future. It is expected that the Houghton teams, high school and junior, will make trips to the Soo this season to play the high school against the American Soo high school team, and the juniors against the Tagonas and Marlboros of the Canadian Soo.

Mr. McNamara stated to the correspondent yesterday that he will bring the Duluth hockey team to Houghton for a series of games with the Houghton juniors in the near future. It may also be possible for the Houghton team to make a visit to the Head of the Lakes if a suitable place for playing can be found.

The Duluth high school team may also visit the Copper country, as it is the wish of the International league magnates to interest the Duluth people and men of money in the game, for the purpose of inducing them to put a big team into the International league next season. The great game is a fascinating one when played by skilled teams, and draws well everywhere. It should do well in Duluth, and it is probable that next year will see a team entered in that city and one for the two cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

The Twin Cities have now a six-team league, and a very fair class of hockey is played in the Minnesota towns. It is understood that the great Amphitheater is to be used for hockey games after the big skatefest, which is to be held there in the near future, and this should draw the attention of the sporting fraternity and pave the way for the use of this great building by International league teams next year. It would not be surprising if two of the big professional teams should go to St. Paul to play exhibition games during the present season, just to show people of the flour district what professional hockey is like.

AMERICAN NEWS NOTES.

Emma Goldman, who was arrested Jan. 6 on a charge of delivering an alleged incendiary speech at a public meeting in New York city, was discharged when arraigned in the municipal court yesterday, as was also Alexander Berkman and John R. Caryell, arrested.

Heavy rains caused a sudden rise of Rock Bridge creek, flooding the town of Flat Rock, Ky., so quickly that the inhabitants were compelled to flee in boats.

After reaching a stage of twenty-two feet, the waters in the rivers at Pittsburg are gradually receding and all danger of a serious flood is again passed for the present.

Spokane, Wash., practically completed the presentation of its case before the interstate commerce commission yesterday and the railroads and intervening great cities opposing Spokane's plea for lower rates are having their hearing today.

President Roosevelt, Attorney General Bonaparte, and United States District Attorney Hoyt of the Nome district, had a conference today regarding the case of Judge James Wickersham of Alaska.

The house of representatives spent almost all of yesterday in considering the fortifications appropriation bill and completed only six pages of it.

After a fight that lasted all yesterday and reached the house itself, the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries finally decided 8 to 7, last night to report favorably on the ship subsidy bill prepared by Representative Littauer of New York.

The Democratic members of the house of representatives and senate of Kansas met last night and decided to give the ator to Col. W. A. Harris, late candidate for governor.

DULUTH RINKS KEEP UP THEIR WINNING PACE

Will be In at Finish in All Bonspiel Events.

Dunbar and Hurdon Rinks in Fight for Grand Average Prize.

Duluth rinks yesterday continued their good work in the bonspiel which is in progress at the Duluth Curling club, and in every event they stand a good show of carrying off the "jewelry."

The Hurdon rink has been making a runaway race of it, up to the present time, having lost but one game. It is out of the Soo event, having been defeated in the preliminaries by Lorimer of St. Paul, but in the Duluth event, it has reached the semi-final round, and is in the third round of the St. Paul Jobbers.

In the Duluth event only seven rinks are left. Of these, five are Duluth rinks, the other two being Labatt of Minneapolis and Dunbar of St. Paul.

In the Canadian Soo event only four rinks have reached the third round or the "eights, and of these three are Duluth rinks, Dunlop, Bradley and A. H. Smith. The fourth is the Dunbar rink of St. Paul.

The Duluth rinks are not doing so well in the St. Paul Jobbers event, and of the four rinks that have reached the "eights," only one is a Duluth rink, Hurdon's. Rochon and Carson of Winnipeg and McGregor of St. Paul are the others.

The Minneapolis Curling club event got under way yesterday afternoon, and the first round was to have been finished by noon today.

All the events but the Meyers, or consolation, are now running, and this will be started as soon as the first rounds of all the other events are out of the way, as only those rinks defeated in the first round, are eligible.

The international preliminaries will be played this evening and immediately following the match the draw will be made for the rinks on the winning side.

The bonspiel is being run off in very rapid order, and if the present pace is maintained, most of the events will be down to the final round by tonight or tomorrow noon. The fine weather and the manner in which Secretary Blackwood has kept the games moving, has enabled the curlers to make much better progress than was anticipated.

Up to the present time Hurdon and Dunbar are probably in the lead, but the "spiel is young yet."

WILL PLAY VICTORIAS

Northern Hockey Team Closes Date With St. Paul Champions.

Return Game to be Played Here a Week Later.

The Northern Hardware hockey team will go to St. Paul Saturday of this week for a game with the all-conquering Victorias of the Saintly City, the first of a series of two games to decide the possession of a beautiful championship cup, donated by St. Paul people, with which goes the title of amateur champions of the Northwest.

A long distance 'phone from Cook, the St. Paul manager, yesterday announced that the St. Paul seven was willing to come up here for a return game a week from Saturday, and would post a forfeit of $25 to go to the Duluth team if they failed to show up for the second contest. As this was the last point which the locals were demanding, the games are now cinched, and the first one will be played Saturday.

Quite a bunch of rooters are figuring on going down with the locals, and the Duluth hockey fans are awaiting with eagerness the return game here. This promises to be an exhibition of much higher grade hockey than any ever played here, and only the lack of proper rink facilities will prevent a record-breaking attendance.

The game in St. Paul will be played at the Seven Corners rink. The hardware team, which will be acccompanied by Wallace Wells of the hardware company, and Harbison and McDevitt as subs, will line up for the game as follows: Fenton, goal; Furni, point; Earl Cummings, cover point; Frank Winters, rover; Roy Deetz, center; Al Cummings, left wing; Charles Cargill, right wing.

BORAH SUCCEEDS DUBOIS.

Republican Lawyer is Elected United States Senator From Idaho.

Boise, Idaho. Jan. 16.—The Idaho legislature last night elected William E. Borah United States senator to succeed Mr. Dubois. The two houses met in separate session and Mr. Borah, who was nominated for senator by the Republican state convention and was assured of election, received 50 votes against 18 for Mr. Dubois, who has the endorsement of the Democratic state convention. He is one of the leading lawyers of the state.

KILLED IN THE WOODS.

Kaukauna, Wis., Jan. 16.—Otto Henfer, of Black Creek, was killed at John Montey's camp, near Crandon, while felling a birch tree. After notching the tree, which leaned slightly, he and his companion commenced to saw down, when, without warning, it split and suddenly, forced by the wind, lurched the opposite way, striking Henfer in the spine, killing him instantly.

a very small thing to use as a club to drive the party into a row with the chief executive in which it cannot fail to come out second best.

Then, too, by calling a caucus on the resolution, and practically putting it up to the party to endorse the thing, it gives an importance far beyond its due, and many members are indignant that the first caucus should have been called on such an absurd proposition.

While the resolution was endorsed by a large majority in the caucus, which was held behind closed doors, it was not without a debate in which plain facts were told.

One member wanted to know who was responsible for calling a caucus on such a measure. He said it made the party ridiculous, and that if there had to be a caucus on every little proposition that came up there would be no time for anything but caucuses. He came up here to legislate, he said, not to run to the governor for his opinion on every little proposition that happened to bob up. The way to get the governor's opinion on a piece of legislation, in his opinion, was to pass a bill covering it and put it up to him for his signature or his veto.

Of course, the Prohibition members are happy, because the incident has given the county option bill a prominence it could hardly have hoped for otherwise.

But members that are not Prohibitionists, and that have not sentiments at home that puzzle them about just what they should do in the matter, are very much disgusted.

Now that the committees have been announced, there is nothing to prevent their getting busy over the bills that have been introduced and referred to them, and the legislature should move ahead with more rapidity than has characterized its work so far.

Still, it will be another week or so before many important bills are reported back to either branch for action, so there will be short sessions and long adjournments for some time yet.

The Duluth members fared well in both houses in the committee assignments. They are included in practically every important committee on the lists, and some important chairmanships have gone to them. Those who fared best, perhaps, are Laybourn and Pugh in the senate and Hugo in the house, though none of them appear to feel the slightest dissatisfaction with the results.

Following is a complete list of chairmanships in both bodies:

Senate—Agriculture and horticulture, Johnston; banks and banking, Stephens; claims, Gunderson; corporations other than municipal, Alderman; census, Briggs; dairy products and livestock, Nelson; deaf, dumb and blind, Glotzbach; drainage, Sundberg; education, Dale; elections, Dunn; engrossment, Anderson; enrollment, H. • • •

A curious house appointment is that of R. H. Jefferson of Cottonwood county as chairman of mines and minerals. Practically every other sectional interests covered by a committee, in both houses, has been given to a local man as chairman, but Mr. Jefferson, though he was a pioneer in Duluth, has been for many years a resident of Southrn Minnesota. There is but one St. Louis county man on the house committee on mines and minerals, while on the senate committee there are two, one as chairman.

A communication that was received at the governor's office yesterday afternoon, from the secretary of the Fergus Falls Commercial club, was interesting because it contained a copy of a resolution offered by Dr. A. B. Cole, chairman of the Republican state central committee, warmly commending Governor Johnson's message to the legislature. It was as follows: "Resolved, that we heartily commend Governor John A. Johnson upon the excellent message which he sent to the legislature, especially so far as it relates to railroad legislation, and we trust that he will continue to favor the laws he recommends and will do all in his power, as governor of the state, to secure their passage by the legislature."

The resolution was unanimously adopted, together with another resolution urging the legislature to adopt several measures covered by the governor's message, relating to railroad legislation.

County Auditor Halden was here yesterday, on his way to Minneapolis to attend the meeting of the county auditors of the state.

Somebody has discovered that the code commission took other liberties with the regulations governing the legislature, aside from that compelling the members to wait until the close of the session for their mileage. The code also provides that they shall be docked a day's pay if they do not attend the sessions without excuse.

The provision may be reasonable enough, but it will be rather remarkable if it turns out that any member is docked a single cent for absence during the session.

It is reported that there is a movement among country merchants in certain places to organize opposition to the 2-cent passenger fare bill. This opposition is not likely to be strenuous or effective. It arises, doubtless, in small communities, near large ones, where the merchants fear cheaper railroad rates will induce patrons to do more shopping in the large commercial centers. This does not cover very much territory, and it is doubtful if the country merchants will generally be drawn into the fight. The 2-cent fare bill, at this writing, is one of the surest results of the session.

Both the house and senate have passed resolutions to buy copies of the new code at $3.50 per volume for every member. As many bills will take the form of amendments of the code, the volumes will be very useful. They will also be handy to press flowers with after the session is over.

Members of the legislature are beginning to wonder whether there will be anything left to investigate after this session is over. Resolutions have now been introduced providing for investigations into pretty nearly everything imaginable, and doubtless if anything has been overlooked it will be covered within the next few days.

So many resolutions for investigation have been introduced that it is no joke at all to state that pretty soon so many members of the legislature will be investigating that there will be nobody left to consider and pass legislation.

One of the most sensible resolutions of this nature yet offered is that of Senator Cooke of Wabasha to investigate the taxation of iron mines before taking up legislation, the committee to be equipped with an appropriation of $1,000 for expenses, and to report by Feb. 25.

Members that have hurried in their bills taxing the ore lands have not waited for information on the subject. They have not inquired, nor cared, apparently, whether their proposed laws would be confiscatory or reasonable. One proposes a tax of 25 cents a ton, when there are iron mines in Northern Minnesota, particularly in the newer sections, west of Mesaba, where the royalties only amount to 15 or 20 cents a ton.

If there is to be a change made in the system of taxing iron mines, it certainly should be based on information and reason, not on sectional prejudice and ignorance.

There is some talk of combining into one committee all the several propositions to investigate this or that trust, monopoly, evil or industry. There are pending now no less than half a dozen such proposals and if the committees appointed upon them work at the same time, there will be weeks when it will be impossible to do any business in either body.

A. G. Johnson of St. Paul went after the gas and street railway companies in bills offered yesterday. He would make gas companies give a good grade of illuminating gas for not more than 80 cents per thousand feet, and he would make the electric car lines give everybody eight tickets for a quarter.

Elmer E. Adams of Fergus Falls has introduced in the house the bill abolishing private banks, which failed two years ago in the senate. Since then a very large number of private banks have incorporated as national or state banks, and, as the sentiment seems to be setting strongly that way, it is altogether probable that the bill will pass this time. It becomes effective Feb. 1, 1908, thus giving the remaining private banks plenty of time in which to arrange their affairs for the change.

Senator Gunn's bill to permit counties to increase the compensation of district judges is intended to reach only the Fifteenth judicial district, including Beltrami, Itasca, Clearwater, Hubbard, Cass, Aitkin and Crow Wing counties, but there are several other districts that it could be made to reach, as it applies to districts containing more than six counties. It is provided that in addition to the pay of $3,500 provided by the state, the counties shall contribute enough to make an additional $1,500.

The anti-bucket shop bill is up again this session, being introduced yesterday by Senator Dale of Madison. It allows cities and villages to pass ordinances prohibiting bucketshops, and punishing those who operate them.

Bills raising the pay of state officers were introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator Coller of Shakopee. He would make the governor's pay $7,500, the chief justice of the supreme court he would raise to the same amount, and the associate justices of $7,000, the attorney general to $6,000, and other state officers, who now get $3,000 and $3,500, to $4,000 each. It was noted that while the bill governing the supreme court and the attorney general went to the judiciary committee, the bill affecting the governor and the state officers was sent to the finance committee.

Senator Coller also introduced a bill designed to make reapportionment of legislative districts easier by providing, through a constitutional amendment to be approved by the people, that the legislature may apportion at any session, instead of only at the first session following a census. This is done to prevent the present situation, in which the senators are confronted by the alternative of voting themselves out of office or of making the reapportionment effective so far in the future that its value will be only relatively worth while to the people.

A bill that laymen will generally approve is that by Senator Wilson, providing that in order to warrant setting aside a verdict in either a criminal or a civil case, errors in the trial must be shown to have effected a miscarriage of justice. This is designed, of course, to prevent technicalities of little real moment from affecting the outcome of trials.

Senator Canfield's bill to make contracts in violation of the anti-trust laws voidable at will is intended to make the law more effective against trusts. Not only can a party to such a contract have it declared void, but he can recover any money he has paid out on it.

Senator Gunn's bill providing for a new normal school at Cass Lake does not carry an appropriation, but merely provides for starting the proceeding so that the next legislature may find the money to be used in building the normal.

Representative Thomas P. Brady of St. Paul yesterday secured the passage of a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five to see what can be done about buying a governor's mansion for the use of the state executive, such as the federal government and many other states have provided. Last session such a committee was appointed, and found several likely sites, but nothing was done about it.

The house bill by Representative Christenson of St. Paul, putting electric railroads under the control of the railroad and warehouse commission, follows out the recommendation made to the legislature by the commission in its annual report.

DOG SAVES FAMILY.

Furicus Barking Followed the Breaking Out of a Fire.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 16.—The kindness of the family of John K. Bowlus of this city to a miserable yellow cur Monday night, probably saved the lives of some of them, and certainly prevented the loss by fire of their household effects and their home.

The dog whined at the door early in the evening, evidently suffering from the cold, and was admitted to the house. When bedtime came Mrs. Bowlus did not have the heart to put the animal out into the cold and made him a bed in the kitchen. Shortly after midnight the agonized yelping of the animal aroused Mr. Bowlus and rushing down to the kitchen he found that a hot coal had fallen from the stove grate and had set fire to the flooring. The fumes had aroused the dog, who, in turn, aroused Mr. Bowlus.

A bucket of water quenched the flames. The seriousness of the situation is better illustrated by the fact that the two children, Albert, aged 6, and Morris, aged 9, were sleeping in the room above the kitchen and the flames would have reached them first.

THOMAS M. RYAN DEAD.

Former Mesaba Mining Man Killed While Prospecting in Arizona.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 16.—News was received here yesterday of the death of Thomas M. Ryan, formerly a well known mining man of this vicinity, who has been in the Bisbee camp for some time past. Mr. Ryan was prospecting over some new land that is as yet undeveloped, when he was thrown from his horse. He struck head-foremost against a huge bowlder and sustained a fractured skull. He was found several hours later by a number of men from the camp, and was carried to a nearby hut where he was attend by a physician. An endeavor was made to trepan the skull, but he died while under the influence of the anaesthetic. He leaves a widow and three children, the oldest of whom, Mildred, was recently married to Ralph Greene of Two Harbors. The other children are Henry, aged 18, and Mary, aged 16.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR'S WIFE

MRS BRYCE

Washington, Jan, 16.—Great interest is manifested here, socially, in the wife of James Bryce, the new British ambassador to the United States and in the part which she will take in the social life of the capital.

Mrs. Bryce will not come to the United States as a stranger, for a little more than two years ago she accompanied her husband to this country on his lecture tour and visited a number of cities.

She has never sought social honors, and is not likely that the embassy in Washington will be the scene of the elaborate receptions which marked the Durands' regime.

Mrs. Bryce was formerly Miss Elizabeth Marion Ashton of Fordbank, near Manchester. She was married to Mr. Bryce in 1889, when he was under secretary for foreign affairs. She became a leader among liberal women in British politics and president of the Women's National Liberal association.

TRY THIS FOR BACKACHE.

Get from any prescription pharmacy the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce.

Compound Kargon, one ounce.

Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by eminent authority as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble and Weak Bladder. This combined mixture should act on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Being composed entirely of vegetable ingredients, it is harmless and inexpensive.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent specialist, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

SAYS HE IS NOT TIED UP

Senator-Elect Guggenheim Announces Retirement From Business.

Declares He Proposes to Serve Only People and Nation.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 16.—After he had been formally declared elected United States senator, today, to succeed Thomas M. Patterson, Simon Guggenheim, millionaire smelter man, appeared before the joint session and made the following brief address:

"Senators and Representatives of the State of Colorado: Sincerely do I thank you for the great honor and confidence you have reposed in me in electing me to the highest office in the gift of the state. I appreciate my responsibilities, and in order to give my entire time to the people of our nation and state during the sessions of congress, and also during the recess, I have withdrawn from all active business.

"In accepting the position of senator I do so with the whole purpose of rendering loyal and efficient service to all the people, and to accomplish this object I shall be an active member of the United States senate. I want to be judged by my record, which I hope will be such that all the people of our state may feel that their confidence has not been misplaced.

"At this time I wish to state clearly that I am going to Washington to represent all the people; that I am free and untrammeled and under obligations to no interests, company, railroad or corporation. I am in hearty sympathy with the progress, achievements of our party and President Roosevelt. I favor all legislation adopted by congress to correct industrial evils and abuses, and will support and suggest farther measures that experience and wisdom may demand as necessary."

RECORD SNOW

ing to the railroad as fast as possible. The temperature is about 36 deg. below zero.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Additional complaints were recived yesterday from North Dakota points of the bad fuel situation with reports of either a scarcity or entire exhaustion of the coal supply.

Dispatches also come from President Elliott of the Northern Pacific and President Hill of the Great Northern.

The telegrams were all referred to Commissioner James S. Harlan, who expressed the opinion that both the railroads were doing everythin gpossible without regard to expense to relieve the situation. He said that at some points the roads were face to face with extraordinary weather conditions, with great accumulations of snow.

President Elliott telegraphed that Monday there were loaded at the Head of the Lakes 365 cars of coal, while 843 cars are in transit between Duluth and Jamestown, of which 185 were moving for Fargo and the West, and sixty at Jamestown, for points north. He said that the company was making the clearing of snow and the movement of coal its chief business.

President Hill telegraphed that his company had six freight trains moving.

Kansas City, Jan. 16.—The most severe sleet storm in twenty years prevailed during the night and day in Kansas and the northern portion of Missouri. Telephone and telegraph wires were carried down, rendering wire communication impossible. Trains from the East and North were late today.

BAD MEAT IN MILWAUKEE.

Carloads of It on Sale---People Are Stirred Up.

Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—Milwaukee people are in a state of consternation because it was announced by the health department that several tons of beef from diseased cattle was on the market here for sale at retail. The department confessed its inability to stop the practice. The meat on sale was cut from diseased cattle, the diseased portions being hrown away.

SAUNTRY BACKS HAYES.

New Plan to Temper Steel Financed by Stillwater Man.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 16.—William Sauntry has returned from New York, where he assisted in organizing a company which will finance the scheme to temper steel after the process discovered by Albert Hayes and demonstrated in this and other cities of the United States. Prof. Howe of Columbia university was a witness of recent demonstrations of what the process will do and has issued a statement that the inventor has no doubt a process that will revolutionize steel making in this country.

MOURNERS FIGHT FLAMES.

Panic as Candles Set Fire to Coffin in Chicago Home.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Mourners who were compelled to fight fire which threatened to cremate the corpse of Arthur Kehoe, 21 years old, Monday afternoon, as it lay in a coffin in the parlor of the Kehoe home, 152 Winnebago avenue. The blaze was caused by the proximity of candles to the casket, one of which set fire to the lacework. More than fifty persons were crowded in the room.

Mourners turned toward the coffin, and there were screams as women, pale-stricken, scrambled for safety. Two of the candles by this time had fallen onto the casket and the satin lining about the head of the corpse had burst into flames. The fire was extinguished before it had reached the body.

CONVICTS TO WORK MINES.

Tennessee Buys Coal Property to Provide Work for Prisoners.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 16.—The state has purchased 10,000 acres of coal lands belonging to Mrs. Mathilde G. Kittel of New York, the consideration being $12 an acre. The lands are located in Bledsoe, Cumberland, Van Buren and White counties, and are considered the finest tract in the state. Mines are to be operated with convict labor. It is estimated that here are millions of tons of coal on these lands.

ANCIENT CHICKENS

Are Rescued From the Bill of Fare at Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Thirteen years ago 237 chickens met a sudden and violent death. They were interred in a cold storage plant and until yesterday had rested in peace. Then they were dragged forth, loaded into a wagon and driven out into the world for sale at the cheap restaurants.

Solomon Van Prag, chief restaurant inspector, was standing at Clark and Madison streets when the driver made a false move which landed him in trouble. He drove to the windward side of the restaurant inspector.

Van Prag's olfactory nerves quivered for an instant under the sudden shock, and then flashed a message to the brain that was reposing calmly under Sol's derby. Van Prag jumped into the street, and, after staring wildly about him for an instant, located the cause of his disquiet. He jumped to the wagon and seized the driver by the collar.

"Drive to the city laboratory at a gallop!" he commanded. When the wagon drew up in front of that building a medical man was called. After he had examined each chicken he said that life was quite extinct.

"Where were they discovered—in a glacial drift?" asked the doctor.

The driver of the wagon then produced a receipt which showed that the chickens were not prehistoric, and therefore, were of no use to any of the universities. Inspector Van Prag said he would get out a warrant for the driver and the commission men who sold him the chickens. The chickens are said to have been sold for 2 cents a pound.

HARRY THAW'S RELATIVE

Has Been Expelled From a Swell Club In Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa. Jan.16.—Henry Collins, who married Miss Burd Thaw, has been expelled from the Pittsburg club, to which the wealthiest and most fashionable men in the city belong. The governors of the club of which Harry Kendall Thaw is a member, informed Mr. Collins that they strongly disapproved love slaps given on the necks and shoulders of women in decollette gowns, particularly when the women are the club's guests. The club gave a dance, a few nights ago, when the alleged indiscretions took place.

HE TRIED FOUR TIMES TO COMMIT SUICIDE.

St. Joseph, Mich., Jan. 16.—After shooting and fatally wounding his wife and Deputy Sheriff Rodney Pearl, Edward L. Moore, a farmer near here, tried four different ways of committing suicide, failing in each.

Moore shot himself in the head, tried to cut an artery in his left wrist with a dull knife, slashed his throat, and then set fire to his barn, to which he had fled. He fell from the hayloft to the floor and was badly burned before neighbors dragged him from the flames.

Moore sat at a window watching for his wife, whom he felt sure would return to get personal belongings he had refused to allow her to take when they separated three days ago. His revolver was in readiness and, when the deputy sheriff stepped up to the door and knocked, Moore threw it open and shot the officer in the chest, following with two shots into the shoulder. Then turning to his wife, who was screaming hysterically, Moore shot her through the breast.

Running into the barn, he climbed to the hayloft, refilled his revolver with fresh cartridges and attempted to fire them into his own head. Only one bullet made a serious wound, and he did not lose consciousness. Taking his knife, he hacked at an artery in his left wrist. This proved too slow and he slashed several gashes in his neck.

Both methods failed, and, striking a match, he set fire to the hay.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Woman Imagined Husband and Children Had Been Murdered.

Norway—Alleging that her husband and her children had been murdered, Mrs. William Jenkinson, wife of a farmer living a short distance east of the village, startled the authorities of Stephenson, to whom she appealed for aid, and sent them post-haste on what proved to be a wild goose chase. It appears that Mrs. Jenkinson, who had been on an errand to the village, was returning home. As she approached the house she saw an object lying close to the gate and, imagining that it was the body of a man, she hurried back to town and gave the alarm, incidentally reciting that her husband and returned from the woods; that he and the children had been murdered by her husband's half-brother, and that she had seen the body of her husband lying near the road. A team was requisitioned in a hurry, and Deputy Sheriff Carley, Coroner William Elder and a physician started for the scene of the supposed crime. The officials were unable to discover any trace of a man in the road or any blood marks in the snow. The only object they found was a half-burned piece of log near the gate. Entering the house they saw, instead of the bloody and lifeless forms of the youngsters, Jenkinson's half-brother carrying one of the children in his arms, while the others were playing about in lusty fashion. Mrs. Jenkinson has been subject to attacks of nervousness lately, which is held to explain her hallucination.

St. Ignace—With spars, arches and all upper works gone, the wrecking tug Favorite, which during her long career on the lakes has saved millions of dollars' worth of floating property, lies a charred and blackened hulk in the bay at St. Ignace, with only her smokestack visible. The Favorite was well provided with the means of extinguishing fires when in commission, with steam up and a crew aboard. But she had been laid up for the winter, her boilers blown off and all of the crew but two were gone. Capt. Cunning and an assistant were at work in the hold when falling sparks and embers apprised them that the boat was on fire above them. The origin of the blaze is unknown.

Munising—Robert C. Mackenzie, for the past three years in the general mercantile business in this village, has gone into voluntary bankruptcy. His principal creditor is Lauerman Bros., of Marinette, Wis., to whom he owes over $7,000. Outside of this firm his largest creditor is a concern to which he owes $1,500. The other claims against him are small. Mr. Mackenzie attributes his failure to buying too heavily last fall and to too much credit. The stock is in the hands of the sheriff of Alger county.

Menominee—Adam Pleckinger of Wausaukee, will sue the Milwaukee railway for $20,000 damages on account of the death of his son, John, who was killed in a collision near Quinnesec Junction.

"Guilty of murder in the second degree." Such was the verdict rendered by the jury in the case of the People vs. James Lahti, charged with the murder of Leander Isaacson at Metropolitan, Dickinson county, the evening of December 24. The trial was a short one and the evidence as presented by Prosecuting Attorney Cook was conclusive. It was the sole aim of the defense, apparently, to establish that there had been provocation but a short time before the crime was committed. It was established that the men had quarreled upon several occasions; that Isaacson had assaulted the prisoner several months prior to the commitment of the crime, and that Lahti had made threats to kill Isaacson. Evidence was also introduced to the effect that Isaacson and his friends had followed Lahti out of the saloon the night of the murder, and the prisoner swore that he had been assaulted by Isaacson and his companions a few moments before used his knife with such deadly effort.

Iron Mountain—Billy McLain, known in various localities in this peninsula as a former pugilist and reputed burglar, has fallen heir to $50,000 by the death of a relative in England. Billy was one of the first occupants of the Dickinson county prison. He reformed several years ago and has been treading the narrow path at Detroit.

Marquette—The first hunting fatality of the new year is reported from Luce county. Thomas Young, aged 23, a newcomer from England, was the victim. He was shot and mortally wounded by the accidental discharge of his shot gun.

TREASURE SEEKERS

Foiled In Effort to Get Gold From Old Wreck.

Mexico City, Jan. 16.—According to a dispatch to the Herald from Guadalajara, hope of securing the gold buried in the hulk of the steamer Golden Gate, sunk on the Colima coast, is at an end for at least a year. The 250-foot pier built from the beach to the wreck, boilers, centrifugal pump and other equipment, built by the persons who undertook to regain the treasure, have been swept into the Pacific ocean. The loss of the pier and machinery was due to the storm that raged along the Pacific coast of Mexico last week.

B. F. Richardson of Philadelphia, J. E. Phillips of Denver, and S. F. Phillips of Danville, Ill., were interested in the gold-seeking expedition.

The Golden Gate was beached on the coast of Colima in 1861. The vessel was on her way from San Francisco to New York, and carried $1,500,000.

LOAN SAME AS GIFT.

Rule When a Diamond Ring Passes In an Engagement.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Here is a new and horrible warning for the masculine lover. It is a precedent established by a court that loaning a diamond ring to a sweetheart is tantamount to giving it to her, and that it cannot be reclaimed.

The decision was given yesterday by a jury in Municipal Judge Blake's court, in a case brought against Mrs. Bessie Gormack, by Fred G. Wright, who asserted he loaned the former Miss Bessie Fog a diamond. Wright replevined the sparkler. The woman brought suit to recover, asserting it was an engagement pledge, given while the two were lovers, previous to her marriage.

NO DEAL, SAYS SPOONER.

His Sugar Company Has Not Sold to American Refining.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—According to Philip L. Spooner there is absolutely no truth in the report from Jonesville, Wis., that the American Sugar Refining company had taken over the Rock County Sugar company, at Janesville, the United States Sugar company at Madison and the Chippewa Falls Sugar company. Spooner is a large stockholder in the Janesville company, and says that if any such proposition had been made he would know it.

BOY HUNTER IS DEAD.

Companions of Young Monicle Held For Criminal Carelessness.

Keokuk, Iowa, Jan. 16.—Martin Griffith and Willie Lafevre, boys, have been ordered held by the coroner's jury on a charge of carelessness, which resulted in the death of Eddie Monicle.

The three had gone hunting on Sunday, and as they were ascening a flight of steps in West Keokuk, the guns which were carried by the Griffith and Lafevre boy were accidentally discharged, the shot tearing off an arm and penetrating the abdomen of Monicle.

The boy lingered throughout the night, but died early in the morning. All of the boys are under 16.

THE SNOW NEAR GRAND MARAIS

Is Reported to Be the Worst In Many Years.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Parties coming in from the vicinity of Grand Marais report the snow near there the worst in years and many trees have been broken down from its weight. The first snow was very wet and froze to the trees, making it possible for the snow since to stick, and in many places a canopy has been formed connecting the trees, and the weight has bent them over and broken many. Wolves are also numerous this season.

Work connecting up the new hoisting and distributing apparatus at the coal dock is progressing favorably and will be completed in a couple of weeks.

Snow in the vicinity of Drummond is reported to be about four feet in depth on the level and is delaying the logging badly.

About eight inches of new snow fell in this vicinity the first of the week.

L. J. Bruitt was called to Sault Ste. Marie yesterday by the serious illness of his mother.

The work of getting the new Duluth & Iron Road power plant into operation has been delayed owing to the accidental breaking of a piece of the machinery, which will delay the work until the machinery is replaced.

NO DAMAGES FOR GAGNON

Jury Returns Verdict Favoring Roller Rink Proprietors.

Two Juries Busy With Other Personal Injury Cases.

Edward Gagnon failed to recover any damages from Shea & LeBeau, proprietors of the Temple Roller rink, for the injuries he claims to have received in a fall on the floor of the rink, due to the breaking of his skate.

The verdict in favor of the rink proprietors was returned by the jury late yesterday afternoon, but was not opened until this morning.

Gagnon claimed that the rink people were liable for his injuries, because they furnished him defective skates. The defense introduced testimony tending to show that Gagnon had been doing stunts on the skates that were likely to put them out of business. The proprietors claimed contributory negligence.

Gagnon sued for $3,000.

In Judge Ensign's room the personal injury case of Claus Puck against the Duluth Street Railway company was expected to reach the jury this afternoon. The action was one in which Mr. Puck claims damages for injuries received by coming in contact with a street car while attempting to stop a runaway hack team on Superior street, near Second avenue west, last fall.

Mr. Puck claims that the motorman did not give warning of the car approaching the corner and that his accident was due to the negligence of the motorman in not stopping the car quick enough.

The company, in its defense, produced several witnesses both on the car and on the street in the vicinity of the accident, who testified that the gong was rung loudly before the hack team and the car came together, throwing Mr. Puck on the fender. The motorman testified that the power had been thrown off before he saw the runaway team coming and that as soon as he saw an accident imminent he rang his gong and reversed the car, bringing it to a standstill as the rig struck it.

When the noon recess was taken the street railway company, through its attorney, moved for a directed verdict in favor of the defendant, on the ground that there had not been any evidence produced to justify the action. Whether the case really reaches the jury depended this noon on the ruling of the court on the motion mentioned.

The case of Frank N. Jackson against Fred C. Norlander is on trial by a jury in Judge Dibell's room. The action concerns an alleged breach of contract and about $500 is involved.

The $170 claim of Charles A. Peterson against the Charles Gasper estate, was wound up this morning when judgment was ordered by Judge Cant in favor of the administrator, W. G. Joerns, Mr. Peterson not prosecuting the action further. The claim concerned a promissory note claimed by Mr. Peterson to have been given him by Mr. Gasper. The amount of the claim was allowed by the probate court and Mr. Joerns, the administrator appealed from the allowance, claiming that the note did not bear Mr. Gasper's signature. The case was tried before a jury recently and resulted in a disagreement. When it was called for a second trial this morning Mr. Peterson moved for a dismissal, which was denied. The jury was waived and, neither side presenting any evidence the court ordered judgment in favor of the administrator. Mr. Peterson claims that he wished to drop the case as further litigation would cost him more than the amount of the claim.

The personal injury case of Richard Evans against the Dunphy Lumber company was to have been tried in Judge Cant's room this afternoon. The case is one in which Evans, who was formerly employed as a sawyer in the company's mill at Wright, Carlton county, sued for $15,780 damages for injuries claimed to have been received in being crowded by the carriage against the saw. He claims that the saw cut the muscles and tendons and took out a piece of bone in his right leg, causing permanent injuries.

Moorhead, Minn., Jan. 16.—John Holst, a machinist in the roundhouse here, met with a terrible death. He was engaged in repairing a leaky flue in the boiler, when it burst, covering him from head to foot with scalding steam. A companion, who was assisting him was also injured, but not seriously. Immediately after the accident Holst was removed to the hospital, where it was found that his flesh was literally parboiled. He lived several hours, however, remaining conscious until his death. He was 22 years old and unmarried, and his home was at Tower Lake, Ward county, N. D.

According to statements of the division superintendent there is strong evidence that the accident was due to the work of wreckers. A fire started immediately and the baggage car, dining car and two Pullman sleepers were consumed.

The body of John C. Durbin of Harrisburg, Pa., who died at Palm Beach, Fla., was partially cremated. The engineer says he saw five men hiding near by just as his engine hit the switch.

EMBRACED YOUNG WOMAN.

Unknown Man Adopts the Role of "Jack the Hugger."

Duluth has a "Jack the hugger."

Several young women have felt his soft embrace and have hurried home afterwards to accomplish a fit of hysterics.

The local Jack the hugger does his principal hugging in the neighborhood of First street and First and Second avenues west. So far as is known, he has allowed his attentions to female pedestrains to end with the hugging, but just the same his victims have complained bitterly of his conduct, but have shrunk from the publicity of reporting the matter to the police.

Last evening, about 8:30, a young woman who makes her home at a centrally located boarding house was followed up First avenue west, from Superior street, by a tall man with a dark mustache. When she reached the alley between First and Second streets on First avenue, the fellow caught up to her and without speaking a word, threw his arms about her.

Having accomplished the embrace to his evident satisfaction, the hugger departed, going down the alley at a quick pace. The young woman was so startled at the time that she did not make an audible sound. After the first shock of his attack, she was overcome with fear, however, and it was with difficulty that she reached her home.

Once within a circle of friends, however, she was able to relate her adventures, observing incidentally that her assailant must have been a novice at the gentle art of hugging, because he did a very bad job. While it was dark, she was able to make out the fellow's features fairly well. She is positive that she had never seen him before. She stated that he was tall, and dark and had a black moustache. He wore a soft hat and a long coat.

The young woman says that the dark man did not press his attentions beyond the hugging stage. She declined to permit the use of her name in connection with this article.

On another evening this week, another young woman was hugged by the same man. This time, the adventure occurred on Second avenue west between First and Second streets and, as he did last night, the hugger escaped down the dark alley.

Duluth Rinks Keep Up Winning Gait in Morning Play.

In the most sensational game yet played in the bonspiel, A. H. Smith of Duluth defeated "Bob" Dunbar, "the world's greatest curler," who ran up a score of 66 out of a possible 72 at St. Paul a week ago, by a score of 1 up, this morning, the final tally being 11 to 10.

The game was closely watched by a good crowd of spectators throughout its progress, and at the sensational finish cheers for the winning rink went up heartily.

Smith started out strong, and had a lead of 8 to 1 in the fourth end. At this point, the Duluth skip went to pieces badly, and in the next three frames the St. Paul rink piled up a score of nine points, leaving them one up. In the tenth Smith got back into form, and placed two stones, giving him a lead around the guard, and by a pretty wick succeeded in knocking out Smith's rock and dropping his own where it had been. Smith's supporters all but gave up hope, but they did not know their man. In order to win it was up to the Duluth man to make practically the same shot as Dunbar, the relative positions of the stones remaining unchanged, and he executed the play beautifully, placing the last and winning stone, and pulling out a victory by a score of one up.

"I don't care if we don't win another game in the bonspiel," said Mr. Smith after it was over.

Duncan of Duluth won out over Graham of Calumet by a score of 14 to 5, and Hurdon, defeated Rochon in the preliminary round of the contest by a score of 4 up, the final tally being 11 to 7. Macauley, of the Western curling club defeated Weir, also of Calumet, by the same score. Stephen Jones won a decisive victory over "Doc" McGregor of St. Paul the final tally being 17 to 4. This was somewhat of a surprise, as McGregor had defeated Labatt the crack Minneapolis last evening.

In the Canadian Soo event Reedal of Phillips defeated Macrae of Duluth in a poorly played game, 13 to 9. Macrae's rink was in decidedly bad form and did not play up to their usual standard in any respect. Walter Brewer defeated the Peck rink 10 to 8, and Lorimer of St. Paul won out over Hewitt of West Duluth, 11 to 9.

Some interesting contests are scheduled for this afternoon. Duncan will play Labatt, Dunbar will meet MacLeod of Duluth; and Brewer and Myron of Duluth will oppose each other, in the third and semi-final round of the Duluth Curling club event.

Carson of Winnipeg will meet Hurdon of Duluth in the third round of the St. Paul Jobbers' event, and Reedal of Phillips will line up against McLeod of Minneapolis. In the second round A. H. Smith will meet A. K. Smith of Superior.

second, placed a guard. Delfiel dropped one toward the edge of the circle, and the following stones failed to materially change the situation.

When the two veteran skips were about to throw, Smith's stone was placed near the center, guarded by another a little way over the hog-line. Three of Dunbar's stones were grouped a foot or so to the side of the center stone. Dunbar, by a magnificent shot, curved his stone around the guard, and by a pretty wick succeeded in knocking out Smith's rock and dropping his own where it had been. Smith's supporters all but gave up hope, but they did not know their man. In order to win it was up to the Duluth man to make practically the same shot as Dunbar, the relative positions of the stones remaining unchanged, and he executed the play beautifully, placing the last and winning stone, and pulling out a victory by a score of one up.

COMPANY SELLS ITS HOLDINGS

Musser-Sauntry Interests Go Out of Lumber Business.

A large sale of timber lands in this vicinity that is of interest to many of the local lumbermen and timber dealers was the transfer, last Saturday, of all the holdings of the Musser, Sauntry Land & Logging company of Stillwater, Minn., to the David Towzer company, William Kaiser and W. F. Mackey. The consideration, which is now stated, is said to have been a large one.

The sale comprises the Musser-Sauntry standing timber on the St. Croix river and its tributaries, in Northern Wisconsin, the live stock, camps, equipment, steamboats, etc.

The deal is said to be an important one for Stillwater, as it will mean that the timber, instead of going to Muscatine, Iowa, and Rock Island, Ill., to be sawed, will be manufactured at Stillwater mills. There is said to be enough timber in the deal to keep the Stillwater mills running for the next eight or ten years.

EVERY CITIZEN SHOULD READ IT

Article Published in Herald of Importance to Duluth.

Many favorable comments were heard among Duluth business men today, on the article in The Herald last evening, on the system of railroad taxation in vogue in Minnesota.

"The article was a very thorough treatment of the subject," said one prominent attorney who did not care to have his name used, "and it should be read by every public spirited citizen of Duluth. This railroad question is one of supreme importance to the welfare of Duluth and every citizen should be thoroughly familiar with it. The article in last evening's paper says about all there is to be said on it."

FERGUSON SELLS OUT

F. S. Sleeper Buys Interest in Knudsen-Ferguson Fruit Co.

Concern Will be Known as the Knudsen Fruit Company.

Frank S. Sleeper, formerly secretary of the Fitzsimmons-Palmer Co., has bought out the interest of E. M. Ferguson in the Knudsen-Ferguson Fruit Co. Articles of incorporation will be drawn up under the name of the Knudsen Fruit company. Messrs. Knudsen and Ferguson will continue in partnership in a business way in other matters they are interested in, but Mr. Ferguson will no longer have anything to do with the fruit company in Duluth.

At the present time the latter is in the South on a business trip. It is expected that he will return to Duluth the latter part of next week. He was president of the company, and for several years has been very prominent in Duluth business circles, displaying considerable activity in the interests of Duluth as a whole, and serving a term as president of the Commercial club. It was reported along the street that he intended taking up his residence in Central America, the better to look after business interests there, but Mr. Knudsen denies that there is any truth to this report. Mr. Ferguson, he says, will continue to reside in Duluth, although business matters may keep him out of the city a good portion of the time.

Aside from the fact that Mr. Ferguson will no longer be connected with the fruit company, there will be no changes in the wholesale house, aside from the fact that a new set of officers will be chosen after articles of incorporation have been filed. All the men employed in the establishment will, it is understood, be continued in their present places.

ACCOMMODATING CRAB.

Visitors in Seville see women carrying baskets full of crabs' claws, says Le Temps. The claws are cooked and people nibble at them, more for fun than for sustenance, just as the Russians nibble sunflower seeds. But what is this crustacean? What becomes of the rest of him—especially, if a crawlish, of his tail?

As a matter of fact the crawfish has no part in the business. The carrasquenas—as the claws are called—are taken from a salt water crab, the Gelas mus tangeri, which lives along the shores of Morocco, Spain and Portugal. Each little crab, with his one little wife, has a little cave for a home; and adopting the Arab estimate of the other sex, he usually keeps his wife shut up inside the cave, meanwhile staying about the threshold himself and making a brave show with his big claws.

When the tide runs out the crabfishers prowl along the beach looking for crab holes. Either the crab is stalking up and down seeking what he may devour, and thus showing wheather he has fine claws, or he is still at home, and the size of his doorway indicates the size of the householder. In one case the fisherman cuts off his retreat by blocking his front door with mud. In the other case he digs him out. Anyway, he deprives him of his pincers and sets him at liberty—to grow some more.

Right here appears the happiest feature of the whole affair; for the pincers are not torn away from the crab at all, instead he presents them to the fisherman—perhaps even with his compliments. It is a fact, easily demonstrable, that the crab can detach his claw by a muscular effort, thus making no hemorrhage, but leaving the stump in such condition that a new claw is soon grown. The fishermen simply take Mr. Crab by the hand, whereupon he lets go, leaves the claw with them, and runs off home without it. And as the claw is no longer of any use to him or to anybody else in the water, and as it is salable and edible, the fisherman naturally takes it home and sells it.

ONE USE FOR A GRAVE.

William Gowdy, a nephew of John K. Gowdy, formerly consul general to Paris, is a candidate for county assessor in Rushville, Ind., says the Boston Transcript. Democratic leaders questioned his eligibility, charging that he had not been a freeholder for four years, as required by law. Young Gowdy, however, proved that during the period named he had owned half a lot in the Rushville cemetery, and Attorney General Miller has decided that the possession of this "six feet of earth" constitutes eligibility in the eye of the law.

FORTIFICATIONS BILL IS PASSED UNCHANGED.

Washington, Jan. 16.—When the house today resumed consideration of the fortifications appropriation bill, the amendment offered yesterday by Mr. Keifer of Ohio, that $100,000 be appropriated for the construction of coast batteries on the Hawaiian islands, was defeated.

The bill then was passed, no amendment of any kind or nature having been made changing any of the amounts in the budget. It carries $5,411,883, which is $357,390 more than was appropriated for the same purposes at the last session of congress.

PLANT MEMORY.

Plant memory is a problem for the inquisitive botanist, says the Kansas City Journal. In 1901 a plant allied to the squash and the pumpkin was taken to New York from the desert of Sonora in Mexico, and since then it has been kept—without watering—in a strange climate 3,000 miles from home. During the six weeks of rain in the desert the plant grows its leaves and flowers and perfects its seed. Then it dries up and leaves only a water filled gourd, which a thick, hard shell seals against animals and evaporation. The transplanted specimen still remembers the rainy season of six weeks. It wakes, sends out rootes, stems and leaves, and then dries up again until the following year.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens a Trifle Bearish, But Small Northwest Receipts Stop Fall.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—The wheat market today opened a trifle easier and trading was active. The bearish features were a decline of prices at Liverpool, and favorable weather for the winter wheat in the Southwest. These things were offset, however, by the small receipts in the Northwest which formed the low record mark for the season. Prices were a trifle firmer at the end of the first half hour. May wheat opened unchanged to a shade lower at 76@76⅛c to 76¼c, sold down to 75⅞@76c and then advanced to 76⅜@76¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 184 cars against 340 cars last week and 465 cars a year ago.

In sympathy with oats the market was steady all day. The high point for May was 76⅜. The close was steady with May up a shade at 76⅛@¼.

The small local receipts of corn, which were less than one-half of yesterday's arrivals, caused a steady feeling in the corn pit. May corn opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 47⅞@48c and sold at 48@48⅛c. Local receipts were 210 cars with none of contract grade.

The market was strengthened by the strong feeling in the oats market. The close was firm with May ⅜c higher at 44⅜c.

The oats market was active and strong. Leading bulls bought heavily and pit traders followed on. May oats opened a shade to ⅛c to ¼c higher at 37⅛c to 37¼c and sold at 37½c. Local receipts were 76 cars.

The provisions market opened firm because of a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. Later the market weakened on realizing sales. May pork opened 5c higher at $16.70 and declined to $16.57½. Lard was up 5c at $9.60 and sold down to $9.52½. Ribs were 2½c lower at $9.20 and sold at $9.17½.

Close: Wheat—May, 76¼@¼c; July, 75¾c. Corn—May, 44¼c; July, 44¾c. Oats—May, 37⅜c; July, 34½@⅝c. Pork—May, $16.65; July, $16.70. Lard—May, $9.50; July, $9.55. Ribs—May, $9.15; July, $9.25@9.27½. Rye—Cash, 65@68c. Barley—Cash, 44@56c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 73c; No. 3 red, 70@73c. No. 2 hard, 72⅝@74c; No. 3 hard, 66½@73½c; No. 1 northern, 79@81c; No. 2 northern, 75@79c; No. 3 spring, 70@78c. Corn—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 41¼@½c. Oats—No. 2, 36c; No. 3, 35½c.

Minneapolis Wheat.

Minneapolis, Jan. 16.—Close: Wheat—May 78¼c; July, 78¾c; No. 1 hard, 81¾c; No 1 northern, 79¾c; No. 2 northern, 77½c; No. 3 northern, 74½@75½c.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Jan. 16.—Millers report a quiet flour market. Buyers are showing great indifference and appear to have increased their bearish attitude as to quotations. The Eastern distributing markets are not in good shape, there seems to be considerable cheap flour there. Shipments 48,586 barrels. First patents, $4.20@4.30; second patents, $4.05@4.15; first clears, $3.25@3.35; second clears, $2.40@2.60.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—It may be that there is more of a fighting trade developing in this market. The market shared in the strength of coarse grains and it was in a fair way to work higher when at least two local leaders offered enough to give the market some set-back at the close. Sentiment still very bearish, but market not so one-sided as it has been for the past week.

Corn—The one important consideration of soft weather, with more rain and snow west causing light receipts for this market, was the bull influence under this market, helped possibly by the strength in oats. Looks as if the supporting influences about discounted and the market due for a setback if the West gets a few days of good winter weather.

Oats—Bull side of oats popular for the present. Recognized bull leader has large following. Natural conditions are helpful in buying on any moderate reaction, there is likely to be enough strength in cash situation if soft weather continues to cause renewed buying on any moderate reaction.

Provisions—There is a lot of talk of 7 cent hogs, but we think the situation suggests conservative profit taking.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market conditions up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

DIRT AND DUST.

One of the most important causes of modern physical deterioration, says the Grand Magazine, is the lack of open air life, the common lot of all city dwellers. The greatest surgical discovery of the nineteenth century was dirt, matter in the wrong place.

The greatest medical discovery that will be made in this century will be dust. It takes at least two hours in fresh open air each day to counteract the effects of the dust we inhale, without estimating the wear and tear of the tissues due to nature's excretory effort to intercept this terrible enemy. If we would evade this death dealing dust, the cause alike of consumption, sore throat, cold in the head and pneumonia, it is essential to betake ourselves to parks and open air spaces, green fields and country lanes.

Many diseases of the alimentary canal are directly brought about by the contamination of food which has been exposed in a dust polluted atmosphere, and, in these days of motor cars, far more elaborate precautions ought to be taken to protect milk, meat, fruit and vegetables from dust and flies, which, after feeding on garbage of all kinds, bestow their attention on milk and other foods displayed at shop doors and in other unprotected places.

An important factor is the length of dresses. When skirts are allowed to trail in the dust, they catch up innumerable colonies of microbes and transfer them alike to public meeting places and private dwelling houses.

But it is not enough to go out of doors if one goes no further than the city streets. One must get to the parks or the fields.

A SUNFLOWER FARM.

A sunflower farm is rather a novelty in the agricultural line. An Iowa farmer this past season planted five acres, all in one field, to sunflowers. It made the most gorgeous crop in the state, says the New York Sun.

The seed was put in with a corn planter and the field was afterward cultivated as if it had been a corn field. The entire crop was contracted for in advance by a seed firm.

The yield was about 1,500 pounds of seed to the acre. The price was from $1.75 to $2 a hundredweight.

Even at the lower price this would bring a revenue of more than $26 an acre. As a sort of extra profit the stalks made good kindling wood for winter mornings.

Sunflower seed is used as a stock food, and is said to be liked by parrots. It yields a good oil also. There are several sunflower farms in the Middle West.

OUTPOURING OF STOCKS

In Final Half Hour Caused Prices to Decline Again.

The Tendency Was Downward Throughout the Whole Day.

New York, Jan. 16.—Narrow fluctuations on a small volume of business characterized the opening dealings in stocks today. Gains and losses were divided and there were few changes of significance. A rise of 2¼c in Virginia Iron made a conspicuous showing.

Stocks moved up a uniform fraction until the heavy sales of Southern Railway on statements of new capital requirements induced realizing. Southern Railway fell back 2 points and the advances elsewhere were largely shaded. Northwestern preferred sagged 4 and Delaware & Hudson, Iowa Central, Westinghouse Electric and United States Railway Investment preferred 1 each. Smelting preferred rose 1 and Virginia Iron 3¼.

The precipitate selling of the Southern Railway stocks unsettled the list and turned prices downward. Erie showed closest sympathy, but there was evidence of resistance in a few stocks. St. Paul after losing a one point advance, recovered it again. Southern Railway fell 3½ and the preferred 5⅝; Erie 2⅝; Reading 1⅝; Erie first and second preferred, Canadian Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Colorado Fuel and North American 1⅛ to 1⅜; and Louisville & Nashville, Rock Island, Great Northern Ore certificates, Union Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred, People's Gas and Smelting 1 each. New York, Chicago & St. Louis first preferred sold at a decline of 9. The whole market was weak at noon. Bonds were irregular.

Extensive selling of Amalgamated Copper encouraged more aggressive bear operations and the entire list was depressed materially. Scarcely any stock dealt in escaped a loss of a point or more and the area of weakness was extended. Great Northern preferred sold down 2; Amalgamated Copper 1⅝; Atlantic Coast Line 1½; Atchison 1⅜.

An outbreak of liquidation with transactions on a large scale developed after 1 o'clock and prices ran off rapidly. The high priced railroads and specialties were severely affected at this time, whereas, in the earlier break, the low priced stocks were the chief sufferers. Anaconda broke 6¼; Northwestern 3½; Reading 3; St. Paul and Canadian Pacific 3¾ each; Great Northern preferred, Amalgamated Copper, Colorado Fuel and Lead 2½ each; Delaware & Hudson, Rock Island preferred Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Pullman 2 each; Atchison and Smelting 1¾ each; Chesapeake & Ohio 1⅝; Pennsylvania 1½. Recoveries ranging up to nearly a point were made before 2 o'clock. St. Paul and Northwestern rallied 1½ each.

The market closed active. The rally reached considerable proportions, but under a renewed outpouring of the stocks many prices touched the lowest of the day in the last half hour. Northwestern fell 4; New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred 4½; Reading 3⅝; Delaware & Hudson 3½; Reading second preferred 3; Missouri Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line and Pressed Steel Car 2; Rock Island 2; New York Central 1⅜; Wabash preferred 1½. Bears again bought heavily at the decline to cover shorts and rallied prices, some of the active leaders recovering 1½ points.

Stock Gossip.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co: Today's market was very weak and the liquidation on a big scale. The heavy selling in Southern Railway issues began the movement and it soon extended to all the active list. The lack of support was noticeable and the buying mostly by shorts. There were some attempts at rallies, but they did not last long and the market closed not far from the lowest. The market is not in shape for any marked advance.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Dealings today were rather dull and the market had a sagging tendency. Rumors of reduction in Southern Railway preferred dividend caused heavy selling in this stock and the common sympathized—in fact, liquidation became general, and the standard issues suffered most of all. Before the close support was given the market, and the list rallied to some extent. The close was irregular and would indicate something better than a trading market for the present.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 16.—The cotton market opened barely steady at an advance of 6@8 points, in response to liberal sales, bearish reports of the average sales, bearish reports of the sales. There was some irregularity immediately after the call, but the market showed the absence of bull support and during the middle of the morning sold off to a net decline of about 16 points on the active months under bear pressure and a renewal of liquidation, which was promoted by the big estimate for tomorrow's receipts at Houston. Trading was moderately active.

Copper Gossip.

Boiston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Stocks were heavily sold all day today. Amalgamated Copper ran off 2 points on a rumor of an issue of 150,000,000 new stock, but we think the real reason is that the dividend tomorrow will be only 2 per cent instead of 2½ expected. Osceola was steadily bought all day and closed strong. Somebody seems to want all the Shannon and it holds better than anything else. Copper Range had a sharp break and after selling at 95 was offered down to 92½ before there was a bid. The rally at the close was caused by good buying. Altogether we consider that the buying of Copper Range today was better than the selling. Tomorrow the market will be erratic until the Amalgamated dividend is declared.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Jan. 16.—Barret & Zimmerman's report: The first mid-week auction sale of the year, at this market was held today. About ten thousands of mixed consignments being offered for sale, all of which found ready buyers. Farm chunks and farm mares had the call, while in all classes except light wagon and delivery classes, the movement was sufficient to clear receipts. Owing to the high price offered for heavy horses, farmers have sold themselves short and are therefore forced to buy horses for their own use on the market. Indications are that there will be a shortage of heavy and medium weight horses all during year and that values will be much higher. W. E. Watson, John Montgomery, H. Herrick, E. M. Williams, J. E. Thomas, I. S. Hallenbeck, George Harris were among the prominent shippers on the market today.

A grammarian was talking about grammatical slips that, through their magnitude, merited immortality, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

"There is one sentence," he said, "that has lived for a hundred years on account of its tremendous incorrectness. In this sentence every word, every single word, is ungrammatical. It's hard to beat that isn't it?"

"The sentence was spoken by a little girl in a sheep pasture. Looking at the flocks, she said to the shepherd:

"'It heme sheeps yourn?'"

"This sentence, with every word incorrect, holds the record in its class."

DARK REPORTS FROM DISASTER

Latest Message Makes Number of Kingston Dead 500.

London, Jan. 16.—The following cablegram has been received from a press representative who accompanied Sir Alfred Jones and his party to Jamaica: "Fires broke again tonight. The negroes are looting the rumshops. At least 500 persons have been killed. There are weird and terrible scenes. Forty-five invalid soldiers were burned to death in the military hospital. Several shocks were felt today."

The above dispatch is not dated.

CHARIVARI CASE ENDED BY JUDGE

Richard Hamilton's Trial for Killing Doctor Closed by Acquittal.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sensational murder trial of Richard Hamilton in the Marinette circuit court, came to an abrupt end at noon today, when Judge Hastings instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

Hamilton was tried for the killing of Dr. Frank Conover, a well-known physician at Crivitz, Wis., whom he shot during a charivari several months ago. Conover dying two hours afterward.

The state tried to make a strong case against Hamilton, but the court ruled that there was no intention to shoot Conover.

THE MEDICAL JEAMES.

Lancet: A friend of mine had occasion to go often to an eminent physician," and said to Jeames: "You will be tired of opening the door for me." "Not at all, sir," was the gracious reply; "you are but a hunit in the hocean." Another Jeames was accustomed to say during his master's occasional absences: "You had better try hopposite. There's a very respectable man hopposite as we often sends to when Sir William is habsent. His name is Jenner."

MINE INSPECTOR HIT HARD AS TO HONESTY.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 16.—At the national convention of the United Mine Workers today, Secretary Wilson read a resolution which attacked State Mine Inspector Epperson, and expressed doubt as to his honesty and ability. The recent mine disaster at Clinton was referred to especially. The resolution was referred to the committee.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Former Actor, Up for Drunkeness, Must Leave Town.

Just Released After Serving Thirty Days for Same Offense.

Thirst is a mighty factor in the life of Walter Twohy, one time actor, now a confirmed drunkard and occasional lumberjack, who came up for the fourth time this morning before Judge Windom on a charge of drunkenness.

Twohy had just been released from the county jail, where he served a 30-day sentence for his third offense along this line yesterday, and it only took him one night to get tanked up again so badly that he was forced to spend the night in the police station.

"I'll get out of town immediately, yer honor," said Twohey. "You give me this chance once before and I stayed away a year. If ye'll let me go now, I'll quit this burg quick, and I'll not turn up here again for another year."

The court has no alternative in a fourth offense of drunkenness case except to inflict the 60-day sentence, so the judge sentenced him to two months at hard labor, but agreed to give him one hour to get out of town.

"I'll have to git started quick then, judge," said Twohey, and left in a hurry.

Twohey was for years an actor at the Variety and Parlor theaters here, and by reason of his entertaining powers has made himself very popular with the men in the various lumber and mining camps, where he has been employed on the short intervals between his sprees. He never has been known to develop any vicious traits while under the influence of liquor, and in all his police court experience, a charge of disorderly conduct has never been added to the drunkenness accusation.

MEASURES FOR MINNESOTA

Senator Nelson Gives Notice of Two Dam Amendments.

Washington, Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Nelson gave notice today that he would press the following amendments to the rivers and harbors bill when that measure reaches the senate:

For the construction of Sandy Lake reservoir dam, without a lock for steamboats, $75,000.

For the construction of a low reservoir dam at Gull Lake and ditches between Gull Lake and Round Lake and between Round Lake and Long Lakes, $70,000.

Pure food laws work no change in Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder. It was always pure and wholesome, and always will be.

DEMURRAGE APPEAL MADE

Lumbermen Ask President to Recommend Legislation.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The president today heard an appeal in favor of federal legislation for reciprocal demurrage to meet the situation caused by the lack of railroad equipment and the delay in moving cars when loaded.

The appeal was presented by the executive committee of the national reciprocal demurrage convention recently held at Chicago, headed by Victor H. Beckman, of Seattle, Wash., chairman. Chairman Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission also was present.

The appeal says that the lumber trade, whose commodity is one of the heaviest contributors to railroad revenue has been perhaps the chief sufferer from inadequate transportation facilities.

The president received the committee cordially and promised to take up the matter with them again tomorrow when other mombers of the interstate commerce commission are expected to be present.

CAUSES SOME UNEASINESS

Verdict in Damage Case May Affect Employers' Liability.

It is understood that the verdict of damages rendered yesterday in the district court in some personal injury cases is one causing some uneasiness among certain large interests that have been employing unlicensed engineers.

The cases in question were those of Kundar and Robets against the Shenango Furnace company, in which L. H. Corcoran and Theodore Hollister appeared for the plaintiffs, and E. C. Kennedy and H. D. Bailey of St. Paul for the defendant company.

Kundar and Robets claimed that a bucket holding them was dropped to the bottom of a shaft, through the incompetency of an unlicensed engineer. They claimed and received $1,999.90 each for their damages.

One of the questions that the court left to the jury was whether the company was negligent and liable by reason of its employment of an unlicensed engineer, and the verdict is taken to mean that the jury so found.

This is said to be the first instance that the question has been raised since the law was passed in this state, requiring engineers to hold licenses from the state boiler inspector.

Many large concerns employing engineers carry employes' accident insurance to protect themselves in case of litigation, and it is said that the result of this case may cause the liability companies to refuse the risks hereafter, where unlicensed engineers are employed.

CAUGHT FOR WIFE MURDER.

Saginaw Fugitive Arrested in Jersey City, Said to Have Confessed.

New York, Jan. 16.—Edward F. Brassen of Saginaw, Mich., was arrested today in Jersey City charged with the murder of his wife, Christina, in Jackson, Mich., Dec. 21. According to the police, he confessed the mudrer, stating that his wife had gone to New York with Carl D. Curtis, and from there to Jackson. She refused to go home with him, whereupon he shot her.

NO INSURANCE FOR KINGSTON

British Companies Will Refuse to Pay for Earthquake Losses.

London, Jan. 16.—The fire insurances policies in Jamaica, effected through British companies, are said to aggregate about $7,500,000. All the policies, however are safeguarded by an earthquake clause, and a leading manager who was seen today said that the companies would not recognize any liability for damages caused by the earthquake.

Santiago, Cuba, Jan. 16.—Kingston harbor, as the result of the earthquake, is closed to shipping, but Bowden is open. There is need of quantities of provisions. Famine and pest conditions prevail and there is misery everywhere. Both rich and poor at Kingston are homeless.

ANTI-TRUST FAILS.

Federal Judge Dismisses Case Because Contract Was Made Abroad.

New oYrk, Jan. 16.—The suit by Thompson & Co., South African importers, against the Union Castle Steamship company and several other firms charging that they acted in violation of the anti-trust law in monopolizing the South African trade, was dismissed today by Judge Hough, in the United States court.

The judge ruled that the contract on which the complaint was based was made in London and did not obtain in this jurisdiction on that account.

POLITICAL HANGERS-ON MAY LOSE FAT LIVINGS UNDER NEW STATE LAW

Davidson of Mapleton Introduces Bill to End Campaign Gifts.

Roads Rock Crushing Plants Proposed for Penal Institutions.

Senate Confirms All Except One of the Governor's Appointees.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—If a bill introduced in the house this morning by Representative Davidson of Mapleton goes through, the fat living of the political hanger-on will disappear. It prohibits candidates or committees from giving away money, liquor or cigars, and from using carriages to bring voters to the polls unless they are disabled.

The initiative and referendum bill, providing for a constitutional amendment to be submitted at the next election, appeared in the senate this morning, being offered by Senator Fitzpatrick, Democrat, of Winona. It would give the people a chance to initiate legislation and to pass upon laws adopted by the legislature.

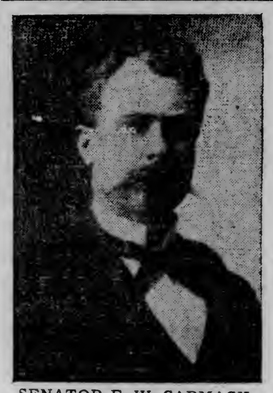

Representative Knox of Aitkin introduced in the house a joint memorial, asking congress to appropriate money for the Aitkin county cut-off in the Mississippi river, to prevent disastrous overflows of land which occur there periodically.

Representative Case of Cloquet offered a bill authorizing the railroad and warehouse commission to compel railroads to instal safety appliances, including the block signal system.

Two bills came into the senate authorizing the board of control to instal rock crushing plants at penal institutions, the product to be used on roads throughout the state. One, by Senator Elwell of Minneapolis, appropriates $25,000 for plants at the state prison and state reformatory.

WILL MEET TUESDAYS

St. Louis County Delegation Decides to Hold Weekly Meetings.

Bills Recommended by the County Board Are Explained.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Louis county delegation, at its meeting yesterday afternoon, took up a sheaf of bills relating to local matters, principally regarding the business of St. Louis county, and put them over to the next meeting, in order to have time in which to digest them.

The delegation organized permanently with Senator George R. Layburn as chairman and Representative John Saarj as secretary, and it was decided to have meetings every Tuesday afternoon, directly after the adjournment of the legislature. The next meeting will be next Tuesday, and at that time some action will doubtless be taken on a part at least of the measures that have been presented. By that time a number

GATUN DAM SITE GOOD

Senate Committee Makes Public Report on Canal Problem.

Lock Walls, It is Declared, Will Rest on Firm Rock.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Chairman Millard of the senate committee on interoceanic canals today made public the report of the interoceanic canal commission on the boring at the Gatun dam site, which was furnished in response to a request from the committee.

The report includes a cabled statement from Chief Engineer Stevens in which he says that 127 holes have been bored at the Gatun site and will show that the lock walls will rest on firm and suitable soft red rock. He also says that sixty-three borings all extending to rock have been made across the valley of the Chagres, covering the dam site, and that previous material was found in only four holes and below 200 feet.

At the Peiro Miguel lock walls there have been ten borings, all showing rock suitable for foundation.

"Chairman Shonts announced today that after a conference between the president, Secretary Root, Secretary Taft and himself, it was decided that the lowest bid—that is of 6.75 per cent—was a percentage at which the government would be justified in placing the contract, and that if Oliver and Bangs can qualify financially under the requirements, they ought to have the contract."

OHIO RIVER FLOOD HIGH AND CITIES AND TOWNS MENACED BY INUNDATION

Louisville Expects Great Stream to Reach Height of 1884.

Railroad Station at Cincinnati Put Out of Business.

Wholesale Districts Are Threatened and Many People Are Refugees.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 17.—With the tributaries of the Ohio pouring floods into all points west of Pittsburg, and the danger line reached and passed in many places, it is predicted that the river will equal the flood stage of 1884.

Rivers and creeks in Kentucky are rising and much damage has been done. Many small towns on smaller streams are threatened with inundation and families are moving all their goods.

Rain has fallen in Louisville almost daily for three weeks, and the Ohio which has been rising rapidly, today began to creep up toward Main street into the wholesale district. The weather bureau announced today that the river will continue to rise for the next several days, probably reaching a stage of thirty-five feet, which is seven feet above the danger line, by Sunday.

Trains from the south and east were from two to seven hours late in reach-

Chicago Hotel Death Leads Police to Arrest Husband.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Maggie Munn of Bisbee, Ariz., was found dead today in her room in a small hotel on the West side, with the corpse shockingly mutilated by rats. The circumstances caused the police to arrest her husband, Alfred Munn, although there is no direct evidence that he was actively concerned in her death.

Munn claims that his wife died of pneumonia, and that he had not been near her for more than a week. He declared that she complained of being ill when he last saw her. On his return to the hotel today he found her dead, and notified the authorities.

MAKES GOLD LIKE STEEL

Precious Metals Hardened Remarkably By New Discovery.

Platinum Transformed From Its Old Refractory Qualities.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 17.—Alfred D. P. Weaver of this city, has, in collaboration with John Edward Carney in laboratory experiments in serach of a new coherer material for wireless telegraphy, discovered the art of hardening and tempering the precious and semi-precious metals, such as platinum, gold and the like, without alloying them with other metals.

The characteristic result obtained by Mr. Weaver's process are the enormous reduction in the fusing point of those metals and the imparting to them of a degree of hardness, in some instances surpassing that of the best tool steel when hardened.

Platinum, one of the most refractory of metals, heretofore, requiring for its fusion the oxy-hydrogen flame, or the voltaic arc, is, after being subjected to the new process, easily melted be-

WHOLE CITY IN RUINS; HUNDREDS BADLY INJURED

Ten Thousand People Without Homes, and Bananas Sole Article of Food.

Graphic Report of Catastrophe Made by Buffalo Visitor to Stricken Place.

Holland Bay, Jamica, Jan. 17.—From 400 to 1,000 people were killed, thousands injured and 10,000 are homeless in Kingston as the result of Monday's terrible earthquake and fire.

Hardly a building is left standing in the entire city of Kingston and every one not demolished is dangerously injured and uninhabitable. The postoffice and the telegraph offices are among the buildings destroyed.

Some very prominent business men are among the dead, including Sir James Ferguson of England, A. M. Nathan and Charles Sherlock, the leading merchants of Kingston, many of the most prominent physicians, and Capt. T. Constantine, local superintendent for the Royal Mail Steam Packet company.

The city hospital is overcrowded. The military hospital at Uppark Camp was destroyed by fire, forty patients being burned to death.

The destroyed section of Kingston includes that portion of the town between East and West streets from Tower street to the water front. All the piers are down with the exception of that of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company and that of the government railway. The Myrtle Bank hotel, a favorite resort for Americans, is completely razed, and the large dry goods houses of Nathan, Sherlock & Co., and all the other buildings in the vicinity have been consumed by the flames.

The shores of the harbor of Kingston are sinking and there is terror lest the city slip into the sea. The bed of the harbor is said to be sinking, and the water in many places is new 100 feet deep. Every wharf not destroyed by fire is said to have sunk into the sea or to have been rendered worthless.

The government railroad from Kingston to Port Antonio has not been damaged to any great extent, and special trains are taking homeless people to Port Antonio for shelter. Several vessels also are engaged in taking people to the same port.

The Constant Spring hotel, a spacious building in St. Andrews, six miles from here, was destroyed, mainly by fire. Many distinguished persons were stopping there, including all the delegates to the West Indian agricultural conference which was to have held its sessions at Kingston this week; Sir Alfred Jones, president of the Liverpool chamber of commerce and a large party of distinguished persons who arrived here recently from England on the steamer Port Kingston, in order to study agricultural conditions of this island. This party included many British peers and members of parliament.

The Hotel Titchfield is said to be the only prominent hotel in Jamaica which has not sustained injuries.

So far as known no Americans have been killed or injured.

The whole city of Kingston seemed to shrivel up, and buildings crashed together and fell in a crushed mass, under the first shock. The business streets at the time were filled with tourists and no doubt many of them were caught in the falling brickwork and buried in the debris.

Fire broke out immediately after the crash at three separate points. The fire department station was wrecked, rendering resistance to the flames impossible. The conflagration continued unchecked until Tuesday morning, by which time the whole business quarter of Kingston had been wiped out, the ruined area comprising about a square mile. All the large warehouses in the lower part of the city were consumed and not a single house anywhere remained undamaged, the majority being unfit for habitation. When this dispatch was filed, the bodies of many persons who had been staying at the Myrtle Bank hotel were still beneath the wreckage.

A conservative estimate of the Sheriff of Sawyer County Fails to Prevent Delivery of Provisions.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 17.—John F. Dietz, famous as the defender of Cameron dam, and family have been given provisions and money amounting to $1,200 by citizens of Fond du Lac. Governor Davidson was asked as to whether the gifts were permissible, but declined to give advice on the matter and turned it over to the sheriff of Sawyer county. The latter sent out deputies to stop delivery of the provisions and money, but they were too late and the supply reached Dietz and family safely. The supply will tide them over the winter.

The new compact will embrace an agreement among the European powers to guarantee the neutrality of Norway.

SYRUP PUT UNDER BAN

Nearly All Louisiana's Sugar Cane Product Held Unmarketable.

Use of Sulphur in Clarification Contrary to New Law.

New Orleans, Jan. 17.—The fact that probably nearly all the sugar cane syrup and molasses output of Louisiana of last fall is unmarketable under a strict interpretation of the pure food law is brought out in correspondence made public here today, between Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Louisiana sugar dealers.

The dealers pointed out to Mr. Wilson that for fifty years sulphur has been used in this state in treating cane juice for clarification and that, because of a widely published, but erroneous statement last fall that the department of agriculture would permit this use of sulphur to continue, the crop which is to be marketed during 1907, was made in the old way. In a few instances this product has already been refused by those who contracted to take it, contractors fearing the law.

Mr. Wilson in his reply said: "It is the purpose of the department, where goods had already been manufactured by methods in common use before the law had gone into effect to give the very greatest possible freedom under the law for the utilization of these goods." He nevertheless pointed out that the use of sulphur was unlawful at least as applied in most Louisiana cane syrup products.

Later Robert Hall, with his throat cut, admitted at his home at Fairview, where he is believed to be dying, that he and Miss Glass had quarreled at the school house last night. He declared that she attacked him and cut his throat.

When asked who cut Miss Glass' throat, Hall refused to reply. He was barely able to speak because of the loss of blood. At the school house there were evidences of a struggle.

The President on Foreign Soil.

For the first time in the history of the United States the chief executive has gone beyond the confines of our country and has set foot on foreign soil. The Panama canal was the immediate purpose and motive of the visit. In 1853 was the first time the public had an opportunity to test the merits of the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, but since then it has established an unequalled record of cures of stomach, liver and bowel disorders. In June, 1906 the pure food and drug commissioners passed their famous pure food bill ,and the fact that the Bitters, upon analysis, was found to be compounded strictly in accordance with its provisions, proves it to be a safe medicine to cure indigestion, dyspepsia, costiveness, biliousness, colds, female ills or malaria fever. Asks For Directed Verdict.
H. T. Abbott, the attorney for the International Harvester company, in the personal injury suit instituted by Gesidio Farchione, administrator for the estate of Camillo Farchione, yesterday, asked the court for a directed verdict in favor of the company. Judge Morris, before whom the case is being tried in the federal court, took the motion under advisement. Camillo Farchione was killed in a mine and his brother, who was appointed administrator, is suing for $5,000 from the company.

Nelson Found Insane.
William Nelson, an aged man who set fire to his shack at Twenty-fifth avenue west and Tenth street, was found insane, after an examination in the probate court yesterday afternoon. Nelson claims that he has not a sorrow or care, that Providence will look after him. He insists that he bothers nobody, but can hear people saying things derogatory to himself. Nelson refused to say what things he heard. His actions have been so peculiar, especially since he set fire to his own shelter, that the people living in the vicinity have become afraid of him and information was filed concerning his sanity. Nelson will be taken to Fergus Falls.

Injury Case Dismissed.
Because Richard Evans made a mistake as to the parties in the action which he brought to recover damages for personal injuries received in a sawmill at Wright, Minn., Judge Cant yesterday afternoon dismissed his case against James Dunphy and J. H. Cullen, partners in the corporation known as the Dunphy Lumber company. The court held the suit should have been started against the corporation. The court's ruling does not prevent Evans from instituting another action against the company in the future.

DR. PATTON TALKS TO STUDENTS

Says Slogan Should be "America for All the World."

Dr. Patton of Boston, formerly pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church of this city, spoke to the students of the high school this morning.

Dr. Patton spoke of some of the sights in Boston and referred to the four great bas-reliefs which decorate one of the public buildings there. These bas-reliefs represent the spirit of statesmanship, education, religion, and philanthropy, the four things which in the opinion of Dr. Patton make America great.

"The old Bay state," he said, "has remained remarkably true to these four great principles. Each occupies a separate sphere, yet they all work together for the common good.

"Of recent years there has come to us the idea that we ought to enlarge our visions and increase our patriotism. We have shown a strong enough pride in our country, but we have been too narrow. Instead of 'America for Americans,' our slogan should be 'America for all the world.'

"Our country has a good geographical position, it has wonderful resources. What are they here for? To use for the betterment of the entire world.

"President Elliot of Harvard university has the rare gift of stating great big ideas in a very few words, and he never more clearly showed this than in a recent address, when he summed up the characteristic achievements of America in civilization under four headings.

"They were, the keeping of peace, religious toleration, the development of manhood suffrage, the welcoming of new comers and the diffusion of well being.

"But I think he ought to have gone a step further and said that our highest destiny is to contribute these things to the rest of the world. We cannot give too much praise to those men who have gone away from America to suffer hardships and privations in the midst of great masses of ignorant people, in order that they may make the rest of the world as good as the United States.

"When we see such people we ought to have enough sympathy and interest in their work to help them in accomplishing their great task. They ought to have the support and aid of everyone who is interested in the advance of civilization."

HIBERNIANS MEET

And Install Their New Officers for the Coming Year.

The installation of the officers of Division No. 1, A. O. H., was held last evening in the Cathedral hall.

State Treasurer John Flood was the installing officer, and the following officers were installed for the ensuing year: President, T. L. Ryan; vice president, A. Murphy; recording secretary, T. O'Flaherty; financial secretary, J. Dunphy; treasurer, A. O'Donnell; sentinel, R. O'Hearn; sergeant-at-arms, J. Daugherty.

The attendance at the meeting was large. The local division has been steadily increasing in membership, and at the present rate of increase will soon be second to none in the state. A contest to secure new members for the next three months is being arranged for, and prizes will be offered to the members securing a certain number.

Next May the national president of the order, Mathew Cummings of Boston, will visit the Twin Cities, when a large class of candidates will be initiated into the order. Four degrees will be conferred on this occasion and it is the intention of Duluth Hibernians to have a delegation present at the ceremony. This will be the first visit of the national president since his election to office last August, and the A. O. H. members of the state are going to give him a fitting reception.

Duluth has been chosen as the convention city for 1908. The local division is already laying plans for the reception of the delegates. It will be the most notable, as well as the largest state convention of the order ever held, and Duluth Hibernians will make it the most memorable in its history. There will be over 600 delegates in attendance, and they will get a true "Ceade Mille Failthe" when they visit the Head of the Lakes.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Isaac Brock, 118 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 118 years.

For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson.

Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude.

His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 118 years ago.

Born before the United States were formed.
Saw 22 presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.
Believes ePruna the greatest remedy of the age for catarhhal troubles.

IN speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so."

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper things for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 118 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes:

"I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. The only thing that bothers me is my sight. If I could see better I could walk all over the farm and it would do me good. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock,

A letter dated July 3, 1906, written for Mr. Brock by his wife, Sarah J. Brock, states:

"Last winter I had just gotten up out of a spell of sickness, when I commenced taking Peruna. I think it improved my health very much."

In a postscript, Mrs. Brock adds: "He receives a great many letters inquiring about what Peruna will do. I do not answer them all, as I think they can get a bottle and try it."

PEOPLE NOT LUKEWARM

Agitation for Half Fares Still a Very Live Issue.

Bishop McGolrick Says Company Would Not Lose by It.

Because little has been heard of the agitation for half fare for school children on the street cars, for the last few weeks, it is no indication that Duluth people are lukewarm on the subject.

They have merely been awaiting the action of the council in having the demands of the city drawn up, to be presented to the directors of the traction company, at the meeting in New York. These demands have been reduced to writing by the city attorney, and will at once be forwarded to New York.

Bishop James McGolrick, who started the movement, today made the following statement, in response to a request for a short interview on the question:

"The committee appointed by the city council to obtain half fares on the street cars for the children of the schools, has collected a large amount of information in reference to the subject. It appears that very many of our cities have generously given half fares to school children and still further helped the artisan and the laborer by giving half fares at certain hours of the day to the workingman.

"When the proposition was first advanced in this city, it was proposed to invite the councils of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Superior with Duluth in making the demand to the street car officials.

"This united action would no doubt have weight, but unfortunately the proposition for children's half fare was loaded down with additional demands which rendered the scheme practically useless.

"Now in St. Paul and Minneapolis the street car company has spent for the benefit of the city as well as for their own profit, immense sums of money for parks, and made them great attractions for the general public.

"Not a cent has ever been given for any such purpose in Duluth.

"Mr. Lowry is the chief of the street car system in all those cities. He is known to be generous and philanthropic; he could not do anything which would be a greater service to education than to grant this half-fare to children so much needed in a city situated as Duluth with its magnificent distances.

"In the new order of things not only wealthy individuals are becoming generous, but even corporation are now and again displaying some charity.

"What is asked on the part of Duluth has this double merit, that while the grant will be a great benefit to the poor, the giver will not lose by the gift, but gain both in the additional fares and in the good will of the people.

"I earnestly hope that such a considerate request will not be ignored."

KINGSTON HORROR GROWS

casualties made by the police of Kingston, places the number killed at 1,200, judging from the number of bodies already discovered in the few buildings which have been examined.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 17.—The Express this morning published the following:

"This cable dispatch came through last night from Francis U. Kahle, evidently from the temporary cable station at Bull Bay, outside of Kingston. The dispatch no doubt was filed before the dispatches of the regular correspondents of the press services, who estimate the dead at a much lower figure:

"Jamaica, Jan. 16.—Business is at a standstill. Sleep streets, park. Five hundred surely dead. Sixty-five thousand homeless. Food, bananas. Troops, police. Country houses completely destroyed. Hundred eighty buried Catholic ground, 130 yesterday.

"Sir Alfred Jones says natives will work Panama, take places coolie labor India. Want Canadian architect rebuild. Natives refuse work.

"Estimate loss $10,000,000. Estimate hundred whites dead. Asylum destroyed. Insane at large. Capt. Young dead.

"Halifax-Colon cables broken. Immediate repairs impossible.

"Capt. Constantine dead.

"Injured: Charles and Edward Decrodva, J. W. Middletown, Bradley Berti, Charles Sherlock and brother, Miss Locket Sullivan.

"Manager cable says 1,000 dead. Henmecker Heaton estimates dead from 500 to 1,000.

"Capt. Lamont dead; engaged to American girl.

"Streets filled debris and dead. Two terrific shocks yesterday; one today.

"Sir James Fergusson instantly killed in street.

"Fire burned out. Positive insurance carried by Norwich Union Insurance company, England, £8,000.

"People need tents. Great suffering if rain.

"Francis Kahle, Buffalo, safe.'"

Francis U. Kahle is manager of the Woodward Chemical company. He sailed from New York, Jan. 5, on the steamer Tagus of the Royal Mail Packet line, to meet Mrs. Kahle and Miss Anna Scott, also of Buffalo, who were in Kingston.

New York, Jan. 17.—Definite advices as to the extent of the earthquake and catastrophe at Kingston, Jamaica, were still lacking early today. Conflicting reports received indicated that the death list might be anywhere from 100 to 1,000. One dispatch reported that 310 bodies had already been recovered and buried.

From the meagre advices that have come through, it is indicative that there is no immediate fear of a food famine, as fruit is plentiful and other Jamaican towns can send aid. Doctors and medical supplies are, however, urgently needed.

Plan looking to the relief of the sufferers were formulated at a meeting last night of a number of representatives of steamship lines and commercial firms. A committee was named to attend to the collection of funds and the purchasing of supplies. The Hamburg line, Royal Mail Steam Packet company and the United Fruit company have agreed to carry relief supplies free. The steamer Allegheny of Hamburg-American line will sail for Colon Friday and stop at Kingston. The Prinz Joachim of the same line will sail for the same port Monday. All three steamers will carry such supplies as may be contributed.

London, Jan. 17, noon.—Much surprise and anxiety are felt at the colonial office at the absence of any further news from the governor of Jamaica. An urgent dispatch calling on him to report the latest details was still unanswered this morning. The only message from Governor Swettenham is the one forwarded apparently on Monday, after which there was complete silence, indicating an interruption of official news channels and increasing the apprehensions regarding the destructive effect of the catastrophe.

The colonial office today was again besieged by anxious relatives including those of Sir James Ferguson, who are still without positive official confirmation of the death of the former cabinet minister, although the official advices leave no doubt that he is among the victims.

During the early hours of the morning the West Indian & Panama Cable company received a dispatch for its superintendent at St. Thomas announcing that the situation at Kingston was terrible and that famine was imminent. The superintendent adds that the company's steamer, Henry Holmes, has left St. Thomas for Kingston with provisions and doctors to render the sufferers every assistance possible.

A dispatch from Holland Bay, dated Jan. 15, says that the first shock at Kingston, which occurred at 3:35 p. m., Jan. 14, did all the damage, the subsequent lesser shocks, having little effect. Fires spread in three directions, fanned by a strong wind and the firemen were handicapped, owing to the absence of water.

The dispatch, after confirming the report that hundreds were killed, burned to death or injured, says that at least thirty to forty persons were killed as a result of the collapse of the Myrtle Bank hotel.

The devastated region, the dispatch continues, stretches from the wharves in the southern part of the city to the race course in the north, to the customs house in the west, and to Fleet street in the east, containing all the principal stores, banks and government offices, all of which were wrecked, most of them being levelled to the ground.

The sender of the above dispatch does not mention any looting or violence, except in the case of a few rum shops, which were invaded by negroes.

The reports received here from St. Thomas direct, estimate the casualties at Kingston at about 1,000 killed, say that some 9,000 persons are homeless and place the damage done at $10,000,000. Concerning the latter, while the fire insurance companies here repudiate all liability, under the earthquake clause in their policies, the marine insurance societies are likely to be pretty hard sufferers, the risk of fire to merchandise, wharves and warehouses having been largely carried by these companies of recent years, and their policies do not appear to include a clause exempting them from the results of earthquakes.

Owen Cosby Philipps, M. P., chairman of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, after a long conference at the colonial office this morning, regarding the immediate measures to be taken for the relief of the earthquake sufferers, cabled to the company's agency in New York, as follows:

"Relief measures should be carried out only through and under the sanction of the governor of Jamaica, who is the best judge of the extent of the distress and the best measures to be taken for alleviating it, and who will in any case bear the responsibility."

Sir Alfred Jones, Jesse Collings, M. P., and several other members of Sir Alfred's party, had remarkable escapes from being buried in the ruins of the Myrtle Bank hotel. According to a dispatch received from Holland Bay, this morning, after lunching at the hotel, Sir Alfred, Mr. Collings and others went out on the pier at the water front and amused themselves by tossing coins into the water for the negro divers. The visitors had just left the pier on their way back to the hotel when, as they reached the hotel lawn, the earthquake came and the hotel toppled over in ruins around the travelers. The pier, which they had just left, also was destroyed.

Gerald Loder, former member of parliament, was at the Jamaica club on Hanover street, when the building was demolished, but a lounge protected him from the falling debris.

A dispatch to the Royal Mail Steam Packet company this morning says that relief funds have been started in the unaffected portions of the island of Jamaica.

The West Indian commission today received a dispatch reporting the safety of Alfred Austin of the Colonial bank at Kingston, whose fate had been in doubt. The advices of the commission shows the increasing extent of the damage done by the earthquake in Jamaica and, at the request of the commissioners, the colonial office has taken the initiative in inaugurating a Mansion house fund for the relief of the sufferers. As this fund is under the direction of the government, it promises to bring out a response from the whole nation.

Reports from Austria and Switzerland show that seismic disturbances occurred there on Monday at about the same time as in Jamaica, indicating widespread unrest of the earth's crust.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., Jan. 17.—Late advices received here from Jamaica declare that all the people have been warned to keep away from Kingston. The stench there is described as awful. There is no fodder for animals, and famine is imminent. Money is useless. The banks have been burned, but the vaults are supposed to be safe. The misery on all sides is indescribable. Rich and poor alike are homeless. Provisions of all kinds are urgently needed. It is impossible to say where anybody can be found. Sir James Fergusson, vice chairman of the Royal Mail Steamship company, is among the killed.

The loss of life is very great, but the exact numbers are not known. The dead are buried under smoldering ruins. The mercantile community suffered most severely, warehouses falling upon them. Many professional men are dead or injured.

The negroes are looting. Ghastly scenes are being witnessed. All the shops have been destroyed and all the buildings in and around Kingston are in ruins. Very few of them are safe to live in.

The governor and his party are safe.

Holland Bay, Jamaica, Jan. 17.—Advices received from various parts of the island show that Kingston was the only place damaged by the recent earthquake. All the other towns of Jamaica are in good condition. No further earthquake shocks have been felt in Jamaica.

Catania, Sicily, Jan. 16.—The earthquake at Kingston was coincident with increased activity of Mount Etna and slight disturbances in the Medonian mountains. Prof. Ricker, director of the Mount Etna observatory, says that either the fire openings inside the crater, which were discovered in 1893, have increased in size, or that eruptions are occurring inside the volcano, as from the outside nothing but smoke and a reflection of fire can be seen. The volcano is throwing out considerable ashes and subterranean detonations are heard. The present phenomena are similar to those of 1893.

Washington, Jan. 17.—A wireless message to the navy department from Rear Admiral Evans at Guantonamo states that the battleships Missouri and Indiana will arrive at Jamaica early today. The Whipple, with a corps of surgeons and medical supplies already has arrived in Kingston.

The American National Red Cross will extend immediate help to the earthquake sufferers in Jamaica.

Large refrigerating plants have already been installed in Puerto Cabello, the idea being to ship meat from that port to England and the United States Another enterprise, in which Silveira is the chief conductor, is the development of the San Bernardino coffee plantation.

OHIO RIVER FLOOD HIGH

ing Louisville last night and today. The condition was due to excessive rains and washouts.

A dispatch from Evansville, Ind., this morning says the river has risen one foot over night and that rain is falling. All boats arriving bring refugees and cattle from the submerged country.

Only a harsh cold snap can prevent serious damage, and as this does not seem to be in sight, the losses will probably be heavy. A creek wrecked a church and several houses at the village of Bald Eagle.

At Parkersburg, W. Va., the river reached the danger line of thirty-six feet at 4 o'clock this morning and is still rising. People in low sections of the city are seeking shelter on higher ground.

Cincinnati, Jan. 17.—The Ohio river continued to rise all night and today there was no sign of relief. The Grand Central station, into which the Big Four, Baltimore & Ohio, Southwestern, Queen & Crescent and some of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Louisville & Nashville passenger trains usually run, was put out of business last night and trains were started today from the Eighth street viaduct. The present stage of the river in this city prevents the passing under the bridges of any steamboats.

One hundred and twenty passenger trains were compelled today to enter and leave the dilapidated and tiny shed at Eighth street, near the viaduct which, for the time being, has become a "union depot."

Many business houses are flooded.

Kansas City, Jan. 17.—Missouri, practically all of Kansas and the northern part of Oklahoma and Indian Territory are covered with a sheet of ice and snow, according to weather bureau and railroad reports received here this morning. Nearly an inch of rain has fallen in the past thirty-six hours, continuing up to this morning, and it has been followed by freezing weather. The principal damage has been to telegraph, telephone and trolley wires.

So great a hardness is imparted to these metals by Mr. Weaver's process that a piece of gold or platinum, for instance, can, with the greatest difficulty, be abraded by the best steel file, and a sphere of either of these metals of, say two millimeters diameter, when placed upon a hardened steel anvil and struck a sharp blow and suffer only the slightest alteration in shape.

EDITOR COGGSWELL

Of Two Harbors Iron News Has Stroke of Paralysis.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Editor James Coggswell of the Two Harbors Iron News was stricken with a paralytic stroke about 7 o'clock last evening, one side being paralyzed, and is reported in a bad condition. He has been apparently in the best of health and his sudden illness was a great shock to his numerous friends who trust his condition is not as bad as now thought.

Monday's cold spell again formed a heavy coating of ice on the bay but it has been broken up by the Booth line steamer Bon Ami, which is still engaged in the north shore trade and will continue as long as weather conditions permit. When Duluth harbor is closed by ice, the trips will be made from this point.

The section house of the Duluth & Iron Range road at Drummond has been quarantined on account of three cases of small pox there, and a man afflicted with that disease was brought to the pest house here today from one of the camps near that point.

Wolves are reported very numerous in the districts north of town and several deer have been found killed, and partly eaten by them. A. Busher, a trapper, was chased by several a short time ago, and a couple of cows owned by a farmer, named Smith, about three miles from town are reported to have been killed by them. Owing to the excessive depth of snow they are enabled to easily overtone the deer, who can travel but slowly, and they will probably pretty well clear the country of such game. For the same reason it is very difficult for the hunters to get about to trap and hunt them. They will not touch poisoned bait when live meat is so easily secured.

Conductor L. J. Brulit was called to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. yesterday by the death of his mother at that place.

FEET AND ARMS FROZEN.

Man Charged With Wife Beating is Overcome While Drunk.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 17.—Frank Desck, of Holding, is in a serious condition as the result of having both feet and arms frozen stiff. Amputation may be necessary. Desck is a farmer 56 years of age, and lives at Holding. He was on his way home from town, and is supposed to have been in an intoxicated condition, and it is thought that he fell from the sled when about five miles from home, at an early hour in the evening. He was found the next day, with all his limbs frozen to the body. Desck is the man who was arrested last week for wife beating. He threatening to kill her. The case has been set for tomorrow morning, but owing to the misfortune of the man it is probable that the case will be dropped. His chances of recovery are very doubtful.

FIRE AT MADISON.

Office of the State Journal Suffers Damage of $10,000.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 17.—The State Journal building narrowly escaped destruction by fire yesterday, and the loss is placed at $10,000. The fire started in a grocery store on the ground floor and was caused by rats chewing matches. The loss to the grocery was $3,500. The Journal building and contents were insured for $35,000.

The linotype machines were covered by ice and water and the composing room and book department flooded, but the paper will be issued today from its own plant without assistance.

IS NOT LID CANDIDATE.

Anton Ringsred States His Position In the Municipal Campaign.

Anton Ringsred, who is a candidate for alderman in the Fifth ward, says that the report of his being a "lid" candidate is an exaggeration, started by his enemies.

"I am to represent the honest, straightforward people of the district," he said, and if I am elected I will undoubtedly act throughout as the representative of an honest, conservative policy, but it is not true that I will be a lid candidate. Bert Wheeler and A. R. Merritt are in no way connected with my candidacy. I am scarcely even acquainted with them, and I do not know that I shall even ask for their support."

CONCERNING WOMEN

A man was being discussed.

"They say," said the young person whose trade mark, or crest, or motto, or whatever you like, might be just, "they say," it happens to be so typical of her attitude on most questions, "that he is the most even-tempered man in town—always bad tempered."

"I don't care," said his champion, "how disagreeable or bad tempered he is. Socially, he makes an effort and there are so few men of which one can truthfully say that. He meets one half way. He does his share, and I can forgive a man anything, almost, who does that. My ire rises when I think that I must make all the effort, and if the few moments, or half an hour, is to be a success, it all depends on me. And it probably is due to that more than to any other one thing that the American girl has come to be called a bore—for that seems to be the latest charge brought against her. The American man seems to think that after he has gracefully bowed and said, 'How do you do,' or 'Good evening,' that his responsibility ceases, and that all conversation, light banter, pleasant nothings, and so on must be provided by the women. Time and time again I have assured myself that with the next man I meet, who is such an unbending stick, I will assume the same attitude myself and say nothing. My idea of social graces interferes, and know that of course he will sail off with a 'Stupid' under his breath, and go to another girl, who will chatter away for his amusement two hours at a stretch.

Instead of sitting numb and uncaring, however, I begin: "The weather is delightful for the curling tournament, isn't it?"

"'Bonspiel,' corrects the man whom I met about three minutes before. 'Are you curling at all?' I continue, with gracious tact.

"'No,' while his eyes rove over the room.

"'The hold that it seems to have on its devotees is really almost amusing, isn't it?' I struggle on.

"'Maybe,' he acquiesces.

"Do I give up then," demanded she of the radical view on the culture of American men. "Not at all. I go gallantly on, hoping to interest him a bit, or at least receive some social training of my own at his expense, for really it takes a lot of tact and social experience to put that sort of boor on easy and happy footing. I don't want to at all, and the things that are seething and boiling inside me for expression would probably open his eyes and send him off with his aplomb disturbed a particle. After a lifetime of experience with such mute, unresponsive, egotistical persons, one who responds to my leading question on the bonspiel with a hearty, 'Indeed it is fine weather. I was down at the rink the other evening, and the most amusing thing happened. Your are familiar with the game, aren't you?' and, of course, I'm wise enough to say I'm not, and he explains it, and the interesting incident, and the fact that they serve a half a chicken between each game, and I ejaculate, 'Real chicken,' and on it goes, and we have a lovely time. A man who will make an effort like that, socially, may be a perfect Tartar in business, or any other place, but he has a little worldly culture and polish, and I'll vote for him for anything he wants to run for."

The Women's Column advises those gentlemen who are hunting for a social success to be responsive.

GYMNASIUM CLUB

Acquires Turkish Bath Parlors in Connection With Work.

One of the most flourishing and popular of the women's organizations of the city is the Duluth Gymnasium club which was organized last fall and during the intervening months has established itself on a firm basis as one of the important clubs of the city. Classes in physical culture, fencing and dancing have been organized and during the week the club has further widened its usefulness by acquiring the Turkish baths which were formerly owned by M. Z. Kassmir.

The rooms of the club are situated above Gidding's store and the well equipped baths are just across the hall. The suite of apartments occupied by the baths and rooms have been thoroughly renovated and the members are greatly pleased at the opportunity of having the Turkish baths in connection with the other work. As there are no other Turkish baths in the city for women the Gymnasium club will open their rooms for the public and they will not be restricted to the use of members only.

The lessons for the new term in gymnasium work will begin Monday, Feb. 4, and a special feature of the second half of the year will be dancing lessons, certain evenings of the week being set apart for the practice of this accomplishment, in which men may also receive instruction at the club rooms. The physical director is Miss Ruth Roberts.

Beautifully coifed and finely gowned, she is seated before a desk and has assumed a piquant position recognized as most characteristic by her Duluth friends. The engagement of "Madame Butterfly" which will be sung at the Lyceum early in February, is being eagerly anticipated by all Duluth.

ADDRESS BY EX-PASTOR

Dr. Cornelius H. Patton Talks to His Former Parishioners.

Church Holds Annual Meeting and Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Pilgrim Congregational church was held last evening at the church parlors, and the members were delighted in having as their guest of honor on this occasion a former pastor, Dr. Cornelius H. Patton, now home secretary of the American board of commissioners of foreign missions, who delivered a short address early in the evening.

Dinner was served at 6:15 o'clock to more than 200 members of the church, and after a half hour of social intercourse, the meeting was opened with Rev. Alexander Milne, pastor of the church, presiding. Dr. Patton was introduced, and he was greeted with prolonged applause. During his pastorate in this city he made many friends, and he is received with much pleasure on return visits. He spoke briefly on the missionary question, and said in part:

"I have 200 reasons for being glad to be here, and they are all good ones. In addition to the delightful renewal of friendships, and the reawakening of beautiful memories, there is a feeling that this meeting means much more in my life than it possibly can in yours, and in looking back over many of the incidents of my life here, it is evident to me that they led up to the work I am doing today.

"It seems that you have had an inundation of pastors lately, and it hardly seems fair that they should all speak to you on missions, but when we consider the timeliness of the movement, the big things that are happening, we must realize that we are living in a grand and awful time, and there is offered to us a splendid opportunity for the extension of Christ's kingdom. After 100 years of effort, we find the world wide open geographically and politically.

"There are three facts in the work of missions which we should notice. There is, first, the rapid decadence of the non-Christian religion. The old ethnic religions, which have held for centuries and centuries, and which seemed impassable barriers to the word of Christ, are disintegrating, and the stupendous opportunity for Christ's workers has come. In Japan it is no longer a question of Budhism or Christianity, but it is a question of Christianity or nothing. In China the native papers themselves are attacking idolatry, and I know of nothing that can compare in magnitude to the opening of the Orient today. The process of disintegration is a rapid one, and the Christian people must rise to their opportunity.

"Protestantism has become the dominant feature of the religious world, and the rapid emergence of the United States into the first place, politically and commercially in the world, places a great responsibility upon us as a people to contribute to the rest of the world, and we should rise to the greatest opportunity God has ever given to any people."

Dr. Patton closed with a glowing tribute to Theodore Roosevelt and the late John Hay, as men imbued with the missionary spirit of constantly giving out to the nations of the earth the benefits and experience of this country.

The regular business meeting was then held and the election of officers resulted as follows: Treasurer, H. W. Nichols; assistant treasurer, W. W. McMillan; clerk, F. R. Leroy; deacons, W. S. Woodbridge and W. W. McMillan; trustee, William I. Prince, to succeed himself; standing committee, Mrs. John Drew and Miss Ella Roe.

The reports of the various organizations of the church were given, and every department reported interested and faithful work. The report of the Ladies' Union was given by the retiring president, Mrs. Bertha Webster; Friends in Council, Miss Effie White; Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Frank George; Altrurian club, by the counselor, Mrs. Milne; Sunday school, Eugene Harbison; Benevolent Missionary fund, W. E. McMillan; Ladies' Missionary society, Mrs. A. W. Nichols; and treasurer, H. W. Nichols.

The church has raised almost $10,000 during the year for the expenses of the church and as offerings to missions. After Dr. Patton's talk, W. E. McMillan reported the raising of $564 for the support of a missionary on the foreign field, in addition to all regular pledges. The meeting was a most encouraging one.

DATES SET FOR SHOW

Poultry Exhibit Will be Held Feb. 11 to 16.

Is Expected to be Largest Ever Held in Duluth.

The annual poultry show of the Duluth Poultry association will be held Feb. 11 to 16. The committee in charge of the affair is rapidly whipping things into shape, and those who are inside on the project say that prospects are for the most elaborate exhibition which the club has ever held.

Some trouble has been experienced in getting a good judge for the affair, but F. H. Shellabarger of West Liberty, Iowa, one of the best judges in the country, and famous in the East as one of the most skillful poultry judges in the country, has been engaged for the affair, and the committee is congratulating itself on its choice.

From 500 to 600 birds are expected for the exhibition, among them a number of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago prize winners, and a good sized delegation of feathered folk from the range.

There are some very aristocratic members of the poultry "Four Hundred" now owned in Duluth, blooded fowls being owned by Theodore Hollister, Judge Windom, H. A. Nelson, J. W. Nelson, L. A. Larsen, J. B. Greenfield and others. Many of them have walked off with blue ribbons at big shows in the Twin Cities and Chicago. Some fine birds are owned at Tower, Minn., and an exhibit is expected from there to the exhibit.

The committee has arranged for prizes amounting to $600 or $700, and a number of Duluth people have agreed to donate a number of silver cups.

Owing to the many varieties of fowls, and the necessity of a prize for every one, the list of prizes is too lengthy for publication, but the committee says that in every case the prize will be just double the amount of last year.

Are you tired, fagged out, nervous, sleepless, feel mean? Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea strengthens your nerves, aids digestion, brings refreshing sleep. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

GRAND SKI TOURNAMENT

MRS. BEECHER IN RECITAL

"An Evening With American Fiction" Will be Given Here.

Mrs. Isabel Cargill Beecher in her interpretative recitals, will be the next attraction in the Star Lecture course, appearing Tuesday evening at the First Methodist church.

Mrs. Beecher has a repertoire of nine programs, but the one chosen for her Duluth engagements is her most popular one, and is known as "An Evening With American Fiction."

Hon. George R. Wendling had the following to say of Mrs. Beecher: "I was more than pleased with Mrs. Beecher's readings; I was delighted and astonished. I have no motive to praise her work except a sense of justice to a wonderful young artist. I do not hesitate to say that I have not heard her equal since the time when Scott-Siddons was at her best. Mrs. Beecher has more than talent; she has genius."

SOUTH DAKOTA TO PROBE SENATOR GAMBLE'S WORK.

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 17.—Just before adjournment last evening, resolutions calling for an investigation of the congressional delegation from South Dakota, including senators and congressmen were introduced in both houses of the legislature by friends of Senator Gamble, asking for an investigation of the senator's accounts and requesting a report some time during this session of the legislature. Two resolutions were presented by opponents of Mr. Gamble asking for delay in the selection of a senator until after the investigation.

FOOD DOES IT.

The Most Natural Way to Get Out of Troubles.

"I have been troubled with my stomach for years, having the habit of vomiting and spitting up my food and was all run down and September last I had a fearful hemorrhage which completely prostrated me. When I got up even a rare porterhouse steak distressed me.

"Then I happened to meet a lady who had trouble just like mine and who used Grape-Nuts food and it agreed with her so I bought a box and found I could keep it down and it nourished and built me up and I have used it constantly since then, usually twice a day. I have gained flesh and can eat almost anything I want and my stomach takes care of it without any hesitation, but before I toned and strengthened my stomach on Grape-Nuts I could not handle any food but it was liable to come up again.

"I am over 60 years old and people here consider my cure remarkable." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason." Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

RAILROADS

WILL FORM A CAR POOL

Railroads to Try New System of Preventing Car Shortage.

All Big Systems Are Expected to Join Movement.

A meeting of railway presidents for the purpose of forming a car pool, with a view to relieving the car shortage and preventing a recurrence of the present trouble, has been called for tomorrow at Chicago. The railroads which have thus far signified their willingness of joining the pool own 500,000 freight cars, as follows:

Pennsylvania	130,000
Rock Island	42,000
Harriman System	80,000
Illinois Central	62,000
Erie	53,000
Frisco System	30,000
Eastern Illinois	20,000
Baltimore & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern	40,000
Alton	11,000

Arthur Hale, general superintendent of transportation for the Baltimore & Ohio, has been elected to organize and manage the pool.

The general scheme was adopted by the railroads in deference to the report of Commerce Commissioner Lane, which stated that much might be accomplished by pooling freight cars.

In a general way the freight cars of all the roads which are members of the pool will be regarded as being "at home" when they are on the lines of any road which is a member of the pool. It is even likely that if there are roads which will refuse to join the pool, the roads which are members will refuse to permit their cars to go on to the lines of such non-members, where they would be unable to control their movement. Under a car pool it would be in the power of Mr. Hale to supply deficiencies from the cars of any railroad which is a member of the pool.

The effect of this plan in relieving local car shortages is apparent. One road, for example, might be short 100 cars at a given point by reason of having 100 cars in the Northwest. At the same time another road might have 100 cars which were not in use, and in this event Mr. Hale would order these cars to the first road immediately.

Railroad Personals.

Among the railroad men in the city today are: Robert Haas, Neil Mooney of Chicago; F. H. Hess of Chicago and J. H. Whittelsby of Minneapolis.

A luncheon dish that is highly recommended to this column is potato pancakes. In one kind you put the grated raw potatoes, and in the other you boil them first, and both kinds were received with pleasure at many tables. For luncheon with nice little sausages they might be good.

The cold weather makes the fish market especially desirable, and the Friday menu may be chosen from almost any sort of fish that the housewife might desire. The skinned perch are particularly nice.

New potatoes from Bermuda and the first of the white turnips, by the peck, are to be had.

SMALL AUDIENCE

Hears Magnificent Concert by St. Paul Symphony Orchestra.

Numerous gaping rows of empty seats greeted the St. Paul Symphony orchestra last evening at the Lyceum.

The audience, while small, was composed of musicians and genuine music lovers, and they were given a rare treat.

The program, given under the direction of Chavelier Emanuel, was a masterpiece of the art of selection and arrangement.

It opened with the Vorspiel to "Die Meistersinger," magnificently rendered. This was followed by Schubert's beautiful unfinished symphony. The symphony consists of two movements, an allegro and an andante, and nine measures of a scherzo. The first movement is a dreamy almost gloomy phrase by the cellos, and the development of this theme works out a stormy climax, which gradually subsides, the second movement being a beautiful melody.

The intermezzo "Ratcliff's Dream" is an exquisite little gem, and it was beautifully rendered.

The feature of the program was the rendition of the Suite composed by Ernest Lachmund of Duluth. It captured the audience by storm, and Mr. Lachmund was compelled to rise and bow his acknowledgments.

The Suite is in four movements. The first is an odd, almost eccentric, march movement, which hardly gave promise of what was to come. The "Romance" which follows it, is exquisite, bringing out the full strength of the string and reed sections. The theme is a beautiful one, and magnificently worked out. But the third movement was the one that completely captured the audience. It is a dainty little intermezzo, which must be heard to be appreciated. The Suite closes with a Tarentella. Mr. Lackmund's work was a surprise even to his friends, and he and the orchestra fully deserved the enthusiasm which it called forth.

The other numbers of the program were excerpts from the "Donation of Faust," the Andante Cantabile by Tschaikowsky, and the Capriccio Espagnol by Rimsky-Korsakow.

All three were beautifully rendered, but probably the andante deserves special mention. The string section of the St. Paul orchestra is especially strong, and this selection showed it to the best advantage.

Mrs. Von Encke was not fully appreciated until her second solo. The aria from Elijah was well rendered, but the full strength and magnificent control of her voice was not brought out until she sang the beautiful aria from "Lucia." The audience insisted on an encore to this, the only encore given during the evening.

Carl Venth's number was a concerto composed by himself. It was in two movements, a romance and an allegro. The first movement is a theme of rare sweetness, and the second bringing out to splendid advantage, the magnificent technique of the artist.

It is to be hoped that the orchestra will not be discouraged by the small audience last evening, and will pay Duluth another visit before the season is over.

ICY PITTSBURG WAYS CAUSE TWO FATALITIES.

Pittsburg, Jan. 17.—Two fatalities occurred during the morning as the result of the icy streets. John E. Mackin fell on the ice in front of a shifting engine and was instantly killed. Andrew Matzko, a freight-handler, slipped while carrying a box, which fell on him. He died a short time later.

MONEY AIDS CUPID.

Hudson, Wis., Jan. 17.—Word has reached Hudson, through relatives of one of the contracting parties, that Mrs. Katrina Linde, a widow of 70, and Ole Larson, a widower of 32, were recently married at Lodi, this state, by the Rev. C. Haughstad. Prior to the marriage, the venerable bride had a will drawn by a Lodi attorney, bequeathing to her young husband, $12,000 of her estate, in the event of her death occurring before his. It is inferred from this that she wished to aid Cupid by the use of her money, and the entire community of Lodi was shocked by the old woman's performance.

Mr. Larson's first wife died two years ago, since which time he has lived as a tenant on the estate of Mrs. Linde, who is well-to-do. Mrs. Larson has been married twice before, and prior to her last marriage was a widow for ten years. She enjoys excellent health, and her neighbors believe that she will enjoy a long period of domestic happiness before death overtakes her.

OTTENS WAS WELL MARKED

Milwaukee Police Find Bullet Wounds in Suspect's Back.

Ernest Ottens, who was arrested here in February, 1904 and sent to the state penitentiary for grand larceny, has been arrested in Milwaukee on suspicion of being connected with a robbery at Watertown, Wis., last Sunday evening.

J. T. Janssen, chief of police at Milwaukee, has written Chief Troyer of this city concerning Ottens' record. Chief Janssen says Ottens was arrested while asking assistance from the manager of the Rescue mission. He had two freshly made bullet wounds in his back and elbow, and was very weak. According to Chief Janssen, the burglar at Watertown was shot at several times by a policeman, but got away.

Ottens was arrested here in 1904 in company with a man named Clarkson, and was convicted of stealing camp supplies from a tote sleigh in front of the Palmer house on First street.

THREE MEN INJURED

By Explosion of a Gasoline Tank at New Ulm.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 17.—Through the careless striking of a match a fifty-gallon gasoline tank in the Rosner & Matsch machine shop on Third North street exploded Tuesday evening, seriously injuring three men. The tank had not contained gasoline for two years. The injured are:

Joseph Rosner, burned severely about the head and face and left arm broken; Frank Matsch, burned about the head and face, and the 11-year-old son of Gust Haas, right arm broken. Several others sustained minor burns.

PEIRCE IS EXONERATED.

Minister to Norway Cleared of the "Same Old Charges."

Washington, Jan. 17.—Herbert H. D. Peirce, United States minister to Norway, formerly assistant secretary of state, charged with acting as the attorney for the owners of the schooner J. Hamilton Lewis, while representing the United States before The Hague tribunal, has been exonorated from all blame in the transaction by the department of state.

The charges have been investigated frequently, and it was found that Peirce acted with the consent of his superior officers. When his nominaton as minister to Norway was under consideration by the senate committee on foreign relations these charges were preferred at that time. Secretary Root informed the committee that an investigation showed that Peirce in representing the owners of the vessel had acted with the full consent of the late Secretary Hay. The committee was satisfied with the explanation offered by the department of state and the nomination of Mr. Peirce as minister to Norway was confirmed.

To Bed, to Sleep, Perchance to Dream?

Every one dreams, for there is practically no such thing as dreamless sleep. When dreams are repulsive or end in a catastrophe, and the dreamer awakens frightened and trembling, there is a grave danger that should be guarded against. Dreams of this character sometimes cause disaster.

Violent dreams and nightmares are usually caused by undigested food that remains in the stomach and irritates the whole nervous system. Beecham's Pills are the best remedy in the world to overcome retarded digestion and to strengthen the stomach nerves.

Restlessness, insomnia and terrifying dreams are banished when the stomach promptly disposes of its food, and Beecham's Pills will bring quick relief from all these nerve-racking experiences.

IS DEDICATED TO PHILLIPS

High School Seniors Honor Instructor in Connection With "Zenith."

"The Zenith," the annual publication of the senior class at the Central high school, will be dedicated this year to Prof. T. Frank Phillips, instructor in physics at the school. This was decided at a meeting of the seniors held yesterday afternoon.

The members of the class of '07 do not recite to Prof. Phillips this year, but they did when they were juniors, and he was very popular with them. However, most of the other instructors are very popular with the seniors, too, and it was only after a debate that the sentiment became unanimous for dedicating "The Zenith" to Prof. Phillips.

At the meeting yesterday, Treasurer Cant reported a total of $22.25 in the treasury, of which sum $1 was collected as dues during the past month. The class suffered a loss of $2.07 on the annual banquet and dance, but this loss is small as compared with those of other years.

Friday evening the seniors will enjoy a sleighride to the Lakewood pumping station, to be followed by a dance at Harmony hall, Lester Park. The affair will not be given under the direct auspices of the class, however, and the boys will foot the bills.

BRIDE IS A SUICIDE.

Was Married Only Six Weeks Ago at Blue Earth.

Blue Earth, Minn., Jan. 17.—Lydia F. Fuller, wife of Verne J. Fuller of this city, committed suicide by taking morphine and opium. She was only married to Mr. Fuller six weeks ago, having come all the way from Los Angeles, Cal., to be married to him. She was 28.

She was insane and Coroner A. J. Franklin decided it was unnecessary to hold an inquest. Her remains were taken to Pepin, Wis., the former home of her husband.

LOVE OF WIFE GONE.

Crum Says Cherry Stole It and Sues for Damages.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 17.—For the alienation of his wife's affections J. E. Crum, a business man of Council Bluffs, yesterday began an action in the district court here for $25,000 against J. W. Cherry, a Des Moines druggist.

Crum alleges that he was married in 1898, and that for two years enjoyed domestic happiness; that Cherry, who then lived at Creston, went to Council Bluffs, met his wife and at once proceeded to win her affections.

FORGOT HIS WIFE'S NAME.

Nebraska Man Spends the Night Trying to Remember It.

Sioux City Iowa, Jan. 17.—Because he had forgotten the name of his wife, whom se had married two hours before, Edward S. Ramsey, of Lincoln, Neb., a brakeman on the Burlington, spent most of Tuesday night in a vain search for her. He located her yesterday through the medium of the marriage license record. Bessie Spring, a local hotel man's daughter, met Ramsey night before last. He dared her to marry him and she took him up. When Justice Naglestad asked her if she would "love, honor and obey," the bride said "Cut that out. If he tries to make me obey, there'll be a divorce in our family." After the ceremony Ramsey sent his bride home in a hack while he got some theater tickets. The purchase made, he tried to locate her home and failed. He had forgotten her name, hence his plight.

HIS TRUST BETRAYED

Congressman Adams Who Committed Suicide Misused $70,000.

Defalcation Made From Funds of Estate of Women Relatives.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 17.—The late Congressman Robert Adams, Jr., of this city who committed suicide in Washington last year, was declared in the orphans' court yesterday to have been defaulter to the amount of $70,000. The assertion was made during an argument in surcharge proceedings brought against H. Carlton Adams, surviving executor and trustee of his father, Robert Adams, Sr., by his stepmother, Mrs. Robert Adams, Sr., and his stepsister, Mrs. Charles Moran of New York.

Counsel for H. Carlton Adams told the court he would show that Congressman Adams had appropriated to his own use $70,000 worth of bonds belonging to the estate and to H. Carlton Adams. It was stated that the congressman and H. Carlton Adams had keys to a safe deposit box in which the alleged bonds ad been kept and that five years ago, H. Carlton Adams had discovered that Pennsylvania canal bonds were missing. He notified his brother and the matter was fixed up. Subsequently H. Carlton Adams' condition became such that he could not attend to business and matters were left to the congressman.

A brother testified that Congressman Adams had pledged Pennslavania canal bonds valued at $10,000 for a loan of $2,900. Of the remaining bonds, valued at about $60,000, no trace has been found.

It was also claimed that a part of the accumulated income of his father's estate of which Congressman Adams had charge was unaccounted for.

In proof of his assertion the attorney for H. Carlton Adams produced a letter in court from the suicide congressman, written the day he ended his life in which he said he was sorry he had caused a "mess" and urged that H. Carlton Adams be not held responsible for any securities that might be missing.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Defective Furnace Causes Fire Loss of $150,000 at Fargo.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Bristol & Sweet, wholesale harnessmen, suffered a loss of $150,000 yesterday from a fire which is thought to have started from a defective furnace. They had both wholesale and retail stores, and their entire stock of manufactured and unmade goods went up in smoke. The leather made such a hot fire that the rest of the Broadway block was greatly endangered. The firm carried sufficient insurance to cover its loss fairly well. It had $20,000 worth of manufactured goods already packed for shipment, but which had been delayed by blockaded roads. A $7,000 order of leather was taken into the warehouse Tuesday evening.

The farmers, grain shippers, state veterinarians and poultry fanciers are having their inning in Fargo this week. For more than a decade annual meetings of the farmers of the Dakotas and Minnesota have been held here under the aucpices of the Tri-State Grain and Stock Growers' association. The association was organized at the suggestion of Budd Reeve, the sage of Buxton, who secured the indorsement of the plan by President Hill of the Great Northern, as a result of which one-fare rates have always been granted delegates. Secretary Wilson at Washington has always given the movement a hearty indorsement, and this year followed his usual custom of sending some representative of his department here for an address.

The North Dakota veterinarians have a two-days' program. The North Dakota Poultry association has exhibits from a large number of members, and in addition there are several special exhibits of rare birds.

The Independent Grain Shippers' association was formed here last night by interests which expect to control the grain from the time it leaves the farm until it reaches the mills. It was decided to establish primary elevators in the grain country, and terminal houses at the Head of the Lakes. There was a large attendance of grain shippers and farmers' elevator men. The new organization is the result of the merging of the old Independent Grain Shippers' association and the North Dakota Elevator association, and includes fifty-four elevators in this state. Among the speakers at the meeting weer O. G. Major, president of the Minnesota Farmers' exchange; W. C. McFadden, secretary of the committee of the North Dakota Bankers' association, which visited Superior last fall in the interest of the independent grain shippers of this state, and H. A. Johnson of Superior, member of the Wisconsin grain and warehouse commission. A delegation from the Duluth Board of Trade, including President Julius H. Barnes and Secretary Charles F. Macdonald, attended the meeting, but did not participate in the proceedings.

Picketing in any form is illegal during strikes in this state, according to a decision rendered by Judge Pollock of the district court. More than a year ago the printers employed in all the typothetae jobbing houses here went on a strike. Walker Bros. & Hardy objected to the methods of the union men in picketing their place. A temporary restraining order was granted and some time ago the case was argued on its merits, the court holding against the union.

Bowbells—A distastrous fire broke out at 11 o'clock Tuesday night in the general store of M. Levy, and only the unceasing efforts of the citizens of Bowbells prevented the whole town from being consumed. The loss may reach the $10,000 mark.

M. Levy's store, which is owned by C. J. Kopriva, was destroyed, with all its contents.

The fire spread rapidly, destroying the drug store of Donovan brothers on the south and damaging the State bank building to the extent of $800.

Kopriva's loss was $2,000 and covered by two-thirds insurance, and the Levy stock was fully insured. Most of the Donovan stock was saved and the building two-thirds insured. Donovan's loss is estimated at $2,500 and the loss to the Movius office building is $800.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Castlewood—John Walkin has returned from Dell Rapids, where he closed one of the largest real estates deals ever made by a land man of this place, having sold twenty-five quarter sections of land in McPherson county to H. O. Rime of Dell Rapids for $80,000.

Bristol—One of the most stringent anti-pool ordinances in the state has been enacted by the town board of Bristol. It pjrohibits boys under 16 years of age from playing pool, and boys between 16 and 21 are prohibited from playing unless they secure permission from their parents.

Armour—Recently Editor Thomas of the Armour Chronicle published an editorial on the "Boy Struck Girl" of about the tender age of 14 summers. Today not half of the girls of that age residing in Armour will recognize him when chancing to pass on the public thoroughfares. Mr. Thomas is of the opinion that about all took the article as a personal affront, though no names were mentioned.

Mrs. Miller Makes a Fortune

Started a Few Years Ago with No Capital, and Now Employs Nearly One Hundred Clerks and Stenographers.

Until a few years ago Mrs. Cora B. Miller lived in a manner similar to that of thousands of other very poor women of the average small town and village. She now resides in her own palatial brown-stone residence, and is considered one of the most successful business women in the United States.

Several years ago Mr. Miller learned of a mild and simple preparation that cured herself and several friends of female weakness and piles. She was besieged by so many women needing treatment that she decided to furnish it to those who might call for it. She started with only a few dollars' capital, and the remedy, possessing true and wonderful merit producing many cures when doctors and other remedies failed, the demand grew so rapidly she was several times compelled to seek larger quarters. She now occupies one of the city's largest office buildings, which she owns, and almost one hundred clerks and stenographers are required to assist in this great business.

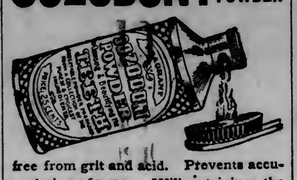

Million Women Use It.

More than a million women have used Mrs. Miller's remedy, and no matter where you live, she can refer you to ladies in your own locality who can and will tell any sufferer that this marvelous remedy really cures women. Despite the fact that Mrs. Miller's business is very extensive, she is always willing to give aid and advice to every suffering woman who writes to her. She is a generous, good woman and has decided to give away to women who have never used her medicine $10,000.00 worth absolutely FREE.

Every woman suffering with pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing-down feelings, nervousness, creeping sensations up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, or piles from any cause, should sit right down and send her name and address to Mrs. Cora B. Miller, Box 2701, Kokomo, Ind., and receive by mail (free of charge in plain wrapper) a 50-cent box of her marvelous medicine; also her valuable book, which every woman should have.

Remember, this offer will not last long, for thousands and thousands of women who are suffering will take advantage of this generous means of getting cured. HOMESTEADER UNDER ARREST

Fourteen Deer Hides Were Found in His Possession.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—At Bovey, on Tuesday, J. C. Green of Duluth and A. G. Rutledge of Bemidji, wardens for the state game and fish commission, arrested Albert Tyndall, a homesteader living near Bovey, on the charge of having raw deer hides in his possession. Tyndall was arraigned before Justice Priest, at Bovey, where he pleaded not guilty and was placed under $100 bonds to appear at the trial of the case, which was adjourned until Jan. 24, at 10 a. m.

Complaint has been made to the executive agent of the commission at St. Paul that Tyndall was in the habit of slaughtering deer at all seasons of the year, and that he made a practice of selling venison to several parties in Bovey. Wardens Green and Rutledge were delegated to investigate the matter. They drove to the home of Tyndall, twelve miles west of Bovey, where they made a search and found fourteen deer hides. Several of the hides were of the unmistakable red color that indicates the deer had been shot in the summer, and one skin was that of a small fawn, with white spots, which could not have been killed at any other time than during the warm months of summer. There was but one hide that could possibly have been proocured during the open season for hunting big game, and as Tyndall had never gone to the trouble of procuring a license, he was not lawfully in possession of that hide.

Tyndall was taken to Bovey, where he pleaded not guilty, but later stated that he would change his plea to guilty.

OFFICE WAS AN EARNER

Clerk of the District Court Compiles Annual Report.

Receipts for Year Were $4,407 More Than All Expenses.

During the year 1906 the business transacted by the clerk of the district court of St. Louis, totalled $16,730.14, of which $12,372.69 represents cash turned over into the county treasury and $4,407.45 represents work done for the county.

These figures, compiled from the annual report of J. P. Johnson, clerk of the district court, contain a number of interesting features.

The office, after paying Mr. Johnson's salary and the salaries of all the clerks, earned the county $4,744.28, which was much the best showing that has ever been made since the county was organized.

The amount of business transacted by the clerk of district court was about 33 1-3 per cent larger than the business of 1905, when the total work done totalled $12,667.70, and when the cash turned over to the county amounted to $9,050.20.

The recipts for 1906 are shown under the following items:

Certificates	$1,970 80
Sundries	1,799 35
Civil cases	5,724 79
Criminal cases	783 02
Marriage licenses	3,074 00
First and second papers	3,126 00
Jury fees	252 00
Total	$16,730 14

In the above list the amount of work done for the county was represented by the following items: Sundries, $1,488.85; civil cases, $2,157.40; criminal cases, $761.20.

The report shows that while there was a 33 1-3 per cent increase of general business of the office, there was a decrease of criminal work, indicating fewer criminal cases prosecuted than in previous years, a showing that is as good as that of increased earnings to the county.

The largest month's business was recorded of November, when the receipts were $2,188.62. One of the reasons for this large business was the fact that the court was, that month, making its tour of the ranges, issuing citizenship papers and collecting fees.

The marriage license fees indicate a total of 1,537 licenses issued by the clerk and his deputies last year, as against 1,254 licenses issued in 1905. The report does not show the divorces granted.

In 1905 the clerk received $1,008 for citizenship papers, as compared with $3,126 in 1906. The receipts from criminal cases totalled $863 in 1905, as compared with $783 in 1906.

INDIAN LANDS AND LEASES

Senate Committee Advices Many Changes of Much Importance.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The select committee of the senate appointed during the last session to investigate conditions in the Indian Territory mades its report yesterday through Chairman Clark of Wyoming. Its recommendations were:

That the surface of the 500,000 acres of coal lands segregated in 1902, be sold, but that the mineral rights be indefinitely retained as the property of the Indians.

That all restrictions be removed from the surplus lands of all citizens of the Five Civilized Tribes except minors.

That the restrictions as to homesteads of members of tribes not of Indian blood, including intermarried whites, and freedmen be removed.

That restrictions on homesteads of Indians of either full or mixed bloods be retained.

That with reference to oil and gas leases, the regulations requiring a deposit of $5,000 by leasers be modified, or dispensed with and that leases may be allowed without requiring the consent of the secretary of interior and that some tribunal in the territory be authorized to perform this service and that new pipe lines be permitted.

The surface land in the 500,000 acre coal land segregated is estimated to be worth from $10 to $15 per acre, and the mineral rights from $5 to $40 an acre.

Secretary Hitchcock's order of withdrawal of land for forest reserve purposes is declared "without authority of law."

LAND FRAUDS UNDER STUDY

President Holds Conference Concerning Wyoming Coal Steals.

Washington, Jan. 17.—An important conference regarding the land frauds in Wyoming was held at the White House yesterday between the president, Commissioner Garfield of the bureau of corporations, who is soon to become secretary of the interior, Assistant Attorneys General Cooley and Purdy, and Senator Warren of Wyoming.

Secretary Hitchcock, who brought the revelations regarding the alleged frauds to the president's attention, preceded the others to the White House and left just as they were joining the president. He was accompanied by Charles Nagel of St. Louis.

The charges of frauds were brought during a hearing by the interstate commerce commission some months ago. It is alleged that the Union Pacific railroad company, which owns the stock of a coal company, had obtained title fraudulently to large tracts of coal land in Wyoming.

THREATENING GIANT IS SHOT

Killed While Pursuing Another Man With a Butcher Knife.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, Jan. 17.—Marion Thompson, who keeps a restaurant near Buxton, shot and killed a giant named Howard Burgess, locally known as "Big Boy," and then made his escape. The shooting is said to have been done in defense of his own life.

Burgess, who was seven fet tall and weighed 600 pounds, was chasing Thompson with a long butcher knife, when the latter shot twice to warn him. The giant still pursuing him and vowing to have his life, the restaurant keeper fired again, the bullet pierceing Burgess' heart and causing instant death.

Burgess has a reputation as a trouble-maker and is said to have had trouble previously with Thompson and to have threatened his life. Tuesday night he told his wife he was going out to finish Thompson. He then left the house and his wife slipped out to warn Thompson of his danger.

Thompson procured a shotgun and placed it where he could reach it quickly. While the woman was still in the restaurant "Big Percy" entered, bearin a long butcher knife.

Cursing and raving, he started for the restaurant man, who seized his shotgun and warned the enraged giant to stand off. As he still came toward him, Thompson fired once in the air, but this having no effect, he took deliberate aim, and, with the other barrel tore a hole two inches in diameter through the giant's heart.

The killing was witnessed by Mrs. Burgess and a man named William Banner. Thompson fled immediately after the tragedy and is still at large.

SPREE ENDS IN SUICIDE.

Husband Shoots Himself Just as His Wife Arrives.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 17.—Lars O. Bjerke shot and fatally wounded himself in his room at the South Side hotel, 229 Cedar avenue, yesterday evening. He died at the Swedish hospital yesterday.

Bjerke lived at Rushford and was a traveling salesman for a Chicago house. He had been staying in Minneapolis for three weeks, and during that time had been drinking heavily. A few days ago he sent for his wife and little daughter and promised to meet them at the railway station.

When they arrived he was not there, but they went directly to the hotel and were shown to his room. Finding it locked, employes broke open the door and found Bjerke unconscious on the bed, with a bullet wound in his head and a revolver clutched in his hand.

He was hurried to the Swedish hospital in the South Side patrol wugon, but lived only a few hours.

Tullar, who is a giant in stature, became invilvode in a dispute with Dugan over a horse race. The men came to blows and Dugan was given a terrible beating. He went to a horse trough after the fight to wash the blood from his face, and dropped dead. So angry was the crowd of fair visitors that Tullar narrowly escaped being lynched.

The kidney secretions at times presented an unnatural appearance, and I was run down. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a box and used them. From the prompt, satisfactory results obtained I can speak of them only in the highest terms of praise. Doan's Kidney Pills are all and more than they are represented to be. NOT A DULL MOMENT!

There has not been any let-up in the fast and furious selling at The Columbia since the "January Rebate Sales" were started early last week. No one need rely on mere newspaper statements when he buys at this store. The announced reductions in prices are plainly visible to every person who examines the goods and the green tickets showing the unmagnified price-cuts. Hundreds of Men's and Boys' Suits and Overcoats were sold here in the last ten days and of all who well knew the former prices, we've only heard praise and commendation for the "different" way in which Columbia sales are conducted.

WE ARE TAKING STOCK.

The whole force (twice the number of any other clothing store) is working overtime taking the annual inventory this week, but the selling goes on just the same. After inventory we will probably have many extra specials as weak spots in the stocks are revealed that need re-enforced selling of odds and ends at still more radical reductions. STREET WORK COMMENCED

Street Improvements for 1907 Are Now Under Way.

Work was commenced yesterday on the rock excavation at Twenty-fourth avenue east, and two steam drills are working on the street now.

During the first block of the improvement it will be necessary to remove 4,300 cubic yards of rock, but the remaining five blocks of the improvement will not be more than usually difficult.

The iron workers, who some time ago went on strike at the Lake avenue viaduct, because of the non-union track layers employed by the street car company, have finished their part of the work on the bridge, and this morning the company started in a crew of men laying the rails. The crew, which is laying the flooring, also got busy this morning, and work on the structure is being rushed to completion as fast as possible. The men employed in cleaning the iron work are still working, but are nearly through, and the painting of what few girders remain will occupy a comparatively short time.

Contractor Hugh Steele, who has charge of the paving of Commerce street from Fifth avenue west to the St. Paul & Duluth slip, is also expected to begin work within a few days. A storm sewer is to be installed in connection with the paving and as in the summer months much of this is under water, it will be much easier to work now than in the water as would be necessary after the spring thaw.

CASES ARE DISMISSED.

Two Federal Court Actions Settled and Two Are Continued.

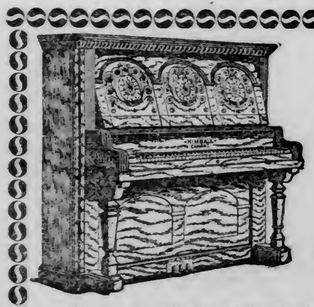

The arguments of the attorneys regarding the motion for a directed verdict in favor of the defendants in the case of Gesidio Farchione against the International Harvester company, were continued before Judge Morris in United States circuit court, this morning, and will probably not be concluded until this afternoon's session is completed.

There were two dismissals of actions in court this morning, and two cases were continued over until the next term, so that there is not much work ahead of the court at the present time. The two personal injury suits brought against the Northern Pacific railway by Joseph Pignato in one and Hery P. Morin in the other, were dismissed this morning, the attorneys having settled the cases satisfactorily to their clients.

The civil case of Gustaf Ruhanen against Dan Haley was continued until the next term, as was also the personal injury suit instituted by W. G. Bonham, guadian of Leo Kitko, against the Republic Iron & Steel company.

FLOOD NEAR PITTSBURG MAY CAUSE MILLION LOSS.

Pittsburg, Jan. 17.—There was no improvement in the situation at the Springdale dam today. The Allegheny river is still cutting into the bank, and unless the current is soon diverted, the property loss may reach $1,000,000. Already the damage exceeds $50,000 and another row of seven houses is expected to be washed away at any time.

A CHICAGO MILLIONAIRE LEARNS THE DIFFERENCE.

He was traveling in Switzerland, and when about to cross a great mountain divide, he purchased a first-class coach ticket, and after riding some distance he noticed that those who had purchased second and third class tickets seemed to have the same accommodations as himself. "How foolish of me to have paid more," he thought.

But on arriving at the foot of a seven-mile hill the driver pulled up his horse and shouted: "First-class passengers will keep your seats; second-class passengers get out and walk; third-class passengers get out and push." And so it is.

WOULD MAKE IT EASIER

To Secure Passage of Amendments to City Charter.

At Present, Neutral Votes Count Against the Amendments.

City Clerk Cheadle today received a letter from Joseph T. Ermatingen of St. Paul, asking for statistics in regard to votes taken in the city of Duluth on charter amendments. The object of the canvas for statistics along this line is in order to procure legislation whereby amendments to city charters may be more easily adopted. This topic has been discussed for some time, and it is evident that one of the most serious flaws in the state constitution is the passage requiring that three-fifths of all the votes cast at an election are necessary for the passage of an amendment to a city charter.

For example, at the general municipal election in Duluth in 1902, there were approximately 7,500 votes cast. At that time certain amendments to the city charter were before the people, and they received only about 3,000 votes in favor of their adoption and 800 against it. In other words, 3,700 of the voters at that election had no interest in charter amendments, and while in reality their votes counted against the amendments, they expressed no opinion either way.

A special election was held in October of the same year and the same amendments submitted to popular approval. Of the 1,500 votes cast, 1,000 were affirmative and the amendments were adopted.

The same amendments, which in the spring had received 3,000 votes and were lost, were carried by 1,000 votes. In the spring election, if every man who had voted on the amendment question, either for or against the amendments had voted in favor of them, the total would not have been great enough to make up the three-fifths vote necessary for their passage.

The remedy, which the lawmakers are trying to apply to this evil, is to amend the article to demand three-fifths of the vote cast at the election on that particular question, instead of all the votes cast.

At present it is almost imperative to hold a special election to procure an amendment to the city charter, and the resulting expense to the various municipalities is great.

NEW SCHOOL TO BE BUILT

Building for Sisters of St. Benedict to be Begun at Once.

Plans for the new school of the Sisters of St. Benedict, to be erected this summer, are now out, and the new educational institution promises to be one of the city's finest buildings. It is to be constructed of stone and trap rock entirely, and will be thoroughly fireproof, with brick partitions and reinforced concrete floors.

On the first floor of the building will be located the reception parlors, a parlor and dining room for the clergy, in gymnasium, 25 by 60 feet in size, in connection with which are to be completely equipped shower baths and an infirmary. Facing on the court around three sides of which the building is to be built are the kitchen, refectories, and the office of the directress.

On the second floor will be the school library, school room, and the sleeping rooms for the students, and a large room to be used as a sort of assembly hall.

The third floor is much similar to the second, and in the big tower which will crown the southeast corner of the structure, three more sleeping rooms are provided.

The new school is to cost over $35,000 and the work on the foundation will be started at once, building permits having already been issued.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Tramp is Fined for Sleeping in Oneota Church.

Aged Vagrant Sent to Poorhouse in Spite of Protests.

"It't a bad thing, this going to sleep in church," said Judge Windom this morning when William Corrigan was brought before him on a charge of trespass. "It has brought a lot better men than you into trouble."

Corrigan was discovered by officers Toewe and Broullette camping out in the Oneota Presbyterian church at Thirty-eighth avenue west and Grand, and he was in about as bad a condition as a man could be.

When brought to the station yesterday Corrigan was asked if he had not suffered from the cold, but he said disdainfully that he couldn't freeze. He had, however, evidently been exposed for some time to extremes of weather for his ears were raw and swollen from repeated freezing, and his whole appearance was that of one on the last verge of starvation and suffering.

A fine of $15 and costs was imposed with the alternative of a 10-day jail sentence. It was more as a charity than a penalty, for Judge Windom instructed the authorities to see that he got a good bath, and a big dose of disinfectant as soon as he reached the jail.

Corrigan had been in the church for two or three days when discovered, and gave no very lucid explanation of his reasons for selecting the place of worship as a resting place.

Dave Mann, accused of vilely insulting a waitress in the Delmonico cafe Tuesday evening, pleaded guilty to the charge and, though he protested that the fact that he was drunk at the time should have excused him, the judge couldn't see it that way, and imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

John Quirk, vagrant, was one of the court's most interesting subjects this morning. He is claimed to be one of the class of old men, who get into the way of thinking that the county owes them a living and who when the poorhouse authorities attempt to get them to assist in the work around the farm, look upon its an imposition and get ugly.

They are the most persistent vagrants in the city, and keep turning up again and again on this charge. Quirk ran away from the poor house some time ago, and was arrested in a Bowery lodging house yesterday. The poorhouse authorities were not over anxious to get him back either, but they finally reached an amicable agreement, and the old man took the "over the hills" road again this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will make their home on Twenty-second avenue west.

OLD RESIDENT IS DEAD.

Mrs. Caroline Scott Passes Away in Fond du Lac.

Mrs. Caroline M. Scott, one of the old residents of this section, died at an early hour this morning, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clara Miller of Fond du Lac. Mrs. Scott had been failing for some time, and old age was the cause of her death.

Mrs. Scott was 88 years old, having been born in Maine in the year 1818. She resided in that state for many years during her early life, and settled at Duluth or in this vicinity twenty-four years ago. She has lived here ever since that time.

Besides Mrs. Miller, eight children survive Mrs. Scott and they reside in different sections of the country, from Maine to Washington. One other daughter, Mrs. Lillian Smith, resides at Minneapolis, and the following are the sons: W. W. Scott of West Duluth; D. F. Scott of Rutledge, Minn.; A. B. Scott of Tacoma, Wash.; F. P. Scott, Snohomish, Wash.; Alfonzo B. Scott, M. F. Scott and T. J. Scott, all of Maine.

The funeral will be held at the residence of Mrs. Miller, at Fond du Lac, tomorrow afternoon, and the remains will be buried at Oneota cemetery.

Two Teams Are Organized by St. James Catholic Club.

The manager of the teams is J. A. Mansergh and the senior team is captained by David Fieldman, and the junior by Abe Brotherton.

The preparation for the tournament to be held by the association about the middle of February are progressing satisfactorily according to the report of the committee composed of Frank Keidler, Christ Carlson, Forest Kent and C. F. Raymond. The committee reported last evening and gave a program of events for the tournament to the club.

The entertainment committee reported on the plans for the play which will be given by the club during March. The play will be original and the scene local. Christ Carlson, C. F. Raymond, William Little, Arnold Johnson, John Olin and J. A. Mansergh are serving on this committee.

A new constitution, which had been prepared by the committee recently appointed, was adopted by the club and the committee discharged.

THE KINGSTON EARTHQUAKE.

The earthquake and fire disaster that has overtaken Kingston, Jamaica, one of the prettiest towns of the West Indies, cannot but awaken the most profound sympathy in this country, especiallly because only nine months ago one of the fairest and gayest of our own cities was laid waste by a precisely similar disaster. There will not, however, be necessity for great substantial token of that sympathy, because the great British empire, to which the stricken island belongs, knows well how to care for its own sufferers.

The Kingston disaster—the third seismic catastrophe in nine months, San Francisco being the first and Valparaiso the second—shows that the crust of the earth in the new world must be undergoing many strange and violent transformations. And the wisest of scientists of today seem to be as little able to forecast them as did their predecessors in previous centuries.

Of course, it has been known ever since the first settlement of Kingston that it was within one of the great earthquake belts of America, but why so beautiful and so favored an island should be subject to such a destructive visitation is one of the great mysteries of nature that no wise man has ever been able to explain satisfactorily to either himself or to others.

It is strangely significant also that all three of the recent dread disasters have overtaken places of world-wide renown as resorts for people seeking health or relaxation from the engrossing cares of business and society.

SOME PROSPERITY FIGURES.

By no means the least remarkable of a lengthy array of prosperity statistics for 1906 presented to the public by the New York Sun are the figures that directly concern Duluth and other great lake ports as well as the glowing report of the iron ore production of the Mesaba range.

The footing up of the receipts of the vessels on the Great Lakes for the year 1906 is given as slightly above $61,000,000—far more than was ever received in any one prior year by ship owners. Earnings of steel ships are placed at 13 per cent net while some old "woodeners" are credited with having brought in a revenue as high as 30 per cent. A large proportion of this is credited to the vast iron ore shipments but it is noted that grain shipments came close to the record and, if it had not been for the fall car shortage in the Dakotas, they might have passed previous marks.

The Mesaba iron ore production is declared to have been over 4,000 tons larger than in 1905 while the lowest value of the total still would make it worth several million dollars more than the aggregate gold output of the entire country.

Still further to emphasize the prosperity of this immediate section of the United States, the Sun notes that, during the week ended Dec. 29, the flour mills of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Milwaukee produced 360,000 barrels of flour—an increase of 33,000 barrels over the same week in 1905.

Verily the people of Duluth and vicinity have as much reason to rejoice over the prosperity record of 1906 as those of any other section of America even despite the hampering car shortage in the Northwest the last four months of the year.

TEACH COOKING AT SCHOOL.

That "civilized man cannot live without cooks" passed into an undisputed axiom some forty years ago when Owen Meredith wrote the famous line. That "the best way to make a man happy and contented is through his stomach" is another truism, the force of which has grown more and more convincing with each succeeding year. In fact, many careful students of sociology—and they are not so-called "temperance cranks" either—hold that the sole cause of a large percentage of the drunkenness, divorces and unhappiness in the country is the lack of well-cooked palatable food in the home.

The police statistics of Duluth for the last year recently given out showed a discouraging increase in the number of arrests for minor offenses, especially those of the character that sociologists attribute to the improperly nourished stomach. While The Herald would be loth to arraign the good housewives of the city for direct responsibility for this, at the same time, it would suggest that now is a most opportune time to begin the preparations for making a practical test of the opposing theory of these sociologists—that, with good home cooking, lapses from sobriety and from kindliness in the home will become vastly less numerous.

During the last two summers, the Woman's Council of Duluth has been giving courses of free instruction in cooking in the basement of the Adams school in the West end in charge of Mrs. McCurdy of Chicago. So successful was this, and such great interest was aroused, that the first year no less than 120 girls of the homes of that section received valuable instruction in the preparation of simple, everyday articles of food ,and the past summer the class was increased to 140—the full complement that could be given adequate attention—while thirty-five more young girls were constantly on the waiting list, hoping for vacancies, but hoping in vain as it proved. For this work the Woman's Council provided twenty gas stoves with full equipments and also paid the salary of the instructor and furnished the materials for the various edibles. This work necessitated an outlay of several hundred dollars, but the council is ready to continue this school next summer, and also succeeding summers, if it be deemed advisable.

The teachers in the various schools, attended by the girls who have received the benefits of the cooking instruction, are unanimous in their enthusiastic commendations of the good that has been done, not only to the physical welfare of the members of the two classes and to the younger members of their immediate families but also in the directions of neatness, attentiveness and mental alertness. Unfortunately, no statistics are available as to the effects in making the homes of the cooking students brighter and happier, decreasing family jars and reducing the use of intoxicating liquors but, reasoning from the improvements noted in the children, it is fair to assert that the home benefits have been, at least, equally as marked.

In practically all of the larger, and many of the smaller, cities of the country, provisions have been made for instruction in the public schools in the simpler branches of domestic science. Educators and people alike are unanimous in their commendations and would almost as soon think of dropping the "three Rs" as the domestic science instruction.

Duluth has a regular course in this line of preparation for life's activities only at the normal school. The members of the board of education are, however, gentlemen with broad minds open to reason and it should be no difficult task to induce them to add a domestic science or a cooking course of study to the regular curriculum, at least for the second half of the present school year. That it would be popular is unquestionable.

The Woman's Council has decided to make a request of the board of education for the incorporation of a course in cooking in the school curriculum and has offered the free use of its equipment in the basement of the Adams school as the foundation for such a course.

It is, therefore, up to you, gentlemen of the board of education, to take the necessary steps to advance civilization, make the men of Duluth happier and more contented, decrease domestic jars and jangles, add to the general comfort of unnumbered homes and increase the capacity for cheerful work of the men and women of Duluth, by establishing a cooking school course in the public schools. Certainly, not a taxpayer will ever be heard to utter even a syllable of complaint.

AMERICA'S "RED PLAGUE."

The modern Juggernaut of the rail that exacted a tribute of over 57,000 lives from America last year, has a much less fatal but still formidable rival in the Moloch of fire whose fearful furnaces of death and destruction are to be found in flimsily constructed buildings, from office blocks to tenements, in all of the large, and most of the small, cities of the country.

Carefully compiled statistics show that, in 1906, the "red plague" of fire called for the sacrifice of nearly 7,000 lives and swept to destruction property worth more than $500,000,000. This means that, averaging the days of the year just closed, the flame god took a diurnal toll of twenty lives and $1,500,000 worth of the wealth of the nation. Of course, the exactions were not regular nor were they even well distributed month by month throughout the year. But the total for the entire period, with the San Francisco disaster as the climax, justifies the figures of the average.

Nowhere else in the world, except possibly in China, where holocausts are of such frequent occurrence as to receive only the meagerest attention, is the fire loss, in human lives and in property destruction, anywhere near that of America. It is true that last year was exceptionally terrible because of the San Francisco horror but, year in and year out, for a long series of decades, the average losses have been betwen 3,000 and 5,000 lives and $200,000,000 in property.

The half billion dollars that went into the national ash-heap last year would cover the cost of fifty modern steel and terra cotta and brick skyscrapers. It would pay for one-half of all the country's imports or wipe out nearly half the national debt. It would meet the entire expenses of the postoffice department, the pension bureau, the legislative, judicial and executive establishments and several other minor branches of the general government. It would construct a fleet of fifty colossal battleships or support the United States army for seven years.

The only practical method of meeting the "red plague" and minimizing its terrors is a systematic campaign in all cities, large and small, for the construction of buildings, especially those in which large numbers of people gather daily or live throughout the year, of materials that will not feed the flames and for the gradual destruction of "fire traps" and "tinder-boxes" and the substitution of modern structures for them.

Hand-in-hand, therefore, with the demand for reform in railway train running should go vehement national resolves that there shall also come an end of the era of flimsy, dangerous buildings in all cities and towns.

THE PASSING SHOW.

The men of Cass Lake have organized an anti-treating society. What a lot of money the good women of the town will soon be having!

The Duluth and Minneapolis boards of trade, far from shunning the most searching legislative investigation, cordially invite it. Duluth, at least, expects to emerge with flying colors.

Duluth ought to stand well up in the favor of President Roosevelt. An aggregate of 1618 births against a legitimate total of 661 deaths shows that there is no danger of "race suicide" here.

Andrew Carnegie is the heaviest personal taxpayer in New York city. How about his laudable ambition to die poor? Has he changed his mind or does he think that he has oodles of time yet?

Louis W. Hill, son of President James J. Hill of the Great Northern, is in personal charge of the fuel famine relief work along that system in North Dakota. Just a little bit tardy but highly commendable, nevertheless.

Of course, Duluth men fared well in legislative committee assignments. Its members are neither the slowest nor the sleepiest of the commonwealth's statesmen and they know full well how to take good care of themselves.

Each member of the Minnesota legislature received a pearl-handled knife at the opening of the session. How many of them will make such records as to escape a different sort of knives from their constituents two years hence?

Duluth's building record for 1906 is one of which all of her people well may be proud. Let every business man make it part of his business to inform the whole country that the increase in new structures over 1905 was 66 per cent.

If the state legislature does not "get a hump on itself" as to drainage legislation, congress may beat it out in taking first action for Senator Clapp's bill for the reclamation of swamp lands must be passed, if passed at all, before March 4.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"There are lots of laws on the books that are absolutely useless, and for this reason one always finds plenty of people who have their doubts concerning the benefits that are likely to come from any new legislation that is proposed," said C. H. Warner of Baltimore, Md., at the St. Louis. "I find this true of the pure food law. Neverthless, I am of the opinion that this measure will be vastly beneficial to the country as a whole.

"There is an excellent chance that the man who manufactures impure candy or packs impure canned goods, will be forced out of business hereafter if he does not change his methods, and with this chance staring him in the face, it is more than likely that his product in future will be purer than in the past. The wholesalers and retailers will, I believe, refuse to buy goods that cannot be guaranteed under the pure food law, for the reason that the consumer will refuse to be satisfied with anything that cannot be so guaranteed.

"Aside from this, it will be to the interests of the manufacturer who turns ou pure goods o see that the other fellow is brought into court if he violates the law, for with a dishonest man in the business all the honest men are working under a manifest disadvantage, by putting expensive goods in competition with cheap goods that are passed off as being of the more expensive kind.

"The law is a splendid thing for those whose goods are pure. Heretofore they have been compelled to put their goods upon the market in competition with the products of other concerns using inferior, and therefore cheaper, goods. The public had no way of discriminating and would generally buy one man's goods as quickly as another's. This forced a lowering of prices in order to meet the competition. Under the circumstances the honest man could not realize the profits which were justly due him.

"For years Maryland has been the leading state in the Union in the production of canned goods, as well as one of the foremost in the manufacture of candies. The satisfaction over the new law in my home state is quite general. The cheaper houses or some of them are kicking, but they have been in business too long already, and every kick is a confession of cheating in the past.

"Questions have arisen as to exactly what can be done and what cannot be done in the way of using coloring matters and labeling. The law says that in canned goods coloring matter can be used, provided it is harmless and is not employed for concealing inferior quality. The question is, how far will the government allow a manufacturer to go in using coloring matter? The rault will probably be that little of the stuff will be used, the packer not caring to take any risks. Heretofore an enormous quantity of the canned goods has been colored."

"So much snow makes it very bad for the trappers through Northern Minnesota," said R. L. Berg of Bemidji, Minn., at the Lenox. "Men engaged in the business would not mind it so much if the snow would come all at once, but what they object to is having it fall every day or two, burying the traps out of sight, and making them worthless until dug out and reset.

"A few inches of snow over the pan make a trap worth about as much as if it were spring, and in the case of a deadfall, or other contrivance made of sticks and trees, it doesn't take much snow to put them out of commission. There heve been periods this winter when snow fell practically every night, and morning after morning the trappers would go the rounds and get almost nothing but work.

"Furs command a fair price this year, taken as a whole, and the successful trapper stands to make good profits from his season's work. Mink and marten are in good demand, and there is no trouble in disposing of weasel and musk rat pelts, or any kind of fur, in fact."

"All stories to the effect that a supposed combine of meat packers is doing away with competition, and making it unnecessary to pay a good traveling man what he is worth are entirely without foundation," said S. A. Walker of Omaha, at the Lenox. "There is no meat trust. All the big houses of the country do business along distinctly separate lines, and no one is connected with the other, except where one company controls two or three plants.

"Five or six years ago it was true that the prices all over the country were virtually agreed upon by the big fellows, all of them sticking to the price set, but this is no longer true. Every house has its own scale of prices, and fixes them regardless of the desires of its competitors. Competition is just as keen in the meat business as in any other line, and any articles one reads to the contrary are are without foundation, in fact.

"A commercial traveler in the employ of a packing house has just as good an opportunity to show what he is worth as a man in any other line. The opportunity is really better, in most cases, for he has to meet such strong competition that he has to do good work to succeed at all, and if he does do good work he is well paid for it. He is paid all he is worth, and the better results he gets for his company, the higher is his salary."

THE WEATHER.

When the heads or sons of the households of Duluth awoke this morning all ready to tackle another big job of snow cleaning from sidewalks, as the weather clerk had prepared them to do, they found only a light fall that brooms could easily remove and they were greeted with a sky clear of clouds except on the southern horizon. The temperature was, however, mild and pleasant and, to this extent, the forecaster was fully vindicated. The sunshine that followed gave much cheer to the merchants, for it meant a busy and prosperous day in the departments in which they had advertised extensive bargain sales. Last night's lowest temperature was 6 degs. and yesterday's highest was 16 degs—both above zero. The weather man promises a generally clear night and morrow with zero temperature tonight.

The sun set at 4:48 o'clock this afternoon and will rise at 7:48 tomorrow morning. Today had exactly nine hours of the sun.

A year ago today a regular Dakota blizzard raged with driving snow, biting cold and high winds until about nightfall.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric disturbances central over California and the Ohio valley caused snow or rain during Wednesday or last night in Middle Atlantic states, lake region, Central valleys and the Southwest, and milder temperature in the western lake region and Mississippi valley. The Montana high pressure has moved to the Dakotas attended by much colder weather there and in the Red River valley. This condition will cause a return to zero temperatures in this section tonight, but will be followed by an increase in warmth during Friday. Low temperature continue the rule in the Northwest, the coldest being 34 degs. below zero at Havre, Mont., while at Moorhead it was 22 degs. below."

Stirs East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks Valley View: While all the towns around us are forming associations of their business men for the purpose of improving the towns, what is the reason that our town can not have one? It will cost nothing to meet once in three or four weeks and talk over the situation. While it might not do much to boom the town, yet we should get better acquainted with one another and with one another's wants and wishes. A community of spirit creates an enthusiasm which it will display itself in some direction. The old saying that everything comes to him who waits, may have been true in the old time, but under the spirit of the present age if a person wants a thing he must go after it. We believe there is a go-ahead spirit enough in town to carry an improvement association through to good results if it were only started; and we also believe that after it was fairly started the good effects of it would be felt immediately.

Tough and Tender.

Wilkin County Gazette: A man at Stillwater claims to have discovered a process to make steel tough. A fortune awaits the inventor of a process for making spring chicken tender.

Anti-Roosevelt Women.

Kansas City Star: Ella Rawls Reader declares that President Roosevelt is in the "conspiracy" against her husband. The Women's Anti-Roosevelt league now includes Mrs. Miner Morris, Mrs. Bellamy Storer, Mrs. Carrie Nation and Mrs. Ella Rawls Reader.

Editor's Sage Advice.

New York Herald: When it comes to blighting budding genius Bernard Shaw hasn't anything on the Omaha editor who, when asked by a correspondent "What shall I do to become an author?" replied: "After looking at your manuscript, I should advise you to wash your hands."

An Elegy.

Eight hundred widows are weeping 'cause
Muzzafir-ed-Din, the Pshaw of Shas,
Muzzafir-ed-Din,
Has just cashed in—
Muzzafir-ed-Din, the Pshaw of Shas.

Gags we could write in linear feet
(And some, we wot, exceptionally neat!)
Of the millin'ry bills
And domestical ills
Of a man with eight hundred spouses to meet!

But his elegy! Ah, that a Gray we'd been
To set his metrical virtues in!
But it MUST be in prose,
For WHERE, do y' 'spose,
Is a word to rhyme with Muzzafir-'d'Din?!
JOHN D. WELLS in Buffalo News.

How to Keep Servants.

New York Sun: A woman who has the good fortune to retain two servants in her family, one for twenty-six and the other for nineteen years, was asked recently, in the presence of her husband, what was the secret of her success. While she was ruminating on the question, her husband answered for her:

"That's easy," remarked the mere man. "All that is necessary is to let the servants run you as they have done my wife and you will have no difficulty in keeping them forever. There's no trick about that."

New Literary Test.

Cape Giradeau Democrat: The other day in a public library an attendant noticed a young girl sniffling suspiciously at the books.

When he asked the reason of her strange conduct she told him frankly, "I sniff at a book," she said "to see if it smells of tobacco. If it does then I know it's a book a man has been reading, and that it's a good one."

Variety in Chaplains.

Brainerd Dispatch: So many preachers applied for the position of chaplain of the South Dakota house of representatives that the question was finally decided by dividing the time between the five resident ministers of the city, and they can choose the days or weeks in which they are to perform the services—a sort of a go-as-you-please affair.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Le Sueur News: John Rockefeller, Jr., says, "we should take God into partnership with us." If John Jr., could make his father believe it what an improvement would be noticeable in things.

Northfield News: It is charged that while Senator Nelson has sought to protect citizens of other states against the monopolization of coal, lignite, asphalt, petroleum and natural gas, he does not appear to have made any effort to break the present monopoly or to prevent any further monopoly of the only mineral known to exist in large quantities in the state he in part only represents.

Moorhead Independent: The state board of control in its annual report to the governor urges that the state legislature should investigate the machinery combine. All of which will be appreciated by the farmers of the state.

Pine River Independent: Pine River merchants are highly satisfied with the holiday trade they enjoyed this year, which was a great deal better than it has been any year previous. This may be explained however, by the fact that much larger stocks were carried than usual and that they used more advertising space in their home papers than ever before. The business patronage received proves one thing conclusively. It pays to use printer's ink.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: Perhaps the national government will occupy the attention of the Standard Oil trust long enough to keep it out of politics.

Minneota Mascot: They are now talking one Johnson of Minneapolis for the republican nomination for governor next year. Well, since his name is Johnson we have nothing more to say—what's the use?

Red Lake Courier: Inquiry among the local merchants shows that the holiday season this year was larger in volume and more cash business was done than last year.

Oslo Tribune: The timber farmer may not raise so much wheat but neither does he have to use so much coal. He can store up a lot of caloric grubbing stumps.

Karlstad Advocate: Reformed spelling was bound to fall from the very start. It afforded no offices with salaries attached.

Stillwater Gazette: Did you notice the water wagon when it went by; there was more room on the seats than there was a week ago and the indications are that there will not be much doing on the wagon for nearly a year.

Dog and Rabbit.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A London naturalist tells of a dog and a rabbit who are fast friends. No one has ever heard of a rabbit disagreeing with a dog after they get together, but a close acquaintance is often prevented by the retiring nature of the rabbit.

They're Afraid.

No more will railroad magnates fish
When summer breezes blow.
They're just a little bit afraid
To re-bait, don't you know.
—Denver Post.

Tons of Soot Daily.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Boston mathematics have wrought out the result that the atmosphere of that city deposits on it 50 tons of soot per month, or about 18 tons daily. Calculate what Pittsburg receives from the same source and your imagination will stagger.

College Men in Business.

Boston Herald: Perhaps the railroad business does not afford the most striking proof of the statement that college-bred men are rapidly coming to the head of corporate management. In spite of a leading merchant's view to the contrary, the great railroads today, as heretofore, when called upon to choose a president, usually take the man who has learned the business "from the ground up" and has lacked time or inclination to go to college.

It Rained Quarters.

New York Sun: Those who toil by day in the lofts of the Park Row building were treated to a coin shower as they were going home. But only their eyes got the benefit. Three employes of the New York Coin Handling company were taking $28,000 of the Interborough Rapid Transit company's extra heavy New Year's collection of nickels, dimes, quarters and half dollars from the Interborough offices on the fifth floor. The coin was in 120 bags, which were piled on a truck. The two front wheels of the coin truck had been pushed onto the elevator, when the extra New Year's weight caused the platform to fall about six inches.

The bags of money were spread over the platform of the elevator. Two bags containing $500 in quarters fell over the sides of the lift and broke into a silver shower. The crowds of office workers caught a glimpse of a glittering stream that sped past them. There was a rush of frenzied financiers to the basement. But the elevator men and the three employes of the Coin Handling company, armed with brooms and shovels, surrounded the pile at the bottom of the shaft before the investigators could arrive.

He Got Home to "Ma."

New York Journal: Fearing that "Ma" would worry if he did not return home on time, William Kohlmeier, 82 years of age, jumped off a Long Island railroad express train as it was thundering past his home in Lindenburst, Long Island, rolled down a steep embankment, picked himself up, brushed his clothes, and expressed surprise that any one should expect him to act differently.

Kohlmeier had business in Babylon. He kissed his wife, and told her he would return on the train reaching Lindenhurst at 7:34. Mistaking an express for a local train, Kohlmeier climbed aboard just as the signal for starting was given. He discovered his mistake as the train sped through his home town, and not wishing to go to Jamaica and return late at night, he hurried to the rear of the train and sprang into the darkness. By almost a miracle he escaped unhurt, save for a scratch over one eye.

LAUGH AND GROW FAT.

Washington Star: "Dar's a heap o' colleges started," said Uncle Eben, "but I'd feel safer if mo' of 'em was given' special lessons in how to run a railroad wifout hurtin' nobody."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Down with the police and their clubs," shouted the anarchist.

The idea was partially carried out. The clubs went down. That there was an anarchist under each as it fell is a mere detail.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Are you related to the bride or groom elect?" inquired the busy usher.

"No."

"Then what interest have you in the ceremony?"

"I'm the defeated candidate."

Yonkers Statesman: "Pop!"

"Yes, my son."

"Why do people travel in cog.?"

"To show that they have 'wheels,' I suppose, my boy."

Puck: Grace—Why did she break the engagement?

Mystic—He told her that she was the only girl he had ever kissed.

Grace—What of it?

Myrtle—Why, she naturally reasoned that he was either untruthful or absurdly foolish, and he was hardly worth having in either case.

Chicago Record-Herald: "My friend," said the man who had been making a long and tiresome speech, "there is little more that I can say on this subject."

"Why 'more?'" asked an impertinent one who had just finished yawning.

Chicago Tribune: Confidential Adviser, —Senator, how much did your campaign cost you?

Senator Lotsmun—It was pretty expensive this time, Ringgold. It cost me one day's income and two or three nights' sleep.

Baltimore American: "Alexander flirts so much that sometimes I believe he doesn't want people to know we are engaged."

"That's because he's a smart Aleck, dearest."

"Oh! By the way, has Guy proposed to you yet?"

"Not yet, but—"

"Ah, that's because he's a wise Guy, darling."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: A bald man may have a great head for any kind of business—except that of a barber.

Faynesville Press: The pass that Representative Howard returned to the Great Northern the other day was number 812. The country newspapers of the state will make it their special business during 1907 and 1908 to discover who are using the 811 passes that were issued before the clerk in the passenger agent's office get down to the letter "H."

Money "Per Capita."

Lake Crystal Union: The amount per capita for every human being in the United States is, according to the figuring of some bloat is $1,400. Who's got the money? There are millions of people in the United States who live, the Lord only knows how and they do not have a dollar once a week. That is the kind of per capita it is. The other fellows have the money.

Reversing Salary Jobs.

Washington Star: The public would feel safer if railways paid the high salaries to men who tend switches and run locomotives, and let the stock-watering and lobbying attaches work for day's wages.

of other measures recommended by the city council of Duluth and other bodies and individuals will doubtless be at hand.

It will probably be decided that in the case of public bills, recommended by public or civic bodies at Duluth, they shall be introduced by the delegation, instead of by individual members.

Former Assistant County Attorney Crosby, who drew up a number of measures that the board of county commissioners recommended, was present to explain them.

One bill provides that the board of courthouse commissioners shall audit the bills on the new courthouse, instead of the county commissioners. Under the present law the county board would have to audit them, and the responsibility would be divided. The bill also provides for a secretary and clerk for the commission.

Another bill of considerable importance, provides for a county examiner of the books and papers of small cities, townships, villages and school districts. At present there is absolutely no check upon them, except such as the taxpayers themselves may choose to exercise. There are provisions for a check on the expenditure of the state of the large cities, and of the counties, but none for the small subdivision, though they spend large sums of money.

For instance, in St. Louis county one interest alone, the United States Steel corporation, pays $1,500,000 in taxes annually. Of that amount $150,000 goes to the state, and there are ample provisions for a check upon it. Again, $150,000 out of that sum goes to the county, and there is plenty of check upon that, too. But the remainder, $1,200,000, or two-thirds of the whole, goes to smaller subdivisions, and is spent without the slightest public supervision.

The need of such a checking system is obvious.

In the same connection it might be noted that the Duluth school district, which spends a very large sum of money annually, amounting to not very much less than that spent by the city of Duluth itself, is absolutely unchecked. There is not even a provision for the publication of the proceedings of the school board, as there is for a country village, that the people may know what is going on, or for the publication of an annual financial statement, such as counties must publish, that the people may know how their money has been spent.

This is not saying that the school board has not conducted itself admirably, and spent the public's money always to the best advantage, but that there is no assurance of it whatever except the confidence the people have in the integrity of the board's membership.

Two other bills by Mr. Crosby relate to public deposits in banks. One provides that the banks need furnish bonds only in the amount of the deposits in their care, instead of double the amount on deposits, and the other provides that banks may pay interest on time deposits of public funds, instead of only on demand deposits. The code cut out the time deposit interest, by mistake no doubt, and it is proposed to reinstate it.

The last bill relates to salaries and clerk hire in St. Louis county, and its principal object seems to be to relieve the situation of the doubt left upon it by the new code. It fixes the salaries of county officers definitely at the sums prescribed by the old laws, and loosens the limitations on clerk hire somewhat. It is also provided that if the county board does not allow enough clerk hire, the county officer who feels that he is aggrived may appeal to the district court.

In addition to these bills, there was one raising the salary of the county attorney of St. Louis county from $2,500 to $3,600, and that of the assistant county attorney from $1,800 to $2,000, and allowing $720 a year for clerk hire.

H. H. Phelps of Duluth, representing the Duluth Real Estate exchange, appeared before the delegation to talk about the proposed contests on the tax amendment and the good roads amendment. The matter was merely discussed informally, and nothing was done about it.

Mr. Phelps came down to see the attorney general in relation to the matter, and found him out of town. The attorney general can help a good deal by co-operating in this matter, if he wishes to do so, and Mr. Phelps is anxious to gain his help.

Since the contests were filed in St. Louis county on the tax amendment and in Carlton county on the good roads amendment, the ten days allowed the attorney general to answer have elapsed, and he has not yet filed an answer. The contestants could go into court and claim a default on the part of the state, but they have no desire to do so. However, unless the attorney general co-operates in the matter, it may yet be necessary to do that.

Since there are two contests, there would be two sets of recount commissioners, and two recounts, and Mr. Phelps desires, therefore, to consolidate the two actions if he can get the assistance of the attorney general.

Senator D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids, who introduced the bill in the senate providing for a state normal at Cass Lake, said last evening that his idea in offering the bill was to remedy the difficulty school districts in that part of the state have in finding enough good teachers.

"It is true," said Senator Gunn, "that the Duluth normal is not far away, but St. Louis county is an empire in itself, and can easily use all the teachers the Duluth school can turn out. Our section is another great empire, and we have much trouble in finding teachers. The bill appropriates no money, but simply provides for the selection of a site which the village of Cass Lake will gladly furnish free of cost. The bill is substantially a copy of the bill which created the Duluth normal school."

Senator Gunn was a member of the house during two sessions when the fight for the Duluth school was on, and as he helped the Duluth delegation then, he will probably call upon them now to reciprocate.

An effort was made by Lieutenant Governor Eberhart to apportion the membership of the reapportionment committee as equally as possible over the state. The districts that stand to lose and not to gain by reapportionment, the First, Second, Third and Seventh, have six members, and the districts that will gain will have seven members. However, the Sixth district will gain very little, as its southern counties are about as they should be, so this makes it about as near a standoff as possible.

At first St. Louis county had no member on this committee, but a trade was arranged whereby Senator Sageng of the Ninth district went off and Senator Laybourn of Duluth took his place.

In the house no reapportionment committee has yet been authorized by the rules, but one will be appointed later, and it is proposed to make it consist of two members from each congressional district, with one at large. This arrangement will give the friends of reapportionment a safe advantage in the house, with at least an equal show in the senate.

There is no prospect, or very little at the most, that the reapportionment bill if it passes, will be effective before Jan. 11, 1911, because to make it effective in 1909 would cut a lot of senators out of the second session to which their elected terms entitled them. Of course, this is rather selfish, and of course the legislature really ought to make the reapportionment effective at once, but there is human nature of the common or garden variety in the senate as well as in other bodies, and it stands in the way of such an arrangement.

The exhaustive article in The Herald on railroad taxation has created much talk among the members of the legislature, to most of whom it was an eye-opener. The idea that railroad taxation was not as heavy as it might be, without subjecting railroad property to greater burdens than other property is well used to bearing, does not seem to have occurred to many of the members before.

The injustice that is being done to terminal points like Duluth is also a new proposition to many of them, though it must be confessed that it does not appeal to them quite so directly as it does to those that suffer from it. However, the showing will have its effect, and something may be done before the session is over to remedy the conditions that now exist.

The bill introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator McGowan of Minneapolis prohibiting corporations from contributing to campaign funds is a much more effective document than the law that now stands on the statute books, which was passed two years ago and by a piece of legislative legerdemain, was rendered wholly ineffective and foolish.

The bill lubricating the machinery for the selection of jurors in the three largest counties, which passed the house yesterday after it had been amended to include St. Louis county, was rendered necessary by a condition in Hennepin and Ramsey counties, under which the old general system of selecting jurors had proved wholly inadequate. The business of the courts often halted because of a scarcity of jurors, and the bill was designed to permit the judges to select additional jurors in case of a deficiency. The addition of St. Louis county to the counties affected by it was brought about by Representative C. B. Miller of Duluth after consulting with the Duluth judges, who said that the change would be appreciated in the courts there as well as it would down here.

Representative Wold of Twin Valley would cut out the practice of the railroads of giving rebates on mileage books, through the bill he introduced yesterday in the house. It prohibits railroads from charging excess fare, even though it is rebated later, and this provision would also stop the practice of charging an addition to the regular fare when a passenger gets on a train without first purchasing a ticket.

The resolution giving the members $250 each for expenses, which was introduced in the house yesterday by Representative S. O. Morse of Slayton, may arouse some opposition in the country districts, but most of the members seem to feel that it is perfectly legitimate and there are many reasons to sustain their stand. Living expenses in St. Paul have increased materially, the hotels having pushed the rates up to $10 or $15 a month over two years ago; many of the members are refusing to use their passes, while with those who have to take an interstate trip to get home the passes are useless; and the general feeling is that the legislative compensation is altogether too low. An anti-pass bill is pretty certain to go through and if it does it is likely to become effective at once. For these reasons, and for the further reason that the constitution prohibits members of the legislature from raising their own pay, there are many who approve the resolution, and, while it may not go through, and, while it may be criticized if it does go through, it is all right.

However, if the members indulge themselves to this extent at the public expense, returns of benefit to the people will be expected through the passage of legislation that will hasten the millenium.

The bill offered in the house yesterday by Representative Case of Carlton county, requiring lumber companies to burn the tops, slashings, etc., left by the season's logging, is the result of the agitation started by settlers who claim that the practice of leaving this rubbish to dry up and burn, is dangerous, because it fosters forest fires and endangers their property.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

SENSATIONAL DESERT DRAMA

"Favorite Niece" of "Lucky" Baldwin Deserts Her Husband.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 17.—Helen Johnson, "favorite niece" of E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, deserted her husband, Robert Johnson of Los Angeles, in Death Valley last Monday, creating a sensational drama of real desert life that threatens to result in tragedy.

Upon his knees in the desolate sands, sobbing like a lost child, "Bob" Johnson begged his wife not to leave him, while she, revolver in hand, backed off, passing over a small divide, and climbed into the slow-moving wagon of "Andy" Lawson, who wore two six-shooters, carried a Winchester, and defied Johnson to follow them.

Claiming that he had been robbed of his wife, of all his firearms, and of the major portion of his prospecting outfit, Johnson, stung by the taunts of a little group of prospectors, later mounted a mule, and, unarmed, disappeared across Death Valley in pursuit of his lost love.

Saratoga Springs, at the extreme southern end of the Funeral Range, was the scene of this dramatic incident, which is but one chapter in a story replete with gun play, intrigue, and mythical tales of lost mines and hidden treasure.

Mysterious "Scotty" of Death Valley notoriety, "Lucky" Baldwin and his flashy protege, W. A. Kelly, known as "Whispering Kelly," and a dozen or more prospectors form the cast of characters.

SWEETHEARTS PLAN A TRIP IN AN AIRSHIP.

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—If Police Commissioner Bingham of New York will let him, John Francis Daisey, a young inventor of this city, will fly from Williamsburg bridge, New York, in a flying machine that he says is the only real thing in flying machines the world has ever known. With Daisey will go Miss Henrietta Fulton, his sweetheart, an adventurous maiden, who knows all his plans and is so confident of his success that she only laughs when anyone talks of the danger. With both of them will go their dog Gulliver, which is part St. Bernard and part Newfoundland.

Daisey wrote to Bingham on Saturday night for permission. His flying machine, which he calls the "Aero Resist," is all completed, has been tested secretly, and its inventor says, can fly.

The car will hold only three persons and the girl simply wouldn't have anyone else her lover's partner in the desperate enterprise. Daisey could not trust anyone else. The dog goes as an intelligent ballast.

"I know it will fly," she said today, "but if it should happen not to I want to be with Jack. We can all swim, even Gulliver."

Members of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, learning of the invention, last week asked Daisey to give them a secret demonstration. Daisey replied that he would not except upon the deposit of $25,000 forfeit money to cover him in the event of the secret leaking out from this test.

Daisey, at his home, today, said: "I want to sail from Williamsburg bridge, over Broadway, because if I can demonstrate my invention's practicability I will have no difficulty in selling my machine to the government. I deliberately pick out this sensational manner of showing what I can do for that purpose."

AMERICANS EASILY WIN INTERNATIONAL MATCH

All Four Canadian Rinks Lose to Their Opponents.

Consolation Event Under Way—Bonspiel Nearing an End.

By a total score of 46 to 27, the four American rinks, selected from among the curlers from the south side of the boundary line, defeated the four Canadian rinks to whom it fell to uphold the honor of the United Kingdom, last evening in the International match.

Dunbar of St. Paul cinched the match by his victory over Gowler, 14 to 3, as his score of 11-up gave the Americans a handicap which the Canucks could not overcome. Every one of the American skips, however, succeeded in pulling out a slight margin to the good and the Yankees were 19 up when Waugh threw up the sponge without playing off the twelfth end, and conceded the victory to the Americans.

None of the skips, except the great Dunbar, were in anything like championship form, and their support from their team mates, was, on a whole, of a lower grade than they have been receiving thus far in the bonspiel.

Carson and Hurdon played an interesting and close match; Carson trying to score in the eleventh end, and only losing out, 10 to 8, when he fluked on his last stone.

Dunbar won all but the fourth and eighth ends in his match with Carson, and outplayed the Winnipeg man throughout the contest. Rochon suffered from the loss of his third man, W. J. Patterson, who was taken seriously ill yesterday morning, but put up a sensational fight, drawing far into the lead on several occasions.

It is now up to the American rinks entered in the spiel to play down for the international, and while this event will probably not be completed until some time tomorrow, a large portion of the rinks which have been playing will be free to leave after the annual meeting and election of officers at the rink this evening, and only those who have stayed through to the final and semi-final rounds of the various contests will need to be on hand for play tomorrow.

The scores of the games played last night in the international are as follows:

CANADIANS.		AMERICANS.
Latimer,		Cutter,
Morrison,		Hall,
		Hunter.
Rochon	7	Labatt	11
Carrol,		Nelson,

Waugh	9	Reedal	11
White,		Helmick,
Campbell,		Fairborn,
McFarland,		Catlin,
Carson	8	Hurdon	10
Total	27	Total	46

The scores for the games by heads were as follows:

Rochon	0	0	1	0	2	1	2	1	0	0	0	—7
Labatt	2	2	0	1	0	0	0	0	1	1	2	2—11

The consolation event got under way yesterday afternoon.

Only those rinks which were put out in the first or preliminary round of two events, were eligible to enter. Nineteen rinks were entered in all, and seven games were played yesterday afternoon and evening. The event will reach the final round by tonight.

The Duluth event has reached the semi-final round, and three of the four rinks left in it are Duluth rinks. Hurdon, Duncan, Dunbar, and W. D. Brewer were left this morning to fight it out for the first place, all the other rinks having been eliminated last night.

In the Canadian Soo event, the Duluth rinks do not stand such a good show. Dunbar and Lorimer of St. Paul have reached the semi-finals, but their two opponents are not yet known. W. D. Brewer and Reedal will play to determine which shall go into the semi-finals, and A. H. Smith will meet the winner of the Labatt-Carson match.

The Carson rink is the only one which has reached the semi-finals in the St. Paul Jobbers' event. Rochon and Reedal and McGregor and Myron will play off in the third round, and A. H. Smith will meet the winner of the Duncan-Dunbar match. This may give Dunbar another chance at Smith, unless the Duncan rink should prove too much for him, which is not at all unlikely.

Only thirty-one games remained to be played this morning in the four principal events under way, as follows: Duluth event, 3; Soo event, 6; Jobbers' event, 7; Minneapolis event, 15.

The drawings were to be made this morning for the international, in which all of the American rinks will be entered.

By this evening it is expected that all of the events, with the possible exception of the international, will have reached the semi-final round.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—One-third of the playing season of the International professional league hockey teams has passed away and still the Calumet team is in the lead, having a percentage of .714, with five games won and two lost. The Canadian Soo team has the record of being the only team this year to defeat the Calumets and the Canadians are at the tail end of the column.

Team work has helped out the Calumet outfit but all of the other teams, with much better and faster players, are now developing the combination play and should win the majority of the contests played. The Houghton team goes to the American Soo for two games on the twenty-fifth. On Feb. 5, the Calumet team will come to Houghton and this game will be watched with interest all over the hockey world.

The Houghton team, at the present time, is the strongest team ever put on the ice of any rink in the International league and is probably the peer of any team in the Dominion of Canada also. Riley Hern was not good enough for the Houghton net and before he left the Portage Lake management was looking for a new goal tender and is understood to be on the lookout for even a better man than Regan, the present backstop. Fred Taylor, the phenomenal rover, has been put back at point and shows up even better there than does Baird of Pittsburg, than whom there is not a better man on the Canadian side of the dividing line. Taylor is also doing excellent work on the offensive, but at the same time covers his position well and easily breaks up any combination that gets past Holden and Stuart, cover point and center.

"Goldie" Cochrane, who was captain of the Berlin team, champions of the Ontario Hockey association last year of the senior group, has certainly made good at rover in Taylor's place. Bruce Stuart is playing his old forward game and is the same crafty old Bruce of years past, losing none of his former effectiveness. He seems to have developed better speed and plays a better defensive game than he has ever shown. "Grindy" Forrester at right wing, fills his position well, and Lake at left is still the peerless one. Harry Bright, spare and rover, will soon be able to get into the game again. Meantime Harry Brown, point, is on the fence as spare man, the team carrying nine men in all.

The Canadian Soo team continues to lose and is the wonder of the league. How it is that this aggregation of former star players can be kept at the bottom is surprising. Roy Brown is an excellent captain, but the team seems to be playing in the bad luck of the past two seasons. Yet this team had no difficulty in defeating two professional Canadian outfits and played only half of its usual team while doing it.

The American Soo team is playing good hockey with its forward line, but the defence is weak. Jones is the poorest goal tender in the league, although he is good at that. Hamilton is fair, but confines to play a rough game and decorates the boards too often. Pete Charlton, the "famed" point fresh from the Dominion, is out of his class in this league.

The Montreal Wanderers are holding up their reputation as cup holders and will win in the fight with the Ottawas and Kenora Thistles in all probability. The champions of the Maritime league of Nova Scotia, were easy for the big fellows and dropped the series of games at the French town. Kenora will do the same, although the Ottawas may take one of the contests played. The Ottawa team is certainly the second best of Canada. This team was recently defeated by the Stratcheonas of Winnipeg in the West, but the game was a fluke. Within the fortnight several interesting things will happen in both American and Canadian hockey circles, not the least of which will be the battles between the American Soo and Toronto teams, and the American Soo and Barrie, Ont. professionals. It is not unlikely, also, that one of the American teams will have games with the Ottawas in the near futures.

A CORNER IN SPORTS

Another big bonspiel is rapidly drawing to a close and after tonight only a few games will remain to be played.

The curlers will begin leaving for their homes tomorrow morning, and by tomorrow night the spiel should be a thing of the past.

In spite of the disappointments, it has been a grand success. Only thirty-seven rinks showed up, where fifty were expected, but even this number breaks last year's record. The chief drawback to the success of the spiel was the fact that only four Canadian rinks were entered, making the international match a rather small affair.

But in spite of these disappointments, no bonspiel has been more thoroughly enjoyed. The weather conditions have been perfect; the ice has been keen and in first class shape throughout the bonspiel; no unpleasant or unsportsmanlike incidents have occured to mar the sports; all of the curlers entered in the spiel have been a thoroughly congenial crowd; the great Dunbar was present, and the other skips have thoroughly enjoyed meeting him and being defeated (A. H. Smith excepted), and on the whole the bonspiel can go down into history as another "best ever."

This evening the climax will be reached in the annual meeting of the association at the Commercial club, and the banquet following.

TAKE CONTROL FROM FACULTY

Michigan Students Will Withdraw From Big Nine Conference.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 17.—Specials from Ann Arbor to the Free Press and the Morning News say:

The leaders of athletics in the University of Michigan have quietly arranged a coup which will be revealed tomorrow. It is claimed that five of the eight regents will vote to take the control of athletics away from the university faculty and that the regents themselves will assume control. The plan contemplates placing Graduate Director of Athletics Charles Baird and Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick on the board of athletic control, and the immediate or early withdrawal of Michigan from the "big nine" conference. Regents Fletcher, Hill, Dean, Knappen and Sawyer are named as being favorable to the scheme.

COLONY SCHEME GOES TO WALL

Receiver Appointed for Philander H. Fitzgerald's Georgia Company.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 17.—George F. Mull, an attorney, has been appointed receiver of the "1904 Georgia Colony company," an investment scheme operated by Philander H. Fitzgerald.

The petition for a receiver told in detail Fitzgerald's plan to found a colony in Georgia and to give valuable pieces of property to all his stockholders, the size and quality of the land depending on the amount of stock subscribed. In this way the plaintiffs alleged that $70,000 came to Fitzgerald, and that only $20,000 was spent in improving the property. The petitioners declare that the remainder of the money Fitzgerald has in his possession and that he is guilty of fraud and misrepresentation. Besides asking for a receiver and judgment against Fitzgerald, the plaintiffs ask that Fitzgerald be restrained from leaving the state until the case is settled.

Fitzgerald was indicted by the federal grand jury some time ago for using the mails to defraud. The indictment was in connection with the Colony company.

YOUNG FOLKS

Who Went to Surprise Party Are Themselves Surprised.

Parker's Prairie, Minn., Jan. 17.—A company of young folks from the village drove into the country to a surprise party. On the return trip the two sleighs got off the track and became lost in the deep snow. One load drove into an old cellar, covered by snow, and it took thirty minute to get the horses up onto solid footing. Both teams were nearly exhausted when they reached town, after two hours of strenuous hauling. The girls in the party suffered greatly from the cold.

BURNS ARE FATAL.

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 17.—Eric Johnson, who was burned a few days ago by the explosion of a lamp that he bumped against something as he was going down cellar, died Tuesday night. He was 45 and leaves a wife and two children.

IRON TRADE IS LIVELY

Big Buying Movement in Central West for Future Delivery.

Southern Mills Feel Car Shortage, But Pittsburg is Better.

New York, Jan. 17.—The Iron Age says: "The buying movement in pig iron for future delivery, which set in in the Central West since the opening of the year, has made further progress. It is estimated that, during the past week, there have been sales aggregating 100,000 tons in the Chicago district, including one block of 25,000 of malleable iron to one foundry, and 10,000 tons of foundry iron to one machinery manufacturer. Other markets, like Cincinnati and Cleveland, are feeling the movement, the furnaces in the latter district having advanced the price to $22.

"Unfavorable indications are coming from the Birmingham district with regard to the car situation there. It is estimated that there are piled up at the furnaces in the district between 60,000 and 70,000 tons of iron, sold and long due to be delivered, which it has been impossible to move. Pipe makers report heavy inquiries for cast iron pipe, among them being one lot of 12,000 tons for Chicago. The letting of 38,000 tons of pipe for New Orleans next week will be in six sections, but the bulk of the pipe is for next year's delivery. In view of the relatively high prices, it is considered rather doubtful whether the whole of the work will be given out. It will not be significant if it not.

"Pittsburg reports that the supply of steel is becoming better, so far as the open market is concerned. On the other hand tide water steel works have been able lately to place in the territory west of the Alleghnies some good lots at high prices.

"While some large additional steel rail tonnage is pending, the largest single order placed was 7,000 tons, for the San Antonio and Aranzas Pass. It is estimated that all the mills in the country have on their books orders aggregating 2,500,000 tons, in addition to about 250,000 tons carried over from last year.

"In structural material, one order calling for 15,000 tons has been practically closed. Otherwise only fair-sized workw has come out. One of the Eastern mills has advanced its price for shapes to 1.85 cents at mill, against the usual quotations of 1.85 cents at tidewater. Eastern bar iron mills have been picking up some business lately in the Pittsburg district. The export trade goes along the even tenor of its way."

WOMAN BRAVES THE OCEAN GALE

Travels in Little Yacht a Thousand Miles With Husband.

Hamilton, Bermuda. Jan. 17.—A woman of rare courage and fortitude is Mrs. L. J. Byrne, of New York, as she proved by sailing over 1,000 miles of the wintry Atlantic in a little yawl-rigged yacht, manned by her husband alone. That they ever reached port alive is due to their presence of mind.

"The first gale broke over us on the second day out," she says, "and Mr. Byrne got double reefs in the sails before the full force of the wind hit us. We soon had our first taste of real trouble, for, as the waves began to run high some great blocks of ballast broke loose and hurled themselves against the door of the cabin, tearing up planking and making us decidedly uncomfortable.

"Under the constant pounding of the sas the Fleetwing commenced to leak and presently it became necessary to work the pumps. I tried to take a regular turn at them, but my strength was not up to it and so, besides his other work, Mr. Byrne had henceforth to keep them going at regular intervals, both day and night. I relieved him at the wheel and helped handle the ropes when that was necessary, but the pumping was too much for me.

"A slight lull in the gale on the 17th gave us hope of clear skies, but it was not justified. It was during this moment of comparative quiet that Mr. Byrne went forward to clear up some tackle about the bowsprit.

"I was standing in the hatchway, looking out astern, when I heard him call loudly for help. He had fallen overboard, being exhausted by the constant labor and lack of sleep.

"Luckily I had presence of mind enough to respond on the instant. I seized a coil of loose rope and threw it over the side to him just as he was being carried astern in the foaming, angry water. He grasped it and I managed to get him back safe on board, though chilled and dripping.

"The cabin and everything in it was still so wet that there was no change of clothes possible and my poor husband had to lie down in the garments he had on, soaked and half frozen."

LOST MONEY FROM MUFF.

Left It on Fence While She Fastened Unclasped Garter.

New York, Jan. 17.—Miss Esther Beekman, who lives at 219 East Eighteenth street, considers it an unlucky moment when the diamond-studded clasp on her left garter became unfastened. It was to that accident she attributed the loss of $355.

The story of her loss came out in the Yorkville police court, when the young woman appeared there to charge Frank Robalowski, a cigar-maker, of 417 East Sixtieth street, with taking her money. She went to the bank on Jan. 2 and drew out $335, which she proposed to use in her business of selling diamonds on commission.

After getting the money at the bank, she made a roll of the bills and stuffed them in her mink muff. While passing through Eighth street, near Second avenue, she felt something give way.

"The diamond garter is not worth much, but I don't want to lose it," she said to herself, as she looked about to see if there was a chance to adjust it without observation. There was only one man anywhere near, and as he appeared to be middle aged and was wearing eyeglasses, she decided to go ahead with the adjusting.

So as to have both hands free, she put her muff on the picket of a near-by fence, with the roll of bills partly sticking out. It took longer than she had expected to get the garter where it would stay, and the approaching man came up before she had finished. She observed the stranger approach pretty closely to her.

When she finished the job she took her muff and saw that the money was gone. The woman did some clever detective work, and, as a result, one Robalowski, a cigar dealer, was arrested. The man denied that he had taken the money, and the case was adjourned until next week.

MYSTERIOUS TIN BOX DISAPPEARS

It Held Valuables of a Miser Formerly of Michigan.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 17.—A tin box which is believed to contain thirty shares of Calumet & Arizona stock, other valuables and perhaps a will, is missing from the effects of Epherm Murley, who died at the Calumet & Arizona hospital Sunday evening. Charles Madern, appointed administrator of the estate, is making every effort to locate the box. He has the key, it being found in Murley's pocket when he was taken to the hospital.

Murley lived alone in an old adobe hut on the Naco road, just below the Copper Queen magazine. No one knew much about him, as he lived a solitary life. That he was a miser and an eccentric is the statement made by those who knew him best. In his dingy hut Murley passed all his time when not working as keeper of the Calumet & Arizona change room. He did his own cooking. No light was ever seen in his hut at night.

Ed Hocking, Murley's next-door neighbor, was the last man and perhaps the only one who saw the mysterious tin box. He said that some time after Murley returned from Hot Springs, Ark., and prior to his death, he was passing the house, and out of curiosity stepped to a window and through its dirty glass he saw the tin box sitting on a table, while Murley was apparently perusing some certificates.

C. S. Hicks, Undertaker McArthur and J. S. McNish made a visit to the adobe hut Sunday evening after Murley's death, to search for any valuable papers, money or jewelry that might have been left in the house. They found nothing. The doors were locked and there were no signs that anyone had been in the house since the day Murley was taken to the hospital. This only added mystery as to what had become of the box. Believing that possibly Murley had a secret place, either in the walls or under the floor, where it was hidden, Mr. Hicks, together with Charles Maddern, went to the hut and made a thorough search. Nothing was found, and the missing box is now giving the administrator the only trouble.

Murley had $1,000 in the First National bank, owned a house and lot near Don Luis, from which he received monthly rent, was known to have some Calumet & Arizona stock, and was thought to have other property. He has a daughter living in Cleator Moorestown, Cumberland county, Eng., but no relatives in America.

As one of the earliest miners in the camp, Murley came here from Calumet, Mich. It was his boast that he showed Thomas F. Cole where the copper was at the Calumet & Arizona shaft.

CONSCIENCE IS STIRRED

By Baby's Doll and Burglar Prays in Looted Home.

Returns Plunder and Asks for Help to be Honest.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—A burglar with a conscience, one who fears the inward dictators more than Inspector George Shippy or his trained detectives, has been found. He will not be a burglar any more. In the future he can walk up Halsted street or down Madison street without fear and all the "bluecoats" on the West side will cause him no apprehension when they cross his path.

Abraham Auth, a printer, living at 349 West Adams street, is one to whom credit is due for the discovery of the reformed burglar. His home was the last one visited by the man, and in the darkness of night the burglar knelt and prayed that his depredations of the past be forgiven.

With evidence in his possession that would send him to the penitentiary, the man, when conscience spoke, heeded the inward advisor and, returning to the home which he had robbed only a few minutes before, aroused the owner and returned the property. Then when the wrong had been righted, the crook, in a husky voice, knelt before the man whom he had robbed and prayed that his other sins might be forgiven.

It was past midnight when the burglar, after a careful scrutiny of the property in the neighborhood of West Adams street and Center avenue, decided that Auth's home looked the most promising and began the task of entering it. A look about the premises convinced him that a few skelton keys were necessary. One key was tried and the another, and when the third had been inserted the bolt shot back and the door opened.

While Auth and his wife were sleeping soundly the burglar searched for valuables and was rewarded with the discovery of a quantity of jewelry. The golden trinkets quickly found their way to the man's pockets. With another look about, the burglar added a number of bills, which he discovered in a cream bowl on the sideboard. Then he decided it was time to leave.

The man passed toward the front door. He was stepping into the vestibule when his foot tripped over some object. A low oath escaped him, but curiosity prompted him to stoop and search for the cause of his trouble. All he found was a child's doll. Well worn and much caressed.

"His kid's," he muttered. Then he passed on out and started toward Halsted street. Two blocks had been covered when he suddenly stopped and made his way back. He did not tell all of his thoughts of Auth when a few minutes later he rang the door bell.

The jingle of the electric bell aroused Auth in an instant. He hurried downstairs and found the burglar at the door.

"Are you the owner of the place?" the burglar inquired, and when he heard an affirmative reply from Auth, he continued:

"Well, I am a burglar. I just got through cleaning out your coop, and I thought I would bring back the stuff."

Then he placed the jewelry and the roll of bills in Auth's hand and in an instant later was muttering a prayer. Auth, too astounded to talk, watched the man, believing he was insane.

"It was de kid's doll that did it. I use to have a kid myself. From now on I am going to cut this bum business out. Sorry I disturbed you—goodnight." With those words muttered brokenly the burglar descended the stairs and disappeared down the street. Auth, shivering with the cold, watched the man until out of sight and then crept back to bed.

SAGINAW COBBLER WAS BROTHER OF A DUCHESS.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 17.—John Edwin Gates, a shoe repairer, employed by Granville & Sons' shoe store, Potter street, is related to the nobility of Europe by marriage. His sister, buried in London, was duchess of Brunswick. Her name was Eliza Gates, one time a famous ballet dancer in London theaters. The duke fell in love and married the stage beauty. This was in the '40s.

The couple lived happily together and Gates in boyhood was given everything his heart could wish by the duchess, but she died while young and the duke soon followed her to the grave. Gates was left homeless, emigrated to America in 1857 and came to Saginaw, where he has since been employed as a cobbler.

He has just told the story of his life for the first time and exhibits documentary proof of what he says:

POWDER BLASTS JAR ROCKEFELLER

John D. Objects to the Noise of Demolishing Mountain.

New York, Jan. 17.—John D. Rockefeller is willing to pay $1,000,000 to obtain surcease from an annoyance that for several months has been wearing on his nerves. Having been cured from his indigestion, he finds that both his health and his enjoyment of his extensive Pocantico estate at Tarrytown are being seriously affected by the shocks from the tremendous blasting in progress at Rock mountain, on the westerly side of the Hudson river.

In their eagerness to get out as much rock as possible before they are prohibited by law the quarrymen of late have been shaking the entire countryside in the vicinity of Nyack by the violence of their blasts. Residents of the east bank of the river, three miles away, suffer as greatly from the shocks as do people near by. This is because the trap rock stratum which emerges on the west bank in Hook mountain underlies the river and forms the foundation for much of the land on the Tarrytown side.

MANILA WOMAN IS A STEVEDORE

With Cigar in Her Mouth, She Directs the Laborers.

Kansas City, Jan. 17.—A Manila letter to the Star says: Manila has perhaps the only woman stevedore in the world, or at least the only one who personally supervises the practical part of that rather arduous occupation. Now the business of a stevedore consists in supervising the loading and unloading of cargoes of ships, and not only is the possession of considerable skill and knowledge necessary as to the proper handling of freight from a case of big plate-glass to a ten-ton sawmill engine, placing it in the vessel in such a manner as to preserve the equilibrium of the ship at the same time utilizing all available space, but likewise the management and command of a considerable number of men of the roughest and toughest type.

The Manila "stevedoress" is Senora Junana de la Cruz, a full blood Filipino and a widow. She is of muscular build and possesses a voice which can easily be heard above the din and confusion incident to the arrival and discharging of cargo of a big freight ship.

When seen by the correspondent, the senora was attired in a pair of rusty tan shoes, black stockings, flaming red calico trousers reaching half way below the knees, the upper portion of a dingy old mother hubbard and a man's high crowned straw hat, cutting a grotesque, but business like figure. She was smoking vigorously a big cigar which she occasionally removed from her mouth for the purpose of shouting an order to her men. She frequently grasped hold of the pulley ropes and lent her strength to the work when an unusually large package of merchandise was being handled. Her gang of workmen consisted of some thirty natives, who, judging by the alacrity of their movements, held their boss in respect and awe.

On inquiry it was learned that Senor de la Cruz had formerly been one of the leading stevedores of Manila bay, but had been killed some years ago by the falling of a heavy bale of goods from the loading net, and that his widow had promptly taken over the business and was successfully conducting it. She owns a handsome home, is possessed of a bank account and credit among the business men of the archipelago.

DOG SERVING PRISON TERM

Guilty of Chicken Theft and Sentenced to Workhouse.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 17.—Waldo, the famous dog belonging to C. P. O'Reilley and Robert Mack, superintendent and assistant superintendent of the workhouse, is lying in durance vile, a subject of the same treatment which is given the rest of the involuntary guests of the house of correction.

He is walked in the corridors, fed bread and water and made to stand "trusty" guard duty. He is even locked up in a cell at night. He is being given all the "corrective" treatment his masters know how to administer. He has been had, remarkably bad. He persisted in stealing chickens at the city farm colony this summer.

Waldo came to J. B. Vining, superintendent of charities, a dilapidated dog a year ago, sentenced to be shot. Vining commuted the sentence and put Waldo on his good behavior. Mack took him to the farm at Warrensville, where he soon became fast friends with everyone.

One day while foraging he scented a bird afield. He chased and retrieved it, bringing it back to the farm triumphant. His feeling were hurt and his pride outraged when one of the assistants exclaimed, "Why, that's one of Jones's chickens," and boxed his ears.

He brought another chicken back two days later. Again his ears were slapped. After that he ate the chickens where he killed them and eliminated the slap.

Mack took counsel with O'Reilley.

"He's a good dog, I've been told he's marked excellently," said the superintendent to his assistant. "We can't shoot him. What'll we do?"

"He's pretty smart, all right," said Mack. "Say, let's see what he has to say."

They brought the dog in and looked at him.

"Guilty," said some chicken feathers on his fur coat.

"Thirty days," said O'Reilley, and the dog was shipped to the workhouse by the next car.

SAPOLIO

IS THE PROPER THING FOR HOUSE-CLEANING.

CIGAR ANGERED HER.

Mme. Homer and the Pittsburg Orchestra Director in a Tiff.

Pittsburg, Jan. 17.—Mme. Louise Homer, the famous opera and concert singer, and Emil Paur, director of the Pittsburg orchestra, do not speak as they pass now. They had a quarrel Saturday afternoon, just before the concert in the Carnegie Musical hall, at which the Pittsburg orchestra and for a time the singer was so angry that she threatened to refuse to sing.

It was before the audience had assembled for the concert. The musicians were all on the stage and Mme. Homer had come early to run over her songs with the piano. Just off the stage is a retiring room especially for the women soloists who appeared in the concerts. It is also used as a dressing room. Mme. Homer was seated in this room when Mr. Paur entered, wearing his coat and hat as he had come from the street, and smoking a cigar. Mme. Homer says he did not remove his cigar when he came into the room and soon it was filled with smoke. She said nothing, but, as she feared the smoke would injure her voice, she left the room, went on the stage and started to practice. She supposed Mr. Paur would leave; but he did not. Instead he took off his coat and hat, placed them on a chair and continued to smoke. He was just leaving for a stroll about the stage when Mme. Homer returned.

The place was blue. She was furious. She grabbed Paur's overcoat and hat and threw them out of the room and then closed and locked the door. When Paur returned for his coat and hat and found them lying on the floor in front of the locked door, he was indignant. He knocked on the door, but madame refused to open it.

When the concert started and it was time for Mme. Homer to appear, Paur did not leave the stage to escort her to the platform, as is his custom. She came in alone and the bow that she gave to the director was about the chilliest that was ever seen. When she sang her numbers and came back to acknowledge the applause she ignored the director completely.

ST. LOUIS POSTMASTER

Says Society Women Tell "Social Lies" and Blame the Mails.

St. Louis, Jan. 17.—That women of society are addicted to "white lies" is a declaration of Postmaster Frank Wyman, drawn out in a sharp reply to complaints of Mrs. George W. Parker that thirteen of 680 invitations to a reception were lost in the mails here. She said she knew they were lost because the women who did not attend her function said they did not get them.

Said the postmaster:

"In most cases such losses come about in this way: Mrs. Jones received an invitation to Mrs. Brown's reception. She doesn't go. When Mrs. Brown asks her why, she says she didn't receive the invitation. The mail service is all right, but I am afraid there are some persons in St. Louis society who are eligible as disciples of Ananias.

"It is a matetr of no small consequence to take up these complaints. If they are the result of social fibs, or they might be called by other names, it is certainly an injustice to the service."

BIG TURTLE CARRIES 254-POUND MAINE MAN.

Biddeford, Me., Jan. 17.—While fishing through the ice on Brimstone pond, George Schneider and Henry Sawyer saw a big turtle. They poked him with a stick, and he snapped at it, getting such a firm hold that they drew him out of the water. He weighs 74 pounds, measures 14 inches across his back and is 3 feet in length from the tip of his tail to his extended head. His legs are as large as a man's wrists, and when a 254-pound Biddeford citizen stood on his broad shell the turtle meandered off with the load.

New Cure For Rupture

New Scientific Appliance, Always a Perfect Fit—Adjustable to Any Size Person—Easy, Comfortable, Never Slips, No Obnoxious Springs or Pads—Costs Less Than Many Common Trusses—Made For Men, Women or Children.

I Send It On Approval—You Wear It—If You Are Not Satisfied, I Refund Your Money.

I have invented a rupture appliance that I can safely say, by thirty years' experience in the rupture business, is the only one that will absolutely hold the rupture and never slip and yet is cool, comfortable, conforms to every movement of the body without chafing or hurting and costs less than many ordinary trusses. I have put the price so low that any person, rich or poor, can buy, and I absolutely guarantee it. I make it to your order—send it to you—you wear it, and if it doesn't satisfy you send it back to me and I will refund your money. That is the fairest proposition ever made by a rupture specialist. The banks or any responsible citizen in Marshall will tell you that is the way I do business—always absolutely on the square.

Here is what Mr. James Briton, a prominent manufacturer of Bethlehem, Pa., writes:

"C. E. Brooks, Esq.: Dear Sir—I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact at times I did not know I had it on. It just adapted itself to the shape of the body and clung to the spot no matter what position I was in. It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture, if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They certainly would never regret it. My rupture is all healed up and nothing ever did it but your appliance. James Britton."

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Write me today and I will send you my book on Rupture and its Cure, showing my appliance and giving you prices and names of people who have tried it and been cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember I use no salves, no harness, no lies. Just a straight business deal at a reasonable price.

HITS FOES OF ROOSEVELT

Senator Carmack Charges Secret Combine Against Roosevelt.

Lively Passage With Tillman for Recent Fiery Speech.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Senate leaders regard the end of the Brownsville discharged negro soldiers discussions in sight and it is confidently expected that the following compromise resolution offered by Mr. Foraker just before the close of yesterday's session will be adopted.

"Resolved that the committee on military affairs is hereby authorized and directed, by the sub-committee or otherwise, to take and have printed testimony for the purpose of ascertaining all the facts with reference to or connected with the affray at Brownsville, on the night of August 13, 1906. Said committee is authorized to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, to sit during the sessions of the senate and, if deemed advisable, at Brownsville or elsewhere, the expenses of the investigation to be paid out of the contingent fund of the senate."

The language of this is satisfactory to Senator Lodge and other supporters of the administration and it is believed it will be unanimously accepted.

The feature of the debate yesterday was the arraignment by Mr. Carmack of Mr. Tillman and of Republican senators who have criticized the president for his actions in the Brownsville matter. He regarded the latter as an attempt to "dethrone" the president as the leader of the party and declared that either the president would be renominated or the platform on which he stood returned to the Democrats.

Paying his compliments to Mr. Tillman, Mr. Carmack said: "The senator's speech was powerful, it was picturesque. It was full of good and striking points, but it seemed to me that his premises were upon one side of the earth and his conclusions upon the other, with no bridge between. If there is anything that appears plainly from that speech, it is that these soldiers ought to have been discharged from the army a long time ago, and that the president deserves criticism, not for doing it now, but for having delayed it so long."

Lively interest was developed when Mr. Tillman tried to justify his dismissal of a company of the South Carolina militiamen, when he was governor. He protested that the two cases were in no way analagous. The president had turned loose a band of murderers, he added.

Mr. Carmack held that the negro soldiers were at least out of the army and not wearing its uniform, or bearing its arms, although there had been an attempt to make them martyrs and heroes.

Mr. Carmack then gave what he regarded as the real purpose of the agitation—an attempt to unhorse Mr. Roosevelt as the Republican leader. He said "It seems to me that there is something else behind these uncalled for attacks upon the president than a passion for justice and for law. This particular act of the president is simply the occasion, but it is not the cause of this violent and concerted attack upon the administration. It is by far one of the best and most honorable acts of his administration that the president has aroused so deadily an antagonism within his own party. He might have continued to trample upon the law to the end of time, he might have multiplied his infidelities to the constitution until they became as numberless as the stars of heaven, and there would have been no protest if he had not otherwise offended. The president has made the mistake of compelling hos party to violate its traditions, to break with old-time friends, to turn its guns upon its allies of a hundred battles; he has brought the great railways and trusts and corporations of the country to know that there are such things as law and government in the land."

Mr. Carmack told the Republican senators that they must "either renominate President Roosevelt, or give us back our platform." He declared that the sentiment which the president had helped to arouse against plutocracy would bring millions of votes to the Democratic party, and said that, "If President Roosevelt himself chooses to come he will find there ample opportunity to exercise an influence for the welfare of the people, and also learn some respect for the law and the constitution."

BAILEY MEN MAKE FIGHT

Texas Attorney General Not Allowed to Present Documents.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 17.—A dramatic scene was enacted in the lower house of the legislature yesterday afternoon when Attorney General Davidson appeared with the documentary evidence, which, it is charged, implicates United States Senator Bailey in the re-admission of the Waters-Pierce Oil company to the state in violation of the anti-trust laws.

When the attorney general appeared Senator Bailey's friends objected to consideration of the evidence unless it was genuine and unless Senator Bailey could look over it at the same time as the other members. This was objected to and a substitute was offered that Attorney General Davidson be required to prove the correctness of the papers in his possession. Both propositions were voted down.

The attorney general filed the evidence with the speaker and the house resumed the argument as to whether there should be an investigation.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 17.—The blockade of the main line of the Great Northern has been broken and several stalled passenger trains in Northwestern Montana and North Dakota have been started West. The line was cleared yesterday morning between Havre and Browning, and trains are moving from Havre West. Disease Adds to Deep Misery of Stricken Hosts in China.

Shanghai, Jan. 17.—To the horrors of the famine have been added smallpox among the refugees at Sing Kiang, necessitating the demolition of the sheds erected to shelter the thousands who have arrived there in search of food.

Capt. Kirton, who was sent out by the relief committee reports that 300,000 destitute persons have been driven back towards their homes and that terrible scenes are being enacted along the line of retreat. He estimates that a quarter of a million persons are likely to be doomed at Sing Kiang alone and four hundred thousand at Antung.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Firm on Small Northwest Receipts, But Trading is Light.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Small receipts in the Northwest and the strength shown by the cash market caused a firm opening in wheat today. The market was quiet and trading was not large. Pit traders were the principal buyers. May wheat opened ⅜c to 1⅛@1⅛c higher at 76¼@76⅝c to 76⅝c and sold at 76⅜c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 246 cars against 327 cars last week and 513 cars one year ago.

Lively demand by shorts sent the price of May up to 77½c. The close was strong with May ⅞c higher at 77⅝@⅞c.

The corn market opened firm with a fair volume of trade. The strength of oats and the possibility of a delayed crop movement by unsettled weather were the chief sources of strength. May corn opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 41¼@⅜c to 41⅜c and sold at 41½c. Local receipts were 20 cars with 2 of contract grade.

The market was strong all day, after the first hour of trading. The high point for May was 45¼c. The close was strong with May ⅞c higher at 45⅜c.

The oats market was strong on a good general demand. Local bulls bought freely and short lines were actively covered. May oats opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 37⅝c to 37¾c and for a time held within this range. Local receipts were 139 cars.

The provisions market opened quiet and steady. The market, early in the day, was lifeless, and all classes of provisions opened unchanged. May pork opened at $16.35; lard at $9.50 and ribs at $9.15.

Close: Wheat—May 77@78¼c; July 76¾@⅞c. Corn—May 45⅛@45c; July 46@46c. Oats—May 38c; July 35½c. Pork—May $16.60; July $16.75. Lard—May $9.55; July $9.57½@9.60. Ribs—May $9.17½; July $9.27½. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—Very gratifying indeed to note that there is a return of something like old time activity in the wheat trade. This is a good money making wheat market when it is allowed to act on natural conditions and the present spurt of enthusiasm and strength appears to be the outgrowth of a little too much persistent depression. There was no marked increase in the public buying. The underlying conditions of large stocks and inadequate export demand continue. This may indicate that the market for the present will neither hold its advance or its increased buying force.

Corn—Unnatural and adverse weather conditions for a period of six weeks in mid-winter when the trade and the public naturally expected drying conditions and large marketing, have upset all earlier calculations and some of the largest short interests in the corn trade showed eagerness to cover on the advance today. It will take a change to natural winter conditions and enlarged movement to market to check present bull feeling.

Oats—The market closes about the top and at a point where longs certainly should secure some profits.

Provisions—The market looks as if it was entitled to a set-back.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Jan. 17.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: The leading feature of today's trade was the broad demand fro mall sources for farm mares and chunks. Second hand offerings moved somewhat slow. A choice lead of heavy loggers was bought for shipment to Bena, Minn. Several car loads were sold to small dealers throughout the northwest.

Discount Rate Reduced.

London, Jan. 17.—The rate of discount of the Bank of England was reduced today from 6 to 5 per cent. The reduction of the bank rate was generally anticipated as the 6 per cent rate had been so effective since Oct. 12, that the bank had been enabled to satisfactorily build up its reserve. The improvement in New York exchange helped the directors of the bank in deciding in the change of rate. Operators on the stock exchange had already largely discounted the announcement of the reduction and the only immediate result was that the tone of the market grew firmer and that there were fractional advances generally.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The activity yesterday was most noticeable in Trinity and Arcadian. The former rose from an opening at 36 to 39, and, after reacting to 36, improved to 38½ at the close. Although Arcadians activity was conspicuous, its gain was but ⅜, the afternoon dealings witnessing a decline in the price to 14 and a recovery at the close to 14⅜. The easing in prices was most noticeable in Copper Range, Utah, North Butte and Amalgamated, although it must be admitted that the offerings were well absorbed. In the last hour a good rally set in and prices recovered their earlier losses well.

Butte, to Gay & Sturgis: The annual statement of the Butte & London Mining and Development company filed today shows $264,717 in the treasury and machinery valued at $162,808.

New York to Gay & Sturgis: The street is full of stories of an impending issue of anywhere from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 of Amalgamated. Everybody has the information so there is probably nothing in it. I expect to see the general market rally as the bearish sentiment is universal and every trader on the board seems to know just what Morgan and Rogers are doing and going to do.

New York to Gay & Sturgis: At a meeting of the directors of the Nipising Mining company, limited, held yesterday afternoon, Capt. Delemar tendered his resignation as a director and Samuel Newhouse was elected in his stead. W. B. Thompson was also elected to the board. At the samo meeting, Mr. Newhouse was elected president; W. B. Thompson vice president; David Fasken, secretary, and F. W. Holmes, treasurer.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: There are all sorts of rumors of a holding company to be organized by Cole and Ryan to take over all the Bigelow properties, Quincy and Copper Range, but no definite arrangements are made or likely to be in the near future. We hear Osceola goes in at 200, Tamarck at 250, Royale at 50, and Ahmeek at 150.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

At the Close, After a Shifting and Unsettled Market.

Trend Downward and Liquidation Centered in Gould Stocks.

New York, Jan. 17.—Opening prices of stocks today were irregularly changed in spite of the general advance in London following the reduction in the Bank of England discount rate. Business was on a moderate scale. Virginia Iron advanced 2¾; General Electric 2 and St. Paul, Missouri Pacific and Northwestern ⅝ each. American Ice fell 2; Baltimore & Ohio about a point each and Canadian Pacific, Erie second preferred and Kansas City Southern preferred large fractions each.

A rise led by St. Paul was proceeding when Reading and Amalgamated Copper came on the market in large blocks and drove everything below yesterday's close. Reading, Great Northern preferred and Colorado & Southern were depressed to a point below last night and Iowa Central preferred 3. Buying orders for both accounts were distributed in sufficient volume afterward to start prices up again, but the market failed to get back to the earlier high prices. Some of the important advances included a point for Ontario & Western, Northwestern, Southern Railway preferred and National Biscuit; 1¼ in Northern Pacific; 1⅜ in St. Paul; 3 in General Electric and 5 in Virginia Iron.

Liquidation in the Erie shares caused a loss in the common stock of 1⅜, the first preferred 2¾, the second preferred 1¼ and the convertible bonds 2. The whole market declined in sympathy. New York Central, 1⅜; International Pump, 2, and Union Pacific, Wabash preferred, Pullman and Manhattan, 1. The Harrimans, St. Paul and Reading led a rally, those stocks rising to about the early high level. Atlantic Coast Line gained 1½. The tone was heavy at noon. Bonds were irregular.

Another dip in Southern Railway, which carried it to 28, did not have a great deal of effect on the general list. The Erles and Wabashes were sold liberally, but the Western stocks and specialties were supported. Lackawanna sold at a decline of 3 points, Wabash preferred 2¾ and the Common Southern Railway and Consolidated Gas 1 to 1¼. Westinghouse Electric gained 1¼.

Some stocks, not classed as active, were sold and the rest of the list made another downward swing in sympathy. Most of the representative stocks moved within very narrow limits. Wabash preferred and Twin City Rapid Transit yielded 2¾ each; Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Denver & Rio Grande preferred 1¾ each, and the common 1½; St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, Kansas & Texas 1¼ each; Northern Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Wisconsin Central preferred, Chicago Great Western and People's Gas went up 1 each and Rock Island preferred 2 points. The market rallied sharply and was dull at 0'clock.

The market closed irregular. Amalgamated Copper, after rising 1¼, fell back to a point below last night when the dividend was known to be unchanged. St. Paul had risen ⅝ and Reading 1. Other declines were Pullman 2; Colorado & Southern 1¾ and Great Northern Ore certificates and Allis-Chalmers 1. Vulcan Detinning preferred sold at a decline of 6%. Prices again rebounded, Amalgamated Copper rallying 1.

Stock Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The security market has finally witnessed a considerable reaction, the result of speculative liquidation and of professional manipulation. This action was attributed chiefly to trading sentiment. Beyond the fact that leading railroad interests are urgently in need of additional capital to meet the demands of an increased tonnage, there is nothing in sight to change conditions upon which prices are governed. So far as the business of the country is concerned, the position and outlook are certainly ideal. There is no evidence that production has outrun consumption. The monetary situation is improving gradually and naturally both here and abroad, and yet money is not likely to be a drug, so long as general trade maintains the degree of activity it does today.

Speculatively, the slight liquidation may prove to have been of benefit later. The leading New York stocks are getting to a level that should look very attractive to the investors. Speculative interest still centers largely on the copper shares. There is every reason to believe that important developments in this direction are near at hand.

The important news this morning is the reduction of the Bank of England discount rate from 6 to 5 per cent.

New York to Gay & Sturgis: The market was shifting and unsettled, declining and rallying frequently during the first hour and, except in a few issues, no important changes was shown. There was continued liquidation in Erie, which declined to 38¾c. There was a general disposition on the part of the traders to wait for the directors' action on Amalgamated.

Before making any further commitments either way in the copper shares. London sold 10,000 on balance, chiefly Union Pacific and Steel.

New York, Logan & Bryan say: There was really little feature to the market today. The Bank of England having reduced their discount rate caused a more cheerful feeling but there was no desire upon the part of big holders to operate. The trend of the market was downward and liquidation was centered in Gould stocks. See nothing better than scalping market for the present.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 17.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3@6 points and advanced to a net gain of 9@12 points during the early session covering of shorts and some renewal of bull support which seemed due to better cables than expected, talk of a falling off in the movement in the Eastern belt as reflected by smaller receipts for the day at Savannah, and the sentimental influence of a reduction in the Bank of England discount rate which was mentioned by private cables as a factor in Liverpool. Trading was moderately active and the market held steady during the middle of the morning although there was considerable selling on the bulge. Futures closed steady. January, 9.23; February, 9.28; March, 9.37; April, 9.44; May, 9.51; June, 9.55; July, 9.59; August, 9.51; October, 9.58.

AMALGAMATED COPPER DECLARES DIVIDEND.

New York, Jan. 17.—The directors of the Amalgamated Copper company today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent and an extra dividend of 1¼ of 1 per cent. This is unchanged from the last previous dividend.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

One Miner Killed, Two Injured, in Mine at Ishpeming.

Ishpeming—The cage at the Oliver Iron Mining company's No. 6 mine ran away yesterday morning shortly before 7 o'clock, dropping a distance of 250 feet, fatally injuring Israel Mollanen and more or less seriously injuring John Rajala and Oscar Kuappala, who were coming to surface after finishing their night's work. Mailanen died at 2 o'clock at the Ishpeming hospital. It is thought that the other two will recover. Rajala's right leg was fractured at the thigh and his left leg dislocated at the hip. Kuopala was more or less injured internally, and also has a sprained ankle. The accident was due to the failure of the friction on the drum by which the cage was hoisted from No. 7 engine house.

Negaunee—A. G. Jones, who has acted as superintendent of the Empire mine at Palmer for the Empire Mining company since the work on that property was resumed early last spring, has resigned his position and will leave here in a few days to take the management and direct the development work on a large acreage of adjoining gold claims in Ukiah county, California, for a group of San Francisco capitalists.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Maitland left for California Sunday night, in answer to a telegram announcing the serious illness of Mrs. Maitland's sister, Mrs. Cornell, who went there from her home in Chicago about a month ago to spend the winter.

The first serious skiing accident of the season is reported from the Menominee iron range. Peter Wiznik, an Iron River man, was the victim. He was trying the slide on the ski hill, and it was his first run. He made the descent all right, but in landing he fell in such a way as to break the bones of one of his legs. Wiznik will be confined to his home for several weeks, and will do no more skiing this winter.

Menominee—The sawmill of Depuse & Hale of Ellis Junction, Wis., near this city, was destroyed by fire Tuesday. The loss was $8,000, partially covered by insurance.

Ben Zimmerman, the Cincinnati multi-millionaire and Menominee capitalist, will erect several large steel and iron rolling mills in the northern part of this city. Surveyors are at work extending the line of the Wisconsin & Michigan railway from Bagley Junction to this city. The Ann Arbor railway will extend their line to the iron mines owned by local capitalists in the iron country and from there west to Duluth and St. Paul. The rolling mills will employ 1,200 men.

Houghton—A Mrs. Ida May Cook and child were killed in the Terra Cotta wreck on the Baltimore & Ohio near Washington. It is believed by people living at Cooks, Schoolcraft county, that the unfortunate woman was the daughter of the late Isaac Phillips. She married a Mr. Cook in Inwood township several years ago and lived at South Manistique, where Mr. Cook had a position with the Hall & Buell company. Later they moved to Duluth and a short time ago, Mr. Cook went to Washington to perfect arrangements for moving there. Mrs. Cook was evidently on her way to join her husband.

Crystal Falls—Frank D. Ball, noted all over the Menominee iron range as a ball player, and one of the best backstops who ever wore the mask in Upper Michigan, has been reappointed postmaster of Crystal Falls. He was the popular choice, all the business interests of the city joining in the petition forwarded in his behalf to Congressman Young.

Marquette—Tuesday morning at St. Peter's cathedral, Miss Isabell E. Egan, oldest daughter of M. H. Egan, 110 West Hewitt avenue, became the wife of William A. Normile. The ceremony was witnessed by a company of friends and relatives of the contracting parties. It was performed by Father J. G. Pinten. The bridal party was composed of Mr. Egan, father of the bride, who conducted his daughter to the altar; Henry Normile of Chicago, brother of the groom, who supported him, and Mrs. P. J. O'Donnell, sister of the bride, who acted as matron of honor.

It appears that the Lake Superior Railway Construction company of Cleveland, represented in the local field by J. W. Barber, the secretary, means business in the construction of an interurban electric line between Marquette and Negaunee, judging from the communication submitted to the council at the meeting Monday night. Mr. Barber has been in Marquette for about six weeks, working on the preliminaries of the project, and it is understood he has done a good deal toward securing a right of way.

ANNUAL MEETING OF OLIVER CO.

U. S. Steel Corporation Mining Men Are in Session.

The annual meeting of the Oliver Iron Mining company is being held this afternoon in the general offices of the company in the Wolvin building. At the hour of going to press the directors were still in session and a statement of the results of the election of officers and other business could not be obtained.

HEAD BADLY CUT BY BOTTLE

Colored Porter Severely Injured in Lake Avenue Saloon Row.

William Reeves, a colored porter from one of the St. Croix avenue resorts, got mixed up in a row in a lower Lake avenue saloon about midnight last night and in the course of the fray his opponent grabbed a bottle from the bar and smashed Reeves over the head with it. The bottle broke and Reeves received such a serious cut on his head that he was taken to St. Mary's hospital. No arrests were made as the two were evidently mixing it pretty freely when the accident occurred. Reeves was well enough to be taken home this morning.

LITTLE BOY INJURED.

Is Supposed to Have Been Kicked by a Horse.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—In some manner, not exactly known, Earl Warner, the 9-year-old son of C. Warner, was seriously injured Tuesday evening, receiving a wound in the front part of his head which is considered to be dangerous.

The Warner family live on the south side of the Great Northern track, one block from the Hazen home, where they have a stable and keep a team of horses. The horses were running at large and Earl was sent to get them, at about 6 o'clock. He was absent for some time. He was found by Nick Pickle, near the Bemidji Brewing company's plant, in an unconscious condition, with a small hole in the front of his head, out of which blood was dripping. Several small pieces of the skull bone had been driven into the wound, and about a tablespoonful of brain matter was emitted from the hole.

The little patient has no clear recollection as to how the accident happened, but is is generally believed that he was in some manner kicked by one of the horses.

J. L. WASHBURN IS PRESIDENT

Will Succeed J. R. Mitchell in the Duluth Savings Bank.

J. L. Washburn was elected president of the Duluth Savings bank, at the annual meeting yesterday. He will succeed J. R. Mitchell, who, in addition to his duties in Duluth, has been acting as president of the St. Paul National and the Capitol City National banks.

These two institutions recently have consolidated, and their business has increased to such an extent that Mr. Mitchell finds it impossible to give his personal attention to the affairs of the Duluth bank and at the same time attend his duties in St. Paul, so he thought it best to retire as president of the local institution. He still retains his interest in the Duluth bank, and is a member of the board of trustees.

The other officers of the bank remain the same. The year 1906 was a prosperous one for the bank, $5,000 being added to its surplus, in addition to paying the regular dividends. This makes a total surplus of $10,000. It is the policy of the officers to build up a surplus rather than to pay big dividends.

DULUTH RINKS LANDING IN THE JEWELRY CLASS

Local Curlers Are In at Finish of All Events.

Smith and Dunbar Rinks Will Meet Once More.

Play began rather late this morning at the curling rink, and the first set of games dragged out until 12:30, none of the rinks playing in as good form, or putting up as consistent a game as they have been doing so far in the tournament. The strain of the week's play is beginning to tell on all but the oldest and most tried stone slingers.

Dunbar, the mighty, was playing almost as strong a game as ever this morning, however, and captured a well handled match from Duncan by a score of 13 to 4. The S. H. Jones four broke into the jewelry class by walloping McGilvray's rink 15 to 8, in the Meyers event, and the 2 o'clock and 4:30 draws may conclude the consolation contest.

C. D. Brewer's four showed up unexpectedly well, vanquishing Labatt, the crack Minneapolis skip 12 to 10, while MacLeod of Duluth pulled out a close victory from Waugh of Winnipeg 11 to 10.

Dunbar's victory over Duncan in the St. Paul Jobber's contest put him up against A. H. Smiths' four, which defeated him in the sensational game yesterday morning, and the game will be watched with the greatest interest by all the followers of the game. The general opinion seems to be that Dunbar will regain his lost laurels in this match, but it will not be through any lack of effort on the part of the Smith quartet.

The semi-finals of the Duluth event were to be played off in the 2 o'clock draw this afternoon, Hurdon meeting Duncan, and Dunbar playing W. D. Brewer, and it is probable that the contest will be completed at the 4:30 draw this afternoon. There will be no 7:30 or 9:30 draws, as the big banquet and election of officers which takes place at the Commercial club tonight, interferes.

The St. Paul Jobbers, and the Minneapolis Curling club events are in the same stage of development, and cannot possibly be finished by this evening, though the contestants will probably be far enough eliminated that the majority of the rinks will be free to return to their homes after tonight's banquet.

In the 11:30 draw, Rochon and Reedal and McGregor and Myron played in the third round of the St. Paul Jobbers trophy event, and at 2 o'clock Smith and Dunbar were scheduled to come together again. Carson is already in the jewelry class, having broken into the semi-finals yesterday, and he will play the winner of the Smith-Dunbar contest.

The Canadian Soo trophy scrap is farther along. Dunbar, Lorimer and Reedal are already in the semi-finals, while A. H. Smith must play the winner of the Carson-Labatt match which started at noon today, to determine which of them goes into the last two rounds.

Waugh of Winnipeg is playing McLeod of Minneapolis this afternoon to see which of them goes into the semi-final round of the Meyers consolation event, and this will bring all the contestants in this event up to the semi-finals, Brewer and Hanchett weer due to go on to decide which should enter the finals at noon today, and Jones was waiting to play the winner of the Waugh-McLeod match.

But a small portion of the rinks are still in the running for any of the cups, and after tonight's banquet and meeting, at the Commercial club, it is expected that most of the stane slingers will return home.

No forecast as to the coming president of the association could be secured at the club this morning, all the curlers having been apparently too intent on the game to give much thought to the administration of affairs during the coming year. It is highly improbable that the association will make any changes in its decision to hold all future bonspiels in Duluth, and if so the presidency will naturally go to a Duluth man. Whether or not A. H. Smith would accept a re-election is doubtful.

W. J. Patterson, third for Rochon, of the Winnipeg Granites, who was reported seriously ill with pneumonia, typhoid fever and other ailments at the St. Louis, is simply laid up with a bad attack of grip, and is said to be in no danger whatever.

QUESTION IS UP AGAIN

Andrew Peterson Blames Unlicensed Engineer for His Injuries.

He Demands $3,150 Damages From Pittsburg Coal Company.

The question of liability of an employer who hires an unlicensed engineer, in case of an accident to an employe, has come up in the district court a second time within a week, in the personal injury case of Andrew Peterson against the Pittsburg Coal company and Olof Seaburg, which was begun today.

Peterson, who was formerly employed as hoister at the coal company's coal dock on Garfield avenue, was injured last September. He alleges that the accident was due to the carelessness of an engineer, Olof Seaburg, who has never procured an engineer's license in this state, and claims that the coal company should pay him $3,150 damages.

According to the complaint, Peterson was accustomed to giving signals to Seaburg who handled the machinery that operated the hoisting apparatus. It is claimed that a wire cable had slipped off the drum of the hoisting apparatus and that Peterson, with a crank attached to the drum, was trying to get the cable back on the spool when Seaburg started the machinery and the cable was made taut suddenly, causing the drum to revolve and the handle to be wrenched from his hands. It is further claimed that the handle, as it flew back, struck Peterson a heavy blow on the arm and shoulder, fracturing his arm and causing other serious injury. Peterson claims no signal was given to Seaburg to start the machinery, and that the latter did so because of his incompetency.

Seaburg was the first witness called this morning. He was called by John J. Jenswold, Jr., attorney for Peterson, for cross-examination under the statutes.

The witness admitted that he does not hold a license issued by the state boiler inspector. He testified that his station was a small house on the top of the trestle work and that on signals he moved certain levers that extended down to an engine in another building below.

Before any further testimony was taken along that line, E. C. Kennedy, attorney for the coal company objected to Mr. Jenswold's method of attack. Mr. Kennedy claimed that Seaburg, from the nature of his duties does not require an engineer's license. He claimed that the law requires a license for any person who shall have the handling of steam boilers, and that Seaburg has nothing to do with the boilers.

Arguments were heard by Judge Dibell over the state license law up to the noon recess of the court. The coal company is making a strong fight to show a distinction between a person regularly classed as an engineer and one that simply operates levers some distance from the engine, which cause the steam to be applied and the machinery to operate.

The Peterson case will be the only action for jury trial the remainder of this week. The court this morning excused the jurors not already engaged in trial, until next Monday morning.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Boys Will Don Skirts for Burlesque Basketball Game.

The Knights of Sir Galahad committee met at the boys' department last evening and arranged for the speakers for the Sunday afternoon meetings. They also arranged for a sleigh ride for the knights Thursday, Jan. 31. The sleighs will leave the boys' department at 5 o'clock, returning at 7, when a hot supper will be awaiting them. The committee also decided to have a camp in July for the boys who are regular in their attendance from now on. The following boys were present: Rex St. Clair, Stewart Muir, George Merritt, Meredeth Helm, Carl Cassell, Oscar Melander and Otto Gronseth.

The social committee has arranged for a poverty social Friday evening. All the boys will be required to wear old clothes, and the boy wearing the worst will receive a prize. The program will consist of popular songs and a whittling contest. A prize will be given to the boy whittling the best article in ten minutes. A shuffle board contest between representatives of the employed boys' class and the intermediates, a burlesque basket ball game with teams dressed like girls, and refreshments will also be included in the evening's entertainment.

SYSTEM FOR DRAINING STATE LANDS PROVIDED IN BILL BY F. B. WRIGHT

Work to be Under Commission Appointed by Governor.

Limit to Death Damage May be Removed in New Law.

Likely to be a Fight on New Investigation Plan.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St Paul, Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A comprehensive system for draining state lands is the intention of a bill which will be introduced in the house in the early part of next week. F. B. Wright of Minneapolis, chairman of the house drainage committee, has drawn up the general scheme for the bill, and presented it to the drainage committee at a meeting yesterday. The committee went over the details of the bill, some of the minor provisions, but understood that the committee was well agreed on the main features.

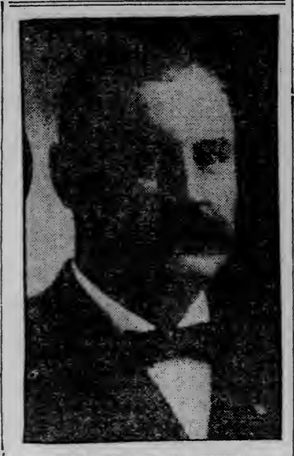

The bill will provide for the drainage of practically all the state lands in the northern part of the state, in one complete system of ditches. This work will be done under the supervision of a drainage commission of three members, to be appointed by the governor, and this commission will have complete control over all the drainage of state lands. The bill will provide that wherever private lands are drained, these lands will be assessed for the costs of the drainage in proportion to the benefits, and where damages are done to state lands, these will be paid out of the general fund for the drainage.

The bill, however, does not contemplate the construction of all the ditches at once, but intends that they should be constructed through a period of years. It will carry a running appropriation of about $100,000 for each of ten years.

A bill that seems to remove the limit of $5,000 now placed by law on damages for death, resulting from accident was introduced in the senate this morning by Senator Moonan of Wascca. It pro-

COMBINE IN THE SENATE

Said to be Opposed to Passing Apportionment Bill.

Matter is of Great Importance to Northern Minnesota.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will the present legislature pass a reapportionment bill that will equalize representation in the legislature over the state on a basis of the population of today instead of that of twenty years ago?

There are persistent rumors that what is known as the "senate combine" has decreed that there shall be none, and that the present apportionment shall stand for an indefinite period.

Whether the combine has really made this decision cannot be established by proof. If you ask any member of the combine whether it is so or not, he will promptly reply that there is no combine, and that if there is any such institution he knows nothing whatever about it.

But, rumor says, and says repeatedly, that there is a combine, and that it

REPLY MADE TO JAMES J. HILL

Governor Cummins Says Latter's Scarecrow Does Not Scare Him.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 18.—Governor Cummins in his inaugural address yesterday afternoon answered James J. Hill's letter to Governor Johnson of Minnesota, by saying that Hill, as a calamity prophet, is engaged in a field of labor in which he has no honest title and that his scarecrow upheld to the people of Minnesota and thus indirectly to the people of Iowa, and other Western states, does not scare him.

"The pity of it is that Mr. Hill honestly believes what he says," said Governor Cummins. "Nevertheless this bugaboo held up by the moneyed interests, such as insurance companies and railroads, that if congress puffs at their structures they will fall, is rapidly becoming less influential in directing the course of lawmakers.

"Hill and Harriman are not putting their cash into railway building, but are manippulating the earnings and securities of railways built by capital, which expects only a fair rate of interest. We must protect this sort of capital."

The governor said that the constitution of the United States was built up for an infant which has come out of its swaddling clothes and is now a full-grown man, and that obviously the suit of many years ago cannot cover the situation now. He declared for a few amendments to the constitution—the election of United States senators by the people, for a direct vote on the presidency, for uniform divorce and marriage laws, and for an amendmen law to the interstate commerce clause which will give congress enough power to regulate commerce as it now exists.

CATHOLIC WORKMEN OF AMERICA MEET.

PURCHASERS FROM BANKRUPT

Bought Their Goods in Legal Manner, Decides Referee.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Abraham Fine and William Lewison, in whose possession the United States marshal found goods procured from Edward Clark, the Ishpeming bankrupt, had a hearing before Referee Pearl yesterday afternoon, and several witnesses were examined. It appars that different people purchased goods from Clark before he went into bankruptcy, and the transactions on the face of receipted bills, exhibited to the referee, were bonafide. All further proceedings in the matter were dropped, it appearing they acted in good faith. Clark's hearing was adjourned to Jan. 13, when other witnesses, purchasers of goods from him, will be examined.

KANSAS CITY GETS ANOTHER COAT OF ICE.

Kansas City, Jan. 18.—This portion of the Southwest is still covered with a thick coating of ice. This condition has existed for forty-eight hours and today there was little prospect of immediate relief. Late yesterday a warm rain fell, but during the night freezing weather turned this to sleet, placing a third coating of ice over the ground and wires within as many days. Telegraph and telephone service in all directions from Kansas City was still demoralized and trains were delayed.

INSANE OVER HANGING.

Sister of Reprieved Man Thinks He Has Been Hanged.

St. Louis, Jan. 18.—Governor Folk granted a reprieve to "Bill" Spaug under sentence to be hanged at Centerville, Mo., for the murder of Sheriff Polk of Iron county.

Mrs. W. M. Ross of this city, Spaug's sister, who pleaded with the governor for his first respite last week, has gone crazy over his sentence and believes he has been hanged. Relatives hastened with the news to Mrs Ross.

"You are just trying to fool with me. I know they've hanged Bill. Poor Bill, who was always so good and kind to me. He never killed anyone. They have hanged an innocent man."

ELOPERS TO BE PUNISHED.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 18.—Anna Knepper of Logonir, Ind., and Sid Schlotterbach of Anacona, Ill., both married, ran away together last May and were arrested here yesterday and pleaded guilty to a statutory offense. They will be sentenced today.

HUGE TIDAL WAVE INUNDATES SOUTH SIDE OF JAMAICA

The Coast Line of the Stricken Island is Reported to be Gradually Sinking Into the Sea.

Admiral Davis Reports the Dead at Kingston at 400 and Number Injured and in Hospitals at 500.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The news from Havana regarding the huge tidal wave that inundated the entire south of Jamaica's capital and changed the Jamaican coast line was communicated to the officials of the government at an early hour today. The Associated Press advices anticipated any official messages and at 8 o'clock this morning it was stated that no official word on the subject had reached any branch of the government.

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf was one of the first of those advised of the press dispatches regarding the disaster. Arrangements had already been made by which the secretary should receive the first official reports expected from Rear Admiral Evans at Guantanamo. Secretary Metcalf remained up until a late hour during the night in the hope of receiving some official report on the subject and evidenced great interest in the unofficial advices regarding the extent of the calamity. In talking with newspaper men he said he wished to be in readiness to act promptly on any official reports or dispatches coming to the department, regardless of the hour of the day or night. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry and other government officers also watched eagerly for the advices to the department that were expected during the night, but were not forthcoming. The wireless stations, not only the one at the navy yard in this city, but also at other points on the coast, particularly at Norfolk and in Florida, were on the lookout for messages that might be sent from the vicinity of the stricken town. When the wireless station here closed for the night at 11 o'clock, however, no evidence of any message to Washington had been heard by the operator.

The news of the tidal wave, following closely upon the heels of the cumulative details of the earthquake and fire, caused the most profound interest in official circles. Naval officials were stirred; Assitant Secretary Newberry promptly made arrangements to be kept fully advised as further details were received.

The American vice consul at Kingston did not notify the state department of the tidal wave last night, and advices are anxiously awaited.

Secretary Metcalf today expressed himself as greatly shocked at the latest advices from Jamaica. Receiving the early news dispatch regarding the tidal wave before breakfast, this morning, he announced that he would go to his office early to get the report from Admiral Evans as promptly as possible, and that he would defer any further action until that report was at hand.

Officials of the government have been inquiring into the minute details of the topography of the stricken city and the adjacent coast. Dotted with sugar estates and country residences, the plain on which Kingston lays rises gradually from the shore to the foot of the Liguanea mountains. The coast line now reported to be gradually sinking into the sea presents some of the outlines of a turtle, the moutain ranges representing the turtle's back. From the sea level on all sides ridges in series rise toward the central range of mountains. On the plantations in some portions of the coast there are extensive irrigation works. The hurricane of November, 1899, wrought great havoc with the plantations, but these have since been replanted and extended. The trend of trade from all along the coast for some years has been toward the United States. American vessels, which have traded with Jamaica, are subjected to the same treatment as that accorded to shipping craft of any other nationality. All importations, regardless of their source, have been affected by the same tariff.

A wireless message from Rear Admiral Evans, received at the Washington navy yard early today, states that the United States ship Yankton arrived at Kingston at midnight last night with further medical supplies and two Associated Press reporters on board.

FOUR HUNDRED DEAD

According to the Report Sent Out by Admiral Davis.

New York, Jan. 18.—The latest official news of the Kingston, Jamaica, disaster reached this city today from Guantanamo, Cuba, through Admiral Evans, who had received from Admiral Davis, sent to Kingston on the torpedo boat Whipple, a brief wireless report of the situation in the stricken city.

Admiral Davis reported that Kingston was almost entirely destroyed, that 400 persons were killed and that 500 were in the hospitals. The dispatch was sent Thursday morning and further reported that Kingston was then quiet.

The Whipple started to return to Guantanamo with a full report of the situation yesterday and should have reached the American naval base during the night.

Direct advices of the Associated Press from Kingston under date of Jan. 16, received early today stated that the disaster was as great as the calamities of San Francisco and Valparaiso. Thousands of persons, it was then believed had been killed, as the dead were being recovered from the ruins in hundreds.

A number of Americans were among the killed. The city is in ruins but the shipping in the harbor is safe and aboard these vessels the wounded are being cared for. The dispatch also states that the topography of the country has been changed as a result of the earth's disturbance and that the channel into Kingston harbor has been materially altered. The body of Sir James Ferguson, who was killed, was

One of the actions is brought in the supreme court of the state of California in the name of a Japanese child for the purpose of obtaining a writ of mandamus to compel his admission to one of the public schools from which he is excluded by the action of the board of education. TO REACH POLE IN 36 HOURS

The Intention of Walter Wellman and Party in Spring.

San Francisco, Jan. 18.—Maj. H. B. Hersey, United States weather bureau inspector, who arrived yesterday, explained the plans of the Wellman Arctic expedition which will take the aerial route to the pole and of which he will be second in command. Maj. Hersey is here on his annual tour of inspection, having visited the weather bureaus of the Northwest.

In speaking of his preparations for the trip to the pole, Maj. Hersey said that headquarters for the expedition were established on Spitzbergen island last year. Supplies were brought to the uninhabited islands from France and Norway, machine shops and balloon sheds have been built and a staunch Arctic ice vessel purchased as a tender for the airship.

The ship is a dirigable balloon with a bag 165 feet long and a car 100 feet long. The lifting power is 8,000 pounds. The airship will be equiped with power to drive her for fifteen days but under ordinary conditions it will take but thirty-six hours to make the trip. The airship is now on the way and Maj. Hersey will join the expedition in the spring in time for the early trials.

The major says that if everything goes well, he hopes to reach the North Pole in thirty-six hours from Spitzbergen, Norway.

SHAWNEETOWN IN GREAT DANGER OF A REPETITION OF AWFUL FLOOD OF 1898

Ohio River Reaches Fifty Feet and is Still Rising.

Many People Homeless and Have Asked for Tents.

Militia Ready to Render Assistance If Necessary.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—Shawneetown, a village of about 1,500 people, on the bend of the Ohio river, near the Indiana and Kentucky state lines, is threatened with a repetition of the great flood of 1898, which devastated the country for miles around and caused loss of life and great suffering. The water at noon today had reached forty-three feet, and is steadily rising, the neavy rains continuing. Secretary of State Rose this morning received a message, asking that sixty tents be sent at once for the use of those driven from their homes. The levee is still intact, reports saying it will require six more feet of water before the top of the bank is reached. All of the stores and buildings on the water front have been abandoned and the people are homeless.

At the rate the river is now rising it will take until Sunday night for the water to reach the top of the levee bank. The levee is a new one, and the people at Shawneetown expect it to withstand the force of the water at least until the top is overrun.

News of the flood conditions at Shawnetown were communicated to

ADDITIONAL PENSIONS

For Needy Old Soldiers Now Receiving $12 a Month.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a letter written to Anton Erickson of this city, Congressman Steenerson makes inquiries as to the conditions of the old soldiers of this county who have been receiving a pension of $12.

Mr. Steenerson is of opinion that it will be a comparatively easy matter to secure for needy pensioners who have received $12, additional pay per month, if the recipients of the original pension so desire and are worthy of the additional pay.

H. W. Bailey, commander of the Bemidji G. A. R. post, has also received a letter to the same effect as the above, and he has answered and sent several names to Congressman Steenerson as being old soldiers worthy of the additional pension.

HAS NO RECORD

Of Opinion Given to Great Northern by Attorney General.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—Attorney General Young yesterday issued a reply to the answer of the defendant in the case of the state of Minnesota against the Great Northern Railway company in which the state asks an injunction restraining the railroad company from issuing an additional $60,000,000 worth of stock.

In its answer to the complaint, the Great Northern alleges that in 1895 when the company wished to increase its stock issue the attorney general's office informed the railroad and warehouse commission that the railroad company need not secure the commission's permission to the issuance of the stock. The attorney general states that no copy of such an opinion is on record and therefore, the plaintiff "alleges that it has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth or falsity of the allegations contained in paragraph five of the answer, and therefore, denies the same and all thereof."

The attorney general further states that if such an opinion were given by the attorney general's office, it does not apply in this case because the law under which it must have been given was repealed March 1, 1906.

ADVOCATES TWO SHIPS

President Would Have Congress Build Second Dreadnaught.

Wants Strong Fighting Force as Guarantee of Peace.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A letter written by the president in advocacy of the plan for two battleships of the Dreadnaught class became public yesterday. It was dated Jan. 11, and addressed to Chairman Foss of the house committee on naval affairs. Following is the text of of the document in part:

"The White House, Washington, Jan. 11, 1907.

"Sir—I feel so strongly that there should be two first-class battleships of the maximum size and speed and with thir primary battery all of 12-inch guns, added to the navy this session, that I desire to lay the matter before your committee through this letter. These two big ships should include the one provided for last year and the one provided for this year. It must be remembered that I am not asking for any increase in the navy because unless we can provide at the rate of a battleship per year our navy will go backward. Moreover, I am advising that our money be spent economically. It has been a waste of money to provide such ships as the single turrent monitors; and while the cruisers, and especially the great armored cruisers ,serve some useful purposes, it would, nevertheless, be infinitely better to have spent the money which was actually spent on them in the construction of first-class battleships. Our great armored cruisers are practically as expensive to build and maintain as battleships; and, yet, taking the battleship all around for the purpose for which a navy is really needed, its superiority to the armored cruiser is enormous.

"I thoroughly believe in developing and building an adequate number of submarines. I believe in building torpedo boat destroyers. There must be a few fast scouts and of course various auxiliary vessels of different kinds, but the strength of the navy rests primarily upon its battleships, and in building these battleships, it is imperatively necessary from the standpoint alike of efficiency and economy that they should be the very best of their kind.

"In my judgment, we are not to be excused if we build any battleships inferior to those now being built by other nations. I should be glad if a limitation could be put by international agreement to the size of battleships hereafter to be built. I have found, however, that it will undoubtedly be impracticable to secure any such agreement in the near future. Unless we intend to go on building up the fleet, we should abandon every effort to keep the position which we now hold, whether in the Pacific ocean or in American waters generally. Our justification for upholding the Monroe doctrine and for digging the Panama canal must rest primarily upon our willingness to build and maintain a first-class fighting fleet. Be it remembered, moreover, that such a fleet is by far the most potent guaranty of peace which this nation has or can ever have.

"It may still clearly be shown that a certain sum of money appropriated for naval construction can be more advantageously expended for large, high, free-board vessels, having many large guns and numerous small guns. For example, now that a high degree of skill has been developed in naval marksmanship, especially with heavy guns, future battle ranges will be so great (three or four miles) that small guns (six-inch, etc.) will be practically ineffective, especially against large vessels having all of their guns and gun crews in 12-inch turrets behind heavy armor.

"Therefore the effective offensive power of a battleship may now be measured by the number of heavy 12-inch guns she can fire on either broadside. For the ordinary battleship this effective broadside fire consists of four 12-inch guns. It follows, as a matter of course, that a large ship having a broadside fire of ten 12-inch guns could promptly destroy a battleship of the usual type having four 12-inch guns and with the advantage of the greater speed of the larger vessel, which would enable her to choose her own distance, she would be more than a match for two of the smaller vessels.

"But as the battleships are not intended to fight singly, their efficiency must be determined by a comparison of their relative ability when fighting in fleet formation. In this respect a relatively small squadron of large battleships having the same number of heavy guns as a much larger squadron of small battleships has still greater natural advantage, which is inherent in the design of the large vesels. This advantage consists in the ability of the small squadron of large vessels to concentrate upon a limited part of the enemy's line the fire of many more guns than the ships of that part of the line are able to return, which, of course, would result in the successive destruction of the entire fleet of small vessels.

"While ythe question of econom should not be allowed to diminish the naval force (the number of effective guns) required for national defense, it may nevertheless be stated incidentally that we can increase our naval force by a broadside fire of say 40 12-inch guns at considerably less cost by building ships having a broadside fire of ten heavy guns each than by building a greater number of smaller ships, each having a less broadside fire.

"For example, four large vessels, mounting forty heavy guns, would cost about $40,000,000, whereas, ten small ships mounting the same total number of heavy guns would cost about $70,000,000. Moreover, the large ship consumes more coal, a small ship, having a larger number of small guns (six-inch, etc.) actually requires more men and officers than a large one having heavy guns only, and consequently each small ship costs at least as much to maintain and to repair.

"For example, the complement of the Dreadnaught of 18,000 tons is 690 officers and men, while that of the Louisiana of 16,000 tons is about 856.

"Therefore, for the sum that it would cost to maintain 10 small ships we could maintain a squadron of four large ones that would be greatly superior in tactical qualities, total effective hitting capacity, ability to fight the guns in a heavy sea, speed, protection and the inherent ability to concentrate its gun fire, and make a yearly saving of over $4,000,000, or over 40 per cent of the original cost; and we would require fewer men and officers to handle the more effective fleet.

"All first-class foreign, maritime nations, including, for example, England, Russia and Japan, are now laying down or preparing to lay down high speed battleships of from 18,000 to 20,000 tons displacement with the main batteries composed exclusively of heavy guns.

"It is therefore manifest that an adherence on the part of this country to the smaller types of low free-board ships with mixed batteries and few heavy guns would manifestly place us at a great disadvantage because we would pay more per 12-inch gun of broadside fire than our rivals and these guns would be less effective in battle. Very respectfully yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

WALLACE TO BE DEAN.

Macalester Trustees Ratify the Choice of President Hodgman.

Minneapolis, Jan. 18.—The trustees of Macalester college met at the office of George W. Dayton yesterday afternoon and formally ratified the choice of Professor Hodgman of Nebraska university as president of the college. Professor Hodgman will assume control at Macalester Feb. 12, but his inauguration will be deferred until the annual commencement in June.

Having ratified the selection of Professor Hodgman, the board decided formally to request Dr. James Wallace, the former president, who is spending a year in New York, to return to the college as dean of the faculty and as head of the department of Greek. It is expected that Dr. Wallace will be back for work next year.

The trustees will push with vigor the campaign for a $500,000 endowment. The prospect is bright for the early realization of the plan, as pledges of only about $75,000 are needed to complete the sum.

GRAND SKI TOURNAMENT

OFFICES CONSOLIDATED.

Express Business at Bemidji to be Handled From One Office.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern and Northern Pacific express offices in this city have been consolidated, and the entire express business of Bemidji will hereafter be handled from one office. Under the new arrangements the Great Northern office will handle the express business of both the Minnesota & International and the Great Northern, and H. G. Page, who has been agent for the Great Northern Express company during the past two years, will have charge of the office.

Through the individual efforts of Mayor A. A. Carter, the Itasca Park Region Nursery company has been organized and will at once establish a large nursery within the limits of the city.

L. P. Anderson, who formerly lived at Shevlin and also Rugby, N. D., has been active with Mayor Carter in securing desirable land for the establishment of a nursery. He has purchased Achenbach farm of 160 acres, the northeast quarter of section 5-146-33, and the other parties who will be associated with Mr. Anderson will give enough other land to swell the size of the proposed nursery to 527 acres of very desirable property.

WILL VISIT AURORA.

County Commissioners Will Investigate Need of a Bridge.

Next Tuesday a committee from the county board, comprised of Commissioners Patterson, McInnis, McMahon and Ryan, will go to Aurora to investigate the request of the people of that place for a bridge over the St. Louis river. The location where the bridge is desired is but a short distance from the town, and the people claim that the structure is a necessity, that they are now badly in need of a means of communication with the farming country on the opposite side of the river. The stream is about ninety feet wide at the point where it is proposed to erect a bridge. The committee will report at the next meeting of the board.

If it is decided to build the bridge, the board will probably call for bids on a steel structure with a 90-foot span to rest on concrete foundations on either side of the stream.

PARK FINED ONE DOLLAR

And Nominal Fine Pays Costs for Technical Assault.

Court Says Action of Defendant Was Largely Justifiable.

Andrew T. Park, attorney and candidate for alderman from the Seventh ward, was yesterday afternoon found guilty of assault in Judge Windom's court, in spite of the fact that the court decided that the assault was so far justified that he imposed a fine of but $1 and costs, the minimum permitted by law.

The facts brought out at the trial were briefly: Park gave George Jensen, publisher of the West End Advocate, a check for $25 to do some campaign printing for him. Jensen, for some reason did not do the printing. Park kicked because he failed to receive the cards ordered, and Jensen claimed that the $25 was given him simply to keep him from being a candidate for the office in the Seventh. Jensen came to Park's office and a wordy battle ensued, which ended by the attorney punching his antagonist's face, the sensation ensuing, being, according to Jensen's testimony, much similar to that of being struck by a large, soft ham.

Park admitted the assault but claimed that Jensen was threatening him and that he had just provocation for the attack. The court agreed with Park.

ROMANCE OF EARLY DAYS

Is the Story of Man's Fall, Asserts Rev. R. J. Campbell.

Many Stages in Soul's Progress, But Perfection is Attained.

London, Jan. 18.—The great modifications in religious belief which are taking place throughout the Christian world have been manifesting themselves with especial prominence recently in England. The leader in radical revision of faith is R. J. Campbell, pastor of the City Temple, recognized head of the English conformists. He is about to make a tour of the country, addressing gatherings of provinial pastors at their request upon "Restated Theology." Inasmuch as Rev. Campbell rejects many of the chief dogmas, it will be seen how radically different from the old is the new theology which is supplanting the religious beliefs of a generation ago in England.

Mr. Campbell states his views with utmost frankness in the Daily Mail, and, in as much as he is almost as well known in America as in his own country, they will attract equal attention on the other side of the Atlantic.

"We object," he says, "to the formal statements of belief which have distinguished the theology of the past. We object to ecclesiastical labels. Every one knows that for the past twenty years there has been considerable uneasiness in churches, due largely to the development of scientific knowledge, the progress of archaeology and the study of comparative religion. This uneasiness has affected every church—even Rome. From the side of science the new theology is typified in the work of men like Sir Oliver Lodge. The lines of divergence between the old and the new go down deep, and there is great cleavage.

"The starting point of the new theology is belief in the immenence of God and the essential oneness of God and man. This is where it differs from Unitarianism. We believe man to be a revelation of God and the universe one means to the self-manifestation of God. The word of God stands for the infinite reality whence all things proceed. Every one, even the most uncompromising materialist, believes in this reality. The new theology, in common with the whole scientific world, believes that the finite universe is one aspect or expression of that reality, but it thinks of it or him as consciousness rather than a blind force, thereby differing from some scientists. Believing this, we believe that there is thus no real distinction between humanity and the Deity. Our being is the same as God's, although our consciousness of it is limited. We see the revelation of God in everything around us.

"The new theology holds that human nature should be interpreted in terms of its own highest—and therefore it reverences—Jesus Christ. It looks upon Jesus as a perfect example of what humanity ought to be—the life which perfectly expressed God in our limited human experience. So far as we are able to see, the highest kind of life that can be lived is life which is lived in terms of the whole, as the life of Jesus. Every man is a potential Christ, or, rather, a manifestation of the eternal Christ—that side of the nature of God from which all humanity has come forth. Humanity is fundamentally one, and all true living is the effort to realize that oneness. This is the truth that underlies all noble efforts for the common good in the world today.

"The new theology looks upon evil as a negative rather than a positive term. It is the shadow where light ought to be; it is the perceived privation of good; it belongs only to finiteness. Plain is the effort of the spirit to break through the limitation, which it feels to be evil. The new theology believes that the only way in which the true nature of good can be manifested, either by God or man, is by a struggle, against the limitation, and, therefore, it is not appalled by the long story of cosmic suffering. Everybody knows this after a fashion. The things we most admire and reverence in one another are things involving struggle and self-sacrifice.

"The new theology watches with sympathy the development of modern science, for it believes itself to be in harmony therewith. It is the religious articulation of the scientific method. It therefore, follows that it is in sympathy with scientific criticism of the important religious literature known as the Bible. While recognizing the value of the Bible as a unique record of religious experience, it handles it as freely and as critically as it would any other book. It believes that the seat of religious authority is within, not without the human soul, individual man is so constituted as to be able to recognize, ray by ray, the truth that helps him upward, no matter from what source it comes.

"The new theology, of course, believes in the immortality of the soul, but only on the ground that every universal consciousness is a ray of the universal consciousness and can not be destroyed. It believe that there are many [illegible] in the upward progress of [illegible] the unseen world before [illegible] fully and consciously one finite source. We make ou[illegible] the next world by our beh[illegible] and ultimately every soul w[illegible] fected.

"From all this it will surely be clear that the new theology brushes aside many of the most familiar dogmas still taught from the pulpit. We believe that the story of the fall of man, in the literal sense, is untrue. It is literture, not dogma; the romance of an early age used for the ethical instruction of man. We believe that the very imperfection of the world today is due to God's will and is a working out of himself, with its purpose not wholly hidden from us.

"The doctrine of sin which holds us to be blameworthy for deeds that we can not help, we believe to be a false view. Sin is simply selfishness. It is an offense against the God within—a violation of the law of love. We reject wholly the common interpretation of atonement, that another is beaten for our fault. We believe not in a final judgment, but in a judgment that is ever proceeding. Every sin involves suffering—suffering which can not be remitted by any work of another. When a deed is done its consequences are eternal.

"Believe Jesus is and was divine; but so are we. His mission was to make us realize our divinity and our oneness with God, and we are called to live the life which He lived."

TRAIN GETS IN TEN DAYS LATE

Great Northern From Coast Finally Reaches St. Paul.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—After being delayed for ten days in Montana and North Dakota, the Great Northern train No. 4, from Seattle, finally arrived in St. Paul yesterday afternoon. The coaches were literally covered with ice and snow and the train crew showed the results of days of unceasing toil. The passengers appeared none the worse for their desolation, as they had been well cared for by the railroad company.

Now that the great blockade in Montana, near Cutbank is opened there is danger of another blockade in North Dakota. It has been snowing and blowing for the past twenty-four hours, to such an extent that the drifts are piling over the rotary plows, and if weather conditions do not give relief, there is likely to be a worse blockade on the Great Northern system.

The Canadian Pacific road is still completely paralyzed and is temporarily out of business in the West. This road, being so far north of the other two roads, receives the full effect of the blizzards and communication is completely cut off.

OLD DOCTOR DEAD.

Sandstone, Minn., Jan. 18.—Dr. E. B. Earnum, one of the oldest doctors of the county, who died at his home in Pine City after a short illness of pneumonia was buried yesterday. The deceased was one of the most highly respected citizens of that place.

From Chicken-Pox to Cholera

Cure-Alls No Longer Tolerated.

In early days every barber shop was an operating room and the town physician resorted to bleeding as the sure cure for all ailments from chicken-pox to cholera. As a result, many, including our first president, died prematurely.

The present low rate of mortality is due in large measure to the advances made in medical science and the knowledge of the specific treatment needed for each disease known.

There is no disease more common among American and English people than dyspepsia. So prevalent has it become that thousands suffer with it half unconsciously, consider the symptoms as natural to their physical constitution and resign themselves to living on in that condition.

There is a remedy for dyspepsia, and only one, recommended and endorsed generally by physicians: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the test of years of use by millions of sufferers, have been subjected to governmental analysis in Europe and America and alone have been found to contain the elements which nature has put into the stomach for digestion—pepsin, diastase and other ferments.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach and bowels in a perfectly natural way by helping them do their work. If the stomach is weak in gastric juice, Stuart's Tablets make up the deficiency. If the muscles are inactive, Stuart's Tablets invigorate them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of food entering the stomach, one grain of the active principle of these Tablets being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of meat, eggs and other foods. They are not cathartic pills—their action is simply that of a digestive.

We will gladly send you a trial package to prove the truth of our claims. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be gotten of all druggists at 50 cents. F. A. Stuart Co., 69 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

NEWS FROM WEST DULUTH

DROPS OUT OF THE RACE

A. T. Park No Longer a Candidate in Seventh Ward.

May or May Not be Result of Recent Trial.

Whether his recent fracas with George T. Jensen had anything to do with it or not, Andrew T. Park is going out of the Seventh ward political fight.

Mr. Park stated this morning that he was no longer a candidate for election as alderman.

'I found that I had to make a personal fight of it," said Mr. Park, "as the party men in the ward showed little interest, and I have not the time to make such a campaign. It takes too much time from my business."

The withdrawal of Mr. Park from the field leaves M. J. Fillatrault on the Democratic ticket and A. G. Macauley on the Independent-lid platform.

The stories told by the two parties to the quarrel are so widely at variance that it is difficult to harmonize them in any particular.

Mr. Jensen, however, is very anxious that it should be made clear that the $25 he received, was for job printing and not for reading notices to be published in his paper.

The following is the manner in which he closes an account of the affair, in his own paper:

"What effect this case will have on Mr. Park's chances for election, is not much of a problem. Probably half of the people in the Seventh ward belong to the race that Mr. Park so thoroughly despises, and they will certainly return the compliment. After having for so many years been represented by the courteous and gentlemanly L. A. Barnes, it is a pity that the Republican party could find no more worthy candidate."

Joint Installation.

The joint installation of the A. O. U. W. lodge, No. 145, and the Degree of Honor lodge, No. 83, will be held this evening at Gilley's hall. Past Master Workman Shoemaker of Duluth lodge, No. 135, will install for the Workman, while the installing officer for the Degree of Honor will be Mrs. Wilbur of the Duluth lodge. After the installation and other business has been completed, the members of the two lodges will spend the remainder of the evening in dancing. Refreshments will be served.

COTTAGES DAMAGED

Summer Homes on the River Are Broken Into.

Commercial Club Will Meet to Discuss Important Question.

As is usually the case at this time of the year, the reports of housebreakings and damages to the summer cottages along the St. Louis river are quite numerous. Few of the owners of the cottages have visited their property since last fall but those who have been to them have nearly always found that their cottages have been broken into.

Young boys who go into the woods and up the river after rabbits and other game are usually the guilty ones. There is little that they can find in the cottages which is of any value to them and they probably break in in a spirit of waton mischief.

Some complaints have also come in to the effect that the fine, large shade trees surrounding some of the cottages have been cut down and used for fire wood. The houses at the point on the river known as the "Devil's Elbow" have suffered more than the remainder, as this place seems to be popular with the youthful hunters.

Flack, justice of the peace, has been furthering the matter and has interested a number of West Duluthians and the club will probably take some action.

BUREAU OF PUBLICITY

Great Work is Done by the First People's Lobby.

Bureau Has Developed Rapidly in Importance and Scope.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 18.—For the third year the People's Lobby, the original body of this description, the publicity bureau, maintained by the Citizens' union of New York city, has begun its work here. As the first of the many organizations of this description in the country, this People's Lobby at Albany is at once interesting as a study and important as an immensely effective agency, not merely in preventing bad legislation, but in actually causing the defeat of legislators whose record deserves such punishment. The Albany bureau, moreover, in its present state of efficiency, is the work in no small degree of a young Harvard graduate, Travis H. Whitney, who has complete charge of the work at Albany.

Publicity, of course, is the primary object of this bureau. It seems a simple thing to say that the voters of the state are entitled to know exactly what their representatives in the legislature do, what their vote is on important matters, and what the character of their legislation is. Yet, prior to the inception of the Citizens' union bureau the great electorate of New York city, and for that matter of New York state, had not the slightest data of an official character concerning the legislative activities of its senators and assemblymen; only through the public press, and in an entirely accidental fashion, could the position of legislators on various measures be determined. And the ease with which the public forgot was the chief menace to any reform.

The proceedings of the national congress are set forth in the Congressional Record each day, but not so the doings at Albany. There is, of course, a law providing that within three days after each session the journal of that day shall lie on the desk of senators. But in point of fact there is at present no official record in printed form of any proceedings in the last legislature later than Feb. 9, 1906. The object of this suppression is twofold: First, it enables certain special publicity bureaus, maintained by politicians, who derive big profits therefrom, to publish weekly reports of the progress of legislation, which they sell to law firms and interested persons at a high price. Secondly, by the suppression of the record until after election the public is deprived of any official record of the votes of its legislators, which might be used as campaign documents to defeat authors of bad legislation.

As a result of this vicious system the Citizens' union found, three years ago, that a few legislators from New York city were constantly introducing and passing venal legislation, or voting for measures actually surrendering New York city highways and parks to private corporations, and yet, despite the systematic course, in the absence of evidence of a specific character, these members were able to secure re-election without difficulty. Year after year delegations of New York citizens came to the capitol to protest against bad legislation, but each year they found in the legislature the same men who had fathered bad legislation in previous years. At election time they found it practically impossible to secure the necessary evidence to "show up" these men. Protests and complaints were general, but in the absence of any systematic action the abuse continued.

Finally the Citizens' Union, which is mainly devoted to the cause of non-partisanship in municipal affairs, found that the chief menace to city institutions after all lay at Albany. Then it decided to take effective action. It sent to Albany a trained lawyer, provided him with a stenographer and all the office facilities necessary and charged him with the duty of inspecting all legislation, keeping a record of all votes and generally watching the representatives of New York city in the legislature. Meantime, in New York city, a committee of the union, composed of younger lawyers interested in public affairs, met weekly, scanned the summaries of legislation sent down from the capitol and, possessed of this material, waged war against improper legislation.

When the session had closed and the records of the various city members were complete, the committee met, reviewed the whole work, analyzed the legislation and the votes of each local member, and formed a judgment upon it. This judgment was summarized in a few brief sentences, adopted by the Citizens' union organization as an official report and given to the public. Instantly there was placed in the hands of the voters a test of their senators and assemblymen. The record was printed in the newspapers and sown broadcast by the opponents of bad legislators at the next election. From the very outset the measure proved effective. The first year several of the oldest and worst offenders were defeated. The politicians began to consider the consequences of bad votes.

Last year, the second year of the practice of maintaining a people's lobby, the scope was broadened. Mr. Whitney, who took charge of it, decided that it was important that the newspapers should be instantly provided with some terse summary of legislation, that the purpose of bills might be recognized at once and full publicity given to their harmful character. Up to this time the favorite device for securing improper legislation for corporations lay in drawing entirely blind bills, which to the layman, and all the newspaper correspondents were, of course, laymen, was utterly unintelligible. Such for example was the famous measure introduced at the direction of Governor Odell, during the fight against the Hyde control of the Equitable Life Assurance society, which on the surface dealt with a Brooklyn warehouse company, but in reality repealed the charter of the Equitable's most important subsidiary trust company.

Mr. Whitney's plan was simple in the extreme, and it has proven immensely effective. Every day, as soon as bills have been introduced, he reviews them, studies their text and hands to the various newspaper correspondents a brief summary of them. Thus, at the very outset, the public gets its information of bad legislation. The newspaper correspondents, supplied with this typewritten data, are able to spread it broadcast over the whole state, and the old order of secrecy is entirely banished. Instead of having a trust in this information, controlled by a few "insiders' and purveyed at a high price to a select public, which can afford to pay for it, this Citizens' union bureau supplies the entire voting public gratis with the information and the press disseminates it.

The effect of this method was shown during the last campaign. The Citizen's union review of the records of New York city legislators was printed and the public sentiment had become so aroused on this point that the newspapers found it good "copy" to print, and to discuss in editorial columns. The report did not confine itself to mere censure, it praised men, who had made good records, with equal readiness. Moreover, as the committee which drafted it was absolutely non-partisan in its character there was not the slightest suspicion of partisanship present in the report. Voters who received the certificate of character contained in the favorable mention in this report appealed to their constituents on this showing and commanded the Independent voters' support. Similarly, the men with the bad records found this independent vote shifted to their opponents automatically.

A sample of the unfavorable comment is supplied in the following instance, which is a verbatim quotation from the report:

"Cooper, Charles (Republican, 8th Kings. Conspicuous because of his undesirable special and personal legislation; his efforts to break down the civil service laws and his bills creating unnecessary salaried city officers; amends his bills for the worse from the floor, where there is little attention given such amendments; intelligent and dangerous representative; should be defeated." Senator Cooper was renominated and in a district which gave the Republican candidate for governor 8,000 majority, he was beaten by over 900 votes.

In a large number of cases, however, the party took the matter in hand. Not because of any moral nicety, of course, but because it recognized the possible loss of the district, it "turned down" the offending legislators. In a number of conventions this citation from the Citizens' union report decided the action of the convention and the legislator, whose term of service had been long and who had come to feel immune, was eliminated. All the Republican senators from Brooklyn, for example, were either "turned down" or defeated and this followed their condemnation by the Citizens' union legislative report. The results of last year at the polls showed clearly the wisdom of the legislators in previous years, in keeping their record out of their constituents's hands by suppressing the journal of the legislative proceedings.

Such, in brief, is the history and method of operation of the first of the "People's Lobby." It has grown each year since its inception. Each year an increasing number of able young lawyers have volunteered to serve on its committee in studying legislative measures and estimating their public importance. Its reports, supplied to the press have placed in the hands of an interested public an accurate and simple analysis of all important legislation. It has become a menace to bad legislation and a club against inefficient or corrupt representatives. Moreover it is growing in importance and in scope and the prospect for the present session is bright for its added usefulness. Not the least of its services, of course, is the fact that it has supplied an idea, which has already been employed at the national capital and in many state capitals.

HUGE TIDAL WAVE

found and buried on the day the dispatch was sent.

There have been a number of shocks since the first disastrous one and the repetition keeps the people in a constat state of terror.

Havana reports a wireless message received there stating that, a tidal wave has changed the coast line of Jamaica and has left the south side of Kingston under water.

Rear Admiral Evans first heard of the disaster on Tuesday night by means of an intercepted wireless dispatch and prepared to send ships to the scene. Wednesday night he received a cable dispatch from Governor Magoon asking him to send medical supplies. The Whipple started instantly at a speed of 25 knots carrying all the surgical supplies the fleet could spare. The battleships Missouri and Indiana followed and both are now in Kingston harbor, but are unable to communicate by wireless with Admiral Evans owing to an intervening mountain. Communication, however, is maintained through the steamer Colon, which is lying off the port.

Rear Admiral Evans sent the battleships because he knew no English troops were in Kingston, and he feared looting by the negroes there.

BRITISH INFORMATION

Shows That List of Dead and Injured is Constantly Growing.

London, Jan. 18.—One brief telegram from Governor Swettham, announcing that Sir James Fergusson's body had been found in the ruins of a cigar store and subsequently buried, and adding that no British officials were killed or injured, was the only additional information from Kingston, Jamaica, received at the colonial office this morning. The difficulties in the way of communicating with Kingston, the constantly growing lists of the dead and injured whites, the knowledge that many of the latter will be buried unidentified, and the reports of the threatened engulfment of the remains of the city combine to increase the anxiety of relatives and friends in this country of people in Kingston who are besieging all the possible sources of information in quest of news, even the big business firms operating with Kingston are unable to obtain replies to urgent requests for their mails. Cable companies, however, are hopeful that today or tomorrow will see an improvement in their service. The Direct West India Cable company's steamer is due at Kingston today. As the break in the cable is located close to the shore, no difficulty is anticipated in restoring communication promptly.

The officials here estimate that relief steamers must be arriving at Kingston by now, and a rapid straightening out of the state of chaos is expected.

The mansion house fund for the relief of the Kingston earthquake sufferers is being well supported, and, with the American and other contributions there will be no lack of supplies or funds for immediate necessities.

An undated dispatch from a member of Sir Alfred Jones' party now at Kingston, received this morning says:

"A ghastly procession of carts passing all day long to the cemetery conveyed there 350 victims who were buried in batches of twenty. It is believed that there are 400 more corpses among the wreckage. The body of Sir James Fergusson was buried Jan. 16.

"There have been several further shocks since the great upheaval, but they are less violent. The negroes loot some shops, but, on the whole, fair order is being preserved. Fires are still burning."

The war office has posted a list of the killed and injured among the troops at Kingston, but it is admittedly incomplete and exclusive of the disaster at the camp hospital, where forty to fifty men of the West India regiment were killed. According to the casualties known at the time of sending of the dispatch Maj. W. H. Hardyman and Lieut. J. Lamont were the only two officers killed. Nine officers were injured. Among the European non-commissioned officers and their families there were seven deaths and four were injured, while thirteen native non-commissioned officers and men are dead or missing.

A special from Jamaica, dated yesterday, gives the number of killed of the West India regiment as two officers and twenty-six men.

A special from Kingston, dated Jan. 17, says:

"The recent earthquake was more serious than any which had occurred in Jamaica for 250 years. The first shock was followed by fifteen minor shocks. The wooden structures stood well, but the brick houses collapsed within a radius of six miles. The immunity of 250 years led the Jamaicans to forget that they were within the earthquake zone and they had been building brick houses. But for this probably there would have been no loss of life.

"There has been no tidal wave. The defenses at Port Royal were destroyed and the palisades broken through. Black mud is coming to the surface. The conduct of all classes is admirable, but it is hoped that the British cruiser Indefatigable will soon arrive here with marines."

NINETY CHILDREN

Killed During First Shock by Collapse of Schoolhouse.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 18.—The wireless telegraph station at Cape Henry has received an official message from Rear Admiral Evans, commanding the North Atlantic fleet in West Indian waters, presumably referring to the Kingston disaster, and a message from Washington to Admiral Evans has been communicated to him on the flagship Maine via the coast wireless stations, but the wireless people decline to give out anything concerning either message declaring that both were official and that the contents or nature of the messages cannot be divulged. The message from Admiral Evans came during the night and was forwarded to Washington.

The Cape Henry wireless station received the following message after last midnight bearing on the Kingston disaster, the message having come from Guantanamo, Cuba:

"Have overheard by wireless from steamer Colon that the schoolhouse at Kingston fell at first shock, killing ninety children. The city of Kingston is in bad shape and is still smouldering with about 500 reported killed and injured.

"The channel in the harbor of Kingston has shifted. This cannot be vouched for.

"Battleships Missouri and Indiana entered harbor safely. Four hundred dead, 500 in hospitals. Indications many slightly injured."

GRAPHIC STORY

Of the Great Earthquake Told by an Eye Witness.

London, Jan. 18.—The London Times this morning publishes the following account of the earthquake cabled by John Henniker Heaton, M. P.:

After the opening ceremony of the conference, Sir Alexander Swettenham invited ten of us to lunch at the Jamaica club, including Sir James Fergusson, who had arrived the previous day, and gave us an interesting account of the work on the Panama canal. One hour afterwards, Sir James was buried amid tons of brick and stone. The first fear as to his fate was due to the fact that he did not return at night to the government house, where he was staying and at 6 in the morning Sir Alexander came on board the Port Kingston to inquire for his guest.

After lunch I left the club and went with a member of the council to visit the postoffice. I was returning when the earthquake occurred. The street was a moderate sized one, and the moment the ground began to quake thousands of people rushed and jumped into the street from the houses. A huge building fell across the street in the yard before us, another building blocked the street behind us on our left, then a third building fell. Then followed absolute darkness. Great clouds of dust and mortar from the debris filled the air for five minutes. When light was restored my companion and I found ourselves black with dust and dirt like negroes. It was a miraculous escape.

The scene that followed baffles description. Women were embracing children, others were on their knees praying loudly with most intense feeling to God to have mercy on them. Others were fainting. Others were hunting wildly seeking their loved ones to save them. We climbed over the debris and returned to the club. It was in ruins, the roof had collapsed and the rooms where we dined was filled with tons of brick. A young fellow, hatless, coatless, with a handkerchief tied around his head, addressed me in the street outside for several minutes. At length something peculiar struck me, and I asked if he was Gerald Loeder, for many years my friend and ex-member of the house of commons.

He said, "Yes." He was writing in the club when the roof fell, and was pinned to the floor by the roof, but by freeing himself from his coat he escaped onto the parapet and descended by a ladder to the street. The most awful sight was poor Mr. Bradly, a member of the club, lying dead under the great fallen pillars of the building. That night we slept on the lawn of the hotel, and during the long hours between sunset and sunrise felt at least three earthquake shocks.

The blaze of the raging fire over the city was plainly visible. At dawn I got coffee and then drove into Kingston, a distance of six miles. All along the road were encampments of families outside of their houses. In Kingston I drove many miles through the streets. At least 95 out of every 100 houses were in ruins or damaged beyond repair. This I say from personal observation, yet nine-tenths of them were old and many ought to have been destroyed long ago.

On arriving aboard our good steamship it was a great joy to find Sir Alfred Jones, notwithstanding his miraculous escape, giving orders clearly and forcibly to his secretary to meet the troubles by the erection of light shelters and arrangements for cooking for the poor people.

FELL IN LOVE WITH PICTURE

Handsomest Girl in Iowa Wedded to Dining Car Conductor.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 8.—"The handsomest young woman in Iowa," according to the decision of the "beauty" judges at the St. Louis exposition, has just been married in Chicago to the man who first fell in love with her photograph and courted her by telephone.

Miss Effie Henderson of Rodney, Iowa, aged 21, and Floyd R. Wilson of Manila, Iowa, aged 26, are the principals in one of the most novel romances the state has had. Wilson loved the young woman for a year before he ever met her, and the meeting was most unusual and their acquaintanceship and courtship extraordinary.

When Wilson first saw a picture of Miss Henderson, used in connection with the award of the beauty prize to her at St. Louis, he declares he fell in love with the lone lady of the moon. He was a brakeman on a passenger train, but was soon, by the direction of fate, given the place of conductor on a dining car. One day as his train was pulling him over the sandhills of Western Nebraska, toward Hot Springs, S. D., the girl of his dreams came into his car. She ordered a modest meal, but the conductor saw to it that the choicest materials and service were afforded her.

When she left the table and the longing gaze of the young man, who could hardly restrain himself from throwing himself at her feet and declaring his infatuation, her gloves reposed on the window sill of the dining car. Wilson secured them, but instead of returning them he waited until he was sure she had returned home, and then he sent them by mail, accompanied by a perfumed note, which probably indicated, although did not say, why the gloves had been kept. But his desire was realized, and a charming "thank you" note came back promptly. There was warmth enough in it to warrant a reply, and soon the young people were regular correspondents.

After two years' courtship, the romance culminated in their marriage.

STOLEN GOODS FOUND.

Alleged Women Shoplifters, Both Pretty, of Course, Arrested.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 18.—Two pretty young women have been arrested and more than $500 worth of silks, furs and other goods of value, alleged to have been stolen from a dry goods store, have been recovered.

The women arrested were Mrs. Jessie Close and Miss Mabel Slater, both of whom have been employed in the dry goods store from which the goods are alleged to have been stolen. Mrs. Close's husband was also placed under arrest, but it is said his wife denied that he was implicated in the thefts, and he was released.

Miss Slater denies that she stole any of the articles alleged to have been found in her possession. On the other hand, it is said Mrs. Close has confessed to her part in the shoplifting.

SAVED FROM THE KNIFE

Miss Coulbourn, of East Market, Dorchester County, Maryland, had what was supposed to be a large tumor caused by Kidney trouble. After a consultation of several physicians an operation was decided upon. Meantime she began to take and was cured by

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

MISS COULBOURN

She writes of this wonderful cure: "I thought that it was my duty to let you know what your wonderful Safe Cure has done for me, as there may be somebody suffering as I was. I had a tumor, and my doctor told me that I would have to go to Cambridge Hospital to be operated on. He gave me a permit to the hospital at Cambridge. The doctor examined me, and he said it was too dangerous a place to tackle in the warm season of the year. He would wait until the last of October, and he would send to Baltimore after the doctors to come down and assist him about cutting the tumor out. It was about 5 inches long, on a very dangerous artery. Returning from Cambridge I stopped at a store and bought a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure and commenced taking it according to directions, and before I had used that bottle the tumor was nearly gone, and I got another bottle and took half of that, and I was finally cured when the last of August came without being operated on. If you wish to use my name you are perfectly welcome to do so. I am known in Cambridge and in Dorchester and several other counties. I reside near Cabin Creek.—Lillian F. Coulbourn, East Market, R. F. D. No. 1, Md."

Does your back ache? Are you obliged to pass you water frequently and with much irritation? Are you nervous? Do you get dizzy easily. If so, your kidneys and bladder are effected, and you should attend to curing them at once and thus prevent most serious complications and fatal results. You should take Warner's Safe Cure. It is pleasant and will set your kidneys and urinary organs right. These once right, health and long life are yours. Myriads have had wonderful cures, and many gladly testify by letters what Warner's Safe Cure has done for them in curing and preventing all forms of kidney and bladder troubles, female weakness, Bright's disease and all diseased conditions of the liver and blood.

CURES KIDNEY DISEASE.

When the kidneys are diseased the uric acid is not carried off and this causes Gout, Lumbago, Rheumatism of the Joint, Rheumatism of the Muscles, Rheumatism of the Heart, Rheumatism everywhere.

In Bright's Disease the bowels are often constipated and the liver torpid. Warner's Safe Pills quickly relieve the condition, and no ill after-effect is experienced.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is now put up in two sizes and is sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50 CENTS AND $1.00 A BOTTLE. Refuse substitutes containing harmful drugs which injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE! To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will cure them, a trial bottle will be sent ABSOLUTELY FREE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in the Duluth Evening Herald. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed. Our doctors will also send medical booklet containing descriptions of symptoms and treatment of each disease, and many convincing testimonials, free, to every one.

ARMY MEN WANT MORE PAY

Living Costs Officers Nearly Twice as Much as in 1870.

Junction City, Kan., Jan. 18.—Great interest is being shown by both officers and enlisted men at Fort Riley in the various bills before congress for the increase of the pay in the army, and particularly in Congressman Calderhead's bill, which is the result of a great amount of labor on his part, and that of Capt. Bertrand Rockwell of Kansas City, Mo., who helped draft the schedule of increase for both enlisted men and officers. Capt. Rockwell is a brother-in-law of Gen. Adna B. Chaffee, retired. For nearly forty years he was a resident of Junction City, and probably knew every officer as well as many enlisted men who were stationed at Fort Riley during that time.

Congressman Calderhead's bill asks for the following increase: Private, $13 to $15; corporal, $15 to $20; sergeant, $18 to $24; first sergeant, $25 to $30. The schedule of increase for all other noncommissioned officers is in the same proportion.

Since 1872, when the last change in army pay was made, living expenses have increased. It is hard on the officer who pays 33 per cent more for his uniform now than he did in 1870; 33 per cent more for clothing for his family; 50 per cent more for food; 75 per cent more for servants and 50 per cent more for his horse.

DAMSITE, TEXAS TOWN, CENTER OF IRRIGATION.

Quanah, Texas, Jan. 18.—Damsite is the name of a new town in this county. It was recently given recognition by the United States postal authorities and its name is found among the list of postoffices in the latest edition of the postoffice guide. There is nothing blasphemous in the name of the town. Its surroundings could hardly be more peaceful and pastoral. The town is less than two years old. It is the center and the headquarters of one of the largest private irrigation enterprises in the United States.

The men who are the owners of the big system of irrigation and of most of the town itself are Col. Cecil Lyon of Sherman, member of the Republican national committee and chairman of the Republican state executive committee; J. S. Rice and W. M. Rice of Houston. Col. Lyon promoted the project and named the town. The system of irrigation covers 10,000 acres of land. There is no land-selling scheme behind the project.

The three owners of the big farm are devoting their whole energies to raising crops of various kinds of products upon the land and selling them for the best prices that can be obtained. This big farm is situated within ten miles of the Oklahoma line. It is in the Panhandle portion of Texas, where only a few years ago it was the popular belief that such a thing as successful agriculture was impossible.

When Col. Lyon and his associates purchased this tract of land they determined to make doubly sure of raising crops each year by putting the whole tract under irrigation. In order to obtain water supply they had a large dam constructed, and leading from this water storage reservoir is a main ditch eleven miles long and having many lateral ditches. This system of canal and ditches leads the water to any part of the immense acreage, and there is no danger of crops suffering.

The Right Name.

Mr. August Sherpe, the popular overseer of the poor, at Fort Madison, Ia., says: "Dr. King's New Life Pills are rightly named; they act more agreeably, do more good and make one feel better than any other laxative." Guaranteed to cure billiousness and constipation. 25c at all druggists.

RAILROAD UP CHEOPS.

Capitalist Trying to Get Concession to Top of Pyramid.

Cairo, Jan. 18.—It is reported here that a Mr. Fox is trying to obtain a concession to build a funicular railway from the base to the summit of the pyramid Cheops. It has been suggested that the ancient pyramid of Cheops has been insulted and abused by generation after generation of foreigners visiting Egypt, and if this last indignity is perpetrated, it is believed that the travelers by the funicular railway will come to the conclusion that there does not exist a greater fraud even in Egypt, the mother of frauds and deceptions, than the view from the summit of the great pyramid. However, the fact that there is nothing except a dreary waste to be seen from the top of the great pyramid will probably not prevent thousands and thousands of travelers from ascending either in the old-fashioned way or by the new funicular railway.

Mothers who give their children Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup invariably indorse it. Contains Honey and Tar. Conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by all druggists.

THE MARKET SHY ON FISH

Heavy Snows in Canada Put Limit on the Supply.

Commission Business Better Than It Usually Is in January.

The unusual amount of snow that has fallen this winter has come in for a lot of abuse lately, and is being blamed for many things. Now, it is said to be affecting the fish market. At this season of the year most of the white fish, pike and one or two varieties of fish come from Canadian waters, in the Lake of the Woods country.

This week one of the local commission houses sent a large order for fish to a Canadian house with which it had been doing business. Yesterday a letter in reply was received. It brought the disappointing news that no fish of any kind were on hand, and therefore the order could not be filled. This was due, the letter went on to explain, to the fact that there was so much snow at interior points that teams could no get to the lakes to haul out the fish and that therefore a shortage existed in all the markets dependent upon these particular lakes for their supply. The catch of fish is as large as usual, but this fact avails nothing as long as the stock cannot be hauled to market.

Despite the shortage now existing, it is hardly considered likely that there will be a further advance in price. The top notch has already been reached. The people will refuse to buy at all if more money is demanded by the retailer, and therefore the retailer will refuse to buy if more money is demanded by the wholesaler. The consumer will pay so much for fish and no more, and when the price gets unreasonably high the demand falls off, and there is nothing doing in the fish market. Consequently, while white fish and pike are bringing fancy prices just now, there isn't much money in handling them, because the raw product costs so much.

Of herring there is a plenty. The north shore boat which has just stopped running has had all it can do to handle the shipments of herring, so large are they. On one or two trips it has been unable to carry all the fish offered, and has had to leave some of the bundles behind. The cold weather is an excellent preservative, however, and delays of this kind do not mean a loss to the fishermen themselves. The little Booth boat brought in sixty tons of fish on one trip recently.

There is quite a lively demand for poultry of all kinds, with a fairly liberal supply. Prices remain the same as last week. Considering the season, the consumption is large.

* * *

January is generally supposed to be the dullest month in the year for the commission houses, as in many other lines of business, and there appears to be excellent grounds for the supposition. Of all the dull days in this very dull month, the first fifteen are understood to be the dullest. For the season, however, the business is better than usual. As compared with almost any other January in the past, it is almost active. The increase is in keeping with the increases in other lines of business in Duluth.

In the vegetable market, potatoes are a little firmer than they have been. This is due to a shortage in California, which has drained the supply in certain districts which usually have a market for the tubers elsewhere than California. There is a liberal sprinkling of green vegetables on the market, the products of the hot house, the South, and California. They are more luxuries than necessities just now, and are so regarded.

* * *

Eggs are firm this week, but show no advance in price. The cold snap may mean a higher price very soon, however, for the supply is getting less.

* * *

The price of creamery butter is a little weaker, but there has been no change with the dairy variety.

* * *

Owing to the long-continued rains in in California, oranges are very firm in price, and are likely to remain so for a time. Prices are not considered unreasonable, however. The supply of lemons is satisfactorily large, and the stock is exceptionally fine. Apples are coming oue of cold storage now, and are in fine condition. The storage expense has necessitated a small advance in price.

has determined to oppose reapportionment at this time. That would mean that there could be none until the legislature of 1911, four years hence, when the same situation will be presented as now; a senate elected for four years, and determined not to legislate itself out of office by making a reapportionment effective within its term. If the legislature of 1911, therefore, should make a reapportionment, and there is no more reason to expect that this one will act, it will not be effective until 1915, and that is eight years away.

In the meantime there will be three sessions of the legislature under the present apportionment, and by that time, if present tendencies continue, about one-tenth of the population will be governing the remaining nine-tenths.

The constitution provides that the legislature "may" reapportion at the first session following either a state or federal census, and at no other time. If nothing is done this time, therefore, nothing can be done before 1911, in the session following the federal census of 1910.

Senator Coller of Shakopee, having a view of getting away from the difficulty that presents itself when the time for making a reapportionment comes when the senate has just been selected for four years and is therefore naturally reluctant to pass a law cutting its term in two, has introduced a proposed constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to reapportion at any session. If that should be submitted to the people and adopted, it would be possible to pass a reapportionment law at the session when the senatorial terms are about to expire, and there would be less difficulty in inducing the senate to vote for the bill.

Regardless of these conditions, however, reapportionment is in many respects the most important matter that will come before this session, at least to Northern Minnesota and the Twin Cities. The southern third of the state, with very much less than one-half of the population, now controls the legislature, and though Northern Minnesota furnishes revenues to the state that it could not get along without, its representation is decidedly short.

It is quite clear that unless action is taken at this session, nothing can be done for four years more, and that if anything is done then, unless the Coller constitutional amendment should pass, it will not go into effect for four years more.

Now, or eight years hence. That is th altrnativ on reapportionment.

If the senate objects to cutting its term down, and it certainly will, it can get around that by making the reapportionment effective Jan. 1, 1911, which is very much better than putting it off eight years.

There is a curious condition of affairs in connection with the senatorial terms. It was never intended that the senators should be elected for 4-year terms all at the same time, as they are now.

The constitution provided for a new election of senators and representatives in 1878, when representatives wer to be elected for two years, half of the senate for two years, and the other half of the senate for four years. Thereafter all senators were to be elected for four years, and all representatives for two.

This would have fixed it so that half of the senate would go out every two years, and the senate would never be entirely new, as it is now, with the exception of old members re-elected for another term.

The senators in odd-numbered districts were to have been elected for only two years in 1878, but in some way all of them were elected for four years, in flat disobedience of the provisions of the constitution.

Whether subsequent senators have been illegal is a question, but the chances are that the practice of disobedience has been so long in vogue that it is perfectly legal.

The senate is going to have a very interesting election contest this session. As stated yesterday, the senate committee on elections will take it up next Tuesday afternoon.

Last fall J. M. Hackney, Republican, was elected over Pierce Butler, Democrat, by a couple of hundred votes in the Thirty-seventh legislative district, a part of St. Paul.

Butler has contested Hackney's election, on the ground that in the precinct in which the state agricultural school is located, a large number of students voted when they had no right to vote. It is claimed on behalf of Hackney that these young men are at the agricultural school for a period of years, that many of them earn their living there while they are going to school; in short, that it is their home. Butler's attorneys claim, on the other hand, that all of these students have homes elsewhere, and that their attendance upon school does not constitute a residence. It is up to the elections committee, and after that the senate itself, to determine whether students at a college are bonafide residents of the college community, or whether they legally live at home, where the old folks do.

Ex-Senator F. B. Daugherty came up from Chicago yesterday to spend a few days in St. Paul on business. Incidentally, he is renewing old legislative acquaintanceships.

Many imagined from the fact that Senator Seward of Marshall and Senator Clague of Lamberton had two opposing bills in yesterday doing things to the Ninth and Thirteenth judicial district, that there is a fight on over it.

There is not, however, the two bills merely representing two different methods of disposing of a difficulty in which the Ninth district finds itself. It has too much business for its present allowance of judges, and some change is necessary.

Senator Seward's bill provides that Pipestone county shall be detached from the Thirteenth district, which also has all the business it can handle, and attached to the Ninth district. This would make more work in the latter district, and to remedy that the bill provides for an additional judge in that district.

Senator Clague's bill disposes of the difficulty in an entirely different manner. He will take Lincoln and Lyon counties out of the Ninth district, and Murray and Pipestone counties out of the Thirteenth, and create a new judicial district, to be known as the Nineteenth.

The initiative and referendum bill may not pass at this session, but it will come very much closer to it than it has ever come before. In fact, it has not had even fair consideration before, and that consideration it is certain to have this session, for many members of both houses have been pledged to its support.

The bill, as it came into the senate yesterday, simply provides for the submission of a constitutional amendment by which the people can vote to adopt the system if they wish to, or reject it if they do not approve of it.

All constitutional amendments are now handled upon the referendum system, but there is no way of referring laws, except those governing railroad taxation, and absolutely no way at all by which the people can initiate legislation.

It is pretty hard to argue against the plan on any other basis that a suspicion of the ability of the people to vote wisely on public questions. In a popular government those who take such a view as that are not likely to be popular, and if there is anything public officers like, it is to be popular.

The large number of petitions favoring the measure that are coming in from all over the state indicate a widespread sentiment in favor of it. This sentiment is confined to no locality and to no party.

For instance, the petitions from Duluth have been signed by Republicans, Democrats, Socialists; by business men, professional men, and workingmen.

If the initiative and referendum were in vogue, it would relieve the legislature of many burdensome propositions. For instance, there is the ever-recurring county option bill. If this state had the principle of the initiative and the referendum embodied in its constitution, the legislature would not have to pester the governor with a more or less insolent and childish demand for his opinion in the matter, but it could refer it to the people for their vote, thus getting an opinion straight from the voters themselves; an opinion that would settle the matter for all time.

Representative George W. Knox of Aitkin has initiated a movement that will doubtless put the legislature on record in the matter of the Aitkin county cutoff on the Mississippi river, by which it is hoped to relieve the almost annual floods that harrass the settlers along the Mississippi. His joint memorial to congress, introduced in the house yesterday, will doubtless go through without objection, and it may serve to spur the congressional delegation in Washington to greater activity in this very important matter.

A ripple of laughter passed over the house yesterday when Representative Davidson of Mapleton introduced his bill prohibiting candidates and campaign committees from doling out supplies to political strikers, but there is merit in the bill.

One of the things that makes politics expensive for the candidates is the duty that seems to devolve upon them to keep the crowd around headquarters supplied with expense money, cigars and drinks. Another is the expense of providing conveyances on election day to bring out the reluctant voters and carry them to the polls in luxury. The bill prohibits everything of this sort under serious penalties, and it seems likely that if it passes politics will be cleaner, the air at headquarters sweeter, and the game less prohibitive to the man of talent unaccompanied by ample supplies of "dough."

Members of the senate and house, that have been trying to get together on a plan to consolidate the business of investigation, appeared yesterday afternoon to have reached an agreement that will permit plenty of investigations without tieing up most of the members of both bodies on investigating committees.

The plan to introduce joint resolutions in both bodies providing for three general committees to which all investigations may be referred. First is one on restrain of trade, to which the coal combine, harvester trust and grain market investigations were to be entrusted. It was to have six senators and nine representatives.

Next is one on state lands, whether timber or mineral, to consist of four senators and five representatives.

Last is one on mining taxation, to have four senators and five representatives.

The resolution was to be introduced this morning, and it was intended to take the place of all pending resolutions of this nature in both houses. It was agreed, too, that those who offered the original resolutions should be remembered by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house in making up the committees.

Up to the close of business yesterday the legislature had received 141 bills, against 49 for the same day two years ago. The senate has been uncommonly active, having received 88 bills against 30 two years ago, while the house had received 53 bills against 19 two years ago. Just now there is something of a lull, and they are not piling up so rapidly, but there will doubtless be a fresh flood next week. The house is now behind the senate, but it will not remain there long, unless it is different from what it has been in past sessions.

The house will also have an election contest this session. James Denegre, Republican, of St. Paul seeks the seat occupied by J. D. O'Brien, and the house committee on elections will take it up Monday afternoon.

* * *

The first of a long string of road and bridge bills that may be expected this winter came in yesterday, Henry Rines of Mora offering one in the house asking an appropriation for a bridge over the Snake river in Pine and Kanabec counties.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

NATIVE POLITENESS.

Louis Wagner, the winner of the Vanderbilt cup, was asked by a reporter after the race to criticise some of his defeated competitors, says the Los Angeles Times.

"Oh," said the great racer, "I couldn't criticise them. It wouldn't be gracious. It wouldn'be polite. We should be as polite to the vanquished," said Mr. Wagner, "as the people of India are. An Englishman went shooting in India, and was accompanied by a native servant. On his return some one asked the servant how the Englishman had made out.

"'Oh,' said the native, "the sahib shot divinely, but heaven was very merciful to the birds.'"

A LAZY LIVER

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over-work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver complaint," or torpid liver, by its wonderful control over the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system of poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

Symptoms. If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, or biliousness, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver, or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

Of Golden Seal root, which is one of the prominent ingredients of "Golden Medical Discovery," Dr. Roberts Barthlow, of Jefferson Medical College, says: "Very useful as a stomachic (stomach) tonic and in atonic dyspepsia. Cures gastric (stomach) catarrh and headaches accompanying same."

Dr. Grover Coe, of New York, says: "Hydrastis (Golden Seal root) exercises an especial influence over mucous surfaces. Upon the liver it acts with equal certainty and efficacy. As a cholagogue (liver invigorator) it has few equals." Dr. Coe also advises it for affections of the spleen and other abdominal viscera generally, and for scrofulous and glandular diseases, cutaneous eruptions, indigestion, debility, chronic diarrhea, constipation, also in several affections peculiar to women, and in all chronic derangements of the liver, also for chronic inflammation of bladder, for which Dr. Coe says "it is one of the most reliable agents of cure."

Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, author of the AMERICAN DISPENSATORY, gives it a prominent place among medicinal agents, reiterates all the foregoing writers have said about it, as does also Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati. Dr. Scudder says: "It stimulates the digestive processes and increases the assimilation of food. By these means the blood is enriched. * * * * the consequent improvement on the glandular and nervous systems are natural results." Dr. Scudder further says, "in relation to its general effect upon the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic, useful in all debilitated states * * *."

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of Golden Seal root: "It is a most superior remedy in catarrhal gastritis (inflammation of the stomach), chronic constipation, general debility, in convalescence from protracted fevers, in prostrating night-sweats. It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb." (This agent, Golden Seal root, is an important ingredient of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for woman's weaknesses, as well as of the "Golden Medical Discovery.") Dr. Ellingwood continues, "in all catarrhal conditions it is useful."

Much more, did space permit, could be quoted from prominent authorities as to the wonderful curative properties possessed by Golden Seal root.

We want to assure the reader that "Golden Medical Discovery" can be relied upon to do all that is claimed for Golden Seal root in the cure of all the various diseases as set forth in the above brief extracts, for its most prominent and important ingredient is Golden Seal root. This agent is, however, strongly reinforced, and its curative action greatly enhanced by the addition, in just the right proportion of Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure glycerine. All of these are happily and harmoniously blended into a most perfect pharmaceutical compound, now favorably known throughout most of the civilized countries of the world. Bear in mind that each and every ingredient entering into the "Discovery" has received the endorsement of the leading medical men of our land, who extol each article named above in the highest terms. What other medicine put up for sale through druggists can show any such professional endorsement? For dyspepsia, liver troubles, all chronic catarrhal affections of whatever name or nature, lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, the "Discovery" can be relied upon as a sovereign remedy.

A little book of extracts treating of all the several ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines, being extracts from standard medical works, of the different schools of practice will be mailed free to any one asking (by postal card or letter), for the same, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and giving the writer's full post-office address plainly written.

ANCIENT GREEKS AND ROMANS

Considered the Pine Sap the Supreme Specific.

A Philadelphia Doctor Tells of a New Pine Product.

Scripture writings and ancient history go to show that of all the ancient remedies handed down from our remote ancestors, pine is one of the very few that still holds its place on the prescribing lists of the doctors of today as it did with the wise men of old as far back as the time of the Pharaohs. The ancient Greeks were wont to go upon the slopes of Caucasus and the Romans to climb the Alpine crags in search of this wonderful tree, the pine. One drawback to the free use of the great curative properties of the pine has been its insolubility, but a prominent Philadelphia physician who has been experimenting with refined pine products, some time ago announced that he had at last achieved success and gave the world what is known as Concentrated oil of pine. In a recent interview he also gave out the formula which has attracted so much attention on account of its quick results in the relief and cure of all colds, coughs and bronchial troubles. The formula is very simple, being as follows:

"One-half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine; two ounces of glycerine; half pint of good whiskey; mix them and shake thoroughly and use every four hours in tablespoon doses."

These ingredients can be secured at any well stocked prescription druggist and easily mixed at home.

The only care necessary is to be sure to get the "Concentrated" oil of pine, which always comes in half-ounce vials enclosed in round air-tight cases to protect it from heat and retain all the original ozone.

Bulk oil and patent medicines using a similar name should be avoided.

The Philadelphia specialist disclaims any credt for originality on the formula, as he states that with the exception of the improvement in the pine product is practically the same as that frequently prescribed by Pericles.

SOCIALISTS BOASTFUL.

Say They Will Oust Liberals From Their Offices.

Berlin, Jan. 19.—At fifty Socialist meetings in Berlin it was announced, amid clouds of smoke and heavy beer drinking, that the popular parties were firmly resolved to oust the Liberals from their two remaining constituencies here and plant the banner of socialism over the whole capital from the millionaires' west end to the laboring men's east end. The position of the Liberals is unsafe even in the smallest constituency in the city, while two of the suburban constituencies will accord the spectacle of 100,000 Socialists marching to the polls.

So hopeless appears the situation in the capital for the government parties that the imperial union against Socialists has removed its headquarters to the provinces.

SIN IN EXPRESS PACKAGES.

Tobacco Parcels Cause Delivery Man to Give Up Job.

Elgin, Ill., Jan. 18.—Feeling that he could not consistently lead a sanctified life and still deliver packages containing articles which a good Christian would not approve of using, Loren W. Baker has resigned his position with the American Express company.

Mr. Baker had no objection to delivering packages of merchandise, but when given one bearing a tobacco stamp signifying that the contents were either smoking or chewing tobacco, his conscience rebelled.

TIMBER DEAL IS RUMORED

Duluth and Chicago Interests Said to be the Purchasers.

Prominent lumbermen of Duluth and Chicago are reported to have closed a deal for the purchase of an immense tract of Canadian timber lands from the Rat Portage Lumber company. The purchasers are said to be the Edward Hines Lumber company and the Cook and O'Brien interests.

While details of the alleged transaction are lacking, it is understood that the deal comprises about seventy square miles of land near the line of the Canadian Northern road, about sixty miles east of International Falls.

It is rumored that the Hines company will erect a large sawmill about fifty miles east of International Falls, and will manufacture the timber into lumber, the markets to be Winnipeg and other Manitoba towns.

If the deal is authentic, and the proposed plans are carried out, it is thought probable that some of the lumber will come through Duluth, over the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road, which is expected to connect with the Canadian Northern line late this coming summer.

JUMPED OFF TRAIN.

Russian Checked in His Devotions--Probably Perished of Cold.

Chapleau, Minn., Jan. 18.—A sensational affair occurred on a transcontinental train on which several foreigners, among them a Russian, who was going to the old country to bring back his children, were passengers. He acted in a peculiar manner and gave other passengers the impression that he was crazy, though an immigration official who was on the train said the man was carrying out his religious obligations, it being the Russian New Year.

Shortly after midnight he was on his knees with his hand clasped and praying so loudly the passengers could not sleep. As he paid no attention to the warnings of the trainmen, he was carried away, after much struggling, into a colonist car, where he continued his loud praying. Shortly after this he ran to the door and jumped off the train. The crew tried to capture him, but he struck a brakeman, and eventually escaped into the woods. As the snow was deep and it was 40 below zero, it is believed he perished.

The affair took place near Teindeau station. The man's name is supposed to be Ivan Sernew, and he is said to be from Edmonton.

TRAIN WRECK AT SAVOY.

Fireman Jumped and Caught Under Car and Instantly Killed.

Havre, Mont., Jan. 18.—Train No. 2, eastbound, struck a broken rail at Savoy, fifty-four miles east of here Wednesday and the engine, baggage car and two coaches left the track and plunged into the ditch. John Burnard, fireman, jumped and was caught under the baggage car and instantly killed. Six passengers were badly shaken up; their names have not been reported to the Havre office thus far. Burnard was a new man on the run. Other trainmen stuck to their posts and escaped.

E. G. Geddis of Whitefish, express messenger, was severely shaken up, but is about today. Conductor Calipan and Engineer McDonald of Havre were in charge of the train.

HOLLENHORS AGAIN.

Former Employe of the Great Western Indicted on Four Counts,

Waterloo, Iowa, Jan. 18.—The Blackhawk county grand jury has returned an indictment against John B. Hollenhors, former roadmaster of the Chicago Great Western railroad. The indictment is on four counts, one for forgery, one for uttering a forged instrument and two for cheating by false pretenses. Hollenhors was arrested as he stepped from a train. He was released on $4,000 bail.

Hollenbors was recently freed of charges by the grand jury at Marshalltown. He is accused of having padded the Great Western payrolls by adding fictitious names and then casning checks made out to dummy employes.

N. P. MUST GIVE FOND DU LAC BETTER SERVICE

The State Railway Commissioners Order Another Daily Train.

Suburbanites Win Long Fight for Proper Accommodations.

The state railway and warehouse commission has issued an order directing the Northern Pacific to put an additional passenger train in service between Duluth and Fond du Lac, as a result of the agitation started by Duluth and Fond du Lac people, interested.

The train will run every week day, and will be put in service immediately. It will leave Fond du Lac at 7:40 in the morning and arrive at Duluth at 8:20 a. m. Returning, it will leave Duluth at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, arriving at Fond du Lac at 7:15 in the evening.

The proceedings before the commission were instituted soon after the regular summer passenger service between the two points mentioned stopped for the year. Petitions for a better service were circulated and very largely signed by residents of Duluth and Fond du Lac, and by local people interested in those sections.

The hearing before the commission was held Dec. 7, 1906, and the general public was represented by A. C. Volk, J. H. Brigham and W. G. Joerns of Duluth, appearing on behalf of the petitioners. These men made a very strong showing, and it has been expected all along that the desired order would be issued, for the arguments as advanced by the railroad were decidedly weak, when compared with those employed by the Duluth committee.

Others who interested themselves prominently in the matter were Judge Jaques, Judge Windom, Judge Cutting and Attorney McMahon of Duluth, Postmaster O. C. Tower of New Duluth, and O. S. Olson of Fond du Lac. The commissioners offered both the railroad ad the petitioners every facility to present facts in the case, giving a very fair hearing to both sides.

The relations between the petitioners and the railroad company remained friendly at all times, and it seemed more a matter of getting information first hand to the directing forces of the company to get the service, than anything else. The local representatives of the line all along have apparently recognized the justice of the demand, and, according to members of the committee, have appeared favorable to a reinstatement of the passenger train service.

The present service is inadequate and wholly unsatisfactory. The one train operating between Duluth and Fond du Lac, leaving here in the morning and returning in the afternoon, takes all the way from two to four or five hours to make the trip of fourteen miles, and means that a person coming to the city by it must remain away from Fond du Lac practically three whole days if he has any business to transact here.

Following is a copy of the order issued by the commission:

"This matter came before the commission for hearing on the seventh day of December, 1906. W. G. Joerns appeared as attorney for petitioners, and F. W. Gilbert, general superintendent, appeared for the Northern Pacific Railway company.

"After hearing the evidence, and having due consideration thereof, the commission finds that the passenger train service furnished by the Northern Pacific Railway company on its line between Fond du Lac and Duluth, is unreasonable; that a reasonable service between said stations during the winter season would be for a passenger train to start from Fond du Lac at about 7:40 in the forenoon of each week day and arrive at Duluth at 8:20 in the forenoon, and returning, leaving Duluth at 5:30 in the afternoon and arriving at Fond du Lac at 7:15.

"It is therefore ordered that the Northern Pacific Railway company, in addition to the passenger service that said company is now furnishing between Fond du Lac and Duluth, forthwith and until the further order of the commission, operate every week day a passenger train consisting of an engine and at least one passenger coach, scheduled to leave Fond du Lac at 7:40 in the morning and arrive at Duluth at 8:20 in the morning; returning, leaving Duluth at 5:30 in the afternoon, arriving at Fond du Lac at 7:15; and that said trains stop at all stations between Fond du Lac and Duluth for the purpose of receiving and discharging passengers."

WRECK LOSS WAS HEAVY

Total From Accidents on Lakes Amounted to $2,500,000.

Decrease in Number of Lives Lost During Last Year.

During the twelve months ending Dec. 31, 1906, sixty-five vessels were lost or destroyed in wrecks and accidents on the Great Lakes. Of this number twenty-four were screw steamers, one side wheel steamer, five screw tugs, sixteen schooners and nineteen barges, representing a total of 47,620 gross tons. Only eight of these boats were over 2,000 tons and the whole sixty-five vessels scarcely equal in tonnage eight of the modern steel freighters built last year.

The vessels lost during the year were all freighters with the exception of four or five and of the sixty-five, there were sixteen Canadian boats which is a greater percentage than for a number of seasons past. The steamers Atlanta, Theano, Monarch and Strathmore were probably the best of the entire number. It is possible that a few of the boats, including the schooner, City of Toledo, barge, Grover, propeller Packard, and the schooner, Constitution, may be reclaimed and rebuilt in the future.

In all of these wrecks and accidents there were about 140 lives lost during 1906, which is about twenty less than the number for the previous year. Of those lost about fifty were drowned in wrecks, seven in collisions, ten were washed overboard, and the remainder in various accidents. The greatest number of lives lost in any one accident was in the foundering of the Canadian ship, J. H. Jones, on Georgian bay, when about thirty were lost. Her entire crew and passenger list went down with the steamer.

The Canadian steamer, Resolute, foundered off Toronto harbor and about six of her crew were drowned. The Canadian steamers had a bad run of luck during the year as the wrecking of the steamer, Monarch, on Isle Royale on Dec. 8, completed a big list of these boats which met with mishaps.

There were many and costly collisions as well as strandings during the season. Wrecking operations on the Great Lakes were more numerous during the past season than ever before, as a large number of vessels, which had been stranded in the fall of 1905 were rescued. The wrecking companies were nearly always in their operations and the raising of the steamer, John Duncan, at Northport, by the Great Lakes company, and the rescue of the Mataafa on the beach here in Duluth, were feats of great engineering skill.

The year was one of few storms in comparison with other seasons and there were but two of any great violence. The storm of Nov. 22 was one of the fiercest but most of the vessel captains heeded the warnings of the weather bureau and kept to shelter. The total losses from wrecks and accidents amounts to $2,500,000, of which about one-half is loss on the vessels and the balance on the cargoes.

WILL LEAVE IT UNTIL SPRING

County Board Will Not Apportion Road Funds Now.

The county road apportionment for 1907 will not be made by the county board until the March or April meeting of the commissioners. No road work will be done until the snow disappears and the frost is out of the ground, and the board does not feel inclined to tackle the division of funds problem until it is about time for the work to commence.

The road levy available last year was a little over $65,000. Commissioner Kauppi, who has the largest road district in the county, was apportioned $13,000; Commissioner Ryan was apportioned $12,500, and the other commissioners with road districts to look after were apportioned $10,000 each.

The past season was a lively one in road building and repair, and the amounts left in the funds of the various districts are very low, probably not exceeding a few hundred dollars at the most. In some districts the apportionment was entirely used up for highway improvement.

This coming year the board will have a special road levy of $95,000 to apportion, and it is expected that there will be an earnest effort on the part of all the commissioners with road districts to get as large as possible an increase of the apportionment for their respective districts.

Although the county will have $30,000 more this year for road work than last, it is not anticipated that there will be any appreciable balance left in the special road fund by Jan. 1, 1908, as the demands for new roads and for the improvement of old roads are more frequent and insistent. The county is likely to have two or three steel bridges to build the coming year, and the expense will be paid out of the road and bridge fund.

MRS. SAGE PAYS $810,000 TAX

Russel Sage's Personal Estate is Listed at $50,000,000.

New York, Jan. 18.—The tax list has several interesting features. Chief of these is the fact that the tax assessors have written down the personal fortune left by Russell Sage at $50,000,000. This is easily the biggest individual personal tax ever recorded in the city's books. Sage, in his lifetime, was assessed at $2,000,000. Mrs. Sage, to whom was left practically all of his fortune, is assessed on $5,000,000 in her own name. If those two assessments stand Mrs. Sage will have to draw her check in favor of the city treasury for something like $810,000.

Lawson Purdy, president of the tax board, is quoted as saying that the valuation of $50,000,000 put upon the personal part of the Sage estate was made up from the data furnished by the administrators in connection with the will.

Mr. Sage's fortune was different from that of almost any other rich man in New York city, consisting chiefly of cash, notes and other property which is taxable under the head of personality. Fortunes like those of Mr. Rockefeller, the Vanderbilts, the Goulds and others are largely in stocks and other property, which is taxed in another form and consequently does not appear in the official rating of their personal fortunes.

LEAGUE OF HUSBANDS.

Italians Band to Protect Their Wives From "Mashers."

Rome, Jan. 18.—Roman society has been enriched with two novelties, viz. a charity war and a league of husbands. The former originated in the fact that the best Italian comedy writer dared to defy the Roman aristocracy by taking the charity bazars in the Eternal City as his theme. The Roman ladies overlooked the affront, going to the opening night of the play and having their revenge in applauding the author. As a further revenge they have organized a charity-fete under the patronage of the wife of the minister of foreign affairs. The invitation cards are worded as follows: "A committee of ladies desiring to show the author of 'Charity in High Life' what the reality is invite you to assist at a fete where you may be convinced that by drinking a cup of tea you may do good to those who search for work and an honest living."

The league of husbands was provoked by a series of unpleasant facts. Some idle young men of the wealthy class began to annoy women on the open streets. One victim met her husband who gave the offender a prompt lesson in good manners with a stick, on which he was challenged to a duel. A large number of husbands have formed a league with the aim of assisting each other in similar cases by lynch law, such justice not coming within the Italian code of honor.

REAL CALVARY SITE

Believed to be in Turkey---Used as Mahommedan Cemetery.

Constantinople, Jan. 18. After long and patient investigation and no little controversy, it is now believed by experts who have devoted special attention to the subject for several years that the real site of Calvary has been identified.

Also that a tomb has been discovered which is the only one that in all respects satisfies the requirements of the Gospel narratives, is entitled to take precedence of all others as the supulchre in which the Savior was laid away after the crucifixion.

The new Calvary, as it is called to distinguish it from the traditional Calvary, has long been used as a Mohammedan cemetery and its acquisition is therefore impossible. But, after much trouble with the Turkish authorities, the tomb, with the garden surrounding it has been purchased for $10,000, the purchasers agreeing to build a wall to separate it from the cemetery.

It is held by a trust "to be kept sacred as a quiet spot and preserved on the one hand from desecration and on the other hand, from superstitious eyes."

Among those who have approved the plans and who have succeeded in winning a reluctant consent to these plans from the Turkish government are many distinguished eccelesiastics and laymen. Now an appeal is being made to Christians the world over to subscribe an additional sum to provide a fund for the proper maintenance of a spot which has such a unique claim to veneration.

I used HAIR HEALTH according to directions, and my hair is now soft and glossy, and very few gray hairs left. THE CHUM OF HER DECEASED SON

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 18.—The large estate left by Mrs. Mary Greathouse, who died in Versailles, Ky., in October, is soon to be settled. James H. Taylor of Washington, D. C., is here conducting the winding up of the estate.

Mrs. Greathouse left one half of her estate to Robert Clarence Schenck, in accordance with the request of her son, Clarence Greathouse, who died some years ago in Korea. Mr. Schenck was a paymaster in the United States navy and the son of Casper Schenck, who was a great friend of Clarence Greathouse, and when he died he left a will providing that his estate, at the death of his mother, should go to the son of his friend. Clarence Greathouse, after becoming prominent at Yokohama as United States consul, became the confident adviser to the king of Korea, which position he held at the time of his death in 1899. Robert Clarence Schenck was at Annapolis at the time. The will of Mrs. Greathouse provides for the payment of one half her estate to Mr. Schenck, who is now retired, and the other half to her own kinspeople. She has many relatives scattered throughout the country, and it is the problem of getting them together in order to settle the state that is troubling the attornies. The Greathouse and Schenck families were neighbors in San Francisco. Mr. Schenck is the legatee of the two wills, and is a comparatively young man. He was retired from the navy on account of disabilities.

"My child was burned terribly about the face, neck and chest. I applied Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The pain ceased and the child sank into a restful sleep."—Mrs. Nancy M. Hanson, Hamburg, N. Y.

LEGAL PHASES OF DISCHARGE

Of the Negro Troops Again Brought Before Senate.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The legal phase of President Roosevelt's discharge of the negro troops was again injected into the controversy in the senate yesterday by notice of the amendment to the Foraker compromise resolution, which Senator Blackburn said he should press. Senator Foraker, who concluded his argument at once declared his opposition to the amendment. He discussed the power of the executive, holding that the affray at Brownsville ought to be investigated simply as to the facts and the question of power determined later if it should arise as the result of the inquiry. He reviewed his previous utterances, maintaining the same position in every respect. He replied to arguments which have been made since his first speeches, especially those of Senators Spooner and Knox. He defended the Twenty-fifth infantry, reviewing the "escapades" it is charged with, expressing his astonishment that the record furnished the senate by the war department in this particular was not complete, and stating that in response to his request it had been supplemented by information which was decidedly favorable to the regiment.

Consideration of the resolution was deferred until Monday, at the conclusion of Mr. Foraker's address.

Eulogies of the life and character of the late Senator W. B. Bate of Tennesee were delivered, after which the senate adjourned as a mark of respect to his memory.

NOT DUE TO WEALTH

Is Alliance of Chattanooga Girl With an Italian Count.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 18.—A member of the Italian nobility was not attracted by Miss Mildred Montague on account of her wealth, nor that of her family. This is no case of American millions in exechange for a European title. Count Pasolini, the Florentine noble, will not be perceptibly richer after he becomes a son-in-law of Dwight P. Montague than he is now. If it is a bankrupt house depending upon Tennessee wealth for rehabilitation the count is doomed to disappointment.

D. P. Montague, father of Miss Mildred, whose engagement to Count Pasolini was announced in a cablegram from Florence, Italy, is prominent as a banker and manufacturer, and his financial rating is excellent. However, he is not Chattanooga's wealthiest citizen by any means. The number of millionaires here being very limited, it becomes apparent that the match just announced cannot be from financial motives.

Miss Mildred is tall, of brunette type, and of vivid and charming personality. Mrs. Montague descended from colonial ancestry. Count Pasolini is the son of a senator and well-known historian.

EVEN IN ENGLAND.

The American Beef Trust is Said to Dictate Prices.

London, Jan. 18.—Mr. Lloyd-George's recent reply to W. C. Steadman in the house of commons to the effect that he had received no information of any attempt on the part of the beef trust to capture the wholesale and the retail trade of the United Kingdom and to raise the price of meat to the consumer, and his promise that the matter would be carefully watched, the Daily Telegraph suggests an inquiry as to what are the actual operations of the American beef trust in this country.

The great beef trust which has a reputed capital of over $110,000,000 consists of several well known American firms. All of these firms, according to the Daily Telegraph, have stands at the Smithfield market for instance where the trust is known as the Chicago Packing company and sometimes as "The Great Six." The members of the trust meet every morning at 6 a. m. at the Central market. When this great monopoly was formed each business was valued and the dividend was paid on the valuation of each company at the time of the inauguration of the combine. According to the Daily Telegraph the trust holds some of the best stands as to situation in Smithfield and market experts are aware that enormous sums amounting in some cases to $50,000 and even $100,000 have been paid for the transfer of the good will of these Smithfield stalls. Ostensibly the combine's stands at Smithfield number seven, the rent paid varying from $30 to $80 per week—some of the stands being double—but no one in the market can say just how many nominees the trust has there, so that just how many stands the trust controls out of the 400 at Smithfield it is impossible to tell. The same thing may be said to be true of the other markets.

JURY DISCHARGED.

Unable to Agree in the Puck Damage Case.

Unable to agree on a verdict, after deliberating twenty-four hours, the jury in the damage case of Claus Puck against the street railway company was discharged by Judge Ensign shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Puck attempted to stop a runaway hack team on Superior street, near Second avenue west, some months ago. The team ran into one of the double truck cars going in the opposite direction, and Mr. Puck was thrown against the fender, causing various injuries. He claimed that the motorman did not give a warning signal when approaching the runaway team, that the car was not under control, and that he was rolled under the fender after the collision.

The company claimed that the gong was rung and that the car was brought to a standstill as quickly as possible under the circumstances.

CHRONIC ULCERS

EXTERNAL EVIDENCE OF INTERNAL POISON

Whenever a sore or ulcer refuses to heal, it is a sure sign of a diseased condition of the blood. The sore itself is simply an outside evidence of some internal poison, and the only way to cure it is to remove the deep underlying cause. Sores and Ulcers originate usually from a retention in the system of bodily waste matters and impurities. These should pass off through the natural avenues of waste, but because of a sluggish condition of the different members they are retained in the system to be taken up by the blood. This vital fluid soon becomes unhealthy or diseased, and the skin gives way in some weak place and a Sore or Ulcer is formed. The constant drainage of impurities through a sore causes it to fester, grow red and inflamed and eat deeper into the surrounding flesh, and often there is severe pain and some discharge. S. S. S. is the remedy for Sores and Ulcers.

S.S.S.

PURELY VEGETABLE

It is nature's blood purifier, made entirely of vegetable matter, known to be specifics for all blood diseases and disorders. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, and removes the poison and impure matter, so that the sore is no longer fed with impurities, but is nourished and cleansed with a stream of healthy, rich blood. Then the place begins to heal, new flesh is formed, the inflammation subsides, and when S. S. S. has thoroughly cleansed the circulation the place heals permanently. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired will be sent free to all who write.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Negro Arrested Near the Soo for Murder in Maryland.

Sault Ste. Marie—Charles Carter, colored, wanted at Dorsey, Md., for the alleged murder of Thomas M. Rinhart, has been arrested at a sawmill on the Goulais river. An officer recognized him from a description offering $1,000 reward for his capture. Carter does not want to go back because he fears lynching. The crime was committed on April 7, 1906. He says he came north with a hunting party and got left behind when it returned. He denies the charge against him.

Stephenson—George Tweedy, a 12-year-old Escanaba boy, is regarded as a "wonder," which for his age he certainly is. For several years past he has shown a disposition for circus life. He can perform acrobatic stunts that are truly remarkable, while as a contortionist his work is fully as good as many professionals. His father intends to place him under the care of some famous acrobat, and with careful training it is believed the youngster will develop into one of the stars of the sawdust ring.

St. Ignace—Simon Shunk, living in Soo township, Chippewa county, is building a boat fifty feet in length with a beam of ten feet, in which he expects to take an extended trip during the present year. The craft is constructed of oak plank, each piece of which is selected stock without a knot or other imperfection. Brass nails are used, each of which is riveted on the inside. The motive power will be a 20-horse power gasoline engine, and the estimated speed of the boat is from ten to twelve miles an hour. Besides Mr. Shunk, it is expected that eight other persons will be included in the party. From the Soo the party will go to Chicago by the lakes, then through the Chicago drainage canal to the Mississippi, down the Mississippi to the Gulf, thence to New York and up the Hudson river, taking several months. Those interested in the project are counting on having the time of their lives, and are making preparations in anticipation thereof.

Lake Linden—It was due entirely to his own carelessness that Antone Bukewaz lost his life in the Centennial mine. The fatality of which he was the victim was one of the most peculiar in the history of the copper country. Bukewaz was ready to come to the surface from the thirteenth level of No. 1 shaft, and instead of waiting for the man car, he jumped on a skip and signalled to hoist. He must have fallen to the bottom of the skip. Trammers at the twenty-ninth level were waiting with a car containing five tons of rock, and they signalled the skip to stop at that level. Bukewaz was unnoticed, and the five tons of rock were dumped in upon him. A sad feature of the accident was the fact that one of the trammers was Bukewaz's own brother. The man in the car yelled in pain when the rock struck him, and the trammers instantly realized what had happened. They signalled to hold the hoist, and emptied the skip as fast as possible. Bukewaz was found head downward in the skip. He was dead when brought to surface.

Newberry—State Game Warden Charles H. Chapman of the Soo is continuing preparations for a test wolf hunt which he proposes to have take place some time this winter, probably in February. He is gaining information regarding different varieties of wolf hounds, and will probably bring several of the leading breeders of those dogs to the upper peninsula with some of the best animals from their kennels to take part in the expedition. Mr. Chapman's idea is to make this hunt a test of the ability of the animals against the wolf pest. If they prove a success in these woods and deep snows, as they have in other regions, he believes there will be many men who will embark into the wolf-killing business for profit, because of the heavy bounties, and will secure dogs of their own for that purpose. This idea has been tried in different parts of the West and South, and in some districts hunters are possessed of packs of wolf hounds of their own and are making it a profitable business to rid their localities of wolves.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Business Portion of Little Town of Gackle is Burned.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Fire destroyed the business portion of the little town of Gackle, just across the southern line of Stutsman county, causing thousands of dolars of loss in buildings and merchandise. No one was injured. The fire started in the living rooms over the general store of B. Z. Lyons & Co., and was beyond control when discovered. The flames spread south, destroying the Lehr & Wroll general store and the Gackle bank, the safe of which was injured. Lyons' store was a total loss, but Lehr & Wroll saved part of their stock. The office of the Gackle Republican and the drug store were saved.

Bismarck—The North Dakota Retail Merchants' association elected Charles Full of Pembina, president; B. T. Kraabell, Hope, E. R. Pratt, Cavalier, vice-presidents; W. W. King, Tower City, secretary and treasurer; W. T. Casselman, Bismarck, organizer; William McKinney, Valley City, George H. Wilder, Grand Forks, W. B. Howland, Fargo, W. O. Joos, Wimbledon, executive committee. The next meeting will be held in Devils Lake in July.

The state legislature convened yesterday after a recess of five days. Members have evidently been busy during the recess, as seventeen bills were introduced in the senate and thirty-three in the house. Proposed legislation covers a wide range. Among prominent measures introduced may be included a concurrent resolution by Tufte for a memorial to congress, urging a convention for the adoption of an amendment to the constitution, providing for the election of United States senators by popular vote, two reciprocal demurrage bills, two 2-cent fare bills, and three anti-pass bills, one initiative and referendum bill, an amendment to the prohibition law providing the soliciting of orders for intoxicating liquors, and another making illegal the sale of liquors containing more than 1 per cent of alcohol. One bill prohibits the use of money in corporations. A joint resolution was introduced by Stevens, of Burleigh, appropriating $15,000 for the use of the governor in relieving distress on account of the car and fuel shortage in the unorganized counties in the western part of the state. The resolution met with a very lively opposition, and was finally referred to the appropriations committee, where it may not come to light again.

Dickinson.—The late falls of snow have made ranch conditions rather serious in some localities, and the next few weeks are looked forward to as critical for sheep and cattle raisers. The small raisers who have good shelter and plenty of hay, have little to fear, but there are many growers living out some distance from the railroad who have provided little feed. Snow plows are being used in order to secure grazing for stock, and it is hoped that the weather will not continue severe for any length of time, for if it does there will be considerable loss of stock. The new settlers look upon the present winter conditions as favorable to their interests, for they reason that with heavy falls of snow there will be an abundance of moisture in the spring for crops.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell.—The convention of the South Dakota Retail Merchants' association adjourned yesterday with the election of the following officers: President, A. F. Grim, Parkston; secretary, L. S. Tyler, Sioux Falls; treasurer H. O. Rime, Dell Rapids; vice presidents, G. Mottisadts of Milbank, Ed Oschener of Kimball, L. G. Le Voy of Webster, Robert Sundstrom of Beresford, J. L. Hanson of Canton, D. E. Loftus of De Smet; directors, P. F. Wicklin of Alexandria, A. P. McMillan of Conde, W. H. H. Bunting and L. N. Crill of Elk Point, former Governor A. E. Lee of Vermillion, and T. J. Courheon.

Vermillion.—Funeral services were held over the remains of John Wold at his home in Norway township yesterday, and the body was buried in the cemetery in Norway township. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lambert J. Wold. Mystery surrounds the death of young Wold on the prairies of Stanley county last week. That he took his own life is evident by the finding of a weapon—his own—by his side and a bullet from it in his heart. The real cause of the tragedy is attributed to jealousy. It is said that young Wold was in love with his cousin Edna, and that on several occasions had expressed his infatuation. But his love was not reciprocated.

Aberdeen.—Ira O. Curtiss, attorney for Mrs. Eddins of Groton, held in this city on the charge of arson, and also to give evidence in the case against her husband, charged with embezzlement, should he be captured and returned to this county, announces that a change of venue will be taken because of the high feeling at Groton. Q. T., Van Syke, state attorney, will prosecute the case.

Evarts.—Two Indians named Whiteearth and Codott stole horses from the government barn at the Grand River boarding school, on Standing Rock reservation, and came to Evarts, where they were taken in charge by Sheriff Hoven and lodged in the town jail until the authorities could come for them. Wednesday night they burned out the lock of the jail door with a red-hot poker and made their escape. One was caught, but the other is still at large across the river.

FIRST STEP TAKEN

In a Movement to Reduce Lawmaking to a Science.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 18.—The first step in a movement which, it is expected, will reduce lawmaking to a science, is to be taken by the introduction in the legislature of a bill providing for an annual appropriation of $14,500 for a legislative reference library. The proposed measure has the support of every lawyer in the senate, where the bill is to be introduced.

A part of the appropriation is to be used to defray the expense of having bills drafted for any or all members of the legislature. If the bill passes there will be employed in the legislative library three or four lawyers, whose duty it will be to draft bills. In addition there will be a corps of stenographers, twenty-five in number, and such other help as is deemed necessary.

Each session of the legislature has presented the spectacle of legislators coming to the capitol from the farm, the grocery store and other walks of life, endeavoring to enact into law the will of their constituents. Bills have been so loosely drawn that the legislator often has returned home to find that the courts have not interpreted his measure as he intended, and to find that the laws operate in perhaps the opposite manner to his intent, or that they have been declared unconstitutional.

It is argued for scientific lawmaking that it is cheaper to pass a good bill the first time, even if it is necessary to expend additional sums in supplying competent draftsmen, than it is to call special sessions of the legislature to correct defects in important bills, whose authors have so loosely or carelessly drawn them that their purpose has been defeated and the state deprived of necessary legislation thereby.

BIXBY FACES AN INQUIRY.

President Directs Investigation of Charge Against Former Minnesotan.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A new investigation into Tams Bixby's business relations with certain institutions in the Indian Territory is about to be made, this time by an agent of the department of justice, instead of the interior department.

Marshall L. Mott, attorney for the Creek Indians, who has been trying to get Bixby's scalp for some time, has filed charges which were considered specific enough, and had them placed before the president, who directed an investigation.

Mott's charges, it is understood, are that Bixby's withdrawal from the Canadian Valley Trust company three years ago was merely nominal. He also alleges that Bixby is allowing certain persons to get information from the Dawes commission about land matters, and other persons find it exceedingly hard to get similar information.

It will be recalled that Mott submitted certain allegations along this line to Secretary Hitchcock early in the winter, but the secretary would not consider them because they were not specific enough.

ARM BADLY CUT.

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 18.—Oswald Waber, a young man living near Elysian, had his right arm drawn into a circular saw, the teeth cutting through the muscles of the forearm and one of the bones. Several splinters of the bone were removed from the wound. The doctor thinks that he can save the arm.

THE HALF-FARE REQUEST.

That a strong presentation of the just request of the people of Duluth for half fares for school children will be made before the directors of the traction company at their coming annual meeting in New York is not to be doubted.

Though the citizens generally have been quiet as to the matter for some weeks, this does not mean that they have lost interest in the matter. On the contrary, they are, if possible, more united in its behalf than ever and if the directors shall decline to give heed to the arguments and request of the city council there will be more than disappointment.

Bishop McGolrick, author of the movement, points out that the same traction company that controls the Duluth system has spent great sums of money in St. Paul and Minneapolis for parks and has done nothing of the kind for Duluth. The park movement in the Twin Cities is probably tinged with selfish calculations, and the traction people do not see the advantage to themselves of similar action here.

The request of Duluth, however, is not for parks or other sources of amusement, but for the simple good of the families of the city and for the educational benefit of the children. It is difficult to see on what ground the traction directors could possibly base adverse action.

IS THE SENATE DETERIORATING?

Is the United States senate deteriorating as to the quality of the men now being elected to its august membership? Are there no more "intellectual giants" in the various states? Or have the men of today of that caliber transformed themselves into "captains of industry" or corporation attorneys or railroad magnates and eschewed public life?

Looking over the list of the men elected to the senate during the present week, it certainly seems as if there had been a marked decadence in the grade of statesmen available or men of the high qualifications of those of past generations have not seen fit to enter into the present day squabble for the place or have held their honors too high to buy a seat in the upper house.

Dare any one say that W. Murray Crane, millionaire member of the paper trust, is big enough to fit into the toga of Webster or Sumner? Is William Alden Smith of Michigan of the same class as Cass or Zach Chandler? Can Norris Brown of Nebraska fill Manderson's shoes? Is Simon Guggenheim of Colorado an equal of Chaffee or Wolcott? Will Curtis of Kansas ever be able to make his state as notable as did Ingalls? Can Harry A. Richardson of Delaware be compared to the Bayards or Saulsburys of the days when the little "Blue Hen" state was a mighty power in the nation? Is William F. Frye of Maine of the caliber of Hamlin or Blaine?

To each and all of these questions, the student of political history can return only one answer—and that a negative.

It is but fair to say of some of these, notably Smith of Michigan and Curtis of Kansas, that they have made good records in the house of representatives and may broaden in the upper branch of congress, while several of the others are wholly untried in national public life and may furnish most agreeable surprises. But these things do not detract from the fact that the senate of today is not the body of intellectual and forensic giants it once was.

PASSING OF THE "DEACON."

One of the minor, but none-the-less regrettable, changes that have come over religious society in the last few years is the diminishing prominence and decreasing importance of the old-fashioned deacon. In the smaller towns, where the people are neighborly, the title is so seldom employed, even in addressing the most respected pillar of the biggest local church, as to be almost a subject of comment. In the larger cities, it has practically disappeared along with "parson" and "squire" and "uncle"—possibly never to return to even limited usage, unless by concerted agreement of the church people themselves.

There are still no end of deacons hidden away in the various churches of village, town and city, for the sacred office survives, but no observing person can have failed to notice how remarkably few are real—the old-style deacons—the kind who bore the title proudly and withal, becomingly, who were invariably hailed on street or road with "Good morning, deacon," and who were always referred to in the newspapers as "Deacon Brown" or "Deacon Jones."

But the reason for this is not far to seek. The men who might, under old-time conditions, be fitted, by exceptional social worth and exemplary godliness combined, to wear the title honorably have passed from modern religious life. In their places, have come younger men noted for their business acumen and selected for the places of honor because of their ability to handle the finances of the churches in the most productive manner.

These men are perfectly willing to be known as "The Hon. So-and-So," or to be called "colonel" or "major" or "judge" or "senator," or even "alderman," but they will run away from "deacon" in shame-faced panic. Perhaps, this is because the humorists of a few years ago and the short-story writers of today have invariably depicted the old New England or New York deacon as a leader in church work, but a regular skinflint in worldly affairs—a veritable living embodiment of Dickens' famous character "Pecksniff." Be this as it may, men of the world of today will have none of the title.

That this latter day view of deaconhood that has brought the name into bad odor is wrong and that the great majority of deacons have always been most worthy men and moral bulwarks of religious society, is undoubted. There should be a concerted movement in all of our churches to rehabilitate the deacons and to revive the time-honored title in its pristine glory of dignity, weight and honor. The decline of the deacons has extended altogether too far for the real good of our religious denominations.

SENATOR HOPKINS' THREAT.

Senator Hopkins of Illinois—a statesman, by the way, of about as near the peanut caliber as any in public life today—threatens to "talk the rivers and harbors bill to death" unless there shall be included in that measure of vast importance to all sections of the country along the sea coast and the Great Lakes, a clause providing liberally for Illinois' pet scheme for a deep waterway project from Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico.

It would be hard to believe that such a threat, which savors strongly of the legislative sand-bagging variety, could be made by a United States senator from the great state of Illinois, were it not that precisely similar methods have been adopted with success in the past.

Here is a congress not yet convinced as to the feasibility or justice of a scheme, involving about $80,000,000 that, expert engineers declare, will do irretrievable harm to the Great Lakes by diverting the flow of an immense volume of water and, because that congress does not want to commit the future to a problematical project, one of its members threatens to hold back absolutely needed improvements to rivers and harbors all over the United States for at least a year.

There is small excuse for Senator Hopkins either to obstruct a really meritorious bill or to defeat it because he cannot get what he wants in the way of millions on millions for what the backers of the project itself have failed so far to convince, not only the people of the United States but of Canada, will not be far more deleterious than beneficial. Until these backers can make out a strong case, it would be the part of commonsense for Mr. Hopkins to let the main bill alone.

BOYS IN MEN'S PLACES.

Boys are excellent things in their way, because they may make men that will be honors to their states and because they are often capable of fitting into places such as full-grown men would scorn. But boys have their proper places and, as recent disasters on at least three railroads have shown, positions of responsibility, involving the fates of hundreds of precious lives, are not within their scope.

It may be true to a degree, as the railroads claim, that the posts of operators at such places as Terra Cotta, D. C., Lawyer's, Va., or Volland, Kan., are of too little importance ordinarily to justify them in employing men at men's salaries. But the days did come when the boys placed on duty at those places became responsible for over sixty deaths at Terra Cotta, thirty-five at Volland and the very president of the road itself at Lawyer's. And no railroad man can say at what moment an equally insignificant place may not leap into national importance as the result of the error or loss of presence of mind or carelessness of some other boy operator.

This is not saying that boys, ambitious to learn the business, should not be allowed to become railroad operators, but they should not be given sole charge over the movements of trains, especially those freighted with human lives. If the railroads themselves are too short-sighted or indifferent to attend to the matter themselves, there should be legislation in each state compelling the systems to put competent and experienced men in charge of all stations, even the so-called sidetrack points, so that the danger of disaster may be lessened, in these days of rushing, headlong speed, by that much at least.

THE PASSING SHOW.

A New York man, 94 years old, has offered to sell himself for $50. What is the latest quotation on legislators?

* * *

Many trains are reported lost in the blizzard-swept Northwest. This probably is true but many people will believe, nevertheless, that it is only a new form of excuse for car shortage.

* * *

Of 10,000 children put to the test in the Brooklyn public schools, only 100 wrote the words of "The Star Spangled Banner" correctly. Cannot the children of Duluth do better than that?

* * *

An expedition has been sent to China to search for rare birds. Why not have an expedition instead to search for the legislator who has no pass? Surely such an one is the rarest of "rare birds."

* * *

E. H. Harriman was the fourth son of a hard-working, poorly-paid, classics-loving Episcopal clergyman. Surely his early education was not responsible for his later utter disregard of "meum and teum."

* * *

The doctors of Buffalo are being blamed for themselves spreading the measles now epidemic there. Will they go into the quarantine they enforce against others or how will they get around the quarantine law they themselves inspired?

* * *

Three multi-millionaires of Rhode Island are engaged in a regular Kilkenny cat fight for the junior senatorship. If there were any seekers after yellow back nest feathers in Little Rhodey—which, of course, there are not, what rare pickings there would be.

* * *

The national geological survey declares that there is enough coal in this country to supply all the people for thousands of years. The sufferers in the Northwest and various other sections would like to get even a moderate amount this winter and would gladly let the people of 3007 look out for themselves.

* * *

Red snow, poetically called "a crimson blanket," is reported to have fallen on lofty ranges of the Rocky Mountains near Glacier, British Columbia, and to be held to be a portent of impending dire disaster. Possibly, the railroad magnates will attribute the next railroad disaster to the malign influence of that red snow.

* * *

The Democrats of the Minnesota legislature could not have made a more pleasing selection for the honor of minority candidate for United States senator than State Senator Schaller. He is popular not only in his own district but all over the state, is a veteran in legislative service and for years has stood unwaveringly for the best Democratic principles.

* * *

The fact that the San Francisco disaster refugees at Los Angeles have not decreased perceptibly in numbers though that disaster occurred eight months ago, makes one ask whether, on the one side, ne'er-do-wells are not riding a good gift horse to death and, on the other, whether the Los Angeles people are not entitled to leather medals with the word "sucker" burned into them.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"All along the boundary between the United States and Canada are what are known as international stores," said T. T. Greene of Spokane, Wash., at the St. Louis. "Most of them are maintained with the intention of evading the laws of both countries, especially in the sale of spirituous liquors. One of the most noted of these is located near Fort Covington.

"The boundary line runs diagonally through the store and splits the bar in half. When a customer appears the bartender sets the bottle on his side of the boundary line, and the patron draws it across the counter, thereby taking it out of the country, which relieves the bartender of any fault.

"The proprietor of this place is a genial fellow who has been conducting his business for twenty years without interruption. In order to make a conviction, the government making the prosecution must have an accurate survey made, and prove beyond a doubt just where each bottle was placed, and where each man stood. This is almost an impossibility.

"The goods on the shelves of the store are kept on the side belonging to the country where they are bought. In the course of a day, hundreds of dollars' worth of merchandise is disposed of, part from Canada and part from the United States. The proprietor commands a large trade and secures a greater profit than ordinary merchants doing business on either side of the line. He does not insist on his customers telling him where they are from, merely requiring that they pay cash and take their purchases away with them.

"Little attempt is made by the officials to stop the traffic, for the reason that it is practically impossible to prove just where and when the goods were bought. A variation of one or two inches where the customer was standing would change the whole status of any given case. However, there was one occasion where the Canadian government secured a conviction. A careless clerk left a can of American spices on the Canadian side of the counter for a minute while he turned his back to give his attention to something else. Just then a Canadian customs officer happened in and found the dutiable goods on the queen's domain. For this one instance of carelessness on the part of the clerk, the proprietor had to pay a fine of $25."

"Snow conditions along the railroads in the West are the worst in history, said Christ Ulsrud of Minneapolis, at the St. Louis. "Engines by the score, and any number of cars, are stalled in the drifts through the Dakotas, with small chance of getting them back into the services for weeks. Several of these engines are useless, and will not be good for actual service until they have visited the repair shops. In various small towns through the Dakotas one may see these locomotives in some instances as high as four or five being tied up in one town.

"Hundreds of cars, some of the empty and some loaded with grain and other freights, are tied up on the sidings, and they may have to remain there until spring. A small army of men is at work shoveling snow, but there is so much to be gotten out of the way that they are not making very rapid progress. In some places the snow is so deep that the plows are useless until the drifts have been cut down to a certain extent by the shovelers.

"This condition of affairs makes it bad for the farmers as well as the railroads and traveling public. Those of the tillers of the soil who have not yet marketed their grain have to dispose of their crop at reduced prices. The elevator companies are taking advantage of the state of affairs to cut the prices. They realize that the grain will be worth less in the spring and that there will be a large quantity of it on the ground which they will be able to pick up cheaply. They are cutting 10 to 15 cents on the price of each bushel, and the farmers have to take that or hold their grain for a better price. Most of them lack the storage facilities to do this.

"The passenger train service is practically at a stand still. It took one train four days to go 400 miles, and there are many similar instances."

—F. L. STANTON in Atlanta Constitution.

Father Not "Too Previous."

Yonkers Statesman: She—What was father speaking to you about?

He—Oh, he was asking me my intentions.

"He was? Well, I declare I think father's rather previous!"

"Oh, no! You see, I borrowed $5 from him about six months ago, and he wanted to know when he might expect it."

THE WEATHER.

Quite a dense early morning fog, with a slow, lazy snow following and the temperature not at all sharp, hardly fulfilled the promise of the weather clerk for today. But the sample of midwinter weather that was presented to the people was far from unsatisfactory, and the streets presented quite a busy appearance all day. That this city may, however, expect another touch of real winter in a day or so, reports from the Dakotas indicate most strongly. This is to be expected at this season, and no one should find in it cause for grumbling. Last night's lowest temperature was 4 degs. and yesterday's highest was 14 degs.—both above zero. The weather man promises snow flurries tonight and tomorrow, with easterly winds and mild temperature.

The sun set at 4:59 o'clock this afternoon and will rise at 7:47 o'clock tomorrow morning—a gain of a minute on each end of the day.

A year ago today, following a short, sharp blizzard of the preceding day, the weather was sharp, the streets were covered with snow, and even the sun seemed chilly.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The slight barometric pressure central Thursday morning over the Ohio valley caused further rain or snow in the lake region, Ohio and Middle Mississippi valleys, augmenting the flood stages in the river districts. A disturbance is developing in Alberta. It has caused milder weather over the Eastern slopes and Far Northwest and rain in all sections west of the Rocky mountains. Zero temperatures continue in the Northwest, ranging from zero to 15 degs. below in the Dakotas, Montana and Canadian border provinces, while in the northern parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan temperatures from 20 to 30 degs. below occurred this morning. Snow flurries, easterly winds and rather mild temperatures are indicated for this locality tonight and Saturday."

Following were last night's temperatures, as recorded by the weather bureau:

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

Philadelphia Ledger: "We don't lynch a man often, anyhow," remarked the visitor from Iowa.

"Neither do we," volunteered the man with the Southern accent; "never in fact, but once."

Chicago Tribune: "I can't do anything for you, Grogan. If you want to get that job you'll have to see Casey."

"Casey? Has he the influoence?"

"Has he? He is!"

Philadelphia Press: "Of all the stingy men Kloseman is certainly the worst—"

"Yes, there's nothing mean about him."

"Nothing mean about him?"

"No, he's an extremist in that particular."

Washington Star: "What do you think of my presidential boom?"

"It's too early," answered Senator Sorghum. "You won't even be one of those who also ran. You'll merely be one of those previously mentioned."

Chicago Tribune: The Doctor—The railroads are complaining that whenever a carload of coal is looted by some suffering community in the Northwest the loss falls on them alone.

The Professor—Yes, I have heard before of the coal losses of roads.

Washington Herald: Howells—After all, it's the wise man who can change his opinion.

Growells—Aa! but the really wise men simply can't do it.

Howells—Why not?

Growells—Because they've been dead for years.

Baltimore American: "I am going to railroad this case through the courts," declared the indignant citizen.

"You can't," replied the astute lawyer. "The block system works too perfectly there."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I think we had better attack them on the left flank, general."

"No, captain, the moving picture machine will catch us better on the right."

Philadelphia Press: "Gracious!" exclaimed the minister's wife. "I never saw the boys in this neighborhood fighting so much before. There are two of them at it now, and I'm sure they're members of our Sunday school."

"Ah!" replied her husband, "perhaps that accounts for it. Last Sunday's lesson was about David and Goliath."

Russell Must Hustle.

Kansas City Star: Russell Meals and Lillie Briscoe of Carlo, Randolph county, were married Christmas. Now it is a case of rustle meals for two.

Tart.

A tar bought two tarts from a Tartar,
Said the tar to the Tartar: "Too tart are These tarts. Now, a tart
Made out of cream o' tart—"
But "Ta ta!" to the tar said the Tartar.
—Baltimore Sun.

Work.

Atlanta Georgian: Most of us work hard enough, but too many of us work hardest trying to keep from working.

Chance for the President.

Louisville Courier-Journal: For the benefit of those who are wondering what Theodore Roosevelt should do when his term expires it might be suggested that he open a correspondence school.

Short On Small Bills.

Hubbard County Clipper: Secretary of the Treasury Shaw says he notices a scarcity of small bills. Same here. Plenty of large bills, of course, but can't get change. Very provoking.

No Set-Back For Milaca.

Milaca Times: The burned district of Milaca will be rebuilt better than ever and Milaca will continue to prosper. It is the history of all towns.

Mrs. Sage's Gratefulness.

Washington Star: Mrs. Russell Sage enjoys feeding the squirrels in the park. She is probably grateful for them not worrying her with begging letters.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

H. P. Brown, the West end operator and ticket agent for the St. Paul & Duluth road, left last night for a short visit to his old home in Watertown, Wis. In his absence, Thomas Davison, the night operator, will fill Brown's place, and J. R. Chenewet, formerly night operator at Kettle River, will act as night operator here.

Tim Ryan, a former resident of the West end, received a serious injury while at work in the C. N. Nelson company's mill at Cloquet. A small piece of steel flew from a part of the machinery where he was at work and struck him in the ball of the eye and lodged there. The splinter was immediately removed by a fellow workman, and he came to Duluth to obtain surgical aid.

In the senate at St. Paul today, the vote on United States senator resulted: C. K. Davis, 33; Michael Doran, 14. In the house: Davis, 70; Doran, 26.

At St. Paul this morning the thermometer registered 36 degs. below zero at 5 o'clock, and 31 degs. below at 7 o'clock.

J. H. Hoopes, appointed to the office of surveyor general of logs for the Stillwater district, is in the city.

E. B. Banks of this city is superintending engineer of the Duluth & Manitoba railway, with headquarters at Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Col. Lounsberry of the News has so far recovered from his recent mishap as to be able to take the train today for St. Paul, where he will assume the duties of clerk of the insurance committee.

Hon. Hank Smith, he of the famous laugh, who now occupies a seat in the state legislature from Pine county, daily reports himself in the Capital city attired in a stunning toboggan suit. He was heard to remark recently that he was willing to wear it anywhere except to Duluth. Hank has been here before.

The Warner & Hough Machine company of St. Paul will remove its entire plant, consisting of steam forge, foundry and machine shops, to Duluth, if some inducement is offered.

It is said that negotiations are now pending for the purchase by the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic of water front in Duluth, with a view of constructing the most elaborate system of dockage on the lakes.

William Patterson returned last night from a camp of Bradley, Hanford & Co., about five miles from Agate bay, having been struck in the neck by a falling tree. His injuries are not serious.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Carleton County Vidette: Some of the legislators are already scared of their jobs and are sending back their railroad passes.

Hibbing Tribune: Just for harmony's sake Lieutenant Governor Eberhart ought to resign and let some Johnson take his place.

Mankato Free Press: The state legislators appear to be starting in all right, but what will be their finish?

Floodwood Broadaxe: A 2-cent fare and no passes should be the slogan.

Minneota Mascot: If the present legislature can do something practical for the good roads movement it will earn the approbation of the people and incidentally may thereby cover a multitude of sins.

St. Hilaire Spectator: No wonder there is a shortage. Count the wrecks!

Austin Register: We have been improving our roads with promises and paving our streets with good intentions long enough. During the coming season let us have something of a more permanent character.

Itasca News: Members of the legislature might save time by doing nothing that requires explanation. The people of Minnesota, especially the northern part, know what they want and most of them know what, if anything, will prevent them from getting it.

Wilkin County Gazette: The thirty-fifth session of the Minnesota legislature began at noon on Tuesday. Up this way the mercury took a tumble about that time and has been going down ever since.

Littlefork Times: There were eighteen candidates from Koochiching county and one from Cass county for the same office, and the Cass county man got it. Very bright set of county commissioners.

Eveleth News: The loggers are not praying for any more snow—not just now.

Oslo Tribune: All knockers on home institutions or home organizations should betake themselves to the land from whence they came, and thus do a great service to the welfare of the town.

Wed on Constitution.

New York Times: John Herman Wirsching of 167 Newark avenue, Jersey City, who is a collector for a Manhattan banking firm, and Anna E. Lockhardt of 220 Mercer street, Jersey City, were married by Justice of the Peace Charles C. Sweeney, a rather novel request was made of the judge by the couple.

"We have always believed in the constitution of the United States," said Wirsching, "and think every American citizen should stand on it. We will always stand on it and to prove this, if you will please get a copy of the constitution we will stand on it while you perform our marriage ceremony."

The judge appeared surprised, but went to his library and brought forth an engrossed copy of the constitution, on which the couple stood until they were pronounced man and wife.

Mrs. Wirschling is said to be a relative of Col. Brockhardt, the animal trainer.

My Precious One.

My love she is the fairest,
The sweetest and the rarest!
I would die beneath her frown,
She's the dearest thing in town.
She's a woman in a thousand—
Dollar gown.

How I love her who can tell?
I'm enchanted by her spell.
My passion none condemns,
My ardor nothing stems.
She's a woman in ten thousand—
Dollar gems.

That she lives, sweet heaven I bless;
And I long for her dear "Yes"
How she shines above the mass,
My most fascinating lass,
She's a woman in a million—
Dollar class!
—New York Times.

Rollicking.

Why certain, of course, dear,
I'll tote you a while
A-pick-a-pack; dearie,
Come up now and I'll Go galloping here and
Go galloping there,
And you can hold fast
If you wish to my hair;
Or I will get down
On my hands and my knees,
When you give the word
It's a go-as-you-please.

It's a go-as-you-please,
This life is, for you,
A path all be-blossomed
With roses and dew,
With a dad you can love
And can coax and can tease,
Till he grabs you and lifts you
Right up on his knees,
Or up on his shoulder,
And gallops with you,
And who feels repaid
By a giggle or two.

Come, hop up! Come on, now!
I'll toss you up high
And gallop you, dear,
Till your yellow curls fly
This way and that way, and
Are tousled and down;
Oh, this is the way that
The horses down town
Go gallop-galumphing
That way and now this;
Now pay your fare, lassie,
A hug and a kiss.
—J. M. LEWIS in Houston Post.

Letting Prosperity Down.

Portland Telegram: Having chased prosperity up the Christmas tree, we can now back off and let him get down for another year's stunt.

Like Missouri Mules.

St. Joseph Gazette: There are many people in this world who are a good deal like the Missouri mule—always have a big kick coming.

Never Satisfied.

Louisville Courier Journal: Archduke Leopold Salvator has sued for divorce because his wife has joined a back-to-nature colony and refuses to wear anything more elaborate than two yards of burlap. Some men would be dissatisfied if it rained manna instead of New Year bills.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Stillwater Gazette: You can't lose Duluth. Winnipeg reports an invasion of her limits by wolves and lynx and so does Saskatoon. The animals have been driven to seek food through the scarcity of rabbits and deer in the Canadian country. But Duluth has 'em too, a dispatch from there stating that driven in by hunger five gaunt grey wolves promenaded up and down the ice in front of the city until they were driven away by workmen.

Littlefork Times: Duluth citizens are divided on the question of where the harbor appropriation will be spent. They could adjust the matter by spending it in improving navigation on the Big and Little Fork rivers.

Fergus Globe: When I suggested the erecting of a farming implement factory by the state of Minnesota, it was for the purpose of breaking the implement trusts. Such a factory will employ thousands of men, and should be located near the iron and at a point most accessible to the coal supply. Duluth is the place.

Itasca County Independent: The readers of the Duluth Herald can congratulate themselves on the legislative news they will get in the Herald. Stillman H. Bingham, who is one of the best at that business, and who does not mince matters in his reports is keeping the Herald in touch with the legislature, and, we know of no more interesting reports of the work of the solons than the Herald's.

Eveleth News: After division comes the spoils and in the case of the new county of Koochiching. International Falls gobbled ten of the fourteen offices. The "hog it all" game, it seems, is not patented by Duluth.

Border Budget: The new county attorney of St. Louis county promises to exterminate the blind pigs. If they are as numerous everywhere in the county as they are along the western border he cannot figure on doing much of anything else.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Sometimes women play cards at a card party if there is nothing to talk about.

A woman seems to be afraid that if she wears anything on her feet and chest she might catch cold.

The more a man curls his mustache the more he seems to think it takes the place of brains.

The reason a girl can fool her mother so easily is her mother used to do the same things herself.

To a woman it would hardly seem like being married unless she worried over whether her husband wore warm enough flannels.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Other men's ideals are not always square deals.

Poets are born, but good husbands are made.

Opportunity does'nt bother men who take beauty sleeps.

Unless a man has money he can't afford to be eccentric.

This is the glorious season when a scent's worth of flowers costs a dollar.

A woman doesn't greatly object to confessing her age if she doesn't look it.

One man never sneers at another unless some woman is at the bottom of it.

Mr. R's New Vest.

Boston Post: Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt made her husband a vest with her own hands as a Christmas gift.—News item.

The President—It is beautiful, dear, beautiful! And what a lot of work a vest such as this represents!

Mrs. Roosevelt—Yes, but all the time I was making it I felt thankful for one thing.

The President—And that?

Mrs. Roosevelt—That you were not Secretary Taft.

(Loud laughter in the White House.)

His Shot Was Costly.

Los Angeles Times: A hunter in Colorado shot a laying hen and the owner has sued him for $500 damages. He will doubtless win the suit. A hen that can lay eggs these days is worth $500.

Congress' Opportunity.

St. Louis Globe Democrat: If congress would do something to relieve the car shortage and make the price of eggs nonprohibitive the public might consent to an increase of salary for service at Washington.

Knows New York's Need.

Omaha World-Herald: If there was any doubt that Governor Hughes understood the needs of New York it was set at rest when he recommended the building of a new state prison as soon as possible.

MARRY AS RESULT OF DARE.

Divorce Application Filed in Union of Less Than Month.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, Jan. 18.—"Marry in haste and repent at your leisure" has not been the case with John A. Inman of this city, for he married in haste and was almost equally hasty to file his application for a divorce.

On Dec. 29 there appeared at a local theater a troupe playing "The Show Girl," and among those in the chorus was a petite brunet who caught the eye of Inman. He secured an introduction and after the show took her to supper. On Dec. 31 they appeared before a justice and were married. The marriage was the result of a dare.

"Let's get married," he suggested.

"You're not game enough," she replied.

"You can't beat me to it," he answered.

In his petition Inman says he was intoxicated and had no recollection of what took place. His wife's name was Mary Monte.

THE CHINESE OF LONDON

Their "Town" is Gradually Extending the Limits of Area.

Opium Smoking and Gambling Are Their Chief Pastimes.

London, Jan. 18.—England like the United States and the Transvaal has its Chinese problem. Even in the East end of London a Chinese colony has taken root and is gradually extending its area.

At present it is true the Chinatown of the East end is almost a microscopic affair, chiefly confined to Limehouse Causeway, a narrow street running from West India Dock road to Three Colt lane. Altogether there are about a dozen cook shops, clothes shops, boarding houses and laundries kept by Chinamen who have married English wives.

The resident Chinese population does not number more than 100, but there is a floating population of sailors, sailors cooks, stewards and firemen of whom about 300 pass through London in a year.

Opium smoking and gambling largely occupy the time of many of the floating Chinese population. Out of 100 Chinamen, about thirty are addicted to the use of opium, and there are several opium shops where smokers indulge in the fatal pipe.

The colony does not yet include any Chinese women. The Chinamen seem to prefer English wives, and up to the present time their children have been allowed to go to the council schools, like other little Londoners. The troubles which have perplexed San Francisco in the matter of schools for Orientals have not arisen here as yet.

Exposures regarding the viciousness of Liverpool's Chinatown have already caused widespread indignation. Official efforts have been made to gloss over the revelations, but they have failed in their object. Several public men who have traveled in America have declared emphatically that the Chinese populations of New York and San Francisco do not enjoy as great freedom in vice and debauchery as do the Chinese of Liverpool. The most outspoken of these critics is Councilor Sexton, who has asserted that the decoying of young English girls by the Chinamen of the city is as common as their gambling or their opium smoking.

For some time past rumors have been afloat as to the discovery of a gold field in England, within twenty miles of London. It has been stated in whispers that the reef is thirty-one miles long and presents the same characteristics os the Rand reef. All the secrecy which has been observed has been attributed to the fact that those interested have not yet secured all the options required.

It is now possible to state that a syndicate exists which firmly believes in the discovery. The policy of the directors of the syndicate is to keep the whereabouts of the reef a secret for the present. It is even declared that some of the directors do not know the whereabouts of the reef. Samples of the gold taken from the reef, it has been explained, have been submitted to an expert, who, in ignorance of their true source, pronounced them as probably having been obtained from the Rand. It is explained that the ore is low grade, but it is believed that it will prove immensely profitable.

Miss Annie Persen, the young and pretty Swede who has been the heroine of love and adventure, has an interesting story to tell in this connection. Miss Persen sailed from Liverpool about a month ago to marry Paul B. Jordland, a wealthy timber merchant of Portland, Or., but although she had lived in Portland for fifteen years and had only been absent from America for a visit to her friends in Sweden before her marriage, she was not allowed to land in New York as she was declared to be suffering from trachoma.

Mr. Jordland raced across the American continent from Portland to New York, but could not catch the steamer before the immigration authorities had banished Miss Persen. He, however, followed his fiancee across the water and they are to be married at once.

Miss Persen's story of the incident is interesting:

"It has been a great disappointment to me, but now that my future husband is here I do not mind it any more. I have always enjoyed the best of health, and was never told when leaving America, or on returning from England, that there was anything the matter with me, but on my arrival at New York the immigration authorities after examining my eyes declared that I was suffering with trachoma.

"Although I told them that I had been so long in America and was about to marry an American citizen they declined to permit me to land. I thereupon sent a telegram to my intended husband and he replied that he would join me and that we could be married in Europe if they would not permit us to be married in the United States.

"The train of my lover was delayed and yet just as I caught sight of him on the wharf the boat sailed away. I waved my handkerchief, and he saw me. Then he disappeared and we began to sail away I felt as though my heart would break. Ten minutes afterwards a tug boat came after us and hailed the ship and there I again espied my intended. But all of his plans had been taken for nothing because the regulations would not allow him to be taken on the ship. He shouted to me to cheer up and that he would join me as soon as he could catch up with me. One of the funniest things in connection with the affair was that some of the young men on board the steamer got an idea that I had been jilted and I received quite a number of offers of marriage during the voyage."

As in New York so a wave of influenza is sweeping over London. Interviewed upon this subject Sir William Broadbent said:

"From the time of the first invasion of influenza the best remedy I have found to be quinine. My usual prescription has been one drachm of ammoniated quinine and two drachms of ammoniae acetatis every hour for three hours, and then every four hours. In the fulminating attacks of influenza in which the patient has become comatose, hydro-bromate of quinine, given hypodermically in large doses has completely relieved the unconsciousness.

"As a prophylactic I early ordered two grains of quinine every morning during the prevalence of the epidemic and the result appeared to be good. Of course patients who were taking quinine occasionally did get influenza, but I have known many instances in which this dose has made a complete difference in the patient's liability to infection and even in the general mode of life."

SHAWNEETOWN IN GREAT DANGER

Governor Deneen at Chicago by long distance telephone, and he at once directed that Adjt. Gen. Scott send a supply of tents for the relief of the flood sufferers. Action was prompt, and at noon today Gen. Scott had 100 tents on their way to Shawneetown, over the Baltimore & Ohio. These tents will reach Shawneetown about noon tomorrow.

Later advices from Shawneetown say that a flood stage of fifty feet is looked for by tomorrow, with no probability of the river stopping at that point. The high water mark of 1898, when so much damage was done was fifty-three feet.

Company F of the Fourth regiment, Illinois National Guard, located at Mount Vernon, about seventy-five miles from Shawneetown, will be telegraphed to by Adjt. Gen. Scott, this afternoon, to hold itself in readiness for possible service at Shawneetown.

Cincinnati, Jan. 18.—Flood conditions continued to grow worse today. At 7 o'clock this morning the stage in this city was 59.5 feet and rising. Every hour added materially to the flooded area and the suffering among the residents of the lower sections of this city and the Kentucky suburbs was great. Street and railroad car service was badly crippled, many electric lines having impassable gaps several blocks long and improvised trains for transfer arrangement were inadequate. There was no indication of immediate relief from up the river, although some of the tributaries of the Ohio were reported as falling. The colder weather, which has been looked for to stop the rising, did not materialize, but a heavy rain was falling this morning, adding greatly to the discomfort of those who had been driven from their homes and increasing the damage to property in process of removal from river front cellars.

At noon the sixty-foot stage in the river here had been reached, and the river was still rising. Reports of suffering continue to come in during the day from towns along the river, both above and below the city. The town of New Richmond, Ohio, was reported floodbound today, nearly all the houses in the place being submerged, and the people have been compelled to move into the second stories, or else vacate their homes entirely. Forecaster Bassler of the weather bureau today said that the rise continues from Parkersburg down the Ohio, the river being eleven feet above flood line at Point Pleasant, and ten feet above at Cincinnati. At all other points in the Cincinnati river district the stages are five feet above flood line. He says the river will probably reach sixty-two feet here by Saturday, and that the prospect for more rain adds more gloom to the situation.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 18.—The rivers are again at a flood stage and with the water rising at the rate of three-tenths of a foot an hour, the danger line will probably be passed before evening. Reports from up-river points, however, indicate that the flood will not reach serious proportions and the stage may not exceed twenty-three feet. The Allegheny river is falling at the head waters, but the Monongahela is still rising at all points.

Brownsville has thirty-four feet of water on the marks and rising two inches an hour. Half the houses in West Brownsville are said to be submerged. Elizabeth and West Elizabeth are also partly inundated. Many of the residents remained up all night preparing for the flood.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 18.—In his official statement on river conditions, today, District Forecast Official Walso says:

"More or less heavy rains have continued the past thirty-four hours over the Ohio valley and the upper watershed. Quite heavy rains are reported from the Kentucky river section and these rains will, of course, augment the flood wave now crowding the Ohio. There has been a rise of from three to four feet during the past twenty-four hours in the river from Pittsburg to Louisville and the river will continue rising steadily for the next several days. Conditions indicate a stage of thirty-six feet, if not more, at Louisville, and fifty-four feet at Madison, Ind., by Saturday night or Sunday."

The Ohio at Louisville rose nearly two feet during the night and is coming up steadily. There has been no serious damage in the business district but a large number of mercantile houses have been compelled to remove stocks and many of them worked a double force during the night to save their goods. Nearly one inch of rain fell between midnight and 10 o'clock this morning, and rain is forecasted for the next thirty-six hours.

Ironton, Ohio, Jan. 18.—One hundred families have now been driven out of their homes by the flood. The river is fifty-five feet and rising an inch and a half an hour.

Marinetta, Ohio, Jan. 18.—The river today reached 37.7 feet but is falling slowly. A second rise is expected, however, as the river is rising at all points on the Muskingum and at all points below Ohio. It is raining hard today.

Pittsburg, Jan. 18.—A gradual fall in the Allegheny river during the past twenty-four hours has greatly improved the situation at Springdale. The water has ceased to flow over the dam and is now passing down at either end of it. This will enable the dynamite experts to determine where to place their shots and the next attempt to open a channel in the center of the dam should be successful.

Since 5 o'clock last night but two feet of the break has been carried off and little damage has been done to the threatened property. While the danger is still great the worst appears to be over.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 18.—Flood conditions continue all over Eastern Kentucky today. Heavy rains are falling and the Licking, Big Sandy, Kentucky and Red rivers have all overflowed their banks. Many small towns have been inundated, the inhabitants leaving their houses in boats. Thousands of logs on the rivers have been lost in the floods. The loss in Western Kentucky will reach $500,000.

Lousiville, Jan. 18.—A dispatch at 11 o'clock this morning from Jackson, Ky., says the Kentucky river has risen eighteen feet, there during the present rise. The stream passes through Frankfort and empties into the Ohio at Carrolton, Ky., fifty miles above here.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Jan. 18.—The river has exceeded fifty-seven feet here and is now rising two inches per hour. The water is encroaching on portions of the business and residence districts and hundreds are preparing to move. Nearly 1,000 people have been driven to shelter in schools and vacant buildings.

Fears that it will be necessary to open the flood gates have caused great excitement.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"A Poor Relation."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.
BIJOU—Vaudeville.

"A POOR RELATION."

The attraction at the Lyceum tonight will be that unique and genial character study "A Poor Relation," rendered famous by Sol Smith Russell. Nothing else that Mr. Russel ever did in a field of eccentric impersonations, so endeared him to the public as his delineation of Noah Vale, the poor inventor whose heart was as big as his body, even though his purse was empty, cheated as he was out of the fruits of his labor.

The story of the drama, dealing with the theft by the villain of the inventor's plans of a mechanical design destined to eventually make him wealthy, is skillfully and absorbingly told. Romance is woven into the tale, which ends happily with the ultimate recovery of the stolen goods and the final triumph of Noah Vale, who realizes the good fortune his own brains and inventive genius have earned and who wins the girl he loves.

HAS CHARM ALL HER OWN.

Murat Halstead had the following to say of Mrs. Isabel Garghill Beecher, who will be heard in the Star Lecture Course Tuesday evening:

"I have had the satisfaction of hearing Isabel Garghill Beecher recite before a vast Chautauqua assembly selections of the liveliest humor and deepest pathos, and there was an easy command of the immense audience in her voice, and her grace and brilliant but sober force and simplicity of art made up a fascinating picture and performance rare and radiant. She is attractively dramatic without being theatrical, and in every style of story there is a charm all her own."

THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN.

"The County Chairman" which comes to the Lyceum Saturday, has become one of the favorite comedies of the country. The homely wit and breezy characters of this play make it one long to be remembered.

The scenes are laid in Indiana, but the hamlet pictured, Antioch, might be in the Far West, the South or the North or whatever the spectator's childhood home happened to be, for the various personages of the play are sure to make one reminiscent. Mr. Ade's play is a satire, but the satire is always tempered with kind lines. Everyone who has lived in the country will recognize at a glance the minute details of the author's creation; the strong and often broadly drawn characters, which, while grotesque, are really human personages. The fact that Mr. Ade passed his early life in a small community gives him the power to picture with such a facile pen the peculiarities and oddities of the village folk.

The story of the play, has as its central figure, Jim Hackler, the county chairman, who dominates every scene with his rugged presence. He is the past master of all the ins and outs of politics in his section. Incidentally he helps in the development of the pretty love story that prevades the piece.

WRESTLING AND BRULESQUE.

The entertainment given by the London Gaiety Girls at the Metropolitan this evening will be considerably enlivened by a wrestling match between Zootes and Milton. This will in no wise mean the cutting of the regular performance, which has made a substantial hit with patrons of the Metropolitan this week. The company will give the last matinee of its engagement tomorrow.

Acts Promptly on the Kidneys and Bladder and Anyone Can Prepare.

Cut this out and put in some safe place, for it is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple, and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at every good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is: Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It clenses these sponge-like organs and gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, relieving the worst forms of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood.

As you or anyone in your family, especially the old folks, may be attacked at any time it would be wise to cut this out and save it.

FREE MAIL DELIVERY

Wanted by Some at Eveleth While Others Are Opposed.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question of free mail delivery is being agitated in this city as it is almost certain the revenue of the postoffice for the year ending March 1 will be sufficient to admit of free delivery being secured if the citizens desire it. The matter was brought up at the last session of the city council, but as on former occasions a strong undercurrent of opposition to the idea seemed to be manifest. Some of the arguments that are brought forward by those opposing the carrier system are that the merchants would lose considerable trade if the people did not have to come downtown for the mail twice a day as at present; that the 2-cent rate for drop letters would mean considerable to those who send out a large number of monthly statements; and that the train service here is such that free delivery would be impractable.

Mails now arrive here about noon and at 7 o'clock in the evening. This would mean that morning mail could not be delivered until afternoon and the evening mail, especially the evening papers, would have to lie in the postoffice until the next morning.

Those who favor free delivery admit that the last is a rather serious objection, but think that, if the range towns really desired it, the railroads would change their schedules so that this difficulty might be largely overcome. The other objections are met by saying that the 2-cent drop letter rule would affect only a small number, and that the merchant who depends on trade that just happens to come in is not worthy of consideration. Moreover, they cannot see that conditions here are any different than in other places nearby where free delivery has proven to be a great convenience. Just what will be the outcome of the controversy it is impossible to foretell as no one seems to know the strength of the opposition.

LAFE YOUNG LOSES SUIT.

Iowa Supreme Court Says He Overcharged for Printing.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 18.—The supreme court yesterday held against Lafe Young in the bindery cases which have been matters of public gossip for several years.

Young was sued five years ago by the state for alleged overcharges amounting to $4,700, made while he was state binder.

State Secretary George L. Dobson, who ordered the work, stood with Young for his bill, and it was allowed and paid. Young says he did better work than was called for by the state law, but did it on order of the secretary of state.

The Polk county court held for Young, but the supreme court holds that the state should have paid only such bill as was authorized by state law, and that all in excess is an overcharge, and should be returned to the state.

CLAIMED TO HAVE MADE THREATS

George Lindsey Arrested and Arraigned in Police Court.

George Lindsey was arrested and taken to police headquarters at 1 o'clock this afternoon charged with having threatened a young woman, last Monday evening.

According to the story told by the young woman, who works for one of the local telephone companies, she was accosted by Lindsey while on her way home on Fifth avenue west last Monday night at about 10 o'clock. Lindsey asked her to go back to the office where he worked with him. This she refused to do and he is clamed to have threatened her.

"If you don't go back there with me I'll cut your throat and throw your body into the lake' are the words the girl claims that Lindsey used.

This threat frightened her so that she did accompany Lindsey for a short distance and then called to a couple of men who were passing. They accompanied her home and the adventure was ended for the time.

The girl made no complaint against Lindsey but the young men who came to her rescue informed Detective Terry of the affair, and he began an investigation which resulted in the arrest of Lindsey this afternoon.

He was arraigned on the charge of assault and on pleading guilty, was fined $15 and costs.

DIED FROM INJURIES.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 18.—John L. Clark, the second victim of the collision between a fire wagon and a street car, died yesterday. He was soon to have been married to Mrs. P. L. Chaffee, a pretty widow here, and the two had adjoining claims at Draper, S. D., where they expected to move.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS

Clerk of Municipal Court Files His Annual Report.

Additions to Vault Room Have Become an Absolute Necessity.

The annual report of John G. Ross, clerk of the municipal court in this city, will be submitted to the council for their approval Monday evening.

The report is interesting in that it embraces the criminal statistics for the city for 1906, and in this way covers about the same ground as the police report.

During 1906 there were 3,767 criminal cases tried in the municipal court and 1,341 civil cases. The criminal cases netted the office $22,630.62, while the civil fees amounted to $2,812.86, making a total of $25,445.48 as the gross earning of the office during the year. This is a tremendous increase over the business done by the court last year, over 1,000 more criminal cases coming before the judge than in 1905.

As a result of this increase the one recommendation which Mr. Ross will make in his report, is that the vault room of the office be enlarged. This has never been changed from what it was twenty years ago when the city hall was built, and when the business of the municipal court was, perhaps, one-twentieth of what it is today. The records of these twenty years have been gradually accumulating until now it is almost impossible to keep them in the vault provided. This recommendation was made to the council in the annual report last year, but no action was taken. It is even more necessary this year.

During 1906, 2,259 drunks were brought before the court of whom 819 served jail sentences; 610 had their sentences suspended; 19 were dismissed, and 811 paid their fines, amounting to a total of $4,433.36. This is a total of over 1,000 more than during 1905.

There were seventy-seven cases of petty larceny brought before the court during the year, forty-eight of the prisoners receiving sentences of more or less severity.

Thirty-eight suspects were found guilty of third degree assault and ten released or given suspended sentences.

The pure food laws were infringed upon in nineteen instances and fines amouting to $318.50 were paid. One chauffeur was up for reckless automobile driving but was released.

The grand jury cases were also more numerous than in 1905.

Two murder cases, one incest, one attempt at rape, one indecent assault, three first degree assault cases, ten cases of second degree assault, one bigamy case, one case of arson, one case involving malicious destruction of property, one case of non-support, eight cases of first degree grand larceny, and eight cases of grand larceny second degree, four forgery suspects, two men accused of selling liquor without a license, and one perjurer, were bound over to the grand jury by the lower court.

Crimes infringing upon city ordinances were numerous.

Charged with keeping house of ill fame, 183 persons were arraigned during the year and all of them paid fines, amounting in all to $9,630. One fine of $32 was inflicted for running a saloon on Sunday and one accused of keeping a saloon open after hours paid a fine of $55. Four saloon keepers were fined $95 for allowing women to frequent their shops, and six bartenders put up a total of $165 for selling liquor to minors.

Vags to the number of 184 were brought in by the police, 118 of whom paid fines or served sentences.

The total number of violations of the city ordinances was 1,136, and of the state laws, 2,535. The fines received for the first class of offenses amounted to $15,555.04, and from the second class, which is larger on account of the 2,259 drunks included, netted the court $7,075.52.

This report, with the exception of the case of the city against the railroad company in the Lake Avenue viaduct case, will be practically tht same as that of Assistant City Attorney McKeon.

GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT

St. Louis County Association Will Meet Next Thursday.

Several Carlton County People Will be in Attendance.

A meeting of the St. Louis County Good Roads association will be held at the Commercial club rooms next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Carlton County Good Roads association members have been invited to be present, and it is expected that several of them will be on hand. Among these will be Judge Watkins, president of the Carlton organization, and F. B. McLaren, its secretary, who will probably have something to say on the good roads movement.

The meeting will be informal in character, and there will be a general discussion of plans for promoting good roads through St. Louis and Carlton counties, and Northern Minnesota in general. L. B. Arnold, assistant land commissioner of the Duluth & Iron Range road, will deliver an address, and W. E. Culkin, president of the St. Louis county association, will have some remarks to make. It is the hope of the organization that Duluthians will turn out in liberal numbers, and thus show their interest in this very important matter.

Interest is still keen all through Northern Minnesota in the movement. St. Louis and Carlton counties are particularly active, and are working in conjunction toward the same end. Much good work already has been accomplished, and the present year, it is expected, will be a highly sucessful one for both associations. A strong public sentiment has been worked up in favor of good roads, and results are being obtained in a manner that is highly gratifying to the officers.

The automobilists are as enthusiastic as the farmers over bettering the country roads, and are important factors in the work of the different associations. As soon as weather conditions permit in the spring work will be resumed on the road that is being constructed between Duluth and Wrenshall, via Fond du Lac, and the highway will be completed during the summer. This will be quite an important achievement, bringing as it does the farmers of Carlton county to the markets of Duluth.

INDICTED ON 182 COUNTS

Grand Jury Makes Returns Against John R. Walsh.

Charges Are Based on Ninety-Two Separate Transactions.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—John R. Walsh, former president of the Chicago National bank of this city, which closed its doors Dec. 16, 1905, was today indicted by the federal grand jury for alleged misconduct in the management of the finances of the bank.

The indictment is based upon ninety-two separate transactions on each of which it is claimed the funds of the bank unlawfully used, and contains 182 counts, based upon the ninety-two financial operations conducted by Mr. Walsh. It is claimed that Mr. Walsh placed in the bank twenty-two "memorandum notes" aggregating in face value $2,000,000, and placed the proceeds to the credit of his personal account. Thirteen transactions in the bonds of the Southern Indiana & Illinois Southern railway, owned by Mr. Walsh, are also charged, it being claimed that Mr. Walsh sold these bonds to the bank and placed the proceeds, amounting to $822,200 to his personal credit.

It is charged in the indictment that the sums of money secured by these transactions were paid by Mr. Walsh to the Southern Indiana & Illinois Southern railway and other enterprises of Mr. Walsh. J. R. Walsh was arrested March 2, 1906, on complaint of District Attorney C. B. Morrison, who charged violation of the federal banking laws. He was arraigned the same day before United States Commissioner Foote, and after seven continuances was, May 3, held to await the action of the federal grand jury. Since his arrest Mr. Walsh has been awaiting the action of the grand jury under a bond of $50,000.

Mr. Walsh will not be arrested at present. A conference was held between his attorneys and District Attorney Sims, after the returning of the indictments and it was decided that the bond of $50,000 under which Mr. Walsh at present rests, is sufficient for present purposes.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

CURLING ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

A. H. Smith of Duluth is Honored With a Re-Election.

Bonspiel Contests Are Narrowing Down to the Finals.

President, A. H. Smith of Duluth.
First vice president, W. C. Reed of St. Paul.
Second vice president, A. G. Macauley of West Duluth.
Secretary and treasurer, Cameron Hewitt, Duluth.
Executive committee, Harry Hardon, Duluth; G. F. Orde, Minneapolis; Lambert Deflel, St. Paul; T. B. Mills, Superior, and G. B. Reedal, Phillips, Wis.

The above is a list of the officers elected at the annual meeting of the Northwestern Curling association last evening.

The choice of Mr. Smith for president was a re-election, and it is the first time that such an honor has been conferred by the association. Mr. Smith was singled out because of the time and energy that he has devoted to the bonspiel this year. He has done the greater part of the work in connection with it himself, and has spent not a little of his time and money traveling about the country to work up interest in the Duluth spiel.

Cameron Hewitt was chosen secretary and treasurer of the association, and next year he and Mr. Smith will have charge of the bonspiel.

The following delegates were present at the meeting, which was held in the card rooms at the Commercial club:

St. Paul Capital City club, W. J. Donahower and Dr. E. E. Nelson; St. Paul Nushka club, W. C. Read and W. B. Stewart; Henry Hewitt and A. G. Macauley, Western Club of West Duluth; John McLeod and C. A. Brown of Minneapolis; C. T. Fairbairn, Virginia; Harry Hardon and E. A. Hargreaves, Duluth Curling club; G. B. Reedal, Phillips Curling club; John Halcrow, Bowsemont. In addition, the following retiring officers were present: Vice President J. McCutcheon, Minneapolis; Secretary and Treasurer S. H. Jones, Duluth; member of the executive committee, J. C. Myron, Duluth.

Following the meeting the curlers spent a most enjoyable evening in the big reading room. There were speeches, songs, toasts and Scotch dances. M. F. Jamar gave a new curling song, the words being set to the tune of the "Stein Song," which made a tremendous hit. Cameron Hewitt also rendered a humorous ditty, and nearly everybody present was called upon for a speech. The speakers seemed to be in a happy mood, and all were able to respond with a timely story or two.

Mr. Carson, on behalf of the Winnipeg curlers, presented President Smith with a very handsome gold watch during the course of the evening. The watch will be suitably engraved. Mr. Smith, who was almost speechless from a bad cold, responded briefly, thanking the Winnipeg visitors. He said that the Winnipeg curlers were curlers all the year around, and not only in the winter time.

Yesterday afternoon's games brought the Duluth event down to the final round. Hurdon won a one-sided victory over Duncan of Duluth, defeating him 13 to 4, and Dunbar won an equally easy victory over the W. D. Brewer rink by the score of 10 to 2. This leaves the Hurdon and Dunbar rinks in the final round, and they will meet for the first time during the spiel. As they are in a very close race for the grand average prize, the game will be doubly interesting.

Dunbar also got into the finals of the Canadian Soo event, winning from Lorimer of St. Paul, in a very close game, by the score of 14 to 11. In this event A. H. Smith is up against Carson in the third round, and the winner will play Reedal in the semi finals.

* * *

After putting Dunbar out in the first round, A. H. Smith lost to Duncan of Duluth yesterday, in the Minneapolis event, by the score of 14 to 11. The game was a see-saw affair until the last two ends. The victory puts Mr. Duncan's rink in the semi final round against the Hurdon, MacLeod, and Halcrow rinks.

* * *

In the St. Paul Jobbers' event, Carson and Rochon of Winnipeg have reached the jewelry class, and their two opponents will be the winners in the McGregor-Myron and Smith-Dunbar matches.

* * *

Play was begun yesterday in the International event, in which the American rinks are entered. Eleven games have been played, counting the four forfeits, and the only outside rinks left in the contest are Lorimer of St. Paul, McCutcheon, Labatt and McLeod of Minneapolis, and Reedal of Phillips.

* * *

The Meyers consolation event has reached the final round, the Jones and W. D. Brewer rinks of Duluth being the only two remaining rinks.

FINS PLAN SKI CONTEST

Long Distance Race On Bay to be Held Feb. 22.

Asarias Autio, World's Champion, Will be on Hand.

Duluth is to have another ski tournament. Next Sunday's program is not to conclude the city's activities in this line for the winter, as was at first supposed. The Finnish ski riders and enthusiasts of the city are rapidly getting things into shape for a big tournament of their own, to be held Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, and the big event is to take place on the surface of the harbor.

It will not be a jumping contest such as is planned for Sunday, but will consist of a tramp against time around an eight-mile course laid out on the bay. It is at this feature of the sport that the Finnish ski riders excel, and, mounted on their peculiar, long, narrow skis, and assisted by a pair of sharp-pointed sticks, the speed which an expert can maintain for long stretches is remarkable.

What will make the tournament an event of more than usual interest is the fact that Asarias Autio, world's champion ski rider, who four years ago in Finland established a record for a 30-kilometer course which has never since been equalled, will be on hand for the event and will be the stellar attraction. Autio is now employed in the mines at Ely, and while, since his arrival in this country, he has not been as regular in his practice on the "seven-league boots of the northlands," he made the whole of an eight-mile course at Ely last year in forty-two minutes, which almost equalled the time he made in scoring his world's record.

It is too early in the day yet to know just what prizes will be offered for the competition, but those who are promoting the affair say that they have some elaborate donations promised by local people, and that this department of the affair will not be at all lacking.

A race on a shorter course for ladies and children is also to be a feature of the affair, and while it is to be in charge of the local Finnish people, they are willing to allow anyone to enter the competition for the prizes.

WILL TRAIN AT MADISON

White Sox Will Spend a Month in College Town.

List of the Players Signed for the 1907 Team.

The White Sox are to get a college course this spring before they appear on the local diamond to begin their race for the pennant. Whether Manager Kuehnow thinks that advantages of a 'varsity training will enable his men to play better ball, or whether the decision was prompted simply by the excellent opportunities offered by the field there, the White Sox will begin their practice April 15, at the Wisconsin university diamond at Madison. They will stay at the university for about a month before they pull out, and then they have a number of games scheduled with Wisconsin league teams before they start on the pennant race in earnest.

While the team will show a number of new faces this year, and some likely looking new stars have been signed for the season, a lot of the old men will be back at the old stand, and the pitching staff especially will be practically intact. Georgo Krick, "Sis" Hopkins, W. S. Treadway and Alwin Cummings are all under reserve, and are expected to report for practice next April at Madison. Cummings should feel particularly at home on the Wisconsin diamond, where he performed in days of old as crack pitcher on the 'varsity team. In addition to these old favorites, Y. H. R. Backus, a Toledo box artist, has been signed, and will be tried out with the bunch.

Smiley Smith, the short and stubby but very effective catcher of the Houghton team last season, is considered one of the choicest members of the squad, and he will replace Artie O'Dea as playing manager of the team during the coming season. Smith was considered the best catcher in the league last year, and his acquisition boosts the Spx a long way toward the pennant.

Harry Tracey, J. W. Rally from the St. Paul association team, and Artie O'Dea are reserved as candidates for the position on the initial sack.

William Pinger, from California's semi-professional team in Chicago is at present the only candidate for second, and Frank Somers also has an almost exclusive hold on the short stop's job. The Duluth club has a string on Leighty, who played with them for a while last year. He will commence the season trying out with the Indianapolis team, and if he makes good will play with them during the season.

James Eagin, who held down the third sack for about a month last season, has been signed to report at Madison next April and E. A. Odwell a prodigy from the Tri-State league, is also in line for the position on the last bag.

William McCormick will try out with the Des Moines team this spring but if he fails to make good there, he will come back to Duluth, while Earl Hazen, a Bemidji boy, Walter Barratt from the Tri-State league, Leonard E. Woodyatt from the Chicago Semi-professionals, and E. L. O'Brien, a local boy with no professional experience but considerable ball-chasing ability, make up the remaining quota of outfield candidates.

John Helding, the left fielder who officiated behind the bat a good part of last year will be back again and W. J. Peddlow will be another promising outfield candidate.

The annual meeting of the Northern-Copper Country league will be held some time in the near future in Calumet, when the election of officers will take place and the 1907 schedule drawn up. Duluth is in line for either the presidency or the secretaryship this year.

Duluth is as centrally located as any of the cities of the league, and to have the headquarters of the league located here would be a much more convenient arrangement than last year when the secretary was located at Lake Linden and the president at Fargo, and it took them nearly a week to get together on any question. Duluth has been in the game as long as any city in the bunch and has never had an official in power.

A silver medal will be given the winner of the largest number of points in each class, and silk badges for the winners of first and second places. The winners will also receive an official certificate with the record that they have made. Five points will be given for first place, three for second and one for third. SAND BURIED CITIES.

Interesting Discoveries Made by Scientists in Central Asia.

Calcutta, Jan. 18.—Herr Albert von Le Coq, M. D., scientific emissary of the Prussian government, has arrived at Srinagar from the depts of Central Asia. During more than two years past he has been making discoveries of sand-buried cities near Turfan and elsewhere in the northeastern part of Chinese Turkestan—the sort of work associated with the name Dr. Stein—but the Prussian mission appears to have struck a soil far richer in antiquities. Whereas, all the material results of Dr. Stein's epoch making first trip were contained in a dozen chests sent to the British museum, the Germans have sent home well over 200 chests, nearly all of which have gone by way of Russia, while Herr von Le Coq has with him twenty-five chests. The contents consist for the most part of highly artistic paintings upon stucco or hardened mud often with a background (as in Italy) of gold leaf. The civilization thus indicated in Buddhistic deriving from India and the dates are roughly a dozen or more centuries ago. There are about fifteen chests full of nothing but precious manuscripts in not less than ten different languages, one of them being a wholly unknown tongue. These show wonderful meetings and minglings of peoples from Syria and Tibet, of Manicheans from Persia and Chinese.

ST. PAUL TEAM WANTS RANDALL

Ashenback Makes Murphy an Offer for Duluth Player.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—Manager Ashenback of the St. Paul team, is anxious to secure Outfielder Newton Randall from the Chicago National league team, and has made an offer to President Murphy for Randall's release. But it is said that Manager Chance prefers to give Randall and all the youngsters a chance before letting them go.

Randall is a Duluth boy and played for several seasons in the Zenith City, where he made a reputation for himself as a slugger. He later played with the Winnipeg team and led the Northern league player in batting. Last year Randall played with the Denver team of the Western league and was one of the best batsmen in the league. He was purchased at the close of the season by the Chicago Nationals.

WANTS FIGHT IN DULUTH.

James Devine, 120-Pound Milwaukee Boy, Wants a Match.

Another bantam-weight fighter is trying to break into Duluth sporting circles, and wants a match with any of the local glove experts who are willing to "fight, not play," as his manager puts it. James Devine, is the name of the new prodigy with the gloves, and in a letter to The Herald, Harvey Hollen, his manager, says he wants to take on any fighter in this part of the country who will average from 118 to 125 pounds. Devine and his manager are now making a tour of Wisconsin towns, and want to take in the Head of the Lakes on their trip.

HIS REFUSUL TO FIGHT DIVORCE COST A FARM.

Paris, Mo., Jan. 18.—John C. Foreman, a rich but very eccentric Monroe county farmer, lost title to a fine 420-acre farm through judgments obtained without protest on his part in the circuit court at Paris. A year ago his wife, who belongs to one of the most prominent families in north Missouri, brought suit against him for divorce and $20,000 in cash. Foreman did not resist the suit, and refused to attend court when it was called for trial.

A local attorney interested himself in his behalf, and, in granting the divorce by default, Judge Eby cut Mrs. Foreman's claim down to $9,000. The attorney presented a bill for $400 for services rendered, and Foreman refused to pay it, asserting that he had neither asked nor wanted legal assistance. The attorney thereupon brought suit for the fee, and obtained a judgment by Foreman's refusal to fight the claims in court.

Pending the divorce case, Mrs. Foreman had been allowed $35 a month for support. Foreman refused to pay it, and Sheriff Nolen was forced to go to his home, seize a drove of fat hogs and market them, in order to satisfy an execution issued for that purpose. Foreman further refused to pay the $9,000 judgment rendered in favor of his wife, and his fine farm was sold to the highest bidder, passing into the hands of J. H. Whitecotton.

He took no interest in the proceedings, and would neither come to town to look after his interests, nor permit others to do so. He is worth fully $50,000, and is one of the hardest workers and most extensive stockmen in Monroe county. Mrs. Foreman attended the land sale and wept bitterly during the bidding.

THE SOUTH'S PROBLEM.

The Search for Farm Laborers Dwarfs the Race Question.

Washington, Jan. 18.—In an interview in the Times, Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia says:

"The race question is not a Southern or even an American question. It is a world-wide question, and includes the yellow as well as the black races. I have my own views on this broad question of the relations of the races. I am not prepared at this time to express them, but in time I hope to be able to present the race question to the people of the North and East in a new light.

"One phase of the question which is of peculiar interest to the South, and incidentally to all who depend upon the South's great staples—cotton, naval stores and lumber—is the labor situation here. For much of the South's labor we depend on the negro. Now, the negro, taken as a whole, is so constituted that he will not work beyond the time required to earn enough to supply him with the necessities of life and such luxuries as he demands. These are few.

"The wonderful material development of the South, despite the handicap of unsatisfactory labor, has created an enormous demand for the kind of labor which the negro is dependend on to do. Because of the demand for workmen on the railroads, at the sawmills, on public works and in the various urban industries, the price of labor has gone up enormously in the last few years. The negro laborer who was able to make 50 or 75 cents a day on the farm then is in demand at more than twice that figure in other lines now. The result has naturally been a steady desertion of the farm and a scarcity of farm labor.

"The situation is accentuated by the peculiarities of the negro. As a rule, he will work only so long as necessity compels. Under the scale of wages prevailing, he is able to make by three days' labor sufficient to supply his needs for a week. Hence, he will work only three days a week.

"Immigration of the right kind would do much to bring about conditions which would go a great way toward minimizing, if not eliminating, the negro and labor problems in the South. Some practical steps already have been taken to turn the right kind of immigration to the South."

GAMBLE'S OPPONENTS

Defeated in the First Brush in the State Legislature.

Pierre, S. D.—Opponents of Senator Gamble were defeated in both houses of the legislature yesterday when they attempted to force through resolutions for an investigation of charges against the congressional delegation prior to the senatorial election next Tuesday. The senate committee on rules made a favorable report for an investigation without specifying the time, but without suspension of the rules, final action cannot be had before Tuesday.

By a vote of 25 to 20 the senate yesterday adopted an anti-pass bill with an emergency clause attached.

WOMAN BOUND OVER.

Warden Bought a Deer of Her and Had Her Arrested.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Clara Le Flex of Withee, Wis., after a preliminary trial, has been bound over to the circuit court to await trial on a charge of violating the game laws by selling a deer. Warden Klofanda visited Withee and there purchased a deer from Mrs. La Flex, for the purpose of obtaining evidence. She is said to have disposed of numerous carcases during and prior to the opening of the season.

SHE WOULD SELL LOVE LETTERS

Written to Her By Prominent Man of New York.

New York, Jan. 18.—Mrs. Victoria C. Jack, of No. 427 West Twenty-third street, a teacher in the city schools, is in trouble with the officials of the department of education by reason of a letter written by her to an evening paper in which she offers to sell a package of letters sent to her by a man who is connected with a well known concern in the financial district. Superintendent of Public Schools William H. Maxwell will investigate the case.

The letter reads as follows:

"What will you offer me for a large package of letters (love etc.) written me by a clebrated doctor of international reputation and brother of a president of one of the largest trust companies in the world, both living in New York?

"I have already received an offer for same from him, as they are of considerable importance, besides offers from publishers.

"Awaiting an early reply, I am yours truly. MRS. V. J. JACK."

Mrs. Jack is a teacher in public school No. 125, at Wooster and West Houston streets.

Her husband, James C. Jack, is a brother of the late Sam. C. Jack of theatrical fame, and she was at one time in one of the burlesque companies of her brother-in-law. She says the doctor of international reputation offered her $500 for the letters, but she would not think of selling them for that price. They are not only ardent, but possess literary merit, she says, and are well worth reading. Her husband knew of the correspondence.

The doctor to whom she refers admits having written her many letters, but says he wrote nothing of which he is ashamed. He was very fond of her and felt sorry for her two children, whom he assisted in many ways, including the sending of remittances from time to time. He says that if she attemps to sell the letters he will appeal to the law for protection.

SILVER PLATE

Placed on the Pet Dog's One Hundred Dollar Coffin.

Pomeroy, Ohio, Jan. 18.—Miss Clara Belle Strong, a rich maiden lady, residing at Rutland, has provided a hundred-dollar burial for her pet dog Teddy, which met death recently by the poison route.

Teddy lay on the ground in a distant field for three days before being found, then an undertaker was called upon and the remains were so carefully embalmed that they were kept four days, resting in state in the parlor of Miss Strong's country home. A photographer from this city was engaged to take photos of the sleeping pet from every possible viewpoint.

An especially designed $100 casket was ordered and a solid silver plate bore this inscription: "Teddy—A Scotch Collie—My dearest and best friend."

When the day for the burial arrived the undertaker had difficulty in securing permission for the mistress to bury the body. It is said she begged the privilege of 15 minutes for a final parting with the dead, and when that was granted she pleaded for 10 more and then five. At last the undertaker was compelled to lead her away, it is said.

Miss Strong, it is reported, will have a magnificient granite shaft erected to mark Teddy's last resting place.

NIGHTGOWN USED TO FLAG THE CAR

After Girl Had Run Five Blocks Through the Snow.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 18.—The victim of a burglar scare, concocted by practical jokers, Winnie O'Donnell, a pretty young girl employed at Aragon apartment house, clambored out of the window of her room early this morning and ran through the snow in barefeet and night dress to summon help. She ran to Euclid avenue. An eastbound Euclid car, loaded with men and women was returning from the theater. She flagged it with the skirt of her night dress. This was at East Eighty-sixth street, a good five blocks from her room.

Half frozen from exposure and in fright she was taken aboard the car by the motorman. The passengers crowded around to hear her tell her remarkable story. When she succeeded in making them understand that burglars attempted to force their way into her room and chloroform her as she lay in bed, the car was run back to East Eighty-second street. There one of the male passengers got off with the conductor and accompanied her back to the apartment house. A woman on the car had given her her overshoes; the man who went along with her generously loaned her his overcoat.

Her room was found to be in chaos. The floor was littered with clothing; it seemed perfectly apparent that burglars had ransacked the room. Later the police discovered that the girl had been made the victim of a cruel joke; that her burglars were only people about the place possessing a perverted sense of humor.

THE GREATEST FRENCHMAN

The Result of a Popular Vote on the Mooted Question.

Paris, Jan. 18.—The word plebiscite has been for more than thirty years a word of ill omen in France. One of the most widely circulated of French newspapers has, however, been rehabilitating the word during the past few weeks in a way too striking to be ignored. It appealed to its readers all over the country to vote on the question of the relative pre-eminence of the great Frenchmen of the last century. Fifteen million answers have been received, and what gives striking demonstration is that the opinion of average France is recorded, not that of a political coterie or of a cultivated elite. The world knows approximately what France thinks of her great men, and what her conception is of civic duty, as well as of civil and moral distinction. It is the revelation to the foreigner of an idealism hitherto unsuspected. Only those observers who have had the privilege of studying the evolution of the French mind and feeling over an unbroken series of years on the spot were aware of the profound transformation which the republican school system and stable republican government in general have effected in the points of view of the present generation of Frenchmen.

The winner of the recent contest is Pasteur. Victor Hugo runs him close, having received 1,227,103 votes against 1,338,425 for the world-renowned man of science. But it is characteristic that two men of peaceful pursuits should precede on the lists those great Frenchmen who might have appeared at first sight to have contributed to the military glory which the French are supposed to so much admire. Gambetta followed Victor Hugo with 1,155,672 votes. Then came Napoleon I and Thiers with 1,118,034 and 1,039,433 votes respectively. For the sixth place what foreigner would have suggested the name of Lazare Carnot. The order of the names which succeed Lazare Carnot is interesting in the extreme. Curie, the inventor of radium; Alexandre Dumaspere, who has charmed several generations, not only of Frenchmen, but also of Englishmen; Dr. Roux, the inventor of liphtheritic serum; Parmentier, the introducer of the potato into France; then Ampere, the father of dynamic electricity; Brazza, the founder of the French West Africa; Zola, whose place here, the thirteenth on the list, shows conclusively what France now thinks of his courageous deed as author of "J'accuse." Lamartine, a consoling selection of those who have always regarded the author of "The Lake" as the most seductive Frenchman of the nineteenth century, and Francois Arago, the astronomer and psysicist. The sixteenth place is held gloriously by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt. But immediately afterwards comes M. Weldeck Rouseau MacMahon, the hero of the famous "J'y suis, j'y reste;" President Carnot, who certainly incarnates here a very characteristic conception of civic duty; Chevreul, the chemist, and Chateaubiand, the most eloquently French of all the writers of the last century, unless exception be made for Michelet, who figures twenty-third on the list after De Lesseps. That is a victory which shows how short-lived is French rancor.

SOCIETY PET ARRESTED

In Connection With Diamond Robberies in North Carolina.

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 18.—Mrs. L. V. Knight, who has been making her home here for the past year at the most exclusive hotels, has been arrested in connection with several diamond robberies that occurred last year. Mrs. Knight is a petite blonde and very popular in younger society circles. She has left Asheville. Her trunks were searched, and some very handsome gowns belonging to Mrs. W. H. Wilcox, who has been living in the same hotel with Mrs. Knight, were discovered.

Several diamond robberies occurred last summer at one of the most fashionable hotels here. Miss Florence Giffen, of New Orleans, granddaughter of Phil Onard, known as the sugar king, lost her jewels in the early part of the season, and the jewels of Miss Mabel Underwood, of Louisiana, disappeared later. Mrs. Knight was secretly arrested here on Sunday night. She was allowed to give bond and was to have been arrainged for trial on Thursday, but suddenly left town.

Mrs. Knight was very much excited when arrested and declared she was innocent. She said she has been undergoing treatment at a sanitarium here and that her physicial condition was the cause of her action. Her husband when told of his wife's arrest fainted away. He left Asheville with her and protests her innocence.

5000 LIVES SAVED YEARLY BY MODERN METHODS IN TREATING CONSUMPTION

In New York since 1881 there has been a reduction in the death-rate from tuberculosis of 40 per cent; that means an annual saving of some 5,000 lives.

Before a German scientist discovered the germ of this disease, it was considered the visitation of an avenging Providence. Our fathers gave it up as hopeless. Modern methods of treatment, however, have done much toward eradicating the terrible disease.

A noted specialist, whose camp for consumptives in the Pine Woods of Maine has attracted great attention because of the remarkable cures he has effected there, and whose methods have been indorsed by the highest authorities, says his treatment was very simple, consisting of open-air exercise, deep breathing and nourishing food. Every four hours the patient was given one teaspoonful of a mixture of the Pure Virgin Oil from the White Pine Trees, combined with Whisky and Glycerine, in the following proportions: One-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine [Pure], two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

This treatment strengthened the lungs and healed the bronchial tubes. He claims this formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable. The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, and can be easily mixed in your own home.

Inquiry at the prescription department of one of our leading druggists elicited the information that Virgin Oil of Pine [Pure] is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—"Virgin Oil of Pine [Pure]"—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine [Pure], which are put out under various names, such as Pine Balsam, etc. Never accept these as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

JACOB'S LABOR FOR HIS RACHEL

Was as Nothing to the Persistence of Lester Reimer.

Asbury Park, N. J., Jan. 18.—"Marguerite and I were happily married Sunday," was the announcement of Lester Charles Reimer in a telegram to Charles E. Zacharias, father of the bride.

Zacharias in April, 1905, publicly horse-whipped Reimer on account of his persistent courtship of Marguerite, who was then a pretty high school girl. He supposed his daughter was at a boarding school in New York state, where she was sent last week, partly with a view to get her out of Reimer's way. It is believed she met him by appointment in New York city.

Reimer's courtship may be described as obstinate and unbending. It cost him heavy lashes on his arms and neck, for which he recouped afterwar in a suit for damages against Mr. Zacharias, in which the jury awarded $300. True, this case is still on appeal, but to all intents and purposes the newly made bridegroom has the best of it.

Right after the horsewhipping, Reimer began to bombard both Marguerite and her father with letters. When she was sent away to a Pennsylvania boarding school, he planned to elope with her there. The plot was discovered.

Reimer was not discouraged. Marguerite returned home, but was never permitted to go upon the street except in company with her mother. Reimer tried letter writing again. It was of no use. Then, being a musician and proprietor of a music store, he tried song writing. A plaintive ditty, dedicated to Marguerite, was set loose in the Asbury Park market and had a limited sale.

Then the angry father consulted lawyers to find a loophole through which he might attack the persistent lover. There did not seem to be any.

Then Marguerite was taken to Florida. This was last winter. The family returned early in June, and Marguerite professed to be tired of the young man. Her parents were rejoiced. Discipline was slightly relaxed, but a short time ago the parents heard rumors that Reimer was busy again. Last week the young woman was shipped off to a boarding school up the Hudson. The relief of the parents was short lived.

"SCOTTY'S" MINE FOUND AT LAST

Death Valley Mystery of Shrewd Miner is Cleared Up.

San Bernardino, Cal., Jan. 18.—The location of the "Scotty" mine, which has long baffled discovery of hundreds of miners who have sought it, has at last been disclosed.

The Death Valley mystery, Walter Scott, filed his first location notice recently, though he had been supposed to be the possessor of the richest mine in the country for two years and a half.

The mine is a placer property, in an isolated district, and its location shows shrewdness of "Scotty;" for while he had claims on the east side of Death Valley, in the Funeral range of mountains, his real source of wealth was on the west side, in the Panamint range.

The location notice was forwarded from Chicago to the county recorder by A. M. Johnson, "Scotty's" partner, who returned recently from a caravan trip into the desert.

The "Sheephead"—for that is the name of the mine—has been carefully located, not merely by the usual signs of the desert prospector, but by careful surveys, which name its exact location by degrees and minutes.

It is close to a willow tree, at the foot of which is a bubbling spring. From the center monument the Telescope peak bears 29 degs. 10 minutes west, and from the center monument Willow mountain peak bears north 79 degs., distant ten miles.

"Scotty" is at present at Greenwater, on the desert, and has as much money as ever.

PURITY OF THE SYSTEM Is the Secret of COMPLETE HEALTH.

Doesn't it stand to reason, that for perfect health, the human system must be kept pure and clean, inside as well as outside?

Then take Cascarets, the world-famous Bowel Medicine and system-cleaners, that will help you KEEP CLEAN INSIDE.

The body of man is the most perfect and delicate mechanism in existence, and the least OBSTRUCTION or accumulation of filth in any part of it, will make it hobble, move IRREGULARLY and SPASMODICALLY, and if not attended to promptly may stop the machine altogether.

Isn't that plain common sense to any person that has had any experience with machinery of human invention, from the sewing machine to the triple-expansion engine? All the parts, joints, connections, gearings, must be kept absolutely pure and clean to get the best results. A careless, untidy engineer is a failure and will lose his job.

Nature has been kind to us by handing over to us to be occupied during our earthly existence, an almost automatic, elastic mechanism, that will run itself if only properly cared for.

All that She asks, is that the body be supplied with "Pure Food" fuel of the right kind, applied in the right way,—that a lubricant be furnished for the joints, muscles, nerves through the marvelous distributing and collecting system of arteries and veins,—and that all parts of the engine be used for the purposes intended without undue strain.

But, when little mistakes are made in eating and drinking, with perhaps excessive exertion, there is a liability of a stoppage in the natural cleansing process, and you are liable to become UNCLEAN INSIDE.

That means obstruction, stoppage of the normal functions, fermentation, poisoning of the blood by your own decaying sewage, and a liability of the development of any of hundreds of serious diseases.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic are fragrant, sweet, mild but effective little tablets that were first compounded from pure, harmless, vegetable substances, under a Pure Drug of their own, in 1896. These tablets proved to be the greatest lubricators for the Bowels ever discovered, and at the same time a destroyer of disease germs in the whole alimentary (food) canal. They have now a sale of over a million boxes a month.

They are a pure, reliable, means of keeping the system clean, preventing all diseases arising from accumulations in Constipation, and also relieving and aiding the cure of chronic conditions after they have developed from neglect.

Begin today to watch your conditions, be careful of your food and general methods of living and learn to take precaution of "Keeping Clean Inside" with Cascarets. Buy a little 10c. box from your own druggist TODAY, be convinced and join our MILLIONS OF FRIENDS.

NAVY TITLES CAUSE WAR

The Line and the Staff Officers Are in Controversy.

Squabble is Said to be Blocking Personnel Legislation.

Washington, Jan. 18.—There is a merry war over titles between officers of the line and staff officers of the navy which threatens and seems certain to develop into the biggest struggle the naval service has ever had. Matters have already gone so far that a personal representative of President Roosevelt has informed staff officers that if in their fight for titles they attempt to influence legislation or obstruct the personnel bill now before congress, they will be court-martialed. The staff officers contend that officers of the line are openly endeavoring to influence congressmen, and yet are not threatened with court-martial. The fight centers on the personnel bill drawn by a board appointed by Former Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte. The line officers are anxious for it to go through and are working hard for it, but its provisions do not protect what the staff officers claim to be their rights. There are two classes of officers in the navy, those of the line, from the grade of midshipmon up to that of admiral, and staff officers, the latters being officers in the pay department, of the medical department, of the department of construction and the civil engineers, coming under the bureau of yards and docks. In other words, the officers who have to do with actual fighting are line officers, and the others, including pay officers, surgeons, civil engineers and naval constructors, are staff officers. The engineers used to be staff officers, but they have been made a part of the line of the navy. Under existing laws, titles, such as ensign, lieutenant, lieutenant commander, captain, etc., are not given staff officers in the navy, as are staff officers in the army, and they claim they should be. They have relative rank but no title. Thus an assistant surgeon has the rank of a second lieutenant; a passed assistant surgeon the rank of a lieutenant, senior grade; a surgeon the rank of lieutenant commander, a medical inspector the rank of a commander, a medical director that of a captain, while the surgeon general has the rank of a rear admiral. But none of the officers in these grades is permitted to use the title. If an officer is a medical inspector, he is called medical inspector so-and-so, and not commander. In the army a surgeon, for instance, is entitled to the title of major.

Last summer, when it was determined by the navy department that something should be done about the commissioned personnel of the navy, the staff officers were asked for suggestions. A personnel board, headed by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry, was appointed to take up the entire matter. The staff officers who were consulted, however, did not follow the line expected. It was supposed they would confine their recommendations to matters concerning promotion, increased pay and such things, but instead all of them turned in recommendations that they have the right to make use of the titles. The line arose against this and since then there has been a hot fight on. There were other recommendations made by the staff officers, and these were granted, but their suggestions that titles be given them was held back and sent to congress with the other conclusions of the personnel board. The staff officers got some things, but they wanted the title more than anything else. It seems now that the personnel legislation is blocked because of the squabble. President Roosevelt's personal aide, Lieutenant Commander Albert L. Key who is very much interested in the personnel bill and anxious to see it pass, has been at work on the staff officers. But the staff seemed obdurate. It is believed that the staff officers are attempting to obstruct the personnel bill as it now stands before congress. Because of this the White House warning was given that counter-measures would follow such attempts. In the meantime it is alleged that line officers are working with members of congress in an effort to get the personnel bill through. Many officers believe there will be no personnel legislation at this session of congress. The president is very much interested in the measures and desires is passed.

The kaiser's repeated efforts to repress the sybaritism of German military officers seems to have had little effect, and his majesty is credited with having issued fresh orders that they abandon their luxury and simplify their mode of life. He messed lately with the officers of a smart lancer regiment at Potsdam, who thought they would honor their imperial guest by a sumptuous display of delicacies and wines, including a variety of the costliest French champagnes. His majesty did not throw a damper on his entertainers by a personal rebuke, but he subsequently issued an order through the ministry of war that he wished all such luxuries stopped, and directing that when even he was the guest of the officers of any regiment the menu be limited to soup, fish, vegetables, a joint, butter and cheese, with only one kind of red or white wine punch and a single glass of champagne. There must be no liquors or other after-dinner beverages.

There is a story, however, that the kaiser since the order was issued was the guest of the Grenadier Guards and that he drank with gusto French champagne that was poured from a bottle with a German label. He assured his hosts approvingly that German champagne was quite good enough for anybody and that it was quite as gratifying to the palate as the French product.

KAISER AND HEIR

Have Violent Quarrel Over the German Colonial Scandals.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—A serious disagreement has arisen between the kaiser and his eldest son, the crown prince, and at present they are not on speaking terms. The latest rupture, which is but one of many, arose through the recent exposures of the methods employed by the German colonial administrators in Africa.

The crown prince supports the demand for an inquiry, and holds that those implicated should be punished severely. The kaiser, on the other hand, strongly supports the view of the government that the whole affair has been grossly exaggerated for political purposes.

The empress and the crown princess have been working very hard to bring about a reconciliation between father and son, but thus far without success.

The rapid rise of Prince Von Buelow, due to the kaiser's instinct of finding the right man, is the subject of a characteristic story about Wilhelm II.

While Prince Hohenlohe (whose indiscreet "Memoirs" have caused such a worldwide commotion) was chancellor, the kaiser went to him one day and said bluntly: "We want new blood at the foreign office."

Then the emperor began telling off the names of likely men on his fingers. Suddenly he exclaimed: "I have it! Our ambassador at Rome would make the best foreign minister. He has made no mistakes."

Buelow, who was then German ambassador at Rome, received an hour later this peremptory telegram: "His majesty the German emperor appoints you secretary of state for foreign affairs, and instructs you to take up your duties with the least possible delay."

In a few hours the ambassador left Rome for Berlin, where he was soon again promoted to be chancellor of the empire and prime minister of Prussia.

ELOPEMENT TIES UP A POSTOFFICE

Officials Run Off With Town Belle and School Teacher.

Fort Plain, N. Y., Jan. 18.—A double elopment, with two of the elopers speeding Dakotaward for a double divorce, has shocked the whole Mohawk valley and closed the St. Johnsville postoffice for lack of help to distribute Uncle Sam's mail.

When it became definitely known that Alexander Turnbull, married, had fled with Miss Elizabeth McGee, the village school teacher, and that Harry Stichel, married, and Miss May Doyle had eloped with them on the same train, St. Johnsville simply laid all business aside and gasped.

Turnbull was the deputy postmaster of St. Johnsville. He was so prominent in the community that his friends had asked President Roosevelt to make him head of the office in place of the present postmaster, John Fox. He is not only married, but has a family. Miss Elizabeth McGee, who ran away with him, was the town's model of modesty. She is 22, tall and very attractive, but apparently was so shy that none of the town's beaus had ever been favored with a glance.

Harry Stichel was the postoffice clerk. His short cut along with Turnbull is what reduces the postoffice force to one man and prevents the mails coming out the same day. He married a Miss Saltman many years ago and deserts a $100,000 inheritance to elope with Miss Doyle. Besides his wife he leaves two daughters, 18 and 15 years old.

Miss Doyle was the village belle. Ever since she came to work in the Lion Knitting mills as a stenographer every eligible young man in the village has been making eager eyes at her. She boarded with Miss McGee, and that is probably how the double affaire de couer was started.

Saturday evening neither of the men came home from work, and both girls failed to return for supper. Mrs. Stichel, who is an invalid, became worried and started one of her daughters out to hunt up her father.

She learned that he had been seen with Miss Boyle, Turnbull and Miss McGee driving on the road to Fort Plain in a double seated wagon.

A letter from Stichel revealed the whole story.

It has been found that the men ran away practically penniless, and that it was the girls who furnished the money for the elopement. Miss McGee had $8,000 which she had drawn from three banks two days before. This represents all her savings in the village school and a legacy besides. Miss Doyle carried $1,700. The assets of Turnbull and Stichel approximate $100. Stichel, it is said, borrowed a sum from his mother-in-law to aid him in deserting her daughter. Turnbull got a loan from Postmaster Fox the day before he disappeared.

An examination of the postoffice records shows that neither Stichel nor Turnbull was short in his accounts.

VON BOHLEN WED ACTRESS.

Romance of Poor Brother-in-law of World's Richest Woman.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—Herr von Bohlen-Halbach, the younger brother of the diplomat, who recently married Miss Bertha Krupp, has caused a sensation by marrying Elfricde Mahn, an actress. Though possessing a very pretty face, she had such mediocre, histrionic talents that she has never been able to command a salary higher than $75 a month.

Elfriede Mahn was engaged at the Central theater to play minor roles in light comedy and operettas. Her good looks won her swarms of admirers, not all of whom, however, meant business. But young Bohlen-Halbach did from the start. Night after night, he occupied a front seat in the stalls, that he might feast his eyes on her bewitching face.

Discarding the usual attire of masculine swelldom, he affected the Bohemian style of apparel, wearing a soft hat and a brown cloth jacket, instead of the conventional evening dress. He became known to all the actors and actresses of the company. The theater attendants watched his wooing with benevolent interest, greeting him each evening with a knowing smile.

Von Bohlin's aristocratic relatives got wind of his infatuation and tried their best to disenchant him. But not even the dire threat of leaving him dependent on his own resources for a livelihood produced any effect upon him. His love was blind. He declared that he preferred penury with the woman of his choice to unbounded prosperity without her.

In order to escape the obstacles which his relations might have interposed, and the cumbersome formalities attendant on marriage in Germany, he fled with Elfricde to London, where they were married by a registrar in a gloomy office in the center of the English capital. Their honeymoon journey took them by way of Paris to Italy, but by reason of scarcity of funds it was cut short.

Young von Bohlen-Halbach has not yet succeeded in "striking a job," and unless his relatives relent, his bride will have to return to the stage to keep the domestic pot boiling. But the lucky elder brother may decide to make him an allowance rather than have his sister-in-law go back to the footlights to be pointed out as the near relation of the wealthiest woman in the world.

SHE SAYS HE JILTED HER

Tearful Philadelphia Girl's Story May Cost Vogel His Job.

Miss Lucy Haley Says He Courted Her Fifteen Years.

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—The unfortunate oversight of Julius J. Vogel, secretary of the Philadelphia civil service commission in neglecting to be safely off with his old love before he was on with the new may cost him some discomfiture.

For it seems that the civil service authorities in Washington are not well disposed to representatives of the service who are unlucky enough to figure in the public prints.

Mr. Vogel managed to attain this unenviable notoriety by marrying on New Year's day Miss Mary Lynch, an exceptionally pretty girl who was a stenographer in the office of Postmaster Ashhurst. Then he left the city with his young bride, she is barely 21 years old, for an extended honeymoon tour, without, however, informing Miss Lucy Haley, of 2% North Paxon street, who, according to Miss Haley, he had been courting for fifteen years.

Naturally enough, when Miss Haley read the announcement of Mr. Vogel's marriage, published about a week later, she was much upset. Accompanied by her sister, she hurried down to the postoffice building last Tuesday afternoon and made her way to Mr. Vogel's office.

Here the sad tidings that her sweetheart had deserted her were confirmed, and Miss Haley promptly fainted. The under secretaries were horrified, as being all of the sterner sex they hadn't the faintest notion of how to resuscitate the heartbroken woman, and the sister, almost in hysterics herself, was practically useless.

Finally they persuaded the sister to go for help. In her wanderings she strayed into Assistant Postmaster Knowles' office, and, forgetting her sister's condition, poured out their tale of woe. Then calming down somewhat under the tactful, sympathetic treatment of the diplomatic Mr. Knowles she went back to the assistance of the unconscious Miss Lucy. Soon the latter recovered, and until 6 o'clock that night the two women haunted the buildings hoping against hope that Mr. Vogel would return and assure them that the rumor of his marriage was the merest idle "fake."

Toward closing time, however, they evidently made up their minds that the wedding was an accomplished fact, so left and sought their lawyer, J. Joseph Murphy.

"We will spare no expense to push my sister's claim against Mr. Vogel," was the way the elder Miss Haley expressed their intentions.

In the meantime the happy Mr. Vogel was enjoying a delightful honeymoon, all unconscious of the storm awaiting his return. He was expected back at his office today, but did not arrive. Probably he read a published account of his old love's intentions and decided that a little delay in making his appearance would benefit his cause. At any rate, it is said that he telephoned to the office and informed his assistant that he was "unexpectedly detained and would not be in until Wednesday."

Those who were related that during the investigation of conditions in this city something over a year ago, Civil Service Commissioner James B. Cooley, now an assistant attorney general of the United States, criticised Mr. Vogel in his report. Then, as now, Mr. Cooley stood near the president and it was considered a miracle that Vogel retained his official head at that time. But the prophets, his "finish" is in plain sight.

Miss Haley, who is employed as a stenographer by the Mutual Life Insurance company, was somewhat unwilling to discuss her case today.

"I don't want any more publicity," she said, "nor do I want Mr. Vogel to be fired, but I do want some reparation for all the time and attention I have lavished on him."

Though she would not say positively that no legal action would be taken, Miss Haley insinuated that the case would be compromised out of court if possible.

In describing the wooing of Mr. Vogel which, she says, lasted fifteen years, Miss Haley said:

"I loved and trusted him for fifteen years, and waited patiently for the time when we should be able to celebrate our wedding. During all those years I wore his engagement ring and gave him all my time and devotion."

WOMEN RUN BANK IN DOME CITY

Divorced Wife of Fake Count Buys Alaska Gold Dirt.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 18.—At Fairbanks last month Mrs. Charles Carbonneau was divorced from "Count" Charles Carbonneau, one of the most fantastic characters in the early days of Dawson.

Mrs. Carbonneau, or as she was then known, Miss Mulrooney, was the first woman to get into Dawson, and soon after her arrival there she took a claim on Bonanza which netted her more than $250,000. She also ran a roadhouse.

After she had acquired a snug fortune she moved into the city and took charge of the Fairview hotel. There she met and was wooed by Carbonneau, who represented himself as a French nobleman, whose business occupation was a commissioner in banking securities, with offices in New York, Paris and London. As soon as they were married Carbonneau purchased on account many claims on Gold Run, all of which seemed to be nonpaying propositions.

Things went from bad to worse. The "Count" bought an automobile and lived high. His expenses Mrs. Carbonneau paid out of her claim on Bonanza and the earnings of the Fairview. Finally she moved to Fairbanks and her husband left the Northern country.

Mrs. Carbonneau is now in Dome City, on Dome creek, twenty miles from Fairbanks, and conducts what is known as the Dome City bank, where miners can convert their gold dust into cash. She has two sisters who assist her in running the institution. They are Nellie and Margaret Mulrooney. They were educated in Europe and are considered the belles of the Tanana.

COUNTESS DHOZIER

May Claim Heirship to the Millions of Jacques Lebaudy.

Paris, Jan. 18.—"Where is Jacques L., emperor of the Sahara?" is a question everybody is asking. That eccentric monarch, known to those who will not recognize his soverignty as plain Jacques Lebaudy, son of the sugar millionaire, has been missing since July last.

Meanwhile his real estate in France, which is worth $4,000,000, is neglected and his tenants are living rent free.

Before leaving France the "Emperor" advertised for sale "all the houses in France belonging to His Majesty Jacques I." referring purchasers to "the European embassy of the empire of Sahara, Brussels."

So complete is the emperor's disappearance that a movement is on foot to apply for letters of administration, and the story is current on the boulevards that the Countess Vassart Dhozier, far better known as Mlle. Marie Louise Martzy, may claim heirship to the millions of Jacques. It is remembered that she inherited $2,000,000 and a magnificent racing stable from the late Max Lebaudy, who styled the actress his "best and truest friend," and nothing about Max's brother Jacques would astonish Paris.

The last news from the "emperor" was an official note to the French foreign office, protesting on behalf of "his majesty" against the holding of the Morocco conference because his imperial majesty had not been notified. This was signed "Pelit Pasha, foreign minister to the Saharan empire."

The rest is silence as to the whereabouts of Jacques I. Perhaps he and his lonely companion have sought the seclusion of his desert empire.

"I had run down in weight to 135 pounds, and coughing was constant, both day and by night. Finally I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and continued this for about six months, when my cough and lung trouble were entirely gone and I was restored to my normal weight, 170 pounds." THIEF CAUGHT AT WORK.

Patience of Sheriff and Store Owner Was at Last Rewarded.

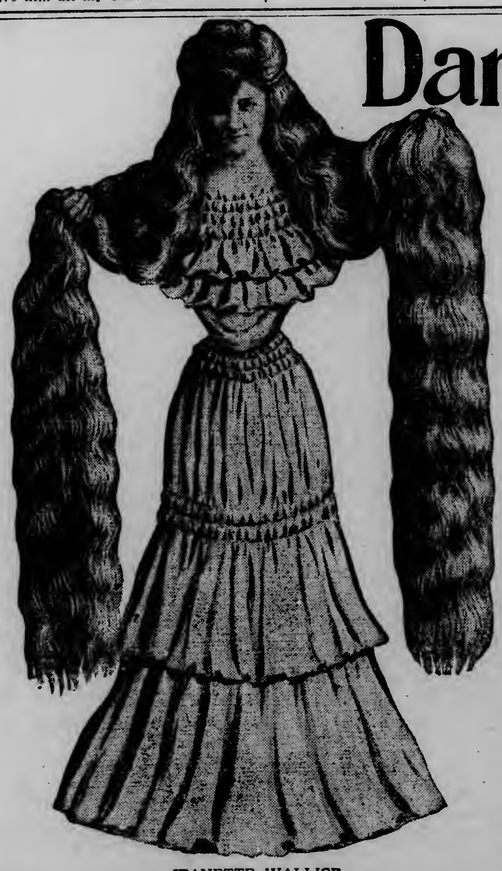

Iowa City, Iowa, Jan. 17.—Frank Cooney, aged 20, caught in the act of committing a burglary at Wetensha ver's grocery store, is in jail, awaiting the grand jury's action. The young man was an employe of the groceryman, and, after he was discharged, committed weekly robberies at the store, using a key he had retained, and breaking another door, to which he had no key. The proprietor and the sheriff of Johnson county spent night after night in the store for two weeks, and finally bagged their game. Cooney has confessed.

Barron, Wis., Jan. 17.—After an all-day session of the county board, the deadlock was broken and Rice Lake was given the location of the Barron county training school for teachers.

Humphrey of the university of Wisconsin's agricultural college, which has decided to make Barron county famous for raising Holstein cattle. In Seventh Ward is Being Given to A. G. Macauley.

Other News From the Western End of the City.

Angus D. Macauley, independent candidate for alderman in the Seventh ward, against Moses J. Filitrault and A. T. Park, is being given the support of the lid party.

At a meeting held in the West end this week, Mr. Macauley began his campaign and it is understood that he is the candidate of the lid enthusiasts, of which there are many in the western part of the city.

The speakers urged their hearers to give Mr. Macauley all possible support and it is understood that the campaigners for the lid are going to make it as interesting as possible for Messrs. Filiatrault and Park.

Alexander Kennedy, Republican aldermanic candidate in the Sixth ward, is said to be making a house-to-house canvas in his district, with the hope of rounding up the voters on his side when the day of election comes.

The Democratic candidate, Charles R. Hoar, however, is reported to have gained ground during the last two weeks and now stands an excellent chance of being elected.

MRS. KINDRED'S FUNERAL.

Former Minnesotan is Laid at Rest in Philadelphia.

A Philadelphia paper says regarding the funeral of Mrs. Charles F. Kindred, a former resident of Brainerd and well known to the older residents of Duluth:

"The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Kindred, wife of Charles F. Kindred, the well known Twenty-ninth ward politician, took place from her late residence at 1500 North Fifteenth street. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. Lawrence M. Colfelt, former pastor of the Oxford Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Kindred has been an active member for many years. Interment was made in the family vault at Central Laurel Hill cemetery.

"Mrs. Kindred was 57 years old and was a native of Kidderminster, England. She was 7 years old when she came with her parents to this country and went to live in Chicago. She married Charles F. Kindred on June 15, 1880, later coming to Philadelphia where she continued to make her home until her death. Mrs. Kindred was active in philanthropic work and gave much help to the needy of the city. Besides her husband, who is a member of the Union league, she is survived by three children, Mrs. H. V. Elliott, Miss Lawla Kindred and Arthur J. Kindred."

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Harry Reuttelle of Buffalo, N. D., is the guest of the Misses Stevens of the Lafayette flats.

WOULD-BE IOWA SWAIN FLED WHEN HE SAW HER.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 18.—"The Romance of a Bottle" is an appropriate title for the love affair of Miss Delia Cummins of Quincy, Ill., and Harry Simpson of Pella, Iowa.

Harry wrote a note last summer which he hoped would fall into the hands of some one who desired to marry a desirable husband. He put the note into a bottle and threw the bottle into the Des Moines river.

It was Delia Cummins who fished the bottle from the waters of the Mississippi at Quincy. She read the note and wrote to the address. Thus began a correspondence which culminated in the determination to wed. The twain were to meet in Des Moines. Each was to wear a white ribbon in conspicuous sight. Yesterday was the day set for the happy union.

Delia arrived in Des Moines at 11:40. She waited two hours, then started up the street. On Sixth avenue she met her Harry. She leaped forward and stretched forth her hands as she saw a young man approaching her with a white ribbon decorating his chest.

And Harry? He gazed just ten seconds at Delia, then turned and fled. To the Humane society Delia told her sad story. She was furnished transportation back to Quincy and the romance ended.

RESCUES HIS BITTER FOE.

Connecticut State Senator Saves Opposition's Boss From Drowning.

Waterbury, Conn., Jan. 18.—State Senator Finton J. Phelan has rescued his direst political foe from death in the icy waters of Mad river. He is Patrick Kelly, republican leader of the Sixteenth assembly district, from which Phelan returned to the legislature term after term, after bitter political fights, in which Kelly headed the opposition.

Phelan was crossing the bridge shortly before midnight when he was stopped by a cry and without waiting to remove his overcoat vaulted the rail, jumping twenty feet into the icy water. He rescued the drowning man after a hard struggle, and half an hour in the water. He did not recognize him until both were recuperating at a farmhouse later.

Giddings' Riddance Sale.

Giddings will end up with much enthusiasm tomorrow what has proven to be one of the biggest selling weeks in their history. Their riddance sale of winter stocks has attracted trade from not only both sides of the bay but from the entire surrounding community—who speak in no small way of the very splendid buying opportunities offered them in winter wearables.

What Retail Markets Offer

Wax or green beans, 25 cents a qt.
Spinach, 50 cents a peck.
Mushrooms, 80 cents a lb.
Mint, 10 cents a bunch.
Radishes, 10 cents a bunch.
Leg of lamb, 20 cents a lb.
Lobsters, 40 cents a lb.
Red snappers, 18 cents a lb.

A portion of the anatomy of a lamb, which has forever ceased its gambols, would furnish the piece de resistance of a very nice Sunday dinner. The leg must be chosen, and when roasted to the correct turn, and served with mint sauce, a half hour of delight is awaiting the Sunday diners.

Spinach and beans and mushrooms are the vegetables of rather exclusive demand which are in the market, and live lobsters may also be mentioned among the luxuries of life which the market affords, and also strawberries. The market man has no trouble in supplying the demand for these last named articles.

Lovely pink, red snappers, from the gulf of Mexico, are also adorning the fish windows, and although some of the fish are to be had at no other season, none of them look especially attractive frozen and stiff as boards.

The Yearly Columbia Rebate Sale!

The sale that is different from others.

Read Columbia advertisements this month.

We are taking inventory this week.

Odd Suits For Young Men $5.00

Odd Garments For Boys $1.00

We've Turned Our Back on All Profits.

We are not looking for profits any longer. We are selling all our suits and overcoats, both for men and for boys, at prices of which the high-class Columbia merchandise is ashamed. The new green tickets have figures that may look all right on cheap stuff; here they are out of place. But it's our way of cleaning out our stock before the end of the season. And we are not afraid to look you right square in the eye when we show you the old white price tickets and the new green ones with the Rebate deducted—the same rebate to all comers—and "one price to all" as much as ever. The old timers among our salesmen say that we are foolish to run a sale in that way, that none of the other stores do it and that their bargains look bigger in the newspapers than ours do. They don't say that you people don't knew the difference, anyhow. But we take our chances with all the intelligent ones among you. We believe you are the majority and to have and hold the trade of the big majority of all parties and nationalities in Duluth is the aim of this big store. We have it now and we propose to increase and to hold it from season to season.

EXTRA SPECIAL FOR TOMORROW

LISTEN!

At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning we will place on sale about two hundred and fifty $2.50, $3.00 and $3.50

DULUTH CURLERS HAVE CINCHED TWO TROPHIES

C. D. Brewer Rink Wins First Prize in Meyers Event.

Two Duluth Rinks in Finals of Minneapolis Event.

The Meyers trophy finals were played in the 9 o'clock draw this morning, and C. D. Brewer's four, by defeating Stephen H. Jones' rink, 12 to 8, carried off first honors in the event.

The Meyers trophy is now the permanent property of the Duluth club, as any club winning the trophy three times, not necessarily consecutively, is entitled to its undisputed possession.

The first prizes for the individual players in this contest were four traveling clocks. The second prizes, going to S. H. Jones' four, consist of four handsome brass candlesticks, and S. W. Hanchett's rink from West Duluth, the only team from the Western to break into the jewelry class, takes third, four Waterman gold mounted fountain pens. The fourth prize, four Stetson hats, went to Waugh's rink from Winnipeg.

Play did not begin until late again this morning, and the last event of the draw was not concluded until after 1 o'clock.

A. H. Smith's defeat of Carson, 12 to 8, puts the Duluth man up against Reedal of Phillips in the semi-final round of the Soo, with the prospect of another match with Dunbar in the finals of the event. As there are two more draws to be played today, one at 4:30 and one at 7:30, it is probable that the finals in this event will be played off this evening, in which case the Smith-Dunbar contest would attract a big crowd.

By defeating Hurdon, 13 to 6, this morning, Duncan's four demonstrated that perhaps their defeat of A. H. Smith, last evening, was not a fluke. The play was fine from start to finish.

The defeat practically puts Hurdon out of the running for the Grand Average, as before the contest he and Bob Dunbar were tied for the trophy, while Dunbar had five chances to win to Hurdon's three. The Grand Average trophy is now cinched for the crack St. Paul rink, just as was expected from the moment the four showed up.

MacLeod's defeat of Halcrow of Bowesmount puts the Duluth rink into the finals for the Minneapolis event, and leaves the two rinks in the final round, both from the local club, thus cinching at least two trophies for the Duluth curlers.

McLeod of Minneapolis put Hanchett out of the running in the international 15 to 7, and Lorimer's defeat of Frick in the same contest was an exceptionally well played game.

In the finals of the Duluth event this afternoon, in the draw which should have started at 1:30 and which really got into progress about 1 o'clock, Hurdon and Dunbar were matched against each other for the Duluth Curling club trophy.

In the St. Paul Jobbers' semi-finals, Rochon was due to meet Myron and Reedal went up against Smith, both of which should be close, interesting games. In the international, Jones and Brewer, McLeod and McGregor and Dunlop and Duncan were scheduled to come together.

After the conclusion of this "1:30" draw there will remain but two games in the Minneapolis event and one in the St. Paul Jobbers' contest. The Duluth event will have been completed and the Smith or Reedal match with Dunbar will be all that is left in the Soo.

These four games should be all completed by the end of the second draw scheduled to start this evening at 7:30 and this will leave only three rinks who survive today's play in the international, on deck tomorrow. Most of the curlers are free to leave tonight, and many of the stanes are stacked up outside the rink labelled for their various destinations.

Some of the finest play of the bonspiel is scheduled for this evening, howver, and among other events, the dinner to be given by J. C. Myers to the winners of his trophy, is to be a feature of the evening.

The fact that the bonspiel has gone so far in its course with so few disputes, and so few conflicts in the draws and games, is highly creditable to the management of the big affair and especially to Secretary Blackwood, who has been in charge of the draws, and of the playing of the affair generally. The Duluth club has learned some valuable things in connection with this spiel, however, among which is the necessity for an umpire in order that games may be declared forfeited at once when a rink fails to show up when drawn. Another much needed improvement is a place for making the draws, shut off from the curlers, so that objections and kicks on the drawings will be an impossibility.

HAS RETIRED FROM BUSINESS

Mantle of J. P. Morgan Has Descended to His Son.

New York, Jan. 18.—J. P. Morgan has not been at his office since the holidays. This fact has led to the repeated rumors that he has been seriously ill, and the story was used yesterday by speculators interested in breaking prices.

While this was going on Mr. Morgan sat in the directors' room of the Grand Central depot, smoking a big cigar and in the best of health. When he heard of the rumor of his serious illness he telephoned Jack Morgan, his son, to send prompt denials over the telegraph wires to representatives of the firm, and give the facts to the Wall street news agencies.

While Mr. Morgan's obituary will not be written for years Wall street will see little of him in future except when financial matters of great importance require his attention. Mr. Morgan has practically retired from business. It is learned upon high authority that the financier has placed his affairs in such shape that it will not be necessary for him in the future to give personal attention to business. It will hereafter be in the hands of J. P. Morgan, Jr., his son, who has since Jan. 1 been the practical head of both the New York and London houses. Mr. Morgan remains the senior partner, but he will be a consulting rather than an active member.

Mr. Morgan is nearly 70, but he is in vigorous health and is both mentally and physically as alert as he was twenty years ago. He has really been an active factor in Wall street since the flotation of the United States Steel corporation, which he regarded as the crowning achievement of his career. The Northern Securities litigation forced him to give serious attention to Northern Pacific affairs, but since the dissolution of the Northern Securities company they no longer require his personal attention. What stocks he has are of an investment character entirely.

The death of Samuel Spencer was a deep personal loss to Mr. Morgan and had great influence is hastening his retirement from active affairs, according to one of his associates.

At the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. it is said that Mr. Morgan has since the holidays transacted all of his business in his library adjoining his Madison avenue home.

Damage Case Settled.

One personal injury case on the January calendar of the district court will not to come to trial. This morning judgment by stipulation, in the amount of $752, was directed in favor of Frank Erickson against the Republic Iron & Steel company, the proceeding indicating a settlement of the case on the basis of the cash payment to be made in the amount mentioned. The attorneys for Erickson were John R. Heino and Theodore Hollister. Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell represented the mining company.

Dismissed on Technicality.

Because the complaint named the wrong defendants, in part, the damage case of Albert Anderson against the Pittsburg Coal company was dismissed in the district court yesterday afternoon, after the trial had progressed for nearly half a day. Anderson was employed by the Pittsburg Coal & Dock company at the time of his injury, the property being taken over a few days later by the Pittsburg Coal company. While the interests are said to be pretty nearly identical, technically Annderson was suing a concern that did not own and control the dock when he was injured. The dismissal does not prevent the plaintiff from starting another action against the proper corporation.

Injury Trial Resumed.

Judge Morris, yesterday afternoon, denied the motion for a directed verdict in favor of the defendant in the case of Gesidlo Parchione, administrator of the estate of Camillie Parchione against the International Harvester company, being tried in the United States circuit court, and the trial was resumed. The testimony of the harvester company is being introduced today and it is not expected that the case will go to the jury before tomorrow afternoon.

Woodsman Is Parboiled.

Gust Hendrickson, a woodsman who was injured in a wreck on the Hines logging road near Hines Station, Wis., Wednesday evening, is lying in one of the Superior hospitals in a precarious condition. In addition to internal injuries, Hendrickson is said to be literally parboiled in some parts of his body as a result of being pinned for several minutes against a bursted steam pipe. He was riding in the cab of the locomotive when it tipped over. The injured man is about 23 years old, and, so far as known, has no relatives in this part of the country.

Court Discharges Receiver.

In the civil action brought by Peter O. Holland against Benjamin F. Bishop and C. A. Peterson, in the district court, a petition and order discharging O. J. Kilpen, receiver of the unexempt property of Mr. Peterson, also the sureties, was filed yesterday. The receiver's affidavit states that judgment against the defendants has long since been satisfied.

MARKET HAS WEAK TONE

Wheat Goes Off in All of the American Markets.

Flax is Quiet and About Unchanged in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 18.—Wheat was weaker in the American markets today, despite advances in the foreign markets and continued small receipts in the Northwest. Argentine shipments were somewhat larger than expected and this had a bearish effect. Liverpool closed ¼d to ½d higher. Paris unchanged to ¼c lower and Antwerp unchanged to ⅝c higher.

The Modern Miller says: "The winter wheat crop has an unusually forward growth for the season of the year in the central and southern regions. Owing to the open winter with unseasonable mild temperature and excessive rainfall the plant is green and tender presenting more of an early spring than a midwinter condition. Apprehension is felt of damage, if severe frost is experienced with no snow protection. The weather is also favorable for the incubation of field pests and reports are received of bugs ravishing the crop in Texas. From other states complaints are few, and the general condition of the crop is reported favorable. The fact that a large part of the crop is late sown and thus got a late start in growth, it is believed, may offset the effect of the unseasonable weather."

Primary receipts of wheat were 433,000 bus, last year 608,000 bus. Shipments 194,000 bus, last year 186,000 bus. Clearance of wheat and flour were 268,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 1,896,000 bus, against 736,000 bus last week and 640,000 bus a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were 649,000 bus, last year 518,000 bus. Shipments 498,000 bus, last year 502,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 303,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of corn were 520,000 bus.

The May option closed ½c lower in Duluth and New York, ⅜@½c in Chicago ¼@¾c in Minneapolis, ¼@⅜c in St. Louis, ⅞@1c in Kansas City and 1¢ in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅝@½c in Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City, ¾c in New York and Winnipeg and ⅛@¼c in St. Louis.

May corn closed ⅛@¼c lower in Chicago and was ¼d to ⅜d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ¼c lower in Chicago.

Wheat trading was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ¼c lower at 79⅛c, advanced to 79⅜c by 9:40, declined to 79⅛c by 10:06, rallied to 79⅜@¼c by 10:35, fell off to 79c by 10:45, rallied to 79⅝@¾c at 11:05, fell off to 78⅝c by 12:40, rallied to 79c by 12:50 and closed at 78⅞c, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. July wheat opened unchanged at 80¼c, advanced to 80⅝@⅝c and declined by the close to 79⅝c, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed unchanged and cash spring wheat was higher, selling on a basis of ⅞c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull throughout the session. The foreign flax markets closed unchanged. January flax was inactive and closed ½c lower than yesterday at $1.18½. May flax opened ¼c lower at $1.22¼, advanced to $1.22⅜ and declined by the close to $1.22½, unchanged from yesterday. July flax was inactive and closed ¼c higher than yesterday at $1.23¼.

Oats closed ¼c lower and the other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Liberal Wheat Receipts From Argentina Presents Fluctuation.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—The wheat market opened steady today with an active trade. Liberal shipments from Argentina offset the continued small receipts from the Northwest and prevented much fluctuation in the early trading. The greater part of the transactions were by commission houses. May wheat opened unchanged to a shade higher at 77¾@77⅞c and sold at 77¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 283 cars against 255 cars last week and 405 cars a year ago.

The market weakened late in the session on realizing sales, May declining to 76½c. The close was easy with May ⅝c lower at 76⅝@⅝c.

The corn market was active and prices firm because of unsettled weather and local receipts which were below previous estimates. The local receipts were 285 cars with none of contract grade. May corn opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 45⅛c to 45¼c and sold at 45¼c.

Corn weakened along with wheat and May sold down to 44⅞c. The close was easy with May ⅛@¼c lower at 44⅞@45c.

The oats market opened more quietly than for several days past, the sentiment, however, inclining strongly to the bullside of the market. Unfavorable weather and small local receipts contributed to the strength of the market. May oats opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 38c to 38⅛c and sold at 38¼c. Local receipts were 115 cars.

The provisions market was dull, but prices were steady because of a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. May pork opened 2½c higher at $16.62½. Lard was unchanged at $9.55. Ribs were unchanged at $9.17½.

Closing prices: Wheat—May, 76⅝@¾c; July, 76¼c. Corn—May, 44⅝@45c; July, 44¾c. Oats—May, 37¾c; July, 34⅞@35. Pork—May, $16.47½; July, $16.60. Lard—May, $9.42½@9.45; July, $9.47½c. Ribs—May, $9.10; July, $9.20@9.22½. Rye—Cash, 62@65. Barley—Cash, 45@56c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 74c; No. 3 red, 70@73½c; No. 2 hard, 73½@74½c; No. 3 hard, 69½@72c; No. 1 northern, 80@81c; No. 2 northern, 77@80c; No. 3 spring, 71@79c. The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 18.—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 2@6 points in response to lower cables and larger port receipts than expected owing to outside clearances. Trading was quiet at the decline and prices fluctuated within a range of about 4 points during the early session with the unfavorable influence of lower cables, small English spot sales and the fear of another unfavorable weekend statement, offset to some extent by thirty-six towns in Georgia and Ala a private report showing stocks at thirty-six towns in Georgia and Alabama to be the smallest in the last five years with the exception of the small crop year of 1903-4. The market was quiet but fairly steady during the middle of the morning on about the initial basis.

Cotton spot closed steady; middling uplands, 10.80; middling gulf 11.05. Sales 1,318 bales. Futures closed very steady; Jan. 926; Feb. 931; March, 941; April, 948; May, 953; June, 957; July, 962; Aug. 955; Oct. 961.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: More activity, more profit-taking and more irregularity in prices. Such issues as Copper Range, Arcadian, Trinity and Shannon ruled the most active during the morning session, the two former working to a lower and the two latter to a higher level. The market as a whole again showed splendid absorptive powers and a good resistance to any tendency toward promiscuous liquidation. The creation of a new high record on Shannon, 23, the recovery of the issue of Copper Range from 95 to 96⅞, and the steadiness and activity of Trinity around 38 were the features of the afternoon. The close was active with prices irregular.

DECISIONS BY SUPREME COURT

Six of Varying Importance Are Handed Down.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court today handed down six opinions as follows:

Ramsey county—Henrietta N. White vs. Standard Life & Accident Insurance company, action to recover on an accident policy when her husband, the insured, was afflicted with diabetes at the time he received injuries. In the lower court the company was held exempt, because it was shown that diabetes aggravated the injury resulting in death, and the lower court verdict was affirmed.

Margaret Curan vs. St. Paul City Railway company, order reversed and judgment entered for plaintiff.

State of Minnesota vs. Michael Callahan, appellant, Itasca county. Verdict of lower court justified by the evidence. Judgment and order affirmed.

John M. Jones vs. Great Northern Railroad company, Itasca county, personal injuries case; judgment affirmed.

John M. Jones vs. James E. Ford, county auditor, Red Lake county, appellant. Action to restrain the auditor from complying with the orders of the county commissioners to prepare for an election for a vote on the proposed removal of the county seat, it being so ordered by a mandamus of the county court. Order reversed.

BALLINGER IS TO SUCCEED RICHARDS.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The president today nominated Richard A. Ballinger of Seattle, Wash., to be commissioner of the general land office to succeed W. A. Richards, who is to retire on March 4. Mr. Ballinger is a member of a law firm in Seattle and has been mayor of that city.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co: A heavy selling movement was started early which indicated that insiders had withdrawn their support from the market. There seemed to be no special reason for such liquidation except that those in power do not care to support the market further. Money continues easy and a favorable bank statement is looked for. The selling of St. Paul was supposed to be for Standard Oil account. The general list closed weak and would indicate a further break unless unforeseen support should be put into the market.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Heavy Selling Movement and Close Was Feverishly Active.

Last Prices Were About the Lowest of the Session.

New York, Jan. 18.—There was some slight irregularity in the opening tone of the stock market today. The majority of stocks were higher. There was moderate activity in the dealings. St. Paul advanced 1¼; Virginia Iron 1½; and General Electric 1. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie fell 3 and Colorado & Southern second preferred about a point.

Professional operators discovered it was easier to depress prices than to advance them, and promptly put out moderate lines of stocks, which carried the list to a fraction below yesterday's closing. The losses in a few stocks were more pronounced, Great Northern pfd losing 2¼; Northwestern, 2; Deleware & Hudson and Chicago Terminal preferred, 1½; G. N. Ore certificates, 1⅜, and Atlantic Coast line and National Biscuit, 1. Hasty covering caused a feeble rise, but at 11 o'clock the decline was again established. Lackawanna recovered more than ½ of yesterday's loss selling at 500, a rise of 20 points. Southern Railway preferred, Pacific Mail and Railway Steel Spring also gained a point and Corn Products preferred, 1⅜.

Prices moved sluggishly for a time, but the supply of stocks increased largely again and the decline was renewed. Lackawanna recovered 29 points of yesterday's fall, but reacted 14 points. Westinghouse Electric rose 4; American Smelt 7⅛ and Southern Railway preferred 2⅛. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo and United Rubber preferred fell 6 each and United States Realty 6. Union Pacific, Reading, Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island preferred, Norfolk & Western, United States Steel and Colorado Fuel declined 1 to 1¼; Northern Pacific and Kansas City Southern 1½; New York, New Haven & Hartford 2; Northwestern and Great Northern Ore certificates 3 and Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha preferred 5. Bonds were steady.

Prices melted away rapidly under the enormous amount of stocks that were thrown on the market between 12 and 1 o'clock. The successful retiring tactics of the bears caused uneasiness among the bulls and there was a large amount of long stock disposed of. The Harrimans, Reading, St. Paul, the Hill stocks, Amalgamated Copper and United States Steel all were extremely weak at one time or another. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie fell an extreme 10¼; Delaware & Hudson 5; Anaconda 6; Great Northern preferred 4½; Amalgamated Copper 3⅝; Northern Pacific 2¼ and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, Reading, Smelting, Colorado Fuel and National Biscuit 1½ to 2.

A temporary lull in the decline was not followed by any substantial rise, the market falling into dullness. These conditions encouraged the bear party to renew their drives and the market was driven down again to a lower level than before. All of the important stocks suffered severely. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie slumped 13; Anaconda 7; Great Northern preferred 5¼; Illinois Central 3½; Canadian Pacific and Amalgamated Copper 3; Reading 2⅝; Union Pacific 2½; Kansas & Texas 2; Atchison, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, 1⅝; United States Steel and Lead 1½ to 1⅝, again at 2 o'clock. The market rallied sharply from the bottom, recovering 4 points and others large fractions.

The market closed feverishly active and unsettled and the last prices were within the lowest. The covering by shorts rallied the market, some of the leading active stocks recovering 1¼ to 2. Pressure was renewed again, and fluctuations indicated a contest between professionals for control of the market. Wells-Fargo sold at a decline of 13. A late drive was concentrated against speculative leaders, and declines were forced in St. Paul of 3, Northern Pacific 6⅛, Amalgamated Copper 3⅞, Reading 4¼, Kansas & Texas 3¼, Union Pacific 4⅛ and Smelting 2⅞.

WIFE SPENT HIS MONEY

Traveled Over the Country Until Funds Were Low.

James Mutch, an Engineer, Wishes Wife Placed In Hospital.

Claiming that his wife has lost her reason, that she has been traveling about the country and raising disturbances in hotels and other public places, until her funds are about exhausted, James Mutch, a marine engineer well known in the local marine circles, has made application to the probate court of this county for relief.

Mr. Mutch is now in Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Mutch is with him. He says she refuses to go to any hospital, or private sanitarium for treatment, although the physicians have informed him that his wife would soon recover with the proper restraint and medical treatment. He claims that the only thing left for him to do is to use coercian in placing her where she can have the proper treatment, but that the authorities in Michigan have refused to render any assistance for the reason he is still regarded as a resident of Minnesota.

In his letter to Probate Judge Middlecoff, Mr. Mutch says that his wife's malady dates back to the death of their little son about five years ago. Although she showed at times signs of great mental depression the family got along all right until about a year ago when Mr. Mutch sold some property, for which he realized about $1,400. Mrs. Mutch is alleged by her husband to have taken the money, packed her trunk and left Duluth. During the past year she has, so Mr. Mutch says, been traveling all over the country, having visited Chattanooga and Kansas City. He says Mrs. Mutch has been turned away from hotel after hotel by reason of her talking and violent screaming when she had a violent spell. Mr. Mutch figures that her funds must be about exhausted for the reason that she has again rejoined him at Detroit.

As Mr. Mutch has not yet lost his residence in this county and state, he may have his wife sent to the state hospital in Minnesota for treatment, providing a board of examining physicians here should decide that her condition is such as to justify the court in committing her. Judge Middlecoff has written Mr. Mutch to the effect that he will bring his wife to Duluth, and file information with the court, the usual legal formalities will be observed as regards the examination and commitment.

Not long ago the probate court had a case very much similar to that above mentioned. Information was received by letter that the wife of a range man, who was visiting relatives in North Dakota, had lost her reason, and the relatives did not know what to do with her. The North Dakota authorities refused to take charge of her as she was not a resident of that state. The probate court communicated with the woman's husband, at Chisholm, and notified him that if he would bring his wife to Duluth an examination would be ordered. This was done and the woman was committed.

It has been the policy of the probate court of this county not to put the county to the expense of sending after alleged insane persons whose residence is in this state, but who may be temporarily located in other states. If the relatives of the afflicted person will bring him before the court the case will be taken care of in the usual way by the county and state.

Sealshipt Oysters

Let us send you some of our Sealshipt Oysters, the kind that come in Patent Carriers—ice and oysters separate—all the flavor kept in—all the contamination kept out. The kind of oysters you have always wished you could get. No chemical preservative is ever used with Sealshipt Oysters, and they are guaranteed absolutely pure, clean and fresh. They are entirely different from the "doped," watered oysters shipped in slimy, unclean tubs.

Sealshipt Oysters are full measure solid meats and just as cheap as the "watered" tub oysters at a lower price. If you want to pay a high price for water, buy the tub oysters; if you don't want to pay for water, but do desire to get full value for your money, let us send you some of our delicious Sealshipt Oysters. You don't know how good oysters can be until you have tried them.

Sealshipt Oysters Fresh Every Morning.

PLINY ON GEMS.

Pliny declared that a diamond was so hard that if placed on an anvil and struck with a sledge hammer it would give back a blow of such force as to shiver both anvil and hammer to pieces, says the Jewelers' Circular Weekly.

Another of his wonderful tales states that "on the shore of the Island of Cyprus there was a stone lion having eyes formed of emerald, which shone so brightly that all the fishes were ingloriously frightened away. The fishermen accordingly pulled the emeralds out and put in glass eyes instead, whereupon the wise fishes became bolder and returned to their accustomed nets."

THE WORST CONCERNING THE GREAT DISASTER AT KINGSTON, JAMAICA, IS NOW KNOWN; ABOUT 700 ARE DEAD

Town Itself is Completely Wrecked, But Few Houses Standing.

The Seriously Injured in Hospitals Number About 500.

More American Warships Arrive With Food and Medicines.

New York, Jan. 19.—News from Kingston, Jamaica, is still filtering in slowly and is twenty-four hours late, but the worst is now apparently known. The town itself is a wreck, very few of the houses standing remaining habitable and the populace is living in the open. Food and medical supplies continue scarce, but relief ships are hurrying to the stricken city from many quarters, so that there will soon be an alleviation in this respect.

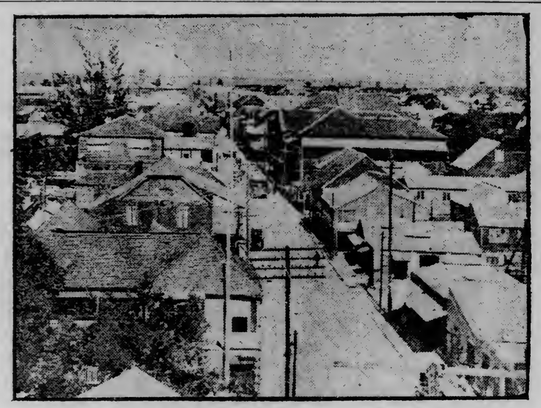

The dead list is probably about 700 and the seriously injured, in hospitals, number in the neighborhood of 500. Many others who were injured are being cared for at their temporay homes.

Progress is being made in clearing away the debris. Dynamite is resorted to in clearing away menacing ruins.

Good order prevails in the city. Admiral Davis, who is in the harbor with the battleships Missouri and Indiana, was called on for help in the work of policing the city, and he promptly responded; landing marines. These soldiers are picketing the streets and assisting the British authorities in the maintenance of order.

All mariners were warned that the two lighthouses at the harbor entrance have been destroyed and that approach to the harbor at night is perilous. Another steamer approached Kingston and not knowing the conditions is reported to have suffered. This is the Hamburg-American line steamer Prinz Eitel Friederich. The vessel, according to a Kingston dispatch received by the

SENT STEAMER TO THE BOTTOM

The Vaderland Collides With Naworth Castle, Sinking Her.

Dover, England, Jan. 19.—The Red Star line steamer Vaderland, from New York for Antwerp, in a dense fog, collided with and sank the Dundee steamer Naworth Castle, four miles east of the South Goodwin lightship, during the night.

So far as is known only three members of the Naworth Castle's crew of twenty are missing.

The Vaderland's bow is damaged below the water line, but the bulkhead remained tight, so that there was no danger of the ship sinking.

TAWNEY FOR POSTMASTER.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 19.—The term of F. E. Gartside, who for eight years has been postmaster of Winona, will expire in March. He is not a candidate for reappointment, and it is probable the place will go to George P. Tawney, who has been deputy postmaster since 1890.

ITASCA BOARD STILL APART

But Agrees to Accept Bonds of New County Officers.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aad A. Tone of Northome, who is a member of the "filibustering" board of county commissioners of Itasca county, was in Bemidji yesterday afternoon, returning to his home from attending a meeting of the board at Grand Rapids.

Mr. Tone stated that it was impossible to get the four members of the board together on any sort of an organization of the board, election of a chairman, and other formal business of that kind. However, the four members did agree to sign the acceptance of the bonds of the incoming county officers, so that the entire business of the county would not be at a standstill until the situation was relieved.

It is expected that a bill will pass the legislature, authorizing Governor Johnos nto appoint an additional commissioner for Itasca county, to serve with the present four members, in order that business may be transacted. The bill provides that the appointee must not be a resident of any township which at present has a resident member of the board of commissioners.

As soon as Governor Johnson announces his appointment of the fifth commissioner, and the appointee qualifies, another meeting of the board will be called.

THE RIGHTS OF KELLY

To Enjoy Full Baseball Priyileges Are Unquestioned.

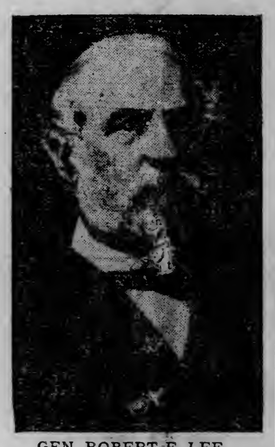

President Havenor of the Milwaukee Club Makes Statement.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 19.—The Milwaukee Daily News today prints an authorized statement of Charles S. Havenor, president and owner of the Milwaukee Baseball club of the American association and a director in the association, in which the Milwaukee owner reviews the case of Mike Kelly, recently expelled from the American association and later engaged to manage the Des Moines team, and says there is nothing in the records of the National association and National commission which will stop Mr. Kelly from enjoying the baseball rights to which he is entitled.

Mr. Havenor cites the various stages of the Kelly-Lydiard controversy, which resulted in the sale of the Minneapolis club and the referring of the whole matter to the national commission. The statement continues as follows:

"The National commission, in reporting the matter back, took the ground that it was an internal affair of the American association and refused to render a decision and by their

FRIGHTFUL COLLISION BETWEEN FAST RUNNING TRAINS ON BIG FOUR BRINGS AWFUL DEATH TO A SCORE

MYRTLE BANK HOTEL, KINGSTON,
Completely Destroyed by the Earthquake and Many Lives Lost.

Many of the Victims Are Cremated in Burning of the Cars.

Engineer Failed to See Block Signals on Account of Fog.

Accident Occurred Near Fowler, a Small Town in Indiana.

Kankakee, Ill., Jan. 19.—Twenty persons are believed to have been killed or burned to death in the wreck of passenger train No. 28, eastbound,, at Fowler, Ind., at 2 o'clock this morning. The wreck occurred on the Big Four road, the passenger train which left Chicago at 11:30 p. m., last night running into a freight train. The cause of the collision is said to be that the engineer on the passenger train failed to see the block signals. Fire followed the collision, adding horror to the wreck, and it is believed that more passengers were burned to death than were killed by the collision. There were twenty-five passengers in the combination day and baggage car, and only five of them escaped alive.

The passenger train consisted of three Pullmans, private car of Vice President Schaff of the Big Four, and a combination day and baggage coach. Some of the passengers in the Pullmans and private car were injured, but none killed.

None of the freight crew were injured.

Some of the injured passengers were brought here in a private car. Mrs. Schaff, who had been visiting in Chicago, was in the private car on her way to Cincinnati and she had some of the injured taken on board and brought here, assisting in dressing their injuries. The number of injured is said to be about forty. Three of these brought here are not expected to live.

The known dead:

CONDUCTOR J. P. HIGGINS of passenger train.

NO FUEL FOR LOCOMOTIVES

Railroads in Oregon and Washington Practically at Standstill.

Portland, Ore., Jan. 19.—Railroads are practically at a standstill in Oregon and Washington because of the inability of the companies to obtain fuel for locomotives. The car shortage is disastrous, and repeated floods, landslides and snow in the mountains have all contributed to bring about a congestion without a parallel in this state. The Northern Pacific virtually has placed an embargo on all traffic east from Portland.

STATE DAIRYMEN

Will Meet in Annual Convention at St. Paul Next Week.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota State Dairymen's association will hold their annual convention in St. Paul next week.

Several members have signified their intention of exhibiting their products, and a pro rata fund of $450 has been set aside, besides first, second and third premiums for the best showings. Among the features will be a machinery exhibit.

A banquet has been arranged for Wednesday evening, and Governor Johnson has been asked to speak.

WINNIPEG FLYER LEAVES RAILS

Wrecked Ten Miles Out of Minneapolis; Several Hurt.

Minneapolis,, Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Winnipeg Flyer of the Great Northern road, southbound, was wrecked ten miles out of Minneapolis about 9 a. m. today. The entire train, with the exception of the engine and baggage and express cars, left the rails. Three coaches, the observation car and two sleepers, turned over. Three persons, two men and one woman, who were in the overturned cars, were injured, but not seriously.

The accident was caused by a train which went west about midnight last night. A car left the rails, and for a stretch of half a mile the flange of the wheels cut the bolts of the fishplates. When the Winnipeg Flyer struck the track on which the bolts had been cut, the rail gave way.

PICKS VIOLETS IN GARDEN.

Flowers Bloom in Winter at Manistique Without Protection.

Manistique, Mich., Jan. 19.—That Manistique is in the "banana belt," this winter at least, seems demonstrated by the fact that during the week there has been picked from the flower garden of Mrs. P. Bolace, living on the West side, a bunch of violets. The plants have been standing out doors all winter and are without any protection. The phenomenon has attracted much attention.

LEGISLATURE HAS WAY WELL PAVED FOR EARLY BEGINNING OF ACTIVITY

First Hearing Will be on Two-Cent Fare Bill.

Solons in a Dilemma Over the Proposed Investigations.

Proposal to Give Members $250 Each for Expenses.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second week of the legislative session has reached its end without much apparent advance in legislative work, but actually, though superficial observation discerns no particular gain, matters are well advanced, and the way is paved for an early beginning of real activity.

The committees are all appointed, the usual shiftings of those who arrange trades in committee assignments among themselves have been accomplished, the principal committees have got together to look over the work before them and to talk about getting at it, and next week business will begin in earnest.

The house railroad committee met yesterday afternoon and took a glance over the bills that have been referred to it, and though it took no action on

TO MOVE HOTEL ACROSS ICE.

Building Will be Cut Into Sections for Trip Over Bay.

Escanaba, Mich., Jan. 19.—One of the most novel undertakings ever attempted upon the Upper Peninsula will be the removal of Hawarden inn, at Gladstone, to Escanaba. It is proposed to cut the building into four parts and remove it across the bay on the ice as soon as the ice has attained sufficient thickness. It is estimated that the total cost of removing the building and reconstructing it will be over $12,000. The hotel is owned by a Chicago man and it is said that its present location has proved unsatisfactory from a monetary standpoint.

P. M. RINGDAL,
New Member of the State Board of Control.

RINGDAL GOES ON BOARD OF CONTROL

Crookston Man is Appointed to Succeed Judge Gould.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson today announced the appointment of P. M. Ringdal of Crookston to be a member of the state board of control, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Gould of Winona. Mr. Ringdal will assume the duties of his new position on Monday next.

He is 45 years of age and is a native of Minnesota, having been born in Goodhue county. He was educated in the public schools there and at the age of 19 entered the service of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company as a telegraph operator, continuing in that business with different companies until 1889. In August, 1888, Mr. Ringdal located in Polk county, and later left the railroad business and started a marble works, at which he has been very successful. WATERS OF THE OHIO AT CINCINNATI HIGHEST SINCE THE FLOOD OF 1884

Who Is Now the Guest of Earl Grey, the Governor-General of Canada.

City Flooded for Four Blocks Back of Water Front.

At Newport Fully 5,000 People Are Homeless and Destitute.

Schools Are Closed and Used to House the People.

Cincinnati, Jan. 19.—There was no relief from the flood conditions today. At 8 a. m. the stage at this point was 62 feet, the water during the night having passed the highest records since that of February, 1884. For a distance of four squares from the normal water front the lower portions of the city are flooded. An unknown man attempted to reach friends who were on a second floor on Water street during the night, but his wagon was overturned at a deep place in the flood, and driver and horses disappeared. The town of Calif, just above the city, is reported completely under water today. Covington, whose high location has caused it to be considered fortunate, is feeling the effects of the flood by isolation and the cutting off of communications. In Newport it is estimated that fully 5,000 people are homeless and almost destitute. There are nearly 100 blocks under water, and the water is encroaching on others slowly. All schools have been closed and are being used to house the homeless. Free soup houses were opened there today.

FINAL GAMES PLAYED IN THE BIG BONSPIEL

Dunbar Rink Carries Off Two Trophies and Grand Average.

MacLeod, Duncan and Hurdon Make Showing for Duluth.

Winning from Reedal 10 to 8, Bob Dunbar, "the world's greatest curler," cinched his second trophy in the bonspiel here this morning, in the finals in the Canadian Soo event.

In some way it was the best played and most interesting contest of the spiel, as the two rinks are considered about the best in the bunch. Reedal had a much higher class of support from his rink than did the St. Paul skip whose first and second men frequently hogged their stones, or exceeded the speed limit in getting down the ice to the back boards.

It was a contest of superior and heady skipping, against accurate curling.

Lem Defield, Dunbar's third, was almost as reliable as the skip himself, and time and again, when Reedal had a nice lay of stones, guarded by a well nigh impregnable fort, just over the hog line, Defield and Dunbar either swept the ice, or dropped a pretty draw on the button.

W. D. BREWER.

Reedal got a lead of two in the first four ends, and the feeling that Dunbar had at last met his match was prevalent. Dunbar laid three stones in the next end, however by magnificent generalship and established a lead of 2 up, which he maintained until the end, the game from this point being remarkably even.

Fro mthe fifth end on, the two rinks alternated on the ends, neither capturing a head twice in succession and one stone being all that either sido could lay in an end. Reedal's four showed some fine work in running shots, but missed two at critical points, which boosted the St. Paul four considerably.

"RON" SMITH.

* * *

The Minneapolis club event with two Duluth fours fighting out the first final round, attracted considerable attention. Duncan went down to defeat before R. J. MacLeod's four to the tune of 4 to 9 after a pretty fight.

"BILLY" CRAIG
Skip of the "Fireside" Rink.

Eight of the twelve ends went to MacLeod's aggregation, neither rink getting a stone in the house in the seventh. In the third and sixth MacLeod laid two.

* * *

The two Winnipeg skips, Rochon and Carson fought it out this morning for first place in the St. Paul Jobbers' event and the contest was nip and tuck from start to finish. Up to the seventh end Rochon was three up, but the contest went to Carson in the last half of the game, after the lead had changed hands several times, by a score of one up, 10 to 9. The skips were about as evenly matched as any two men on the ice, and being perfectly familiar with each other's style of play the game was a decidedly interesting one.

* * *

Dunbar has also cinched the Grand Average trophy with a record of thirteen games won to two lost, as his forfeit in the International does not county in making up the average.

Carson's four is second with a record of nine games won and three lost, while Hurdon, with ten won and four lost, makes a close third, although in reality three of these victories should be credited to Ron Smith, who skipped the rink a part of the time. MacLeod of Duluth is fourth with a score of eight and three, while Reedal and Duncan, with a record of nine won and four lost, are tied for fifth place.

Dunbar's four fares richly in the prize line. Four cut-glass water bottles is the reward for their victory in the Duluth Curling club trophy, and the prize they earned as victors in the Canadian Soo event is four pairs of Lemaire opera glasses. Four handsome watch fobs, with solid gold pendants suitably engraved, will go to them as Grand Average holders, and as Third in the St. Paul Jobbers' event they will receive four revolvers.

The remainder of the prize-winning rinks in the tournament are as follow:s

MEYERS EVENTS.

C. D. Brewer first, four traveling clocks; S. H. Jones, second, handsome brass candle sticks; S. W. Hanchett, third, Waterman gold mounted fountain pens; Waugh, fourth, four Stetson hats.

DULUTH EVENT.

Hurdon, second, four carving sets; W. D. Brewer, third, game carving sets; Duncan, fourth, four sets of military hair brushes.

ST. PAUL JOBBERS EVENT.

Carson, first, four silver coffee pots; Rochon, second, four traveling clocks; Dunbar, third, four revolvers; Myron, fourth, four Tam O'Shanters.

CANADIAN SOO EVENT.

Reedal, second, four silver ladies' toilet sets; Lorimer, third, four silver bon bon dishes; A. H. Smith, fourth, four ladies' leather handbags.

MINNEAPOLIS CURLING CLUB EVENT.

MacLeod, first, two silver mounted tankards, one solid mounted cigar holder, and one solid copper cigar holder; Duncan, second, four silver handled silk umbrellas; Halcrow, third, four silver drinking cups; Hurdon, fourth, four fishing rods.

The international event had not been concluded up to noon today. In the two games played this morning Labatt of Minneapolis, defeated McLeod of the same town, 14 to 2, and Smith defeated McGillvray, 10 to 5.

TRIAL NEARLY ENDED.

Arguments of Attorney's Being Heard in Farchione Case.

The testimony for both sides in the personal injury suit of Gesidio Farchione, administrator of the estate of Camillo Farchione, against the International Harvester company, was completed in the United States circuit court this morning and the arguments of the atorneys was begun.

Farchione is suing for $5,000 damages for the death of his brother, Camillo Farchione, while working in the mine of the harvester company on the range. It has been claimed that the death was caused by the negligence of the employes of the company, in not giving warning of the approach of the train on the track upon which Farchione was working.

The argument of H. T. Abbott for the harvester company was heard this morning, and that of J. De La Motte for Farchione was begun at the opening of the afternoon session. The case will probably go to the jury before court adjourns this afternoon.

REGISTRATION DAY TUESDAY

Saturday of Next Week Will be the Last Chance.

Next Tuesday, Jan. 22, is registration day for the coming elections, and the election judges will receive their supplies for the work Monday. The same judges who officiated at the last election will be on hand for work Tuesday, and the same places which served as polls at that time will be used Tuesday.

This is not a last chance to register, but in the wards where there is any close contest for the aldermanic honors, an effort will be made by both candidates to get their supporters into line Tuesday. In the First and the Sixth the greater proportion of the voters got out at the primaries, and so are already registered for the coming elections, but in the other wards the majority of the voters are yet to be signed.

Saturday will be the last chance the voters will have to register, and by reason of the close contests in several of the wards quite a heavy registration is expected on the two days.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS.

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.—A Duluth Citizen Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Duluth people testify to permanent cures.

J. Vaughn of 532 First street west, Duluth, Minn., says: "In the summer of 1898 I told the people of Duluth through our local newspapers of the splendid results I had obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My trouble was a kidney and bladder disorder that was painful and annoying, and had clung to me for a considerable time. The kidney secretions were quite irregular and contained a sediment which varied in color and condition. There were dull, heavy pains through the loins, and I was very restless at night, being unable to remain in one position for any length of time. The trouble was becoming worse, when I was induced to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I continued taking them until entirely relieved of the affliction. I am glad to say that the cure has been permanent, and will always be pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

The cut was quite deep and Mr. Dash will not be able to use his hand for some time.

Fined For Assault.

When Anton Sapolia, who in spite of his name, is not a resident of the Spotless town district, refused to pay for drinks he had received from Timothy Fitzgibbons, a bowery bartender yesterday, Timothy waxed angry and proceeded to administer to Sapolia a sound thrashing, cutting his upper lip and otherwise bruising the offender's features. Sapolia made a hasty exit, but by his battered up appearance attracted the attention of a policeman, who on hearing his story arrested the pugilistic Timothy and led him stationward. Judge Windom imposed a fine of $20 and costs and informed the offender that a civil action was the only way to recover in a case like this.

INSANITY APPARENTLY INCREASING IN COUNTY

Probate Judge's Report Shows 35 Per Cent More Cases.

Office is Greatly Handicapped From Lack of Room.

Is insanity on the increase in St. Louis county?

Apparently it is, from the records of the probate court, as shown by the annual report of Judge Middlecoff. The number of cases brought before the court during the year 1906 exceed those in 1905 by about 35 per cent.

There were, as the report shows, 105 insane cases handled in the probate court as compared with seventy-seven in 1905, and seventy-four in 1904. Of the 105 cases before the court last year, there were eighty commitments, as compared with sixty-four commitments in 1905, and sixty-eight in 1904. Some of the persons committed were found to have lost their reason through drunkenness. The mental condition of others was due to homesickness, principally among foreigners; sickness, and vicious habits.

Of the number committed, seventy-three were men and thirty-two were women. Of the seventy-seven examined in 1905, forty-nine were men and twenty-eight were women.

The probate court is handling double the business that it did three and five years ago with a slight increase in the clerical force, but in the same limited quarters that the court occupied for years past. Recently The Herald had occasion to mention the protest that has been made by attorneys who have business in the probate court and who claim that the present facilities are so very inadequate that they and all persons having business with the probate office are greatly inconvenienced because of the lack of room.

Judge Middlecoff's report of the business of his office not only furnishes some interesting statistics, but it gives the general public an idea of the magnitude of the work that is now being done under adverse circumstances.

The following statement covers the work of the probate office for 1907 in a general way:

Number of local wills admited to probate	47
Number of foreign wills admitted to probate	26
Number of cases in guardianship	70
Number of intestate estates administered	212
Number of cases to determine heirship	18
Number of cases commenced during the year	478

During 1906, there were filed with the clerk of the probate court, 10,058 separate documents, of which over two-thirds had to be recorded in the office. Each instrument was registered and indexed in from one to three books.

A reference to Judge Middlecoff's docket discloses 777 hearings docketed and heard during the past year, in addition to passing on more than 250 claims filed against the estates of deceased persons.

The hearings from the docket were distributed as follows:

January	83
February	59
March	67
April	78
May	67
June	56
July	52
August	63
September	55
October	58
November	69
December	70
Total number of hearings	777

Under the present laws the state pays the expense of transporting criminals from the county jail to the various state penal institutions, where they are to serve out their sentences, but the state does not pay the expense of conveying foreign insane patients from this county to the state asylums, or out of the state. That expense falls on the county.

An effort will probably be made this winter to get legislation which will provide that the expense be borne by the state as in the criminal cases.

SKYSCRAPERS MAKE WEALTH

Acres Added to City Areas —Values Increased by Millions.

New York, Jan. 19.—Estimates of the value of the space that skyscrapers have added to the working area of big cities like New York and Chicago reach a fabulous total. In Manhattan alone more than 200 acres of floor space have been added to the financial district bounded by Park Row, William street and Broadway since the steel frame came into use. This total is being still further increased by the erection of nineteen new skyscrapers, costing $40,000,000, which will supply 3,000,000 more square feet, or seventy acres. The largest of these skyscrapers, the biggest office building in the world, will add twelve acres.

Values in the financial section of the city have increased to such an extent that recently a Broadway plot sold for $600 a square foot—a rate equal to $26,000,000 an acre. The ground space of the business district is fixed quantity—it cannot be extended; but the actual working space is limited only by the height to which steel buildings can rise. This height has steadily grown greater, until now a building forty-one stories high is in course of construction.

The ground area upon which the nineteen skyscrapers now going up will stand is only a little more than three acres. Yet 100,000 persons will be housed on these three acres every day without crowding.

A most important economical factor is the wonderful speed made possible by the use of steel and hollow tile in syscraper construction, effecting an estimated saving of time of from six to twelve months. This means a saving of $300,000 in rentals on two average buildings. Hollow brick have revolutionized their methods of modern building.

Those who think that skyscraper building is being overdone may be surprised to know that long before a new one is finished a large part of its is rented. The safety of the fireproof skyscraper is no longer questioned. Architects and builders are agreed that the steel frame structure is the safest and most enduring type. This is due mainly to the fact that the terra cotta fireproofing used to protect the steel has made even the tallest and heaviest building practically immune from corrosion as well as from the danger of conflagration.

BILLS OF IMPORTANCE

Passed House by Unaminous Consent During Quiet Day.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Two bills of considerable importance were passed today in the house among a number of measures which were considered by unanimous consent. One authorizes the city of St. Louis to construct a bridge across the Mississippi river at that point, if the actual construction of the bridge, authorized by the act, approved June 23, 1906, shall be commenced within one year from the approval of the first act, and completed within three years from the same date.

The other measrue empowers local inspectors to license and classify masters, chief mates and first and second mates of vessels, if in charge of a watch, engineers, pilots of all steam vessels and the masters of sail vessels of over 700 gross tons, and all other vessels of over 100 gross tons, carrying passengers for fare.

MILWAUKEE POLICE MAY HAVE ESCAPED CRIMINAL.

Milwaukee, Jan. 19.—A one-legged mulatto said to be Robert Eaton, a murderer, who escaped from Arkansas penitentiary six months ago was captured by Milwaukee detectives today. Eaton was convicted of murder Nov. 24, 1903, in Little Rock, Ark., and sentenced to serve a term of twenty-one years. He offered no resistance when taken, saying that his name was Bert Macree and that he had been here three months working as a teamster, coming originally from Kentucky. Eaton's measurements tally with those of the man wanted.

WRITER OF SEA STORIES

Who Has Enlisted as Yeoman in the American Navy.

Sailors Not Keen on Being Studied and May Object.

Washington, Jan. 19.—"It strikes me that the reported enlistment in the American navy as yeoman of James B. Connolly, the writer of sea stories and the protege of President Roosevelt, has had a bit too much exploitation," observed a man who has himself held an enlisted man's clerical billet in the navy. "Maybe Mr. Connolly will not find things so comfortable as he or the president imagines.

"Mr. Connolly, it has been given out, has 'accepted' a yeoman's billet in the navy for the purpose of making a cruise or part of a cruise and then 'writing up' the things he has seen and heard. If this had to be done, it occurs to me that it would have been a whole lot better, so far as concerns Mr. Connolly's enjoyment, if it had been done on the quiet. Men on board ship—men for'ard or men aft—have no greater liking for 'being studied' in this way than men on the beach. They don't want to be 'subjects.' They don't relish being sized up in that calculating way. I can't see how Mr. Connolly will contrive to make any big sort of hit with the ship's company for'ard, and his presence on board will not make the officers aft feel so comfortable that they will want to make much of him.

"It's a curious arrangement all around, as viewed by a man who has been in the service. In the first place, I can't understand how a man, no matter how big a writing person he may be, nor how chummy with the president of the United States, can be enlisted as a yeoman out of hand. A yeoman is a chief petty officer, and it takes the ordinary sailorman a good many years of hard service to achieve the rating of a chief petty officer. Chief petty officers, except in the cases of machinists and specialists of that kind, are not enlisted out of hand. They've got to work. Most yeomen in our naval service have come to that rating from the rating of landsman. That is, they ship as landsmen, and then, of they write clerkly hands and are intelligent, they get rated third-class yeomen, then second-class yeomen, then first-class yeomen and finally chief yeomen. Perhaps this is the way they are going to do it in Mr. Connolly's case, only the ratings will be given to him in quick succession.

"Mr. Connolly, it is given out, is going to have a cabin on the battleship to which he has been assigned. Pretty good for a chief petty officer. They don't rate cabins. They swing in hammocks. Some of them, it is true, do sleep the offices in which they work. But in their log rooms or on mattresses in cabins? Well, the top chief petty officer of any man-o-war is the Jimmy Legs, or master-at-arms—he's the chief of police of the ship—and he sleeps with the crew in the old swinging bag, as a rule. If Mr. Connolly is going to have a cabin then he'll rate alongside the warrant officers, and the commissioned officers for the matter of that. Something unusual in that. It does't appear whether he'll mess with the chief petty officers, for'ard, or with the commissioned officers. If Mr. Connolly, the chief petty officer, is going to have a cabin and mess for'ard that'll put him in bad with the men for'ard. A yeoman playing officer, they?" will be the comment for'ard. 'And chummy with the quarterdeckers, too?' and comment of this sort will not be helpful to Mr. Connolly's purpose.

"Unless Mr. Connolly is shipping as a sort of extra yeoman—and I don't know of any rating of that kind—he'll find plenty to do in this billet without addressing himself to deep sea literature, with the habits and customs and conversation of the crew as the basis of his material. They're not snaps, these yeomen's billets. The admiral's yeoman or clerk has it fairly easy occasionally, but admiral's yeomen only work on flagships; and there are not many of them. On board the ordinary ship there are three yeomen—the paymaster's yeoman, the equipment yeoman and the engineer's yeoman. They have whole slews and slathers of work to do, all three of those chaps. Perhaps the pay yeoman is the busiest of the three, but the other two have stunts to keep them busy and to pare. The pay yeoman virtually runs the dishing out of small stores to the men for'ard and, with the pay clerk, under the supervision of the paymaster, keeps the pay and other accounts of the ship. The equipment yeoman is the executive officer's man, and he has charge of all of the ship's stores other than those that come within the province of the pay yeoman or the engineer's yeoman. The engineer's yeoman doesn't have any time to play tag with himself on the main deck, either. He keeps the log of the engineer's department, issues waste and oil and all the other engineer's stores, keeps an eye on the coal consumption and a record of it and manages the accounts.

"But it's how the ship's company will view this thing of being written up by a man deliberately shipped for that purpose that I started to talk about. I can't see now the men for'r'd will like the game. In the first place, there's liable to be resentment over the story writer's being pushed right in as a yeoman. Men in line for yeomen's billets—men who have served for years with the natural expectation of getting yeomen's billets—will be sore, and they'll be supported in their soreness by the rest of the hands. They like the square deal in the fo'c'sle, and practice it among themselves without suggestions from any outside source.

"Then, aton of this, they will all know that the new yeoman is in their midst for the purpose of getting copy. That'll close the mouths of most of them when Mr. Connolly is about. He won't be Mister Connolly to his shipmates for'ard, by the way, no matter how big a writing man he is ashore. He'll be plain Connally. Only officers have the 'mister' on men-o'-war. But enlisted men, either of the land or sea force, don't like to be studied and quizzed by writing persons. They generally end by hazing the quizzer. The shellbacks stuff the student with all sorts of impossible yarns. The younger men let him severely alone. They're not to be pumped when they know they are being pumped.

"I can't imagine that it'll be pleasant for him at the chief petty officers' table. If he messes with the chief petty officers. Mighty intelligent men, American chief petty officers, and fellows who know their world topside and under, in and out. They're sober, levelheaded chaps, a bit proud of their advancement in the service, but they don't know how to cringe or knuckle. A writing man at their table will not awe them, But he will perhaps have a tendency to make them pretty quiet at meals. It is likely that the new yeomen when he takes his pipe at the gangway at the hours the smoking lamp is lit will find more tactiturnity than garrulity. The time has long sped when American men-o'-war's men withheld their friendship or even their best intimacy from the merely educated man who drifted into the sea service, for many years past our sea service has been crowded with finely educated men. But they'll hardly snuggle up to the man who has been pushed into the service, with great acclaim and a president's pat on the back, when they'll be feeling that the new man regards them as factors helping toward the manufacture later on of books or serial yarns.

"Nor can I understand how the officers of the ship to which the new yeoman is attached will be able to welcome him as an agreeable companion. He is sent to them for the purpose of keeping his eyes and his ears open. Well, there are plenty of things happening aft on any man-o'-war that don't need to be written about in books at all. They are not criminal things or mean things or disreputable things—but just little happenings, that's all. There are 'such occurrences as quick ward room grouches between officers, for examples. There are mess room incidents that don't require any wide publicity. Naval officers are no more saints than their neighbors ashore. They can't afford to be under the scrutinizing eye of a copy maker at all hours of the day and night, nor can I see how they'll enjoy that situation.

"Then, too, there'll be a sort of tacit understanding that they are to treat this new yeoman as if he were not exactly a man for'ard, but something rather different. Now, that's hard to do. An enlisted man is an enlisted man, and the gulf between the enlisted man and the commissioned officer is hard to bridge under any circumstances, even when there's a president of the United States to think of. The officers will naturally fear for the discipline of the rest of the crew for'ard if they outwardly exhibit manifestations of any special concern, for the comfort or feelings of the story writing yeoman backed up by the new man will have a sort of unwritten right to expect rather more consideration from them than the ordinary yeoman, and thus, in a way, they'll be set between the devil and the deep sea.

"I can't see how it can be made into a good arrangement either for Mr. Connolly or for his shipmates, for'ard and aft. If this story writer had quietly slipped into the service without any public announcement of his purpose he would no doubt have made a much better thing of it, have got along finely with all hands and have picked up some corking good material for his writing purposes.

"There's a chance for him to get on an even keel with all hands yet—but please take notice that I'm saying this half by way of a joke, but only half, at that—if the new yeoman were to break his liberty for four or five days, or get all whooped up with ship's alcohol wheeled from the ship's painter, or commit himself in some other way, why, he could get himself busted or disrated to the grade of ordinary seaman. Then he could lose his cabin and take his place for'ard in actual fact with the crew, and they'd take him in then at his proven worth and treat him on equal terms as a busted chief petty officer in hard luck and things would go right with him. He would solve the riddle for the officers aft, too, by doing this. He'd be removed from their propinquity, and they'd exactly know how to treat him. He'd be a sailorman and not a writing man detailed on board a man o' war to 'get stuff,' and in his busted capacity he'd get the smile from all hands.

"But it's more fun being a specially enlisted yeoman with a cabin and things, and I guess Mr. Connolly will not forget to go on seeing it that way."

DID NOT WANT TO BE DEPORTED

Anton Halive Would Rather Work Than Leave Country.

When Anton Halive who has been an inmate of the county poor farm for some time past, learned that the United States government was taking steps looking to his deportation, he decided that he would rather go to work than return to his native country.

As Halive has become a public charge within two years after arriving in the country, he is eligible to deportation. The county authorities called the attention of United States Immigrant Inspector William H. Dean to the case, and he began an investigation.

The alien was ill when taken to the county institution, and was supposed to be still on the sick list, but when he heard that the chances for his being sent out of the country were very good, he announced that he was going to leave the poor farm and go to work. He suited his actions to his word, and is now looking for a job.

OLD BOTTLES AND NEW WINE

By Shan F. Bullock.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Twilight was falling through the autumn evening when we pushed out the black punt and set forth across the lake.

We were gliding through the twilight and the creeping mist away toward Clackan and the cottage there, in which Daniel was to prove himself before us all.

Daniel! How well we remembered him. How short a time it seemed since the days when he had sat among us in the school house there among the trees. And now he was back from college; and every one was proud of him, and we, his old playmates, were going to hear him preach the word. It was to be his first sermon in Clackan. For three years we had not seen him.

Darkness and the silence deepened. The woods faded out. When at last we came to the wooden bridge, and landed below the ferryman's cottage, night and the stars filled the world. Slowly we filed along the path and joined the groups of men and women that awaited by the door of Fraser's cottage.

We made a goodly company. From far and near people had gathered to do Daniel honor. Clackan filled half the room; Gorteen gave its best and wisest. In the second row from the table sat Mary, Daniel's sweetheart, her father on this side, her mother on that. Everywhere one saw familiar faces, stern and rugged, beaten with rain and wind—faces that in the morning had looked up at the minister from the pews in Derryvad, and now were turned upon the door watching for sight of Daniel. What if, instead of Daniel, one wondered, they had seen the minister come in and sit by the table? Would he, coming suddenly, have seen something in them—a softness, a cheerful repose—which to him was strange? Maybe so. Maybe—

Hush! The door opened, and a little procession came in—the preacher first, Daniel next, the family following after one by one to their places on the first form.

What would the minister, hearing us, have thought, had he knelt among us while the preacher stood by the table, eyes closed and hands folded, pouring himself out in prayer? Long and fervently he prayed, as to God standing in our midst, appealing, pleading, commending all mankind with us, his brothers, to the mercy and love of the Father; and we, bowed low before him, our faces in our hands, joined with him in supplication, crying aloud and groaning, sighing our frequent amens. Never did we join like that in any prayer given by the minister, we could not if we would, perhaps would not if we could. Yet the minister's prayers were most beautiful, and he was a right good man; nor must it be charged against him that his words too often left us cold.

There followed a hymn then a chapter from Isaiah, read well and feelingly; then a third hymn, and a shorter and more personal prayer, in which God was asked to bless the preaching of his word; then a minute of bustle, followed by a dead hush as Daniel rose.

His face was flushed, his lips trembled a little; slowly he read a text: "Old things are become new." He repeated it as if to Mary and himself, and then closed his Bible, laid it on the table, and began.

He opened confidently, with the surety of youth and the fluency of one well prepared. There was no halting; in a breath he was white-hot, brimming with words. They came like a torrent pouring down a mountain, so quick that one might hardly follow them, so insistent that one almost felt them whirl. I sat amazed, whelmed (you have seen willows bent toward a stream, or a weed bowed toward the sun); and already Daniel was deep, and frowns had gathered on the brows of many, when of a sudden the glamour went, and I had plain seeing.

What Daniel said I have long forgotten (though men at Clackan will repeat much of it to you even today); but given the text and the occasion, and you may easily guess the fashion of his discourses. It was just what you might expect of an ambitious youth gifted and not without education come fresh from the pastures of culture to shed light upon the darkness of his native hills. Three years ago Daniel had left us, filled with those old things; now, having browsed happily, he had come back shining with new things. Clackan was a dear place, its people worthy; but time had moved on leaving it bound in ignorance. Such changes had come upon the world; such wonders been revealed of late in the domains of knowledge! There was this wonderful theory of evolution. There were those extraordinary discoveries in science. There were these marvelous doings of the higher criticism. There was this new face of the waters. Back there lay those old dead things; here among us were those wonderful new things, quick, imperative, claiming, said Daniel, in a whirl of words, fullest consideration of all Christian men.

To the consideration of these, therefore, Daniel passed; and before him we ignorant loughsiders sat dumb, our faces set and hard. Boldly he trampled on our ignorance; boldly would lead us into light. All his learning and reading he drew upon, striving to give us true knowledge. We were narrow, prejudiced, intolerant; behold this new spirit of the age which should make us free. All men were brothers. One Christian soul was as good as another. Our ideas of religion were antiquated. Our conception of God was childish. We had vain notions of heaven and hell; we read our Bible ignorantly; we had never grasped the real spirit of Christ's message to the world.

Had Daniel stood in some city pulpit, doubtless everything he said would have won approval; but he was preaching in a hillside parlor to an ignorant little company, and he did foolishly, and we misunderstood him, and set our faces against him in pitying scorn. This our Daniel? This the man we had trusted and loved? This the result of education and knowledge? Ah, the shame, thought we; and Daniel, reading our thoughts, maybe, closed with a rush, and sat down.

A stir passed through us, like the going of wind among ripe wheat; then sprang into commotion at the sound of one rising behind us in a far corner. With one accord we swung around, and saw Henry Marvin himself—he the shining light of wisest Gorteen—standing by the china cupboard, one hand behind him, the other hooked by a thumb in an arm-hole of his waistcoat, and on his face that look which triflers had learned to dread.

"You'll excuse me for a minute, sir," said Henry to the preacher in that dry way of his, "but I'm anxious to put a question or two before we go." His eyes left the preacher and turned upon Daniel. "You've been sayin' something about hell," said Henry, his voice as hard as an east wind. "Am I right in nard as an east wind. "Am I right in understandin' ye to believe there's still such a place?"

Ah! Around went we, eager to have sight of Daniel. He was still flushed. The preacher was whispering to him. He shook his head and rose quickly.

"Certainly," he answered, without hesitation.

"I know. But like everything else, it's changed of late, you'd be talnkin'? We'd be foolish, you'd say," drawled Henry, "to call it a pit filled with fire an 'brimstone any longer?"

"Call it that, if you wish," answered Daniel. "I think of it as something quite different."

"Just so. Well, it's your word against the Scriptures; but sure, if you're right, dyin' may come easier." At this something like a laugh ran among us; but Henry went on, implacably. "Then, there's this new heaven," said he. "Tell me, have ye read the book of Revelations?"

"'Revelations' is—"

"Answer me," said Henry.

"An' ye think it foolishness?" suggested Henry.

"I think it wonderful," answered Daniel. "But, like much else in the Bible, it has been misunderstood. Men have read into it what is not there."

"Ah, yes; that's because we're poor, ignorant folk, only able to take God's word for what we believe." Henry's eyes narrowed. "Then you'd disbelieve the Bible?" said he, point-blank.

"I believe it with all my heart," cried Daniel. "I protest—I protest—"

"You mean the new Bible?"

"I mean the Bible as it is—as God meant us to believe it. It's wonderful; and never so wonderful as when read aright. I want you to understand," said Daniel to us all, "that in no way—"

"Keep to me," Henry broke in. "Isn't every word in the Bible God's own truth?"

"Modern research has shown—"

"Answer me," demanded Henry.

"I refuse to answer," cried Daniel, seeing at last where Henry would lead him. "I refused to be placed willfully in a false position." He spread his arms. "I appeal to you all for justice. Have I said one word to you—"

"No; but you've said 10,000 words," said Henry, raising his voice. "An' if you're not ashamed of them, then I'm here tellin' ye that I am. Ye refuse to answer? Aye, because ye dare not. Ye protest? Yes, an' so do I. Fifty years I've lived, an' never before heard a minister of God make light of God's word. You are to come here preachin' atheism an' heresy to us! You to dare to match your little knowledge against the truth of heaven! You to talk a new Bible an' a new religion an'—"

"I protest! I protest!" cried Daniel. "Oh, this is terrible!"

"Man, the terrible thing is that I've had to sit listenin' to ye all this time," answered Henry. "No sir," he said to the preacher, who had risen, "no disrespect to ye, but nothing more is needed 'cept to go our ways. An' may God forgive us if we've sinned this night."

Then Henry took his hat and went out, and one by one we followed him, leaving Daniel standing mute by the table, with Mary, his sweetheart, holding him by the hand.

I am glad that Mary stood by Daniel. I have often thought that we treated him harshly. Still, in those days—and later, it may be—the old plain things were quite sufficient for our simple needs, and teachers of new things we held in scorn. And surely there was truth in what the preacher said to Daniel that night when we all had gone: "Young man, you have begun climbing the hill at the top. Go down to the very bottom and begin again."

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

The Senior Class Holds Largest Meeting Since Freshman Year.

Students Are Now Busy Cramming for Examinations.

The senior class of the high school held an important meeting last Wednesday. Almost the whole class turned out and the president congratulated the members on the interest which they took in the business, saying that he considered it to be the best meeting which the class has held since its freshman year.

The most important matter to be considered was the dedication of the Zenith. Editor Ely of the Zenith board said that he would like to have the matter settled at the meeting as he could then secure the photograph of the teacher selected and have the dedication written without delay.

Speeches were made by members of the class in favor of various members of the faculty telling of the interest which they have shown in the class and school affairs. The class proceeded to ballot and when the votes were counted Prof. Phillips was found to have the majority.

Mr. Phillips is the friend of all the seniors, boys and girls alike. He has helped the boys constantly in their athletics ever since his advent to the school and has proved his friendship for the class in many ways. Whenever it comes to lending a helping hand, he is "right there" and his selection for the honor showed that the boys and girls of the class appreciated all these things.

A committee was appointed at the meeting to visit the local photographers and secure bids for the pictures of the members of the class. Every senior has his or her picture taken before graduating as they are needed for the Zenith and many exchanges are made between classmates. Owing to the fact that there are so many, a greatly reduced rate is offered each year for the contract of taking all the pictures. The committee will secure the bids and the class will decide upon the photographer to whom the contract will be awarded.

The treasurer reported that $11 in dues had been collected during the past month and that the class went $2.75 in the hole on the senior spread. With the money which was in the treasury this leaves a balance of $22.75.

The chairman of the pin committee announced that all seniors who wish to secure class pins before graduating should hand in the money to him before the end of the semester as this may be the last time that he will send away for them.

The work on the senior play will not be taken up until the beginning of the second semester as everyone is too busy now preparing for the exams. to give any time to that.

The meeting of the Philomathian society, which was given last Wednesday, was well attended and a good program was given.

Fern Doremus gave the criticism on the preceding meeting, pointing out the good points and also those which were in need of improvement.

A song was well rendered by Myra Pressnel, with a violin obligato by Arline Peachey and a piano accompaniment by Madeline Miller. An essay on Jennie Lind, the great singer, was read by Louise Cole. She told of her birth, start in life, and of her wonderful voice, which has thrilled and captivated the hearts of so many of her hearers.

An essay on Mary Anderson was read by Ethel Adams, dealing with the life and art of that great American actress. Mildred Washburn gave a talk, comparing the two. She said that Jennie Lind had a better opportunity to reach the people through her voice than had Mary Anderson with her acting. Jennie Lind often sang in parks and out of door places, where even the poorest people could come to hear her and in this way she became endeared to the great mass of the common people.

Mary Anderson was less widely known on account of the nature of her art. In spite of this drawback, however, she was greatly beloved by all classes of people.

After the close of the reading, a piano solo was rendered by Luella Neff, in a pleasing manner.

Ruth Hanson read a paper on Mary Anderson, telling of the various roles which she acted and the strong points in her acting. She also described her stage appearance and makeup.

The program was closed with a reading by Miss Noyes, dealing with Mary Anderson's first appearance on the stage, at the age of 16, in the role of Juliet. Charlotte Cushman took her in hand and she made her debut in San Francisco, her home town. Her success was immediate.

The public speaking club elected its officers for the year and gave its first program at the meeting which was held last Monday. There was a good sized crowd of boys present, and they were not lacking in enthusiasm.

Officers for this year were elected at the close of the last school term, but owing to the fact that the president has left the school it was necessary to elect a successor for this office. Oscar Heine was chosen and took the president's chair.

He spoke briefly of the work which the club intended to do, telling of the plan which was pursued last year. The same course will be followed by the society this year and two captains were elected to take charge of the rival camps of debaters. Richard Johnson and Frank Boerner were chosen to manage the two sides. Each will chose three members from his own camp to compete against three from the other side. The camp leader does not necessarily take part in the debates himself, although it is customary to do so part of the time.

The camp which wins the largest number of debates during the school year is declared the champion. At the close of last year a banquet was enjoyed by the members of the society, and it is planned to give one this year also. To pay for this and also for other incidental expenses of the club, it was decided to have dues of 25 cents a year.

The work of the society will be given a new impetus when Prof. Lambert, the new teacher, arrives, as he is said to be quite proficient in this line of work, and will no doubt be of immense help to the boys of the club.

A short program was given at the meeting. Richard Johnson gave a recitation and was applauded until he was forced to recite another poem. He gave some original verses on a football game which brought out much laughter from his audience. Several short talks were given, and the affairs of the club were dismissed.

Several of the senior boys got together during the first of the week and decided to give a sleigh ride. Each boy asked a girl, and the party started out from the high school building Friday afternoon at 4:30. They drove out to the Lakewood pumping station where they had dinner, and as an eight-mile ride in the open air is rather conducive to good appetites, there was very little "grub" lying around loose when they got through. After clearing up the debris and spending some time in looking about the large building, and examining the machinery, the boys and girls piled into the sleigh once more and drove back to Lester Park. A dance was held in Harmony hall and the party had a delightful time. After the dance they drove back to town.

A meeting of the Zenith board was held on Tuesday afternoon. Various cover designs were shown, but as Mr. Smith wishes the board to wait until after the semester exams before commencing its regular work, nothing definite was decided upon except the prizes.

For the best story of not less than 750 words or more than 1,500, a prize of $5 is offered. For the second best story with the same limitations, $2.50 will be awarded.

The best frontispiece wil secure a $3 prize and the best poem $2.50

These are to be handed in to the board of editors on or before March 15, 1907. The liberal prizes which are offered should bring out plenty of competition as an opportunity is offered to earn some pocket money, and also to make the Zenith a success.

THE DRAINAGE COMMISSION

Appointed by Last Legislature Makes Report on Survey.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—The state drainage commission, consisting of Governor Johnson, Secretary of State Julius H. Schmall and State Auditor S. G. Iverson, have submitted their report to the legislature. The report is gotten up by Chief Engineer George A. Ralph of the commission, and is a voluminous one, containing topographical reports and maps, together with a complete account of the survey which was begun in May, 1905, and ended in December last.

The survey was made under an act passed by the last legislature, and was for the purpose of asecrtaining the area of swamp and marshy lands held by the state, and also the area of the same kind of land held by private ownership, which will be affected by state drainage; to determine the feasibility of draining these lands, the cost of reclaiming the same, and their value when reclaimed; to plan a comprehensive system of drainage, which will effectually drain and reclaim all lands owned by the state.

The are embraced in this survey comprises parts of Kittson, Rosseau, Marshall, Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Wadena, Cass, Crow Wing, Itasca, Aitkin and St. Louis counties. The cost of the survey was $15,000.

According to the report the state owns at the present time approximately 2,750,000 acres of land, 2,428,678 acres of which is wet and unfit for cultivation in its natural state; that approximately 90 per cent of this wet land area is located in Roseau, Cass, Itasca, St. Louis, Aitkin, Lake and Cook counties; that at all places on these wet lands reached by the survey, the surface slope was found sufficient to insure cheap and effective drainage; that the soil is generally of a fertile nature and will, when drained, be very productive.

According to the large scheme of drainage that the commission has in mind, 3,187 miles of ditches will be required, necessitating an excavation of 52,283,612 cubic yards, at an estimated cost of $5,980,943.12, and the contingent expenses, $1,055,093. Itasca county will require 800 miles of ditches, St. Louis county 679 miles. The cost of excavation in St. Louis county would be $1.27 cents per acre. It is etstimated that the entire cost of the drainage would be about $7,000,000, of which the state would have to pay $3,404,911.42, and the private lands the rest.

During the absence of his aged wife, Sandberg, who was bedridden, attempted to light his pipe and in doing so set fire to his beard and bed clothing. A NEWSPAPER THIEF PROVES TO BE A GOAT.

New York, Jan. 19.—Glen Ridge, N. J., is overrun with goats, and complaints have been so numerous of late that the borough council, at a meeting last night, considered the advisability of appointing a pound master.

The goats, it is said, camp out on the stoops of residences. One large "Billy" was detected a few morning ago devouring a copy of a morning newspaper shortly after a newsboy had left it on the porch of a Highland avenue residence.

The annual masquerade ball given by the members of the Duluth butchers' union at the Armory Thursday evening was about the biggest affair of the kind which has been pulled off in this city during the winter. The crowd was large and in a good humor, and the costumes worn were both fancy and of a comical class.

Committees on the preparations for the annual ball had been at work for several weeks. There was a committee appointed to advertise the ball, one as a floor committee, one as a reception committee, and several others to attend to the details in the preparations. That the various committees did their work in good shape is vouched for by those who attended the affair, and it was said to be the most successful held by the butchers for years.

The Armory had not been decorated for the occasion to any great extent as the committees decided that the fancy costumes worn would be all the decorations needed. The advertising committee had spread the news of the ball from one end of the city to another, and the ticket sellers disposed of over 400 tickets before the evening of the ball.

Counting the members of the union and the ladies there were from 500 to 600 people who participated in the dancing. During the early part of the evening practically all of those at the hall remained masked, but later the masques were removed and the prizes were awarded. About $25 had been raised for prizes for the best costumes.

The first prize for the best fancy costumes was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Miller, the second prize to Mr. Grochowsky and Mrs. Simmonds, and the third to Mr. and Mrs. Slesky. The first prize for the most comical costumes was won by Frank Carey and Miss Sueboss, the second by George M. Beck and partner, and the third by Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Brown.

No regular program for the entertainment of the members had been planned and dancing was the main diversion. This was kept up until a late hour, after which refreshments were served.

It has been another quiet week as far as labor is concerned. There has been plenty of work for those who wanted it, and the situation has been undisturbed by strikes or troubles of any kind between the workers and their employers. The demand for woodsmen has remained about the same and the supply seems to just about equal it at present.

Snowshovelers for the railroads in Western Minnesota are being sought after, and notices are out at nearly all of the local employment agencies for men for this work.

The meeting of the Duluth Trades' assembly, at Labor World hall, next Friday evening, will be the first under the new list of officers, and on this account a good attendance of the delegates is expected to see how the new officials conduct the business of the organization.

If the rule of the trades' assembly, directing the secretary to notify all the local unions if the delegates are absent from the meetings for more than two times, is enforced hereafter, the regular attendance at the assembly will probably be larger.

This is an old rule which has never been enforced during the last few years, but at the meeting of the assembly a motion was made to enforce it in the future.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Baltimore American: The theory of the Chicago minister that false interpretations of the Bible to make it support almost any doctrine are responsible for much wickedness is not startlingly original. It was put in a terse epigram some time ago, when it was said that the devil could quote scripture for his purposes.

Brooklyn Eagle: A bishop, out Cincinnati way, has been assured by a rector to this effect: "I believe just what Dr. Crapsey believed. Shall I resign, or will you put me on trial—what shall I do?" To him the bishop replied: "Go on preaching according to your lights. I have more important business to occupy my time than your doubts or surmises." That bishop believes that a heresy trial is the devil's delight. Whether Bishop Walker of Buffalo has recovered from the shock is not known.

Chicago Chronicle: In our present state of civilization it ought not be necessary for an old woman—an octogenarian—to defend herself against the gossip and insinuation of yellow newspapers and magazine hacks. The attacks upon Mrs. Eddy are unmanly and cowardly. So far as the creed she founded is concerned it makes not a jot of difference whether Mrs. Eddy is inspired of the Lord or not. If the philosophy of it be workable the personality of its propounder is a matter of indifference. But that renders the conduct of the yellow hacks not the less contemptible. Making war on women is dirty work.

THE BIRTHDAY OF ROBERT BURNS

To be Observed by the Scotch Residents of Duluth.

Banquet, Concert and Dance at Spalding on Jan. 28.

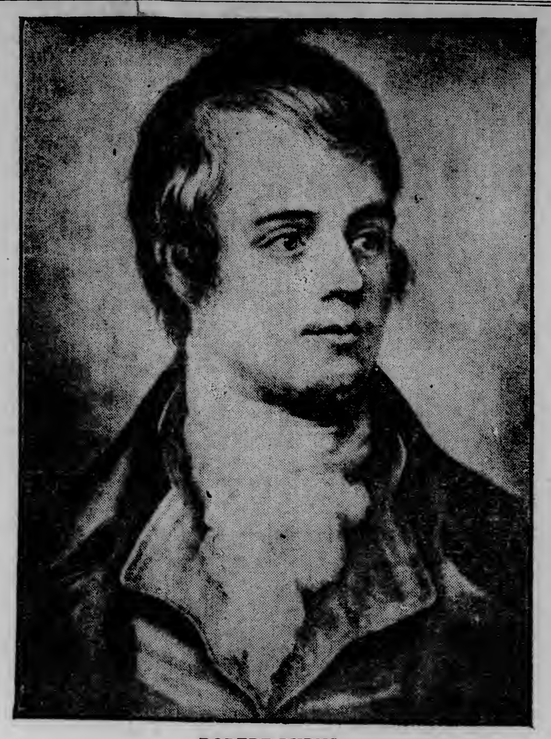

Many people have no enthusiasm for poetry, the vast realm of literature that is placed in that form being a closed book to them from choice, but there few people and not one who boasts a strain of Celtic blood, but glories in the songs of Robert Burns. There is almost a half superstitious reverence in the Scotchman's heart for this loved poet and his joy of living which might be censored by a strict historian, is regarded as goodfellowshp by them, and they never forget a debt of grattude for the wealth of homely poetry, which goes straight to the heart.

Few poets are revered as is Burns and there is not another of English literature whose birthday is observed the world over, as is that of Burns, wherever there is a man of Scotia to observe it.

Robert Burns was born Jan. 25, 1759, in a small cottage about two miles from Ayr, the eldest son of a small farmer, a hard working, honest man, who reared his children in the fear of God. Carlyle, the best biographer that has yet written of Burns, said of him: "The poet was fortunate in his father a man of thoughtful, intense character, as the best of our peasants are, valuing knowledge, possessing some and open minded for more, of keen insight and devout heart, friendly and fearless; a fully unfolded man seldom found in any rank in society, and worth descending far in society to seek. Had he been ever so little richer the whole might have issued elsewhere. But poverty sunk the whole family even below the reach of our cheap school system and Burns remained a hard worked ploughboy."

The rugged charm and homely simplicity of his verse has an appeal that is limited only by an understanding of the language, and the keener the ability to appreciate the little touches that a Scotsman only can create or fully appreciate, the wider becomes the enthusiasm for Burns and his theory.

Perfect sincerity is his; his genius makes the simple flowers of the field and the insignificant "beauties" enduring emblems of phases of life. The works of Burns owe part of their popularity, as one writer put it, "to their being an epitome of melodies, moods, and memories that had belonged for centuries to the national life, the best inspiration of which have passed into them."

ROBERT BURNS.

Special preparations have been made among local Scotsmen for an appropriative celebration in honor of the poet's birthday, and this year the affair will be a banquet, concert, and dance to be given Monday evening, Jan. 28, at the Spalding hotel, under the auspices of Clan Stewart, No. 50, O. S. C.

Following the banquet, a concert will be given by local talent and then a dancing party will be enjoyed, for which Flaaten's orchestra will play. The program is as follows:

WARSHIPS ARRIVE

Bringing Large Quantities of Medicines and Food for Sufferers.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 19.—The United States warships Indiana and Missouri arrived this morning from Guantanomo, bringing large quantities of medicines and food. The torpedo destroyer Whipple arrived during the night with a boat load of medicine which was sent ashore in charge of Surgeon McDonald. The cruiser Yankton is expected to arrive here soon.

Several slight shocks of earthquake were felt last night. Four hundred and twenty dead were buried up to last night. The remaining bodies are being cremated. The death list, it is now believed, will be about 700.

The water supply has been improved but food is very scarce and the prices, therefore, are exorbitant.

A remarkable incident of the earthquake has just come to light. An English clerk in a store was buried under falling walls following the earthquake of Monday and over this, for many hours, great fires swept. Wednesday the clerk was dug out alive. His injuries are not severe.

THE WORST NOW KNOWN

Associated Press early today, is ashore near the Prinz Waldemar and the Prinzessen Luise, vessels of the same line which are stranded near where the Plum Point lighthouse was located.

No Americans were killed as a result of the disaster, despite the fact that there were many American tourists in the place when the visitation came. A large number of these tourists have taken refuge on the American warships in the harbor while awaiting ships that will take them to the states.

American aid has been timely in this hour of trouble to a British possession, and the dispatches agree it is warmly appreciated by the stricken people.

HORRIBLE PICTURE

Of Wreck at Kingston Painted by Refugees From Port.

Santiago, Cuba, Jan. 19.—The steamer Thomas Brooks has arrived here from Kingston with seventeen refugees. They paint a horrible picture of the satastrophe, and confirm the reports of the destruction of the principal buildings. The pilots do not dare to enter the harbor owing to the changes in the channel.

The Machado cigar factory, in which many persons were at work, crumbled and 120 of them were killed.

The refugees confirm previous reports of Kingston's disaster. According to them, twenty-five square blocks of the city have been destroyed by fire. Every building within a radius of ten miles was damaged. The water works were destroyed. The casualty list at the Myrtle Bank hotel was heavy. The Constant Spring and other hotels were damaged. The electric power house was destroyed and many persons lost their lives by coming into contact with charged electric wires.

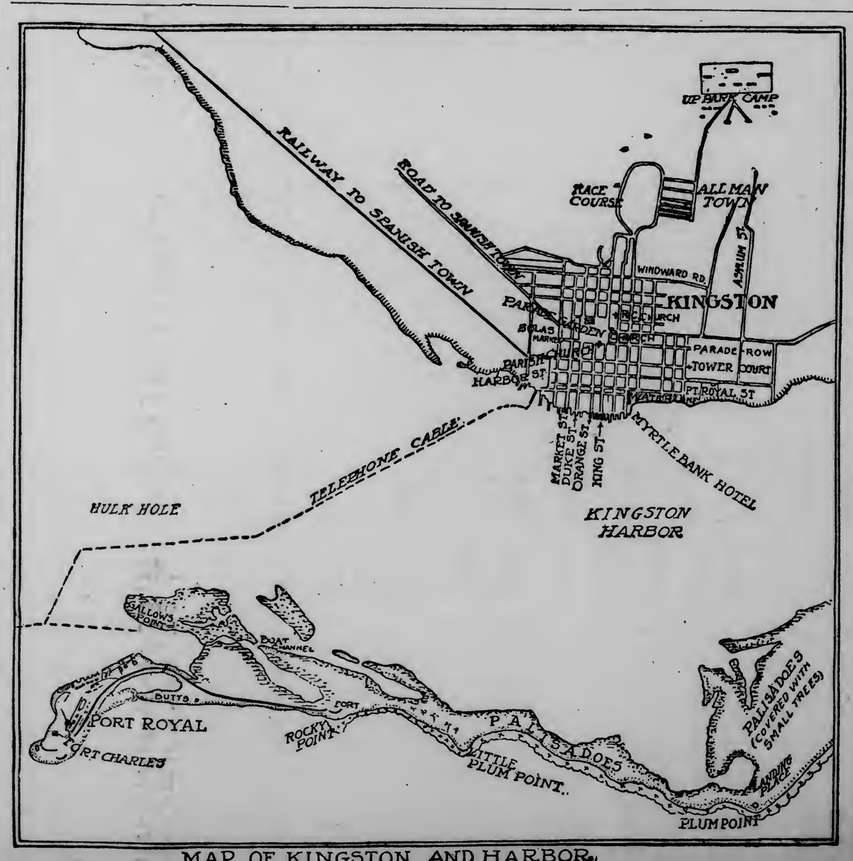

The manager of the cable office lost a leg. The postoffice building was not thrown down. Along the water front the cracks in the earth are six inches wide. Superintendent of Posts Gardner is among the killed. Capt. Young, commander of the royal mail steamer, Arno, lost his life at the Myrtle Bank hotel. His body was cut in half. Dr. Biegle, physician of the Arno, is here. The Arno, as well as the other steamers in port, were used as a hospital. Sixty-four legs and fifteen arms were amputated on the Arno. The governor's residence also is being used as a hospital. Capt. Constantine, superintendent in Jamaica for the Royal Mail Steamship company, was buried at sea. Capt. Young was buried on shore. There is a great shortage of bandage material and women's clothing is being torn up and used for this purpose. The rails of the street car lines were badly twisted. When the earthquake occurred there were only four doctors on the island.

FRIGHTFUL COLLISION

Link, T. W., Michigan; Creton, M. A. New York.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Passenger train No. 38, eastbound on the Big Four railroad, collided head-on with westbound freight train No. 95, at Fowler, Ind., a small town twenty-eight miles west of Lafayette, Ind., at about 2:30 o'clock this morning, killing a number of persons, variously estimated at from 12 to 25.

The passenger train, which left Chicago at 11:30 o'clock last night, was known as the "Queen City Special," and consisted of a combination baggage and day coach, three sleeping cars and the private car of C. E. Schaff, vice president of the road.

The train was running at the rate of fifty miles an hour when the accident occurred, and the force of the collision was so great that the tender of the passenger engine was driven the entire length of the combination car, in which were a number of passengers, estimated at from fifteen to twenty-five. All the dead and injured were taken from the wreckage of this car, none of the passengers in the sleepers having been hurt.

Soon after the collision, the wreckage caught fire from the engine coals and all the coaches, except the private car of Vice President Schaff were destroyed.

Paul D. Harris, an attorney of Chicago, who was enroute to Florida, was, so far as known, the only person to escape from the combination car. He reached Lafayette on another train and reported that the killed and injured, as fast as they were drawn from the wreckage, were placed in the first sleeper—the Cincinnati sleeper. This car caught fire, and the victims were hastily removed to the next car—the Indianapolis sleeper. The fire also spread to this car, and it became necessary to again transfer the dead and injured, this time to Vice President Schaff's private car, in which they were taken to division headquarters at Kankakee, Ill. One passenger was pinned under some of the wreckage and burned to death.

The engineer of the passenger train was seriously injured, but will survive.

The fireman of one of the engines was crushed to death. His body was recovered.

According to Mr. Harris, both trains had orders to stop at Fowler, but the passenger train ran by the block signal, which the engineer failed to see on account of fog.

Vice President Schaff was not on board the train, but his wife occupied the private car. Mrs. Schaff was not injured.

Kankakee, Ill., Jan. 19.—Seven survivors of the Big Four wreck at Fowler were brought here in the private car of Vice President Schaff. With them was the body of John Schannan of Williamsport, Ind., who died on the way here. This private car was the only one on the train not burned. It was said that possibly twenty-five persons were burned in the wreck. The conductor and baggageman of the passenger train are missing.

The engineer of the freight train told passengers that his train had a clear track according to orders, and that the passenger train was going at the rate of fifty miles an hour when the collision took place.

Following is a partial list of dead and injured:

Dead:

JOHN SCHANNAN, Williamsport, Ind., fireman.

Injured at Kankakee: Barnes, C. L., Cincinnati, severe bruises; Creton, M. A., New York city, burns; Griffin, Miner, Shelbyville, Ind., bruises; Harris, Walter B., Indianapolis, both legs crushed; Land, L. F., Chicago, back hurt and leg injured, not serious; Lynch, H. W., Chicago, leg broken, back bruised, internal injuries, will probably recover; Tripp, E. W., Indianapolis, engineer of passenger train, jumped and nearly drowned in pool beside the track, condition serious.

Cure for Drunkenness

Orrine Treatment is to be Used at Home Without Publicity, or Loss of Time for Business.

Thousands of persons who really want to quit the use of whiskey or beer, realize that they cannot do so without medical help, yet they can not afford the time or perhaps the money to go to a sanatorium. Happily a new cure for drunkenness has been discovered which is to be taken at home and costs less than the average drinker will spend in a day for drink.

In using Orrine there is absolutely no publicity, as the remedy is sold by the leading druggists in nearly every city and town, or it can be sent by mail. Sure relief is positive when Orrine is used. So uniformly successful is this treatment that in every box is a regisetred guarantee which entitles you to a refund of your money if Orrine fails to effect a cure.

Orrine is in two forms, No. 1, a secret remedy, absolutely tasteless and odorless which can be given in food or drink without the patient's knowledge; No. 2, in pill form for those who wish to be cured. The price of either form is $1 a box. Send to the Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., for free booklet and consultation blank

The desire for liquor is soon destroyed after Orrine treatment is commenced, and before long the patient is freed from the terrible drink craving, and the drink will not be missed.

Orrine is for sale by F. W. Kugler & Co., 108 West Superior street.

"By the action of the commission, unless it sees fit to reverse itself, it has no further interest in the matter.

"It is not, and never has been the sense of the various owners in the American association to place Mr. Kelly outside the ban of organized baseball. "There is nothing int he records of the National association or before the National commission which will stop Mr. Kelly from enjoying the baseball rights to which he is entitled.

Ely

Ely, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The concert and entertainment given at the opera house on Wednesday, Jan. 16, by the High School band was a decided success and netted the boys enough to pay a month's running expenses for the band. Miss White, Mr. Possum and Miss Nobles were highly appreciated. Some dissatisfaction was evident, on account of the fact that it was given in the opera house rather than in the high school auditorium. It is argued that the auditorium is for the school, and for school functions, and that the narrow views of a few should not be allowed to interfere with the school using the auditorium for such entertainments, especially when given in support of athletic funds, and other finances that can not be legally borne by the school district.

The high school students and faculty are now working on one of Dennison's excellent dramas. It is expected to give this in about a month, the funds to be used in paying the instructor of the high school band.

Frank Hodge, who has accepted a position with the St. Croix Lumber company, for the winter, as blacksmith at their camp on Burntside lake, spent a few days here this week with his family, returning to the camp yesterday.

RAILROAD NEWS

TENSION IS RELAXING

Congestion of the Duluth Terminals is Rapidly Disappearing.

Present Terminal Facilities in Duluth Have Proven Inadequate.

The railroad yard situation in Duluth is rapidly being straightened out. A decided improvement in the congestion conditions that have existed for the last two or three months is noticeable this week.

Matters in this direction are much better now than they were two weeks ago, and with a continuation of favorable weather the yards will be cleared up in good shape in a short time.

The weather is ideal for the railroads. It is warm enough so that the greatest amount of service can be gotten out of the motive power and other equipment, there is not enough snow at the Head of the Lakes to interfere with operations, and the switchmen are better satisfied to work a day like today than they would be if the mercury in thermometers about town hovered below the zero mark.

Traffic is showing a slight falling off, and everything has a tendency to facilitate doing away with the congested conditions. The Duluth and Superior yards were more seriously blocked this season than ever before in their history, and the railroad officials have been at their wits' ends to remedy the existing state of affairs. Not only were the tracks inadequate to handle the heavy volume of business forced upon them, but there was a shortage of switchmen and the shortage of cars had a lot to do with the disagreeable situation.

The indications are that the summer and fall of 1907 will see extensive improvements in and about the railroad yards at the Head of the Lakes. Some of the contemplated improvements already have been announced. It has been forcibly demonstrated that present facilities in Duluth and Superior are sadly inadequate when it comes to handling the business from the West, and the shipments consigned to the West. At the rate the great Northewst is growing, it is evident that this business will grow larger each year, instead of showing a falling off, and therefore it is essential that the roads provide more extensive terminals here. The extension of the Soo to Duluth will help matters some.

The close of navigation gave the roads a chance to better clear up the yards this winter, but the terminals were in such bad shape when the last of the lake vessels went into winter quarters that it took weeks before any special effort was noticeable to the general public. The boats mean a tremendous freight business, however, and as soon as they cease running the tension is greatly relaxed.

READY FOR EXTENSION

Soo Applies for a Charter to Cross Mississippi River.

Believed Duluth Line Will be Built This Year.

The Soo line has made application for a charter to cross the Mississippi river, in Morrison county, and this is taken by the public to mean that the Soo is to build its new outlet from near Glenwood to Duluth in time to carry the fall harvest of 1907. The understanding is that the Soo will start its new line from Brooten, east of Glenwood, on the main line from Minneapolis, crossing the river at Royalton, below Little Falls, through Lawrence to Mille Lacs, meeting the Great Northern at Barnum and connecting with the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic at the Head of the Lakes.

E. Pennington, general manager of the road, is said to have favored this plan for a long time as the one way out of the difficulty which has beset the system for years in getting into Duluth, and coal and other freight out. Yesterday Mr. Pennington was closeted for a long time in Minneapolis with a committee of six or seven business men from St. Cloud, who were trying to get the Soo to build its line through St. Cloud. The committee was convinced that the plan was not feasible, it is said, but their visit may result in a branch line being built down from some point fifteen miles north.

Although Mr. Pennington did not confirm the story that the Soo will build the Duluth line, he is quoted as saying yesterday that the company is locating a line from some point east of Glenwood to Duluth, but that it might not be built. The construction of the proposed route depends on conditions. He said that the line is about 185 miles long and will penetrate a good country, containing a lot of hardwood and other commodities. It was intimated by Mr. Pennington that the Soo will practically be forced to take the bull by the horns and adopt some such effective measure to avoid traffic difficulties which have been met within other ways up to date.

To build through St. Cloud, Mr. Pennington said, would be really double tracking the system to Watkins, with no additional traffic. The committee from St. Cloud saw the point. Mr. Pennington does not think that the Wisconsin line to Duluth will be built at present.

WILL REACH BORDER.

Great Northern Preparing to Extend From Greenbush to Warroad.

Roseau, Minn., Jan. 19.—The indications are that the Great Northern will soon begin work on the extension of its road from Greenbush to Warroad. Thousands of ties have been purchased and are being delivered along the right of way of the extension, so that active construction work can begin within a short time.

The construction department of the road believes that better progress can be made while the ground is frozen. Much of the country through which the extension will pass is swampy and it would be much easier to lay the rails while the ground is hard and the swamps frozen.

This extension has been looked forward to with interest by towns along the right of way, which are either entirely without railway facilities, or have to travel or ship goods in a roundabout way. With the Minnesota & International and the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg both pushing forward their extensions to International Falls, it is believed that construction of the Greenbush-Warroad extension of the Great Northern will be delayed as little as possible.

BIG CONSOLIDATION.

New Company Will Control All Vanderbilt Fast Freight Lines.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 19.—The Evening Wisconsin says: The most important and by far the most sweeping consolidation of freight lines of the great railway systems and combinations of the country, that has been brought about in years, is booked to be made within a short time by the Vanderbilt system. The plans, it is learned are now practically matured.

The plan is the absolute consolidation of all of the "fast freight" lines and "despatch lines" which have for years been operated under the general Vanderbilt system and will place all the lines under one corporation—the Merchant's Dispatch company.

The principal dispatch and freight lines which are to be combined or consolidated under one head of the Merchant's dispatch are the following:

Operating over the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern road—the Red line, the West Shore line, the Jersey Central—Lake Shore dispatch and White line.

Operating over the Big Four system—the White line.

Operating on the Michigan Central road—the Blue line, the North Shore dispatch, the Rutland—Michigan Central line.

Operating on the Grand Trunk system—the Milwaukee—Michigan line.

There are also several other fast freight lines in the system, mostly operating in the East.

This sweeping move in the direction of present day scheme of concentration of great railway systems will result in a large number of official retirements and changes of agents throughout the country.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVEIW

Trade in Winter Fabrics Improves as Weather Becomes Seasonable.

New York, Jan. 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Trade in winter fabrics improved as the weather became more seasonable, but reports for the week are more irregular on account of varying temperature. Improvement in traffic situation was checked by snow blockades, and the best railway authorities state that expanding needs of the nation can only be met by a much greater expenditure for new track and rolling stock than has yet been contemplated, although prices of stock have declined sharply since the announcement of the proposed new issues of securities for these purposes. Clearance sales have made good progress, and new business for spring delivery is coming to jobbers and wholesale houses in large volume, while collections show some improvement, although still slow in many lines. Manufacturing returns could not well be more favorable, contracts in many cases covering deliveries into 1908, while at some steel and cotton mills orders are not accepted for shipment during the first half of 1907. A few labor disputes are in progress, but most wage earners are fully employed, and liberal advances in pay were announced during the week in prominent industries.

Consumption of pig iron exceeds production, despite the greatest rate of domestic output ever recorded, as attested by the heavy imports without any depressing effect on quotations. Receipts from abroad are probbaly averaging 50,000 tons each month, and contracts call for the maintenance of this movement for some time to come. Premiums of $1 or more per ton are frequently paid for prompt delivery, and orders covering shipments during the last half of the year are placed with little dispute as to price. All sections of the steel industry proceed in a manner that indicates assurance of no decreased activity this year at least.

Available supplies of coke do not increase, although production is above all records, and prices for remote shipment are higher than recent spot figures.

High prices still prevail in primary markets for cotton goods, yet the element of speculation is not conspicuous, many lines being in a position where no severe reaction is to be feared. Thus far few cancellations have occurred, and manufacturers are strengthening the situation by conservatively declining orders that appear to be largely of a speculative nature. There is also a disposition to distribute sales among numerous buyers, so that the risk with any single customer may be minimized.

A little more export business with China had been accomplished, but the total is still small. As to woolens, and men's wear, buyers operate cautiously and the opening of more new lines has attracted little attention.

Clothing manufacturers are taking samples of woolen goods to a greater extent than last year, indicating that worsteds will not have the sale monopoly.

Leather trade broadens graudally and the trading producer has advanced its prices of sole. Western tanners sell all descriptions of side upper and calfskins freely.

Packer hides have again shown great activity, sales of 125,000 being reported at unchanged prices. Foreign dry hides are improved in tone by stronger European markets.

Commodity prices have moved regularly.

Wheat advanced on reports of small interior arrivals, but reacted as the Argentine crop estimates increase.

Corn had the support of statements that excessive moisture was affecting the quality, but shipments increased and exports continued most unsatisfactory, although larger foreign sales promised a better movement later. Northwestern flour mills have increased production until there appears an increase over last year's figures, but shipments abroad are unsatisfactory.

Cotton fluctuated in response to numerous speculative reports and manipulation, while statistics of port receipts and exports continued to show large gains.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for January amounted to $5,230,345, of which $2,393,918 were in manufacturing, $2,530,800 in trading and $305,625 in other commercial lines.

Millions in Dividends

Richest Copper District in World

(Experts Predict Copper Stocks will Pay $75,000,000 in 1907)

I HAVE been mining for fifteen years, and have been very much interested in the various mining camps of the world, but I have always been particularly impressed with the possibilities of British Columbia and her great copper mines, because of the protection afforded investors by the Canadian Government. The opportunity never presented itself whereby I could get hold of the right copper property in that section until within the last year. The story of my connection with this property is interesting.

BREAD CAST ON THE WATERS.

Some twelve years ago I was in a position where I could favor a young mining engineer, Mr. E. August Bradley, E. M., who, for the past twenty years, has been connected with various large mining interests in that section, and is well posted on British Columbia mines. He repaid the obligation, and in expressing his gratitude told me that when he came across a copper property that was right in every respect he would let me know. During these past twelve years we have exchanged, perhaps, four letters a year, but he never mentioned a copper property in that time, and I had almost forgotten the incident. One day this last spring I got a letter from him with an urgent request to come at once to British Columbia, as he had found the property that he had been looking for for so many years. It was impossible for me to get away at that time, so I sent my engineer out there with instructions to bring back an exhaustive report on what he found. That report was so flattering that I hesitated to accept it without first visiting the property personally.

J. C. KERNOHAN.

I WENT TO BRITISH COLUMBIA

and I want to say here and now that I can't find language strong enough to tell my public of the immensity of this Copper property which my friend has secured for me.

The property consisted of the following named lode claims, namely: "Eclipse," "Mammoth," "Rainbow," "Lakeside," "Wolverine," "Tribune," "Paragon No. 1," "Paragon No. 2," "Golden No. 1," "Golden No. 2," "Cascade No. 1," and "Cascade No. 2," comprising a tract of 640 acres in all.

THE RICHEST COPPER DISTRICT IN THE WORLD.

This group of claims is situated in the Golden division of East Kootenay Mining District, Province of British Columbia. The property lies between Warren and Wells Creeks, tributaries of the middle fork of the Spillimacheen River, a district which contains the most famous mines of the British Columbia territory. All of these claims gave promise of great richness, but those nearest transportation, and which impressed me as being immediately available for mining operations were the "Mammoth" and "Eclipse" claims. These claims run right up to the side of a mountain at an angle of about 45 degrees, and could be most advantageously mined by running tunnels on the vein—see diagram. Every foot driven in these tunnels would, in my opinion—and that opinion is shared by all of the engineers who have examined the property—develop an immense amount of stoping ground, and block out millions of dollars' worth of copper ore.

At the angle of exposure the vein is fully 16 ft. wide and is easily traced on the property by cross-cuts and float for more than 3½ miles. There is between 4 and 6 feet of nearly solid chalcopyrite on the foot wall. This part of the vein is ready for shipment to smelter as soon as mined. [75 per cent of the world's supply of copper is produced from chalcopyrite ores.]

The upper end of the vein is covered by a large rock-slide which crossed the veins at right angles, carrying down hundreds, and possibly thousands of tons of solid chalcopyrite in the creek bottom, which is ample evidence of the existence of a much larger body of high grade ore buried under the slide than is apparent on the surface and where vein has been cross-cut.

BEGIN SHIPPING AT ONCE.

I spent three weeks on the property and after making a careful study of conditions came to the conclusion that thousands of tons of this high grade ore could be sacked and shipped from the surface of these properties before any actual mining was done! This ore will net from $35.00 to $50.00 per ton. It is on this that I base my statement, made at the head of this advertisement, that this mine will begin shipping ore at once!

A GREAT WATER SUPPLY.

No copper mine can be truly great without an ample water supply, and this great property has a magnificent supply of water for all power purposes. Warren Creek is a large stream, Cascade Creek flows south across all of the claims and empties into Warren Creek. Wells Creek is another stream flowing across the property and emptying into Warren Creek. Any of these streams would be sufficient for all the needs of the property, but in addition to the above source of water power there is Emerald Lake, a natural reservoir, located in "Paragon No. 1" claim, 2,000 feet above the lowest outcrop! This lake is spring fed, and is about 1,000 feet long, 400 feet wide and 40 feet deep. If necessary water could be piped from this lake to a point near where the mill is to be erected, and turbine wheels would then furnish power, light and water in abundance for all the needs of the company for all time.

There is sufficient timber on the property for mining purposes and for the erection of any buildings which the future development of the company's holdings may call for.

CLEVELAND CAPITAL INTERESTED—STRONG COMPANY ORGANIZED.

Upon my return to Cleveland I at once organized a company known as the British-American Copper Mines & Smelter Co., with a capitalization of Five Million Dollars ($5,000,000.00), divided into five million (5,000,000) shares of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00) each, fully paid, non-forfeitable and non-assessable.

The following are the officers and directors of the company:

President, CHARLES H. TUCKER, Cleveland, O.; Pres. Masonic Temple Association, formerly Gen. Agt. Great Northern Steamship Co.

Vice President, J. C. KERNOHAN, Cleveland, O.; of J. C. Kernohan Co.

Treasurer, C. H. TAYLOR, Cleveland, O.; Attorney at Law, Sec'y Gillette Mfg. Co.

Secretary, THOMAS G. SELLECK, Cleveland, O.; Public Accountant.

Managing Director and Engineer in Charge, E. AUGUST BRADLEY, E. M.; Revelstoke, B. C., Mining Engineer of International reputation.

DIRECTORS—C. H. Lane, William Cowan, Alexander McRea, C. A. Warren, M. M. Cleaveland, Thomas G. Selleck, Charles H. Tucker, E. August Bradley, C. H. Taylor, J. C. Kernohan, Consulting Engineer, Francis J. Peck.

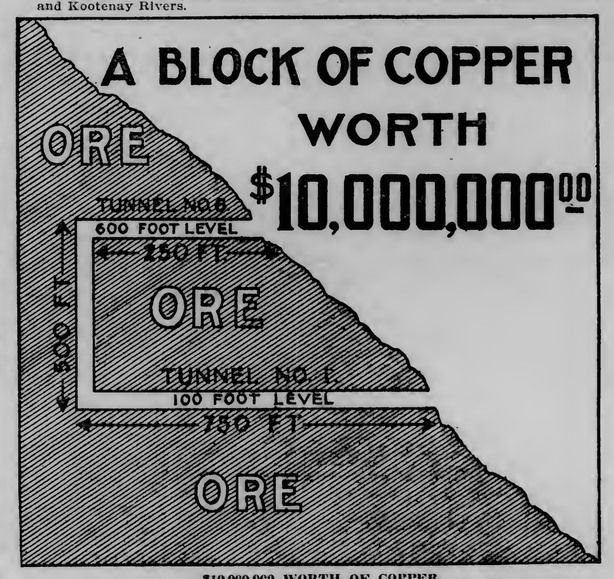

No officer or director but the Engineers receive salary.

The Imperial Bank of Canada, at Golden, B. C., is the British Columbia Depository.

STOCK SELLING FAST.

I began the sale of the stock in October of last year. The response was immediate, the sales so far have been gratifying, but I am determined to force operations at the mines so as to begin shipping without delay, and am making the investors of this country an exceptional offer for 12 days.

We have the simplest proposition ahead of us that any great mining enterprise ever encountered. All that we need to do to bring this mine into the producing class is to finish the construction of three miles of a ten mile wagon road. Seven miles of this road have already been completed by the Canadian Government, who agreed to complete this much of the road, provided we would promise to establish and maintain traction engines and cars for the transportation of our ores to the railroad. We shall complete our three miles of this road with the utmost dispatch and install the traction engines and cars as agreed. This will give us a splendid outlet to the Kootenay Central Railway, which will parallel the Columbia and Kootenay Rivers south from Golden to Ft. Steel. This railway is designed to be the freight transportation branch for the Canadian Pacific, because of the easy grade obtainable along the Columbia and Kootenay Rivers.

$10,000,000 WORTH OF COPPER.

By referring to the illustration herein you will see that when we have run the two tunnels already referred to, one at the 100 ft. level, and the other at the 600 ft. level, and have connected these two with an upraise shaft (the vein being about 16 feet in width), we will have uncovered a block of copper ore amounting to the enormous sum of Ten Million Dollars [$10,000,000.00], basing the value of the ore on 4½ per cent copper, although it frequently runs as high as 15 per cent. This illustration gives some idea of the dividends expected when we have opened up this one vein. There are other veins equally rich, which can be opened up in the future, but if we hurry further development work on this one vein, we can take out ore enough to pay back to our stockholders dividends which should send the value of the shares up into the hundreds of dollars.

OUR RICH RELATIONS.

The Granby Company, a neighbor of ours, is paying 24 per cent yearly on a capitalization of $15,000,000.00. The Granby ore body is a much lower grade than ours, averaging 2 per cent, so that when our development equals the Granby, we should pay dividends three times as great as they are paying, and possibly ten times.

Four years ago the Calumet and Arizona copper property did not present anything like the possibilities of the British-American, yet $500.00 invested in Calumet and Arizona stock four years ago would be worth $50,000.00 today.

$500.00 invested in Nevada Consolidated stock only one year ago would be worth today on the market over $16,000.00.

$500.00 invested in North Butte copper stock a year ago would be worth over $10,000.00 today.

During the year 1906 the copper mines made a magnificent showing in net earnings, the dividends amounting to more than $57,000,000.00, against $37,397,283.75 paid in 1905. The total copper output of the world in 1905 was estimated at 1,579,200,000 lbs., of which this country produced a little more than 57 per cent. The official returns of 1906 are not yet obtainable, but they will be largely in excess of the 1905 figures.

It is estimated that the year 1907 will show a copper production aggregating the stupendous sum of 75 millions of dollars.

In the last issue of Ridgway's in an article entitled "Wealth from the Mines" are these figures: In the year 1905 there were mined 4,265,742 ounces of gold, valued at over $88,000,000.00. The value of the silver produce was given at $34,221,972.00. The copper production aggregated 901,907,843 lbs., worth $139,785,716.00. As the prices on copper have materially advanced during the past year, the figures for 1906 should have a tremendous increase over those of 1905, but the interesting part of these figures is that copper produced more money than both silver and gold put together.

COPPER WILL GO HIGHER.

I am simply citing these figures to show what enormous profits are being made in copper stocks at the present time, and to give some idea of what you may expect to receive in the way of dividends in a year from this time if you buy British-American stock at the opening price of 15 cents per share today.

I have prepared a prospectus which gives full and complete details, engineers' reports, etc., of the British-American property. I am going to ask you to send for it, but I am not going to ask you to wait to read it before you buy stock at this opening price, for fear that it will be all subscribed before your remittance reaches me.

Buy it on my recommendation. I'll back up every statement I make.

PRICE ADVANCES JANUARY 31ST.

I am going to leave this price open for just twelve days. On Thursday, January 31st, the price will go to 20 cents per share, and I will send back all money that comes to me in letters postmarked later than Wednesday, January 30th, enclosing money for stock at the 15 cents price. TEN DAYS LATER PRICE GOES TO 25c.

My object in offering this first allotment at 15 cents is simply to give my many clients an opportunity to get in on what I consider the best thing ever offered in the way of copper stock. In all probability the entire issue will be snapped up in our home city, Cleveland, Ohio, for the J. C. Kernohan Co. has a strong following at home.

MY LIFE WORK.

I intend to make the British-American Copper Company the crowning achievement in my life's work. I believe that it will make me and my associates, who are officers of the Company, as well as every stockholder in the Company, who carries a sufficient amount of these shares, independently rich, for there is no end to a copper mine.

Vice President The British-American Copper Mines & Smelter Co.

THE NEW PEAVEY ELEVATOR BUILDING AT RICE'S POINT

One of Two Absolutely Fireproof Buildings in America.

Duluth is soon to have what is claimed to be one of the two absolutely fireproof buildings this side of the Atlantic. The new Peavey Elevator, now under construction at Rice's Point, to replace the old wooden elevator burned down last year, is to be built throughout of non-combustible material, and there will not be the slightest chance of any portion of the building being destroyed by fire.

The other fireproof building is already in use, that of the American Association of Fire Underwriters, at Chicago, where even the office furniture is made of metal, and nothing but the papers could burn.

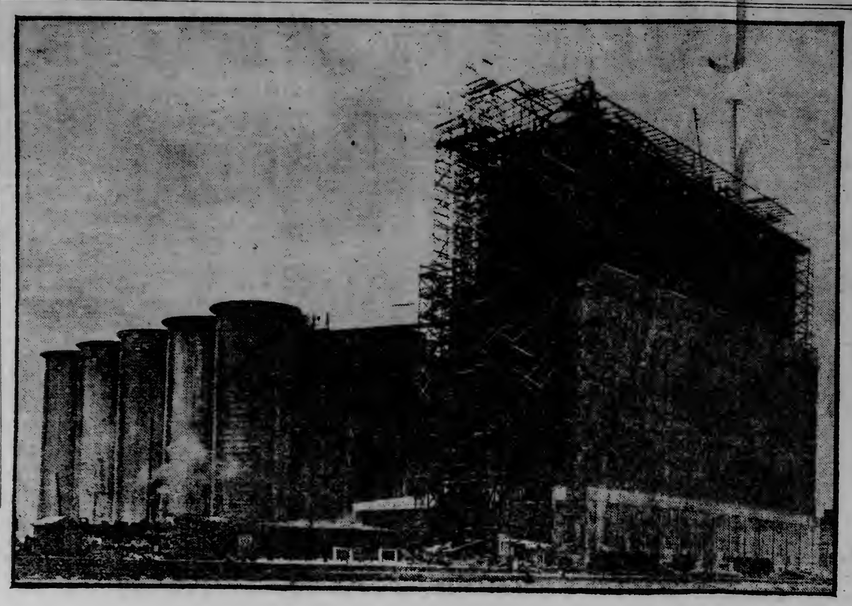

The big elevator at Rice's Point is to be 172 feet high, 193 feet in length and 72 feet in width. Its framework is of steel throughout, and it is set upon what Building Inspector Kelley characterizes as "the best elevator foundation at the Head of the Lakes."

The piling used in the old structure which burned down was found to be in perfect condition when the construction of the present elevator was begun, and the only thing necessary was to remove the old concrete caps on the piling and put on new ones of a higher grade of concrete. There are sixteen piles in a cluster, and these are placed at fourteen-foot intervals throughout the base of the building.

Three railroad tracks will be available for running cars upon to unload, and twelve cars at a time will be the unloading capacity of the big grain holder, enabling them to handle wheat with greater facility.

The big scales for weighing the grain as it is received are located at the top of the elevator, and the weighing bins connect with the huge storage bins by an especially improved pattern of revolving tube.

The bins themselves are a new departure in elevator construction.

THE NEW PEAVEY ELEVATOR. —Photo by Maher.

Barnett & Record, the contractors in charge of the big structure, spent upwards of $20,000 experimenting with the tiling of which the big grain tanks are made, and they think that they have a system which will prove dryer and safer than anything yet devised for the purpose. The tiles used are circular, curved to form the huge circle of the circumference of the bins, and are laid in two layers, reinforced with steel bands, around the whole surface of the bin.

There will be seventy of the big bins, arranged in five rows of fourteen feet in outside circumference, and having a capacity of about 27,000 bushels of grain.

The estimate of the cost of the big structure, as filed with the building inspector, was $275,000, but including the original cost of placing the piling for the foundation, the value of the big structure when completed will probably reach at least $300,000. Insurance rates on such a structure as this will, of course, be very low, and the rate of insurance on the various grains stored therein is also considerably reduced, more than repaying, in a few years, whatever extra expense has been incurred in making the building absolutely fireproof, instead of only nominally so, as is the case with many of the more expensive modern buildings.

CORUNDUM POINT ON LAKE SUPERIOR

Which is Practically a Solid Rock of Corundum.

Expected That Government Will Locate a Lighthouse There.

Corundum Point, a high rocky promontory running about a quarter of a mile out in Lake Superior, near Split Rock, on the north shore, is at the present time attracting the attention of the lake marine interests, for the reason that the Washington dispatches seem to indicate that the government will probably locate a lighthouse on that point.

The accompanying pictures, one giving a general view of Corundum Point, and the other a closer view of the very end of the point, are the property of the North Shore Abrasive company, which has offices in this city, and which is operating heavily on the point, quarrying and milling corundum, a material that gave the point its name.

In the picture the mill stack and the dock of the abrasive company can be seen.

Corundum Point is situated about one-half mile east of Split Rock, and is about forty-five miles from Duluth. Little Split Rock river empties into Lake Superior, where the point juts out from the mainland.

The point is one of the peculiar freaks of nature. Jutting out from a solid rock mainland, which is miles in extent along the lake, Corundum Point is practically a solid rock of corundum. It is grayish in appearance, and at a distance stands out boldly white, a prominent landmark for many miles along the shores of the lake. It is claimed that in clear weather the point can be seen with glasses for a distance of twenty-five miles on the lake, and it is easily visible from Two Harbors.

Towering about 125 feet above the water that laps its base, the point presents an abrupt cliff to the tremendous waves of Lake Superior when it is lashed by storms. Huge boulders that have probably broken off the cliff strew the lake bottom for several hundred feet out, otherwise many of the lake boats would be able, in fair weather, to run so close to the cliff that a person could step from the boat on to the rocks.

During one of the great storms of recent years the annals of the lakes show what one vessel beyond control, was dashed against the high rock wall. As the boat lay broadside, rocking first one way and then the other, a mate jumped from the mast to the rocky shelf, high above the water, and made fast a line from the mast to a pine tree. Over this line the crew escaped, save one man, who perished in a previous attempt to jump ashore.

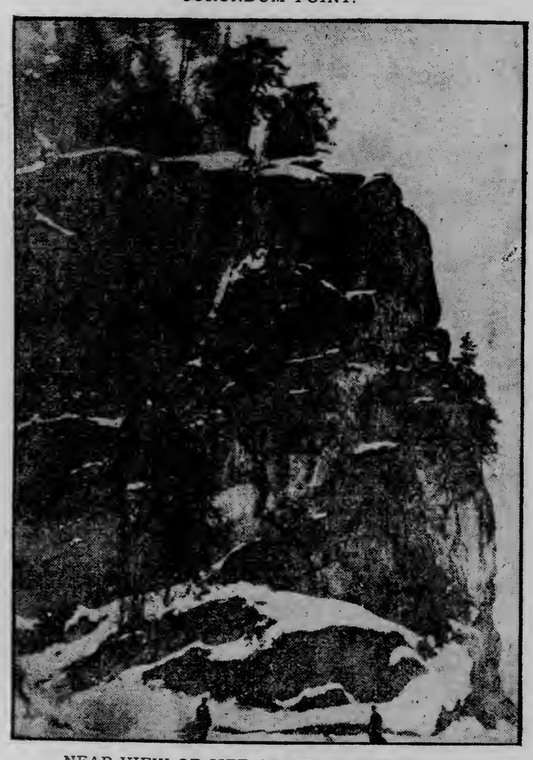

Corundum Point, although it is some three or four miles out of the regular course of vessels bound up and down the lakes, is regarded as an especially dangerous location by the vessel interests and they are, to a large extent, pushing the matter of a lighthouse location on the high point overlooking the lake. Several vessels have, within the last few years, gone ashore either on the point or in its vicinity, and the vesselmen claim that the prominence of the promontory makes it the most feasible location for a lighthouse.

Until the North Shore Abrasive company began its operations there, Corundum Point was uninhabited. Now the company has a large quarry and mill and employs, during the shipping season, a crew of about fifty men. Quite a settlement is springing up on the point. In case the government decides to erect a lighthouse there, it is likely that an impetus will be given the growth of population, and it will become a regular stopping place for north shore boats. The country inland from the point is said to be unexcelled for agricultural purposes and would be quickly settled up were the settlers assured of boat facilities in getting in and out as there are no railroads within many miles of that country.

Just off Corundum Point is a low lying rocky reef, about seventy-five feet long and twenty-five feet wide. Previous to the last great storm the reef contained one of the largest pine trees to be found along the north shore. It was a landmark for years to those coasting along the shore and gave the reef the name of Pine Tree Island. The gigantic tree that had for years successfully withstood the attacks of tremendous seas, succumbed to the waves during the never-to-be-forgotten storm of November, 1905. To the north shore folk it was much like losing an old friend.

LEGISLATURE HAS WAY WELL PAVED FOR EARLY BEGINNING OF ACTIVITY

any measure, it was decided to have public hearings on several important bills at such time as the chairman of the committee, Representative L. C. Spooner of Morris, can arrange them.

The first hearing will be on the 2-cent fare bill, and if there is sufficient time after that bill has been discussed, the Lonnon bill providing jail sentences for rebaters will be considered.

Another public hearing will be held on the reciprocal demurrage bill, and if last session's experience in this connection has any value as an indication of what will be done this time, that hearing will be prolonged into several other hearings, and it will be pretty well along in the session before action is taken on the bill.

The committee made one slight change in the bill at its meeting yesterday. Originally, it compelled railroads to make at least seventy-five miles a day with their freight trains. This was deemed excessive, and the committee made it sixty miles.

The last two sessions of the week were pretty full, compared with earlier sessions. Apparently those who have been aching to introduce reform measures have worked off their energy in this direction, and while it is by no means likely that all the reform measures are in, nothing of a startling nature developed in the last sessions of the week, and, wonder of wonders, not a single resolution providing for an investigation came into either body.

Talking about investigations, the legislature is up against something of a fight on this matter next week.

It stands between two horns of a dilemma. So many proposals to investigate have come in—and more are coming—that if all of them are adopted so many members of both houses will be tied up by them that there are likely to be many days when it will be impossible to do business in either house. Hence the proposal to consolidate them all under three principal committees.

On the other hand, it is argued by many that it is absurd to appoint a single committee to take up such widely carrying propositions as those coming under the general head of violations of the laws against combinations in restraint of trade. The coal business is one, the lumber business is another, the grain business is another, the farm machinery trust is another, and besides all these—and those still to come—the committee is expected to look into the Great Northern ore lands deal.

Obviously, the work carved out for this committee is large enough to keep a whole legislature busy for a whole session. For one committee to handle it all is utterly impracticable, for it must remembered that there are still other investigations to come.

What the outcome will be it is hard to say at this time, but it is certain that there will be a fight on the consolidation program in both houses, and there is a chance that it will be defeated. In that event, the legislature will probably have to pick out one or two or perhaps three principal matters and devote its main attention to these. It cannot possibly cover them all and attend to the many other important matters that are to come before it.

In addition to those that will be tied up on special committees, some of which will have to take trips, the regular committees are going to have plenty of work to do, and for the next month those who are appointed on special committees, and those who are on the principal standing committees, are going to have their hands full.

There is not likely to be any great fight on the resolutions giving the members $250 each for expenses. No doubt there are people that will talk about it as a salary grab, and no doubt there will be many members that will not dare to vote for the resolutions, but if it is determined that the proposal is constitutional, it is very likely to go through both houses. Also, a bill raising the salaries of future members of the legislature stands an excellent show of passage.

There will be much less excuse—if there ever is an excuse—for members to trifle in a financial way with outside interests, if they get a compensation that will cover their actual expenses during the session. Nobody expects to get anything through that will cover campaign expenses. That must be charged up to the purchase of whatever honor or glory there may be in being a member of the lawmaking body of the state.

But it certainly is unfair to compel members of the legislature to be out of pocket through their ordinary expenses, as a large proportion of them are under present conditions.

The constitution prohibits the legislature from raising their own salaries. It can raise salaries to take effect at the end of their term, which will be in the 1911 legislature, because the senate holds until then, but it cannot make any raise applicable during the terms of those now in service.

While the expense resolution is perhaps intended, in a measure, as a salary increase, it is not unprecedented and legal authorities assert that it is not in any sense a violation of the constitutional provision.

The house resolution on the subject was changed yesterday. In its original form it called for an appropriation, which would have necessitated joint action by both houses, and perhaps the signature of the governor as well. This looked too complicated, so it was changed to provide simply that the chief clerk of the house be authorized to draw his warrant for $250 for each member. A similar resolution will be introduced in the senate.

It may be that the famous Gates resolution, calling upon the governor for a special message on the county option question, will be allowed to rest where it is, and that no action will be taken upon it further.

It has been discovered since it passed that it contained no provision for conveying the message to the governor.

The resolution is wholly without precedent, so nobody can tell what ought to be done, or what has been done in the past, but the usual course with resolutions that are designed to reach somebody is to include in them a provision requiring the chief clerk of the house or the president of the senate to notify the party that the resolution is intended to reach.

There is no such provision in the Gates resolution. It simply provided that the house call upon the governor for a message, and it furnished no means of calling upon him, unless he happened to read the papers and heard of it there. Governmental matters are not conducted through the newspapers, however, and the governor is not likely to reply until he receives some official communication from the house.

As the resolution does not provide for any such official communication, theer will be none, unless it is changed, and therefore it may be that the resolution will be allowed to drop.

It is intimated that that was the intention in the first place, and that the omission of any provision for notifying the governor of the action of the house was not an inadvertence, but intentional, the object being to cast some reflection upon him without giving him a chance to get back.

Up to the close of business yesterday the legislature had received 169 bills, which would be enough to hold it awhile if there were no more coming. There are more coming, however, and they will keep coming until the end of the session, which is only twenty days away, when the constitution provides that no more shall be offered.

The resolution offered in the senate yesterday by Senator C. A. Johnson of St. Peter, providing that the legislature shall bear the expenses of junketing committees' brings up rather an interesting question. Whether or not the legislature is going to have time to take the annual junketing excursions, and whether such trips are necessary anyway, is an open question, and if the state has to bear the expense, it is not at all improbable that the result of it will be to put an end to the junketing habit.

In the past the state has been at no expense in such matters. When junkets were due, the railroads were notified, and they furnished cars for the special use of the committees, paying all expenses, while the citizens of the town to which the junket journeyed took care of the members at that end. If, the junkets are to be paid for by the state, there will be very few of them this session, if there are any.

Yesterday was the first pay day, and the members drew $50 apiece for the first ten days of the session.

COSTLY PRESSURE.

Heart and Nerves Fail on Coffee.

A resident of a great western state puts the case regarding stimulants with a comprehensive brevity that is admirable. He says:

"I am 56 years old and have had considerable experience with stimulants. They are all alike—a mortgage on reserved energy at ruinous interest. As the whip stimulates but does not strengthen the horse, so do stimulants act upon the human system. Feeling this way, I gave up coffee and all other stimulants and began the use of Postum Food coffee some months ago. The beneficial results have been apparent from the first. The rheumatism that I used to suffer from has left me, I sleep sounder, my nerves are steadier and my brain clearer. And I bear testimony also to the food value of Postum—something that is lacking in coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason. COLLIDED WITH FREIGHT.

Santa Fe Passenger Train in Mix-Up Near Sylvia, Kas.

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 19.—Santa Fe passenger, eastbound, running between San Francisco and Chicago, collided head on with the second section of freight No. 33, near Sylvia, Kas., twenty miles west of Hutchinson last night. The engine and four cars of the passenger train were derailed, Engineer Martin Krebel was instantly killed and a number of passengers seriously injured. The freight locomotive and many of the freight cars were demolished. The engineer and fireman of the freight jumped and escaped serious injury. The demoralized condition of the telegraph wires and a heavy fog were responsible for the wreck. The names of the injured passengers cannot be learned at this time.

STRONG APPEAL FOR COAL.

Sent to Great Northern Railroad by Citizens of Finley, N. D.

Finley, N. D., Jan. 19.—Business men are sending up an appeal for coal. The town has not had a local freight since Dec. 21, although there are freight trains on the road nearly every day.

The following is a copy of a telegram sent from here to the Great Northern superintendent:

"Finley, N. D., Jan. 18.—To J. L. Forepaugh, division superintendent, Great Northern Railroad company, Breckenridge, Minn.:

"We, the undersigned officers and business men of Finley desire to inform you that there is not a pound of coal for sale in Finley and the general supply in the country is about run out and many in town are entirely out. Can you not help us, at once? Our dealers have coal on the road and we must have some at once or suffering will become intense and many business houses will be compelled to close."

A CHICAGO MILLIONAIRE LEARNS THE DIFFERENCE.

He was traveling in Switzerland, and when about to cross a great mountain divide, he purchased a first-class coach ticket, and after riding some distance he noticed that those who had purchased second and third class tickets seemed to have the same accommodations as himself. "How foolish of me to have paid more," he thought.

But on arriving at the foot of a seven-mile hill the driver pulled up his horse and shouted: "First-class passengers will keep your seats; second-class passengers get out and walk; third-class passengers get out and push." And so it is.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION LAW.

The temper of the legislature on the primary election law does not appear to have been developed to a tangible degree as yet, but it is quite apparent that some changes will be made.

The legislature must look to it very carefully, or its changes will vitiate the principles on which the primary election system is based, and substitute for it some absurd reflection of the corrupt, debasing and evil old convention system.

Every step of the way toward election reforms is fought bitterly by the representatives of the old order, who found profits and valuable privileges in a system which made of the people as little as possible, and which made everything of the "organization," or machine.

One common plaint of partisans is that the primary election system has destroyed the organization. Bless their hearts, that is what it was intended to do.

What is an organization, in that sense? It is an association of individuals to manipulate the policies and distribute the offices gained by a political party.

What end did that organization seek? The good of the people? Well, hardly ever. The members were not there for their health. They sought, and therefore the organization sought, their own peculiar good and profit, and the result was that the people fared but poorly, and had to be content with such crumbs as might fall from the groaning tables of the well-fed bosses.

The primary election system sought to destroy this interposition of special private interests, which fatten themselves by selling out the common good to their political and corporation friends, and bring elections closer to the people themselves. It accomplished that purpose, and though the system is not perfect, there is no imperfection in it which calls for a reaction to the old system.

The legislature should be very careful in deliberating on the primary election law. It should remember that much of the sentiment for a change comes from those whose personal interests lead them to long for a return of the old ways of "organization," which means "bossism."

POETS AND POETRY OF TODAY.

Have the poets of today deteriorated? Are there no writers of verse in the forepart of the twentieth century to be compared to those of the nineteenth and preceding centuries? Is the era of steel and electricity too practical, too prosaic, to enjoy and encourage the possible Miltons, Byrons, Tennysons and Longfellows of today? Is it true that no really good poetry has been written for the last forty years?

Many of the men highest in literature and literary criticism today have returned the answer "Yes" to all of these questions and some have expressed their regret and given more or less cogent reasons for their positive replies. One, for instance, holds, possibly with reason, that if Robert Burns had lived today, unknown to the literary world, even his choicest productions would have been "declined with thanks" and have been classed as "rubbish and rot." Another states that Longfellow would have had trouble finding a publisher for either "Hiawatha" or "Evangeline" and that no practical English bookmaker would take the risk of "Idyls of the King" of Tennyson were he an unknown applicant for favor today.

That it would be hard to find a publisher today for "The Prisoner of Chillon," "The Lady of the Lake" or even "Paradise Lost" is almost unquestionable. Equally would the swinging rythm and rhyme of Moore and Poe have been doomed to ceaseless wanderings in search of one willing to take chances on their popular success.

Airy nothings with fantastic gingles or queer endings to each verse unquestionably sell best today. Blank verse is almost, if not quite, entirely under the ban of the magazine editors of the time who are equally averse to sonnets and abhor "singsong."

Will there be a "swing around the circle" again, as there was in respect to the realistic and problem novel as compared with the romantic? Many literary thinkers believe there will and that we shall yet have our twentieth century Byrons, Scotts, Longfellows and Tennysons, if not even a Shakespeare.

DENVER'S HALF FARE SYSTEM.

In Denver for a long series of years, the street railway company has not only given to all pupils in the public schools the benefit of the two-rides-for-a-nickel rate through the sale of books of forty tickets for a dollar, but it has still further facilitated the use of its cars by the children at the low rate by permitting the little stores that cater to the wants of the youngsters to vend these tickets in pairs to their patrons.

Further, the Denver street railway company has found this source of revenue by no means insignificant, because it brings to it the patronage of thousands of children who, under the Duluth system, would walk to and from school. At the hour for the closing of some of the larger schools in the residence sections where the houses are more or less scattered, the management has also made it a custom, especially on stormy days, of having extra cars in waiting and these are invariably crowded. In fact, so profitable has the half-fare-for-children scheme been found that the officers of the corporation would laugh to scorn even a suggestion of return to the full-fare system.

If the Denver street railway company finds the two-for-a-nickel system for school children good business policy, why would not the Duluth Traction company find a similar concession equally good for it? The people of Duluth who have to give up dimes, instead of nickels, whenever the children are compelled to ride to and from school, would like to know the reason that has prompted the local company heretofore to refuse to heed their requests for half-fares for the little students.

DON'T "WATCH THE CLOCK."

Ask any business man—merchant, manufacturer or contractor—what employe he would lay off first in a dull period necessitating retrenchment and, in these days when the hours of labor are sharply defined, either by working agreements with unions or by law, he would be very apt to reply: "The man who watches the clock the most closely."

And there is excellent reason for such a reply—a reason that thoughtful employes well may ponder over. The man, who "watches the clock" and is in haste to drop his work sharply on the second, is the man who takes no personal pride in his work but is doing his task simply because he feels "that he has to," either to make a more or less precarious living for himself or for a family that, the chances are, he considers a burden.

The man who leaves half done a small task that an extra minute or two might complete, simply because the clock mutely indicates "Time's up," is never a man who takes pleasure in his job but is ever one who is expecting much from his employer and is willing to give in return about as little as he possibly can. Such a man certainly is the one who can best be spared, and will be when necessity arises.

Every man's daily task or calling—whatever it may be—is the work into which nine-tenths of his life must go. Whether that life shall be classed as conscientious or slipshod, disinterested or purely selfish, sheerly mechanical or spiritually creative, depends on himself alone. If the task be pursued for mere wages, and with no relation to honor or integrity, it invariably degrades him. If no other motive inspires him than "getting a living out of the job," if he has no pride in the dignity of his calling, he becomes a mere hireling—and hirelings never command thoughtful consideration.

If, therefore, you belong to a labor union that fixes the hours of work at eight or nine or ten and you find that, when the clock says "Time's up," you are in the midst of a task that may be finished or left in better shape by a few minutes extra labor, put on the little extra willingly and cheerfully. It will pay you many times over in the course of your life to do your duty well and not always "work with one eye on the clock."

THE SALARY INCREASE.

Having discovered that the press of the country was not united in hostility to the proposition to increase the salaries of all members of congress to $7,500 each and of the vice president, speaker and members of the cabinet to $12,000 each, the house has reversed itself and gone on record at last, by the vote of 133 to 95, in favor of that increase. The people of the nation would have liked to have known just how their representatives were arrayed on the matter and it is just a trifle to be regretted that the demand for a roll-call failed.

As President Roosevelt's closest friend in the house was the sponsor of the original movement and, as it is the belief among them that the senate refused to adopt the proposition of its own initiative, simply because it did not propose to be made the usual cat's paw, and will probably accept the house's action, it is regarded as likely that, after March 4 next, members of the two houses and of the cabinet will receive higher remunerations. If this should prove true, it is to be hoped that it will result in bringing into public life more men of marked ability who could not afford to sacrifice their present incomes for the salaries now paid.

The arguments that could be advanced in favor of the increases are by no means bad. The president of a baseball league receives more pay than cabinet members will under the proposed advance. Hundreds of officials of railroads and business concerns get more than the expected increase of congressional salaries. Since the payroll of the nation was fixed at its present figures, the business of the nation has grown enormously and the work and responsibilities of congress and cabinet have increased at least correspondingly. The expenses of maintaining the various positions have also largely advanced and none can live within the incomes as easily as once was the rule.

The counter argument that many members of congress do not earn even their present salaries may be met with the reply that the people whom they represent—or misrepresent—are responsible for this and, if some are remiss in their duties, that is no valid reason why those faithful to their trusts should not be remunerated for their increased work.

THE LOVE OF WOMAN.

That "man's love is of man's life a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence" receives daily proof in all parts of the world and often is chronicled in the daily press, especially when that proof is of an unusual character, no matter how lowly may be the one giving it.

One of these unusual proofs was presented recently to the world, all unwittingly so far as she herself was concerned, by a venerable woman in an almost unknown village of New Jersey—Miss Elizabeth Carr—who, knowing that death was about to call her, asked that her mortal remains be placed in the same grave with those of the man to whom she had been engaged more than fifty years ago. Her wishes were respected, the half-century old grave was opened and the faded but ever true sweetheart was united, in earth's cold embrace, to the stalwart lover of her young womanhood.

What a wonderful thing is woman's love, immeasurably beyond all masculine powers of appreciation! Wonderful alike whether, as in the case of Miss Carr, it remains ever faithful for over half a century to one whose very name has been forgotten by all but her or whether it passes, triumphant and true, through long pitiless years of neglect, of faithlessness, of inappreciation, of silent misery, of unanswered longing for the tender word and touch that brought it into being.

Woman's supreme love makes heroines, often in little better than rags, of the millions of women who drudge their lives away, far too often in the service of ungrateful masters, happy if only they know that even a title of their wealth of self-immolating love is returned, even though the ardent lover of their maidenhood prove the coldly selfish and callously indifferent husband.

Elizabeth Carr's memory is to be revered because she displayed such remarkable devotion to one utterly gone out of her life for fifty years. But does not still greater reverence belong to the great numbers of wives to be found in every portion of this and other countries who meet daily, for years on years, coldness, neglect, indifference, often even abuse, and who yet remain true and loving helpmeets?

MINNESOTA'S FARM LANDS.

Acre for acre, the farm lands of Minnesota are far better than even the best of the lands of either Kansas or Nebraska west of a line drawn through the center of those two states and are as productive as the choicest farming sections east of that line. And this is as true of the lands of Northern Minnesota as of those of the beautifully cultivated and finely productive southern part of the state.

Further, experience has shown in every place where it has been tested, notably in the once great Kankakee marshes of Illinois and Indiana, that lands from which it has been necessary to drain off water are far more fertile than even the choicest bits of the surrounding territory and, consequently, command premium prices in the market.

Minnesota has not heretofore attracted its full, fair share of farming immigrants, but it has not taken the same steps to advertise its advantages as its really less favored sister states have done nor has it had the assistance such as the railroads, seeking passenger business, have given to the others for a long term of years in the form of colonist or homeseeker excursions.

In this respect, Minnesota is very like Missouri—another queenly state of immense resources. But Minnesota and Missouri will soon come into their own rightful places in the very forefront of great agricultural states. If the legislature shall enact a good strong drainage law, this advance will be greatly accelerated, especially as regards Northern Minnesota. But it is certain to come nevertheless and that before very many years.

THE PASSING SHOW.

Senator Platt's recently noted "improvement" refers, it is needless to say, to his health, not to his congressional record.

Cement men of the Northwest are in convention. They do not purpose, however, to seal up legislative and other breaches.

The people along the Ohio river are having their regular annual wrestle with the January floods. They ought to be used to it by this time.

The Colorado river gives no more sign of paying attention to President Roosevelt's last message than do the houses of congress to his previous state pronunciamentoes.

Delaware's new senator, F. A. Richardson, is perfectly eligible to membership in the "Millionaire's club." And yet he is a vast improvement over the unspeakable Addicks.

Is it not just a little irregular that Senator-elect Brown of Nebraska declared for popular elections of senators the very day the legislature gave him a nice warm place for six long years?

John R. Walsh, the Chicago ex-banker, railroad magnate and what not, who failed for millions about a year ago, has been indicted by the federal grand jury on 182 counts. Walsh seems to be a pretty fair rival for the Standard Oil trust in the indictment line.

If "Sure Shot" McDonald, the Texas Ranger, should challenge Senator Foraker to a duel, he might find a lingering fate in store for him. Suppose Foraker, as the challenged party, should call for a duel of words, the poor Texan's end would be slow but not painless.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, who has more real power in his gavel than President Roosevelt in his facile pen says: "No legislation is good legislation." Maybe he is right, but the people of the country at large are very much in the condition of the historic "man from Missouri."

The Massachusetts association opposed to the further extension of suffrage to women has sent out its modest annual Remonstrance—a small four-page paper. The little publication is, however, crowded with facts showing that the woman suffragists are by no means the whole thing.

The Manitoba Free Press of Winnipeg has adopted a decidedly novel method of calling attention to itself, its city and its section by sending out the bowls, decorated in Indian style, of pipes of peace with a little history thereof. The Herald takes pleasure in smoking a "pipe of peace" with the Free Press.

Vice President Fairbanks, whose personal wealth makes his official salary only pin-money for his family, objects strenuously to the proposed raise in his annual stipend. As his objection affects also the speaker and cabinet members, it must be that he wants only millionaires in the highest and costliest official positions.

Editor Julia G. Wood of the Lake County Advocate is working under difficulties in publishing her paper in the dining room of a camp. But when Lax Lake shall have become a thriving town and the Advocate shall have been proportionately prosperous, she will harken back with many a smile to her dining room sanctum, composing room and pressroom.

At last, the members of the national house have mustered up courage enough to vote their successors $2,500 a year raise in salaries. Though some of them, judging from the past, will not earn even the present stipend, the nation would like to see the man who will reject the raise if the senate shall find time enough in its Brownsville debate to agree to the proposal.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Havana is a mighty interesting city," said H. A. West of Chicago at the McKay. "In the first place, one is impressed by the entrance to the harbor. It is so narrow that only one ship can pass at a time, but beyond this channel, guarded by massive fortifications, lies the harbor itself, so large that a good healthy navy could anchor there and still have some room to spare.

"Viewed from the harbor, the city is remarkably picturesque, with its large and imposing buildings, solidly constructed of stone and often painted in brilliant colors. The vessel enters the harbor under the guns of Morro castle. To the right is Havana itself, and on the other side, opposite the castle, are three forts constituting the further defense of the city.

"I was impressed by the foreign character of Havana. The average Cuban residence does not make much display on the outside, and the occupants do not seem particular as to whom they have for neighbors. The line is drawn between their homes and the world by the street wall, and whatever may be outside the wall has nothing to do with the inside. The outside may be dirty and squalid, but a peep through an archway will show a court white and clean, with marble floors and stairs, fountains and a variety of plants and flowers.

"All of the buildings, from the humble cottages to the grand palaces, are of stone. Everything is massive and substantial. Modern American improvements are fast appearing, but old Havana can never be erased. It is there to stay. Through the center of the city runs the Prado, a wide, prettily-shaded boulevard, with costly structures on either side. There are also parks and gardens. Along the waterfront are the wholesale business houses, shipping offices, stock and produce exchange, custom house and other large enterprises.

"The theaters, clubs, residences, hotels, etc., are around the Prado. Some of the business streets are so narrow that carriages can scarcely pass each other. For this reason all carriages are provided with foot bells, and when a driver wishes to pass a carriage ahead of him he rings his bell and the driver ahead moves to the curb at the left. The sidewalk is so narrow that two can walk abreast, but a third person could not pass, so the custom is to line along single file."

"Last year was a fine one for contractors in almost all lines," said L. P. Bailey of Minneapolis at the Lenox. "Particularly was this true with railroad and building contractors. All through the West there was a big building boom, and one can scarcely name a city through the whole section that did not have a remarkable lot of work in this line. The same holds true of the railroads, both in the United States and Canada. There were big jobs and little jobs in plenty, and the new men in the business, who were afraid to tackle the larger contracts, had a choice selection of small jobs to pick from. Short extensions and spurs were built in all directions, and there was work enough for all the contractors. I know of several firms that had all the work they could possibly do, and were forced to refuse to bid on numerous good jobs on that account.

"There is a considerable element of risk in the business. It is the gamble part of it that makes it so interesting to many. Of course, the old hands at it can figure just about what their profits will be in most cases, but the best of them are tripped up sometimes, and find to their sorrow that their calculations are all wrong. So many conditions govern the success of any job that cannot always be figured on before hand, there is a certain element of doubt until the work is completed entirely. The labor situation was the greatest worry last year. There was a scarcity of men, and the crews which were employed had to be paid such high wages that some of the contractors were in despair."

"Most of the American farmers who have gone into Canada and taken up lands have made good," said V. J. Grant of Winnipeg, Man., at the St. Louis. "One occasionally hears of instances where a man has failed, and where he wants to get back to his old home, but there are bound to be some failures anywhere one wants to go. Western Canada is no exception to the rule. To a man who is acquainted with conditions as they exist there, however, it is rather a surprise that any one could fail to make good, once properly started. All that is necessary is a little intelligence and a little work, and a farmer is on the road to success. There have been big increases in land values, and many men have become comfortably wealthy merely by getting a large bunch of land when it was cheap and holding onto it until the price raised. It is an old system, and can always be worked, with the measure of success depending upon the particular location where the system is applied."

"I never see the name of Francis Wilson on the bill boards that I am not reminded of the first time I ever visited New York," said C. O. Crandall of Chicago at the Lenox. "If I am in town Monday night I shall probably see him in 'The Mountain Climber,' but it is a safe wager that I will not enjoy the show as much as I did the first one I saw him in, for the theater was a new thing to me then, hailing as I did from a small farming community in New York state.

"The name of the old production was 'The Princess of Trebizonds,' and in those days he wasn't very widely known. It was long before he became the success in 'Erminie' and a star. The thing about the production that stuck to my memory the most tenaciously was a fall Wilson took. As I remember it, he stood way up on a pedestal holding a great drum, and when the time came he fell straight over backward and landed as neatly as a bit of feather. The ordinary actor gets black and blue falling from a sofa on a thick rug, but here Wilson did an acrobatic stunt like a circus performer and never quivered a muscle. I'd give a pot of money to see him do it again, just for old times' sake."

THE WEATHER.

A misty drizzle, due to a mild east wind, that set in early this morning turned the branches of all trees into icicles, coated snowbanks and covered sidewalks with a thin smooth layer of ice that made walking decidedly unstable and resulted in more falls than on all previous days of the winter. The trolleys of the electric cars also made many vicious, but dazzling displays. The weather was so warm withal that many who wore their fur lined coats down town wished that they had exchanged those uncomfortable garments for cravenettes or mackintoshes. Dark clouds hung over the city all morning and rain, rather than snow seemed not unlikely. Last night's lowest temperature was 18 degs. and yesterday's highest was 28 degs. The weather man promises snow flurries and a cold wave tonight with a fair Sunday with the temperature about zero.

The sun set today at 4:51 o'clock and will rise tomorrow morning at 7:45, set tomorrow at 4:53 and rise Monday morning at 4:54 o'clock—a gain of three minutes of day light, making tomorrow's total 9 hours, 7 minutes.

A year ago today, also, it was mild and cloudy while a year ago tomorrow was almost a duplicate of today.

Says Mr. Richarson of weather conditions: "The Alberta disturbance has moved its center to the upper Mississippi valley causing more snow in the Northwest and New England, and light to heavy rains in the lake region, Ohio, lower Missouri and Mississippi valleys and Southwestern states, and higher temperature in most districts east of the Rocky mountains. A cold wave is developing in the Far West and Northwest with a decided increase in barometric pressure. Temperatures in Western Canada continue to range from about zero to 20 degs. below. Decidedly colder weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Sunday. Zero temperature will occur during Sunday, but Sunday night it will doubtless be considerably below zero."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures, as recorded by the weather bureau:

Philadelphia Press: "Young Mrs. Oldrox seemed to be in rather a pensive mood today."

Cleveland Plain-Dealer: "Do you know that champagne poured into a damp glass will lose its sparkle at once?"

"It won't if I can reach it first."

Chicago Record-Herald: "My wife is a woman who can practice great self-restraint."

"Yes. She came over to see our new baby the other day, and didn't say 'Ain't he cunning?'"

Washington Star: "Is that woman's book a success?"

"I'm afraid not," answered Miss Cayenne. "I haven't seen anybody who has found anything shocking in it."

Philadelphia Ledger: "That painting is worth $40,000."

"What, that little thing?"

"Yes."

"Well, if ever I get $40,000 I'll do my own painting."

Chicago Tribune: "You don't keep any money in banks?" said the passenger with the skull cap. "Perhaps you are like some other persons I know, and keep your money tied up in a yarn sock."

"You've guessed it nearly right," responded the passenger with the bulging forehead. "All the money I have is tied up in a woolen mill."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

A Reasonable Creed.

ARTICLE FIRST "WE BELIEVE IN GOD."

All builders of creeds must begin at the same point. Whether they cherish the ambitious design of constructing an elaborate system of thought which shall command the respect of future ages, or whether they are simply trying, as are we, in a quiet, modest way to state chiefly for their own satisfaction, the substance of their faith, they must all start with the being of God. We assume this as the basal thing in the universe, and though we cannot prove it, as we demonstrate a proposition in geometry, we are able to tell why we personally believe in God.

First, because men always have believed in God. The idea is embedded in the constitution of the race. Who can tell how and in what dim age of the past, it lodged itself in the minds of men? But the idea today is as universal as is the idea of gravitation. We cannot lightly wave one side this testimony to the existence of God. The general belief in God, however crude it has been in some periods of history, however imperfect it may be in many minds today, is, in our judgment, not a persistent and self-originating fancy of the human dmind, but rather the reflection of a great self-existent reality.

In the second place we believe in God because otherwise this is an inexplicable world. The existence of God alone gives meaning to history and to the present day life of man. If there is no God, the universe is a tangle; life a mockery; love a delusion; sorrow and pain and death the darkest of mysteries and there is no such thing as a moral order.

In the third place we believe in God because Jesus Christ believed in Him Jesus—to say something more of Him—was a spiritual expert and just as you go to Edison to find out about electricity and to Marconi to be instructed on wireless telegraphy, so you go to the one person who seems to have the clearest, sanest view of spiritual realities to ascertain whether there is a God. His testimony is clear, unequivocal, sufficient. He does not speak like a man deluded or insane. On the contrary, His calm, positive words are those of One who knew.

For these three reasons, then, we believe in God. And there is nothing in modern thought which precludes the existence of such a God, indeed rampant atheism and dogmatic agnosticism have had their day and ceased to be. The profoundest thinkers today are admitting that out beyond the reach of science, inaccessible to the microscope, the telescope, the dissecting knife is a force mighty, impalpable, omnipresent which prevades and sustains all things

Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns
And the round ocean and the pleasant air,
And in the mind of man.

What scientists call force and what the poets vaguely define, we people of simple religious instincts prefer to call God. Therefore, it is that, convinced by the witness of others and by the intuitions of our own mind, we reverently declare as the first article of our creed

We believe in God.

THE PARSON.

"Pure Food Bill."

We've heard about Bill Bailey, Wild Bill, an' other chaps,
Of "Hello Bill" and Buffalo Bill, rather famous yaps;
But at th' present writin', when we've lot o' space to fill,
We want to boost th' star o' all, that noted Pure Food Bill.

When Bill he came from congress he wanted whisky straight,
An' is kind o' most perticular when he starts to irrigate;
An' just th' same about his food when he wants to eat his fill—
No poison stuff in his, he says—this Pure Food Bill.

He's set again' th' col-tar dyes, th' flavors an' th' dope
They make from out o' garbage, an' Bill is right, I hope:
An' we ought to stand right by him with good an' hearty will;
For he's a pretty decent feller, this 'ere Pure Food Bill.

He says there's lots o' sausage that's made from scraps and meal,
An' there's lots o' potted chicken that's built o' sickly veal;
An' there's boric acid in th' ham we put upon the grill—
An' he's goin' to have 'em stop it, says Pure Food Bill.

We kinder like Bill's liquor, for we know it's pretty pure,
An' it won't rot out our in'ards, o' that we're certain sure;
An' we kinder think Bill's fodder'll give strength to brain an' will,
So we're whoopin' up th' virtues o' Pure Food Bill.

The Lash in Delaware.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Forty stripes, save one, well laid on, will still be the punishment to fit the crimes of wife-beating, petty larceny, disorderly conduct and similar offenses against the peace of the commonwealth of Delaware. The Blue Hen's chickens have been urged to abolish the whipping post as a means of correction, but they refuse to spare the rod on the ground that it has a preventive as well as a punitive effect. It certainly seems especially appropriate that a wife-beater should be given a sound thrashing. In this case, at all events, the Delawareans have Biblical warrant for applying the lash.

Sinner, You'll Be Sighin'.

Oh, sinner, you'll be sighin'
Ef you keep de sinnin' state;
To keep de gospel flyin',
Put de dollar on de plate!

De trouble you a-raisin'
Never'll do you any good;
To keep de fire blazin'
You mus' hustle wid de wood!

It's a fine ol' worl' ter give in,
Ef you willin' fer to give,
En de bes' ol' worl' to live in
Ef you got de cash to live!

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It's a long honeymoon that has no return to sanity.

If it's only a stickpin it's jewels when a woman loses it.

Money may be the root of evil, but lack of it is the full-grown tree.

When a man joins the church either he thinks he's going to die or he's going into politics.

You won't get popular by saying smart things, but by laughing at them when somebody else says them.

A Few Don'ts for Writers.

Don't write a story too short.
Don't write a story too long.
Don't write a report.
Don't write a tale overdrawn.
Don't write a commonplace theme.
Don't write a story unreal.
Don't write of how things might seem.
Don't write what you don't feel.

Don't write a story too drear,
Don't write of treasure trove.
Don't write of people who're queer.
Don't write a story of love.
Don't write a tale full of lies.
Don't write of the trite and small—
In fact, to be very wise,
Don't write a story at all.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

At a meeting of the board of county commissioners yesterday, Capt. Antoine Paul was appointed overseer of the poor.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Bronson left yesterday for an extended business trip through the Eastern cities.

About 300 barrels are manufactured daily at the cooper shop on Rice's Point.

John L. Lewis, the Lehigh coal dock man, is at the St. Louis.

J. L. Moulton left last night for Minneapolis, where he is superintending the building of some new elevators.

Patsy Cardiff and John L. Sullivan fought six rounds at Minneapolis last night. The fight was decided a draw, much to the surprise of the spectators who thought Cardiff had the best of it throughout. In the first round Sullivan's left arm was broken between the wrist and elbow, but Sullivan concealed the accident even from his seconds, until the fight was over.

Paine & Hardner opened their bank for business this morning in the Merchants hotel building.

Rich Hendricks of Verndale, Minn., is in Duluth visiting friends.

Henry Abbey has secured Mrs. James Brown Potter of "Ostler Joe" renown, for a twenty months' engagement on the stage.

P. S. Gilmore, the famous bandmaster, who is the owner of a valuable piece of Duluth real estate, has been recently importuned by several local brokers to place a price on his lots. A letter received from him today says he intends to hold the lots, believing that Duluth has a grand destiny.

Walsh Bros'. barber shop is again in full blast on the old site on Lower Lake avenue.

Dunn & Thompson's teams are busily engaged in hauling the evil smelling burnt wheat out onto the ice. It is dumped about a mile from the shore.

Lake county seems to be a healthy place. There was only one death in that county for 1886, and he was a stranger who went down there and got frozen to death.

Miss Marion Ball left today for a few weeks' visit to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The ice cutters are again at work upon the ice in the lake. The late cold snap has strengthened the ice to such an extent that it will probably stay for the balance of the winter.

Vagabond Thoughts.

Love may not pay the rent, but it is nice to have around the house.

A man is known in Duluth by the copper stocks he owns.

Some big men can be pretty small at times.

If tailors demanded cash on delivery, many a man would have to go home in a barrel.

If we were all as clever as our mothers think we are, wouldn't we be great?

Because a man is polished, it does not mean that he is a shine.

When an actress loses her jewels nowadays, it is a sign her press agent can't think of anything else to write.

People who live in glass houses should be careful to pull down the shades at night.

If everybody, like opportunity, knocked but once, this would be a better world.

Answers to Correspondents.

Anxious—Your play, when your opponent insists that a flush talks louder than four primma donnas, is to hit him where Elizabeth is popularly supposed to have worn the beads, with the kitty or anything else that is handy.

Mable—You ask what is a suitable birthday gift for a gentleman. In reply will state that, while it is not our custom to accept expensive gifts from ladies, our birthday takes place Jan. 24 and our favorite smoke is a 15-cent panatella.

Charley—The best method we know of for patching up the difference between you and your "lady friend" is to go to her home and make a noise like a diamond ring.

This Tale Is Bad.

The wife sobbed convulsively, as she put his tooth brush and cough medicine in the suit case. Several tear drops trickled down the end of her nose and buried themselves in his pajamas, which had been rolled up ready to be packed.

"Oh, dearie, must you go?" she asked.

The man held her tenderly in his arms and kissed the tears away.

"Be brave, little girl," he said. The company has ordered me to take this long journey and I'll have to go or lose my job. I hate to think of leaving you for such a long time, dear, but it can't be helped. I shall come back as soon as I can."

"When I am gone, don't let the children forget me. Bring up little Bobbie as you know I would like to have him brought up and tell all the youngsters that their old dad is coming back to them just as soon as he can."

The woman seemed calmer now.

"Well, if it must be, I suppose there is nothing to do but make the best of it. I have got your lunch already and I put several of the six best sellers in your suit case, for you to read while you are traveling."

The family was grouped sadly about the husband and father, as he carefully strapped his case. Finally he picked it up and kissed his wife and the children a fond farewell. Then he started for Superior to transact an hour's business.

"Oh, George," his wife called after him, "write me from the Interstate bridge and don't forget that your life preserver is in the bottom of the bag, right under your clan shirt."

An Explanation.

It was never the intention of the writer of this column last Saturday, to say that the well known local pillar of the drama, C. A. Marshall, stated that "some mighty good troubles" were coming to the Lyceum theater. But that was what appeared. Mr. Marshall should have been quoted as saying that "some mighty good troupes" were coming to his playhouse. He probably has plenty of troubles—being a theatrical manager—without bringing any extra ones in off the road. There's many a slip between the typewriter and the press.

Philosophy of the street car conductor: "Step up in front, please."

The Minneapolis Sunday Journal prints St. Paul society news under the heading, "From the Suburban Towns." Shade of Commodore Kittson, that must rile them up along Summit avenue.

Since his latest play, "The Straight Road," was produced, Clyde Fitch, the well known dramatist, has been accused of copying the methods and seeking the laurels of Theodore Kremer, who concocts such melodramatic masterpieces as "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," and "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model." If the charges are true, we may expect Mr. Fitch to furnish Eleanor Robson with a piece called "Christine, the Popumlar Scrub Lady," or write "Clarence, the Handsome Floor Walker," for William Faversham.

Owned by A. Delacy Wood.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In a recent issue of your paper, speaking about the removal of the Lake County Advocate from Beaver Bay to the new town of Lax Lake on the Duluth & Northern railroad, your reporter stated that the paper was "owned and edited" by Mrs. Julia A. Wood, when as a matter of fact the Advocate printing office is owned by A. Delacy Wood, that gentleman having purchased the outfit three years ago from the American Type Foundry company of Minneapolis, when Mr. Wood established the paper at Beaver Bay, and he has been practically editor-in-chief of the Advocate up to the present date as the files of the paper will readily prove. Owing to the weak condition of Mr. Wood's eyes, which was brought about by over thirty years' hard work in the newspaper business in the Northwest, his wife, Mrs. Julia A. Wood, has acted as publisher since the paper was started and has performed the work very creditably. This is simple justice to the veteran editor, who has a host of friends at the head of the lakes. He inaugurated the first Minnesota editorial excursion to Duluth twenty-five years ago while secretary of the State Press association. Mr. Wood had the honor of being the first judge of the probate court of Lake and Cook counties, and established the first paper at Two Harbors and Grand Marais. Yours truly,

CIRCUSES GROWING EVERY SEASON

Hundreds of Men Connected With the Big Shows.

Large Sums Spent in Special Features and Performances.

F. J. O'DONNELL.

"Here and there you will find people who say that the great American institution and the one so dear to the heart of the boy from 4 to 90 years, the circus, is dying out just as minstrelsy is, but they are mistaken; the circus has not reached the limit of its possibilities and just now it is more popular with people everywhere than it has ever been in the past," said Frank J. O'Donnell, the well known circus man, while here a few days ago in connection with the visit at the Lyceum theater of "The County Chairman."

Mr. O'Donnell is one of the famous circus advance men of the country. For years he has been a prominent member of the big advance brigade of the Forepaugh-Sells show and he goes with the show again next season. In the summer he is ahead of the circus and in winter he usually looks after the destinies of some theatrical organization.

"Of course,' said Mr. O'Donnell, continuing, "the circus of today is hardly like the one which delighted our grandfathers. This country has grown very much silence they used to eat peanuts at one ring circuses, and as this is an age of big things, it is only natural that circuses should feel the expansion.

"The little shows of the past could no more attempt the things your modern circus does than I could lick Joe Gans with one hand tied behind me. Just imagine one of those old time circuses offering a spectacle like 'Fighting the Flames,' which was a feature of the Forepaugh-Sells performance last season, or 'The Field of the Cloth of Gold,' which was the big offering of the Ringling show.

"Yes, this is an age of 'bigness' and the circuses are getting larger every season. Next season, the Forepaugh-Sells show will be considerable larger than it was last and the other big shows will enlarge their outfits. Many of them have their cars built by their own men in the circus winter quarters.

"Perhaps a little description of this 'Fighting the Flames' spectacle would give you some idea of the great amount of work, equipment and talent that is necessary to carry out even a small part of a circus performance nowadays, for, while 'Fighting the Flames' is an elaborate spectacle and a costly one, it is not one-half or even one-fourth of the circus performance.

"It is these spectacles and big feature acts which make the transportation of a big show from one town to another a very great problem and which makes the proprietors add more cars to the circus trains every year.

"In order to produce this 'Fighting the Flames'—and I am mentioning it merely to show the extent of circus achievement—it was necessary to have the largest circus tent in the world constructed. One entire side was given up to this spectacle. Many people predicted failure for it before the season opened, but it was a big hit.

"The scene shows a three story hotel, with an entire street of stores, etc., alongside. Citizens lean out of the windows, drive up and down the street and a number of boys and girls dance on the sidewalks to the tunes of a hurdy gurdy organ. Suddenly smoke and hurdy gurdy organ. Suddenly smoke and story of the hotel. A policeman sees them and turns in an alarm.

"Then two companies of fire apparatus come out and the work of fighting the flames begins. Water is thrown on the burning building in profusion and the hook and ladder companies set to work to save the guests of the hotel. Firemen carry men, women and children down extension ladders and finally, some persons on the top floor who can not be reached drop into life nets, held by firemen below.

"This part of the entertainment does not last so very long, but it cost the Ringlings, owners of the Forepaugh-Sells shows, a great deal of money to produce and to transport. Your modern circus management stops at nothing in search of novelties, however, and the circus man has shown that he can put up his heaviest paraphernalia in the morning and take it down at night, moving it from one town to another in a few hours.

"Lots of people have little idea of the magnitude of the circus organization. They see the long parade—a feature which, by the way, I understand the Ringlings never intend to abandon, as have the owners of the Barnum & Bailey show—and they wonder at the marvels they see under the big white top later in the day, but at the same time they hardly realize the amount of work that has been done to bring the show to town and give the performance, and what a large amount must be done before the next town can be reached.

"The working organization of a modern circus is as carefully worked out as the United States postoffice system, or those of the world's biggest mercantile enterprises.

"Nothing to promote the interests of the show, call the attention of the people to its coming, or to make its performance run smoothly and profitably is overlooked.

"Hundreds of men are connected with big shows like the Forepaugh-Sells and Ringling Brothers, of whom the laity hears little or nothing. There are opposition brigades, who are a part of the great publicity organization, ahead, and there are secretaries, auditors and postmasters back with the show who have lots of work, but of whom the public sees little. Then there are men in Europe, as agents and to look out for novelties, and agents stationed at the different permanent branch offices of the big show.

"It is a great life. Lots of hard work at all times, but there is a certain irresistible fascination about it that makes you want to follow red wagons always. I remember one season I decided not to go out with the circus. My mother wanted me to stay at home that summer, and I had consented to do so. It was all right until the show I had been with for a number of years came to town. And then it was practically all off. I was up at 4 o'clock, watching them unload in the railroad yards, and I was on the lot—as the circus grounds are always called in 'the business'—from morning until night. The general manager said 'come on with us,' and they all said 'come on along,' but I said 'no.' I did finally go several days with the show. When I got home, though, I was ill at ease, and when a special telegram came asking me to join the show at once, I took the next train out of town and was with the show during the rest of the season.

"There has been talk of a 'circus trust,' but there is no such thing. The Ringlings are entirely independent of all others, and they have no need to fear any one else, owning the two greatest circuses in the world to my notion, the Forepaugh-Sells and the Ringling shows.

"I think it is best that there should be no combination of big circus interests. It is far more interesting when each show is out for the business and there is lots of opposition. The past season was good, and the next one will surely be.

"For a time it was rumored that the Ringlings had acquired the Hagenbeck show, which is the largest of any except the big three—the Ringlings, Forepaugh and Barnum & Bailey shows—but I understand the deal has fallen through, and that the present owners of the Hagenbeck circus will send it out again next season.

"It isn't so long now before the circuses will begin to unfold their canvasses and the rumble of the heavy wagons will be heard again."

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"A POOR RELATION."

Sol Smith Russell's plays were built to suit his peculiar personality, and no one since his death seems to have been quite successful in the roles which he made so much out of. Lee D. Ellsworth and a company of quite capable players gave "A Poor Relation" at the Lyceum last evening. Those who had never seen Russell as Noah Vale were probably pleased, but those who had were not impressed by Mr. Ellesworth's characterizations. However, he apparently does his best, and so do his associates. Several fairly good specialties are introduced during lulls in the action of the piece.

WITHOUT A SUPERIOR.

John Temple Graves had the following to say of Isabel Garghill Beecher, who will appear in the Star Lecture course Tuesday:

"I estimate Mrs. Beecher as the coming figure upon the reading platform of America. She is without a superior and with scarcely an equal among the brilliant group of American men and women who interpret the world's great writers. Her powers surpass description and must be seen to be realized or appreciated.

"THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN."

"The County Chairman" will return to the Lyceum this afternoon and evening. It needs no introduction to Duluth. It is one of the best of the George Ade comedies, and the company this year is said to be fully up to the proper standard.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Costs Nothing To Try.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant-tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but 25 cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

HOME PORT OF MANY VESSELS

Biggest Fleet of Boats on Great Lakes Hail from Port of Duluth---There are 352 Vessels Registered Here.

Probably the people of Duluth and Northern Minnesota are aware of the fact that Duluth is known as the home port of the bigest fleet of boats that sails the Great Lakes. The number of boats has increased greatly during the last few years and the gross tonnage and size of the vessels has also increased at a good rate.

Although the actual number of boats was more a couple of years ago, a large fleet of old scows and barges, practically worthless, has been disposed of since then and the boats now are mostly of a better class. The vessels now enrolled here have a much bigger average net tonnage than was the case several years ago.

According to the figures compiled at the Duluth customs house there were 352 boats enrolled at this port at the end of the year 1906, while in 1905 there were 346 enrolled. The total gross tonnage of these boats at the end of the past year was 668,686, and the net tonnage amounted to 531,589. Dividing the net tonnage total by the number of the boats, gives the average net tonnage for the boats enrolled at Duluth, which amounts to 1,541. In 1905 the total gross tonnage amounted to 599,774, and the total net tonnage amounted to 479,505, giving an average for each vessel of 1,386.

The day of the wooden boat is passing and the greater part of the tonnage in and out of Duluth is now carried by steel and iron vessels. At the end of the year 1906 there were 185 wooden boats enrolled at this port and they are of several classes and descriptions, sailing vessels, tho total tonnage of sailing vessels, the total tonnage of which amounts to 18,546 and the total net tonnage of 17,936. The average tonnage for each sailing vessel amounts to 1,085.

The steamers constructed of wood number 115 and have a gross tonnage of 39,295 and a net tonnage of 30,081. The average tonnage of these boats amounts to only 265, but the reason for this is that a large fleet of tugs and other harbor boats comes under this class. There are fifty-three wooden barges enrolled at the port of Duluth having a total gross tonnage of 11,515 and a net tonnage of 11,291. The average tonnage of these boats amounts to only 213.

Steamers coming under the iron and steel class are enrolled at this port to the number of 135. All of the big vessels owned by the Pittsburg Steamship company are enrolled at Duluth, which is known as the home city of this company. The total gross tonnage of this class of boats is 509,005 and the total net tonnage 387,583, giving an average tonnage for each boat of 2,870.

There are twenty-one iron and steel sailing vessels which hail from Duluth as the home port. The total gross tonnage of these amounts to 76,211, and the total net tonnage amounts to 71,262. The number of barges constructed of iron or steel amounts to eleven, with a gross total tonnage of 14,114 and the net tonnage amounting to 13,436.

The Pittsburg Steamship company has the largest fleet of vessels enrolled at Duluth, and in fact the largest fleet on the lakes. At present there are 105 boats in the fleet all enrolled at the Duluth customs office. The company has several big steamers building, some at Superior and others at other ports and they will all be enrolled here. The majority of the company's boats are steamers, although there are a few barges and schooners in the fleet.

One brand new boat which was built at the Superior shipbuilding yard was enrolled at the port of Duluth during 1906 and there were three other vessels added to this port. One boat was recorded at the customs office as having been abandoned, and one was sold to a Canadian firm during the past year.

The D. T. Helm agency has sixteen vessels enrolled at the local port, while the Tomlinson company has four. The Booth company also has four steamers enrolled here. The Great Lakes Towing & Wrecking company has eleven tugs operating in the Duluth harbor, but they have many others at different points which are also enrolled at Duluth. There are several other agencies with vessels of various classes which claim Duluth as the home port.

Duluth has many pleasure yachts and launches, but of them, all there is only one which is enrolled at the customs office. Only boats over twenty tons are required to be enrolled, and according to the customs office there is only one pleasure boat of this class. This boat is the gasoline launch owned by M. H. Alworth, and at present it is stationed at Tarpon Springs, Florida, where Mr. Alworth spends the winters. The launch was taken south three years ago by way of Chicago and Chicago canal, to the Mississippi river and thence to the Gulf of Mexico.

It is estimated that there are from 600 to 800 pleasure boats of the smaller types owned by Duluth people, and which are kept at this port. The number owned by members of the Duluth Boat club and the yacht club amounts to several hundred, and those owned by other residents make up the remainder of the total. Every season sees more of these little vessels either brought to Duluth from Eastern point or manufactured here in the city, and it is expected that there will be one or two additional boat clubs organized during the coming year.

What the afflicted man wants is not a temporary relief, but a permanent cure.

The beneficial effects of my treatment are as lasting as life—I cure to stay cured.

When once a patient is rescued by me from the ravages of disease or weakness peculiar to his sex, he is never again bothered with his former trouble.

I do not treat all diseases, but I treat men—MEN ONLY—and cure them to stay cured.

Varicocele.

Under my treatment, which includes no cutting or pain, this insidious disease rapidly disappears.

Pain disappears almost instantly.

The pools of stagnant blood are driven from the dilated veins and all soreness and swelling quickly subside.

Every indication of Varicocele soon vanishes, and in its stead come the pride, the power, and the pleasure of perfect helth and restored manhood.

Stricture.

My cure for Stricture is safe, painless and bloodless, and therefore, free from surgery in any form.

It is the only cure that should ever be used, and the only one recommended by the legions of men who have been restored by it.

It disolves the Stricture completely and removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, allays all inflammation, stops every discharge, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys when irritated or congested, invigorates the organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

Contagious Blood Poison.

My special form of treatment for specific or contagious blood poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of this and foreign countries.

It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicine of any kind.

It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity.

Soon every sign and symptom disappear completely and forever.

The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

Nervo-Sexual Debility.

My cure for weak men does not stimulate temporarily, but restores permanently.

It soon drives away all those distressing symptoms which do constantly remind one of his former folly.

It stops every drain of vigor and builds up the muscular and nervous system, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys, and invigorates the liver, revives the spirits, brightens the intellect, and, above and beyond all, restores the wasted power of manhood.

Reflex Diseases.

Many ailments are reflex, originating from other diseases.

For instance, manly weakness sometimes comes from Varicocele or Stricture, innumerable blood and bone diseases often result from blood poison taint in the system or physical or mental decline frequently follow loss of manhood.

In treating diseases of any kind I always cure the effect as well as the cause.

We charge nothing for private counsel, and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully. Our home treatment by correspondence is always successful.

SPORTS OF THE WEEK.

HOLD MEET NEXT WEEK

Second Indoor Athletic Competition at the Duluth Y. M. C. A.

Will Decide Light and Welter Weight Wrestling Championship.

The second of a series of three meets to be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium during the winter, open to association members only, will be held next Friday evening.

The competitor who makes the highest total score in all three meets is to receive what is known as the "All-round Championship Medal," first in any of the events counting five points and second netting the competitor three. The winner of each event in the series will have his name and record hung in the trophy room in the new Y. M. C. A. building, when it is completed.

The events in next Friday's meet will comprise a running high dive, a running long dive, the swinging dip on the parallel bars, a half-mile run, a running high jump from a spring board, a lightweight wrestling match for the gymnasium championship and a welterweight championship wrestling match.

Entries for this meet close at 6 p. m., next Tuesday. The program will begin at 8:15 Friday evening.

WILL INTRODUCE THE NEW GAME

Ricochet Players Will be Coached by Minneapolis Skater.

A week from Monday, Joseph Munch, crack Minneapolis roller skater, will arrive in the city and give exhibitions of fancy and speed skating on rollers at the Temple rink. Munch is admitted the best man on the rollers in the Twin Cities, and has a national reputation along this line.

While here he will devote much of his time to introducing the new game ricochet, played on rollers, and which in many respects resembles lacrosse.

There are five players on a side, and each player is equipped with a loose strong racket similar to that used in lacrosse. The ball may be pushed or carried in the racket or thrown with the racket, but must not be touched with the hands, and the position of the two players who play on the defensive near the goal is limited to their half of the playing space. If the ball be thrown through the goals, which are four feet wide and six high, it counts three points and if carried through the goals in a players racket it counts three.

In order to eliminate roughness and interference work as far as possible no player is allowed to charge into another, though he may stop him by blocking his racket with his own.

Mr. Munch is an expert on the game, and will try to make it popular at the Head of the Lakes. Ricochet has taken a powerful hold on every town where it has been thoroughly tried and is said to be a fast, clean sport.

PUTS BAKER OUT IN EIGHTH ROUND

Abe Attell Proves Too Much for San Francisco Fighter.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—Abe Attell knocked out Harry Baker of San Francisco in the eighth round before the Pacific Athletic club here last night, retaining the featherweight championship.

The champion was in great form and outclassed his man from start to finish. The fight was a fast one, but Attell was too strong from every standpoint for Baker. Attell used every blow in the fistic category. His foot work was lightning fast, although Baker's ducking and covering up saved him for the rounds the fight lasted. The seventh round should have really been the end of the fight. Near its close Attell sent a hard right across to the jaw that knocked Baker across the ropes. As the referee started to count the bell sounded.

When the gong sounded for the eighth and final round, Baker held his arms to his face and vainly tried to cling to Attell, who swung a right on Baker's jaw, and the San Francisco boy sprawled helpless.

During the terrific fighting in the second round Dewitt Vancourt ran along the outside of the ring, shouting to the fighter to get up. Attell in a frenzy rushed at Vancourt and slashed him through the ropes twice in the face with a right and left.

Send Their Best Runner.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—Carl Jacobson, the best runner of the St. Paul ski club, left last evening for Duluth, where he will represent the local club in the ski tournaments to be pulled off by the Duluth ski club, Sunday. Jacobson has contested in Duluth before, and last winter won third place in the national tournament at Ishpeming. On account of lack of snow in and around St. Paul this winter, Jacobson has had very little practice and therefore will be at a great disadvantage. He should make a good showing in the meet, however.

WHIST TOURNAMENT.

Tenth Annual Meeting of Northwestern Association in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—The tenth annual tournament and meeting of the Northwestern Whist association will be held in St. Paul Jan. 25 and 26. The association takes in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fergus Falls, Albert Lea and Faribault, and it is expected that a large representation will be present from each of these cities.

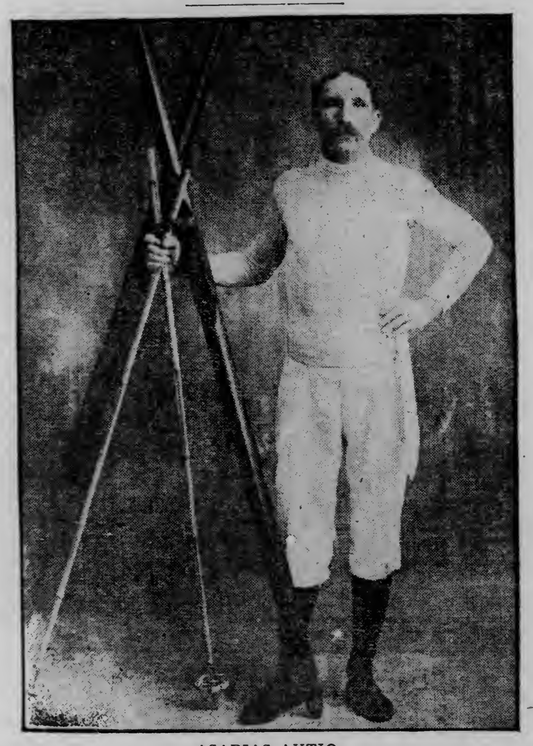

The tournament matches, except the team-of-four contests, will be held at the Ryan hotel, and the team-of-four contests will be held at the rooms of the St. Paul Chess and Whist club in the Globe building. The headquarters and business meeting will be at the club rooms. The plan of play provides for six events as follows:

A contest for the first possession of the Times trophy and the championship for teams-of-four, open to one team from each club of the association. A contest for the St. Paul trophy and the championship for club pairs of 1906, open to any number of pairs from each club of the association. Four progressive pair matches, one on each afternoon and evening of Friday and Saturday, open to all whist players.

Afternoon play will commence at 2 o'clock, and evening play at 8 o'clock. The trophies will be awarded to the custody of the winners and individual souvenirs to the players on such teams. Individual prizes will also be awarded to the winners in each of the progressive pair matches.

The tournament committee is Reed Johnson, C. E. Keller, H. J. Deuel, T. J. Buford and H. E. Bigelow.

CHAMPION DISTANCE SKI RUNNER COMING HERE.

ASARIAS AUTIO,
World's Record Holder on Thirty Kilometer Course.

The stellar attraction at the big ski tournament to be held in Duluth by the Finnish riders at the Head of the Lakes and Northern Minnesota on Washington's birthday, will be Asarias Autio, champion ski runner of the world, and holder of several world records for long distance runs.

Autio is now a miner at Ely, having come to this country several years ago, but before leaving Finland he made a record for a thirty kilometer course, which has never since been equalled. This is equal to about eighteen American miles, and Autio made the distance in a little over one hour and forty-five minues or at an average speed of about ten miles an hour. Since coming to this country he has not devoted as much of his time to the sport as formerly, but a year ago at Ely, he made the circuit of a 7¾-mile course in forty-two minutes or at a speed of about eleven miles an hour.

A CORNER IN SPORTS

Another bonspiel is over, and the curlers began leaving for their homes last evening. By tonight there will be none of the visitors left.

The spiel has been a very successful one. The prizes were pretty well distributed among the different cities, and the Dunbar rink of St. Paul was the only one to carry off more than its fair share. But nobody felt at all envious of the famous St. Paul skip. His presence at the spiel was worth much to the association. He is always a pleasant opponent to meet, and if he got a little more than one man's share of the "junk" he certainly earned it, by putting up a steady and consistent game all through the spiel. He also showed his unwillingness to grasp at everything in sight, by forfeiting the International event, when he found he was in the running for the jewelry in three others.

The Winnipeg curlers certainly made a hit with the local members, and the Canucks are acknowledged to be the best set of good fellows that have turned up at a bonspiel in many a long day. Every man is a curler, and played to win, but they took their bumps gracefully, and they got their full share of them early in the spiel, although Carson and Rochon showed up well toward the finish.

There visit here will help to boom the Winnipeg spiel, for they have been talking up the Winnipeg meet since the day they struck Duluth.

And it is a pretty good bet that any of the American curlers who attend the Winnipeg spiel won't forget it.

Mr. Reedal's quartet from Phillips has put up a game fight all through the spiel. They are good curlers and pleasant opponents, and the Duluth men hope they will carry out their intention of returning every year.

* * *

"Haicrow of Bowesmount" has become a familiar figure at the Duluth spiels, and that his shadow may never grow less or fail to show up at the Duluth spiel, is the wish of the local curlers.

* * *

The Twin Cities did their full share towards supporting the bonspiel this year. The Dunbar rink was not the only good quartet of curlers that came up from Minneapolis and St. Paul, and the Duluth men hope to see them all back next year.

THEY BOUGHT SILK GOODS AND RECEIVED STONES.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—Instead of receiving half a ton of silk goods from Chicago, valued at several hundred dollars, Livingston Bros., merchants of this city, received a large dry goods box yesterday containing cobble stones. As a result the detectives of Chicago and San Francisco were notified to try to discover who stole the silk and filled the box with stones.

MILTON WINS EASILY.

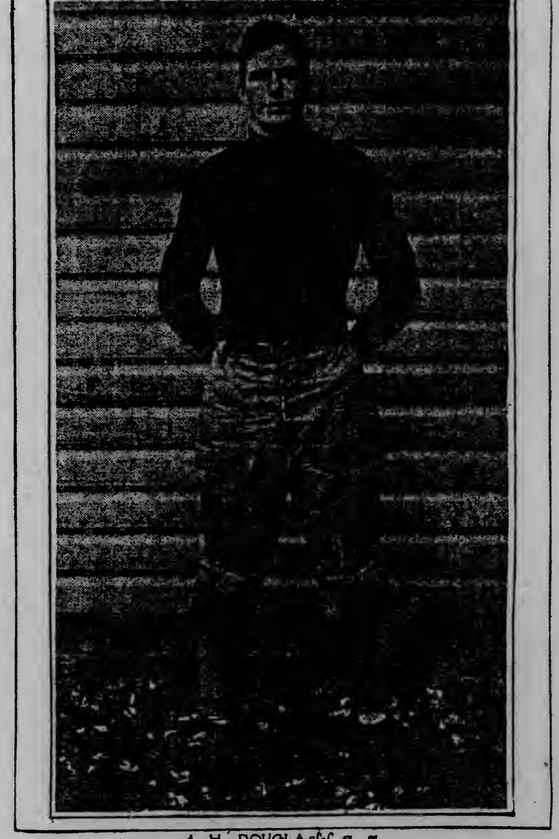

Gets Two Falls in Six Minutes at the Met.

George Milton pulled out an easy victory from Peter Zootes at the Metropolitan last night, getting the first fall in four minutes and the second in two.

Zootes looked good before he went on the mat, being a much more powerfully built boy than young Milton, but when it comes to knowing the tricks of the game, Milton can tie knots in him at will.

Milton's manager is now looking for a match with Kid Poull who is said to want to go up against Milton, and it is possible that the two wrestlers will go on next Friday.

ONE OF THE NAVY'S CRACK PLAYERS

A. H. DOUGLASS

New York, Jan. 19.—At the very close of the football season of 1906 one of the finest half backs of the year thrilled the hearts of all spectators at the contest between the Army and Navy elevens by the admirable manner in which he punted, caught punts, got through the lines of the opposing team, and played the game generally.

He was Archibald Douglass of the Navy team, and so well did he perform that afternoon that some of the football critics thought he was entitled to a place on the All-America eleven, and put him there.

One thing is certain. No half back did more in any game which took place during the season now over to show what is possible under the new football than did Douglass. Therefore, when he was elected to the captaincy of the Navy for 1907, the choice was universally endorsed by football men everywhere. Judging by the knowledge which he possesses of football, not only will he be a good player another year, but he will be a splendid leader and a fit companion of those from whom the development of the new football will receive so much attention.

MORE YARNS OF DIAMOND

A Bunch of Good Winter Stories for the Fans.

Harry Leach Tells His Experiences as an Umpire.

"During my days as an umpire it was my assigned duty to officiate at a game in Pittsburg, between the Pittsburg and Philadelphia Brotherhood teams," says Harry Leach, ex-National league umpire. "During the course of the game I was compelled to send three Philadelphia players to the bench, owing to their severe criticisms and bad language. The result of the game was a victory for the Pittsburg team, but the next day, while walking along the street, I was approached by a big, strong mill hand, who informed me that he was one of the spectators of the game the day before, and that it pleased him very much to see a little fellow like me control a lot of players like the Philadelphia team, whom he classed as a lot of rowdies. Needless to say, all of this compliment was very pleasing to me, but the fellow spoiled it all by asking me to give him a pass to the game the next day.

"Another little incident comes to my mind in regard to umpiring, and that was in Boston, during a game between the Cleveland and Boston teams, and, if my memory is correct, it was a Fourth of July.

"At any rate, the grounds were overcrowded, and spectaters had to sit on the grass, close up to the base lines, leaving a very small open field. My old friend, Mike Kelley, was catching, and Charlie Radbourn was pitching for the Boston team, and the ever witty Pat Tebeau was at bat. There had been quite a rapid fire of Irish wit between Pat and Mike.

"Pat hit a ball directly on a line, which barely missed Radbourn's head, but it did not miss mine, and I was rendered unconscious, and, of course, could not finish my work that day.

"I have been told that one of the first persons to assist me was Mike Kelley and that he picked me up and carried me off the grounds and went with me in an ambulance to the United States hotel, and he would not leave my room until a nurse and a priest had been called. Later in the game Tebeau, in his crude way, said: 'Harry, I think that we Irish are the only ones that can stand this game,' and, as you know, I am far from being Irish.

"Following this same incident I call to mind another thing, which has always struck me as being very funny. A few days after my accident and before I had resumed work, a young gentleman poke to me in the hotel office and said that he called to mind very well my accident and he wondered why I did not remember him, and in reply to his comments I said that I did not remember him and asked where had I seen him.

"'Well,' he said, 'don't you know that people were sitting close to the home plate when you got hurt? I am the little fellow that sat in the grandstand and was accompanied by two ladies, and my straw hat had a polka dot band on it.'

"Now, it sounds very strange that one person out of 20,000 would expect to be recognized by an unconscious man.

"Another little story come to my mind in regard to one of the most characteristic people that was ever interested or identified in the baseball business, namely, Chris Von der Ahe of St. Louis.

"The St. Louis team had had a very unsuccessful trip as far East as Philadelphia and had lost many games, and the climax came in Philadelphia, when the team had lost a game by a small margin, after having apparently had it won.

"I returned from the grounds in the same bus with the St. Louis team to the Continental hotel, and, owing to an old restriction of the Continental hotel, the players were not allowed to wear ball shoes in the house, on account of the plates damaging the carpets, so it was necessary for the players to use the reception room at the elevator to remove their shoes, and while the team was thus engaged, Von der Ahe closed the door and started in to deliver a little lecture in his very bad German dialect. His comments were something like this:

"'Fellus, der is some o' dis team, dat is drinking. Now, I don't want to mention any names, but Latham, you bedder look out. Now, whose ever shoe that fits, can wear it.'

"Needless to say that there was a decided burst of laughter and that evening in the hotel lobby in my presence, Latham overdrew his account $50 and the next day the St. Louis team played a most startling game and made the Philadelphia team look like amateurs.

"While riding on a train from Birmingham to Memphis I was seated in a chair car reading a magazine, and lying beside my seat was my satchel and bat bag. Directly opposite me sat a gentleman who, from his garb, could be readily recognized as a minister, and the gentleman spoke to me, apologizing in words like these:

"'You will excuse me, sir, but I judge you are a professional ballplayer, and seeing you sitting here, reading this way, I must confess my opinion of ballplayers has always been decidedly wrong, because I always had an idea that they were all rough, uncouth, illiterate and common, but I am very glad, sir, to see that my opinions were wrong.'

"Whilst the reverend gentleman was talking to me my little companion, Duffy, came from the smoking car, put his hand on my shoulder, made some remark about my light, curly hair, and requested that I should give him the deck of cards which I had in my satchel, and the language he used, in making this request, was anything but becoming. Needless to say, I felt very much embarrassed, particularly so being in the presence of a minister of the gospel.

"When I was with St. Paul a few years ago," says "Spike" Shannon of the New York Giants, "we had a pitcher who could outeat any two men I ever saw sit down at a table. He had a long, tongue-tangling name and so we called him 'Corbett' for short. In the Midland hotel in Kansas City, I saw him eat from soup to nuts, taking among other things a big tenderloin steak, some corned beef and cabbage and a slice of roast beef. He ordered all the vegetables on the bill of fare and wound up with ice cream, two kinds of pie, and nuts and cheese. Corbett was due to pitch for us at Milwaukee one day and when it came time for the bus to leave the hotel for the grounds he was not in sight, so we drove away without him. Well, sir, that fellow ran all the way from the Davidson to the baseball grounds—I don't know why he didn't take a street car. He was all lather when he bounded into the park in his uniform. He went right into the box after that long hard run of three miles and pitched one of the prettiest games I ever saw. Claude Elliott was pitching for Milwaukee and we beat them 2 to 1. They got only three hits off Corbett."

"What became of him?"

"Oh, he ate himself out of the league.

Do you know," continued Shannon. "I believe more players eat themselves out of baseball than drink their jobs away. It is a fact that many men overload their stomachs at the noon meal and when they appear on the diamond they are heavy and loggy like a serpent that has gorged itself. Yes, sir, overeating has blasted many a promising player's chances."

Ted Sullivan has written several books, but has failed to write on a subject as interesting as any he has ever related and that is himself. His life in Atlanta was one filled with interesting bits and all of them were funny, though he did not always intend them to be. One day he took some money to a bank to deposit. A large portion of it was in silver and he had gotten his treasurer to put it in coin wrappers in order to have it in better shape. Sullivan was very much surprised when the receiving teller broke open package after package of the neatly wrapped money and counted it. When he came to a package of dimes the man in the bank pushed them back to Ted and said: "This money is 10 cents short." Down in his pocket went Ted's hand and out it came an instant later with a dime. Then he handed over his bank book, was given credit for his deposit and sailed majestically out of the bank. Straight after his treasurer he went. "See here," he exclaimed, the instant he saw him, "this thing won't do. I know you are honest and I don't want the banks to think I ain't. That was a bad break you made, failing to put in that dime. Why, the way that man looked at me was something awful. There is no telling how much that has hurt my credit." At that time Sullivan had about $5,000 on deposit in this bank, but he declared for weeks after the incident he was ashamed to go in the place because he felt as though every one was talking about that dime.

A Cleveland man tells of an incident at the West Point-Annapolis football game, at Philadelphia, which shows that memories of the last baseball season are still alive. He waxed enthusiastic when the Navy began to win, and remarked to a man seated next to him: "This is the most enjoyable time I have had since I saw the Chicago clubs do up the Giants at the Polo grounds last summer."

The man looked at him fiercely, took out a cigar, bit off about two-thirds of it, stuck the wrong end of it in his mouth, and asked: "Are you from Philadelphia or Boston?"

Later the Cleveland man asked an acquaintance who the fierce man puffing away at the stubby cigar was. "Don't you know?" said his friend. "Why, that is Johnny McGraw."

"Baseball as a business is one into which I would never advise a young man to go unless he can afford to lose two, three, or perhaps five years of his life," says Jack O'Connor, the Brown's crack catcher.

"The fat salaries paid the players in the big leagues are alluring to thousands of young men, but I say to them be careful before you take up the game as a profession.

"After a man is tried, accepted and been given a place on a big league team he does not average much more than three years before he is sent back to the minors as a back number. He may, if he is a wonder, command a salary of $4,000 for one or two years, but I'll gamble that the average young man, who starts out to make baseball his profession does not average as much per year during his baseball career as a well-paid clerk in any dry goods store or bank.

"The college young man, who, during his four years at some big institution, has developed wonderful talent at baseball, is scarcely to be blamed for trying the big leagues for a year or so. Usually his parents have money and he can afford to lose a year or so gaining experience and seeing the country.

"The worst fault of the baseball business is that it teaches young fellows the habit of extravagance and high living. Naturally the players of great teams are lauded by the newspapers. The boys meet hundreds of good fellows, who are always willing to drink, carouse and have a good time.

"In consequence, ball players spend their money for good clothes, wines, cigars, diamonds, etc., and usually when they are confronted with their ten days' notice of release, the diamonds are about all they have left to show for the earnings of years.

"To me, is is a sad commentary on the game to see the great stars of the diamond toiling as day laborers. The greatest pitcher of them all, Amos Rusie, is carrying lumber in an Indiana yard for $1.50 a day. I have seen him spend $99 in one night. Rusie is not the only one, either, but his case is almost as pitiable as that of Terry McGovern, the fighter.

"No, this thing of being a diamond star ain't all it's cracked up to be," concluded O'Connor, "and, if you're after the 'cush,' you can find it in better paying quarries in other professions in life."

SIX ARRESTED IN BENA RAID

Man Claimed to Have Been Robbed in a Dive.

Walker, Minn., Jan. 19.—A dive was raided at Bena by Sheriff Alex B. Riddell on complaint of one Erick Green, who claimed that he had been robbed of a watch, $4 in silver and a certificate of deposit of $75 on Jan. 15. The sheriff arrested Gust Johnson, Bert Smith, Nora Sterling, Ida Lahay, Della Fox and Maggie Prevost and brought them before Justice of the Peace A. A. Oliver, charged with robbery. With the exception of Maggie Prevost they were bound over to the next term of the district court. Most of them have succeeded in furnishing bonds.

Gust Johnson and Nora Sterling were also arraigned for running a disreputable house and were bound over to the next term of the district court on that charge. This is the beginning of a wave of reform that is likely to sweep over this section of the state within the next few weeks.

The sale of liquors to the Indians and the drunkenness of squaws and Indian children have called forth a vigorous protest from the Indian agent, the citizens of Walker and the county attorney. The matter is one in which the county has no jurisdiction and it has been taken to the attorney general, and it is hoped that much of the drunkenness and crime among the Indians will be stopped. Indian Agent Frater is back of the movement.

CANADA SUFFERS FROM SNOW AND SEVERE COLD.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 19.—Never before in the history of Western Canada have the snow storms been so severe or the fall of snow so heavy. From all parts of the country come stories of distress on this account and strenuous efforts are being made by the railroad companies to keep the lines open and towns supplied with food and fuel.

Canadian Pacific railroad officials report that there are fully a thousand empty cars in the Winnipeg yards, but they are of no use to relieve the situation as the lines are blocked. In certain towns all the fences have long since been used for fuel, while Ninga people have been obliged to use manure in the stoves to keep from freezing.

Tomorrow afternoon a goodly share of the population of Duluth will wend its way toward Chester hill to witness the big ski tournament to be held there. Arrangements have been made for even a bigger crowd than that which thronged the slope beside the hill last year, and the event will beyond a doubt be a much greater success than that which was held here a year ago.

The prospect for outside entries are most promising. At a meeting of the Minneapolis ski club held Wednesday, seven experts were selected to attend the big tournament tomorrow, and they are the pick of the Twin City riders. Their names are: Elling Disen, Emil Hedelin, Arne Svenson, Daniel Strom, Harald Lee, and E. Carlson, and all of them are men who have won prizes in the old country. Carlson especially is a noted ski runner, having carried off three prizes in big Norwegian tournaments, and Disen is the young jumper who carried off all the firsts at the Munising tournament.

The Minneapolis delegation will hit this city tomorrow morning early, and will return Sunday night, and in addition to the delegates, President Heir of the club has worked quite a large crowd of rooters up to the point where they have decided to accompany the men.

From other towns throughout Wisconsin and Upper Michigan as well as from the ranges has come news of prominent runners who will enter tomorrow's events, and with the extra slope recently built on the Chester hill, it will be strange if some records are not smashed before the close of the day.

FAST LONG DISTANCE RUNNER

New York, Jan. 19.—One of the well known distance runners of the East is "Jim" Sullivan, not the president of the Amateur Athletic union, but a lighter and a slimmer built young man, who is especially good at a mile.

He is not the champion of the amateurs, because he is not quite so fast as "Tommy" Conneff, but he has run a mile in four minutes twenty-two seconds, which is a record that has never been equalled by any American-born runner.

Sullivan has run some good races at the indoor meetings, as well as at outside track games, and is considered one of the best and most reliable of the local athletes. That is no mean praise, for at just the present time New York has a remarkably good lot of men representing the city in sports in one way and another.

ALL EVENTS BUT ONE REACH THE FINAL ROUND

Dunbar Wins Duluth Trophy and Grand Average Prize.

Carson of Winnipeg Defeats Dunbar in the Jobbers.

Bob Dunbar last evening regained his lost laurels by defeating A. H. Smith, the only man in the bonspiel who had defeated the St. Paul skip, by a score of 10 to 9. Smith had every advantage in support, Dunbar's team with the exception of Defiel and Bob himself, being in decidedly bad form, and showing the effects of the week's curling. Smith's men gave him a high class of support, and while Dunbar pulled out a victory, by sheer skill in the concluding shots with his own stones, Smith rarely had to pull an end out of the hole with his own stones.

Time and again Defiel and Dunbar sent beautifully running shots down the ice, and cleared out a lay of several stones which looked like a sure victory for the Duluth rink.

In the seventh Smith was three up, with the score 7 to 4 but Dunbar laid four in his end and maintained his lead to the end.

The St. Paul wonder met his second defeat last evening, however, when he went up against Carson of Winnipeg, and the Canadian skip showed that up to last night he has been playing in the hardest kind of luck, for, on one of the most brilliant games of the tournament, he pulled out a well earned victory by a score of 11 to 7. Dunbar played third for Carson when he was a member of the Winnipeg club, and the two men had each other's play down fine.

Myron went down to defeat before Rochon by the score of 13 to 9, in a contest that was almost as interesting as that of Dunbar and Carson, and this leaves the two Winnipeg skips to fight out the fiaals of the St. Paul Jobbers' trophy.

Winning from Hurdon 13 to 8 in a rather poorly played game the all conquering Dunbar carried off the Duluth trophy with ease, and put a last, unbreakable cinch on the grand average trophy for the tournament. The St. Paul rink is now in the finals for the Canadian Soo trophy with Reedal of Phillips as his opponent and this will be his last game, as he forfeits to Brewer in the International contest. The rink played three games in rapid succession yesterday and only lost one of them, which is a most creitablo showing.

With the St. Paul Jobbers finals and the Minneapolis event finals scheduled for this morning's play, and seven games left in the international, play should be concluded in three draws today, as both the finals, and the fourth round of the international can be put on at once, and the final and semi-final rounds of the international put on as soon as the contestants are determined.

The results of the games in the international contest yesterday were:

McLeod, Minneapolis, 13; Reedal, 8; Labatt, 13; Duncan, 4; McGilvray, 12; Myron, 9; Smith, 13; Hurdon, 3; McGregor, 12; McLeod, 6; Lorimer, 11; Frick, 7; Smith, 9; Brewer, 7; Smith, 13; Lorimer, 5; Jones, 10; Barnes, 6.

GOSSIP OF PRIZE RING

Gans Is Now the Dictator of the Lightweight Class.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—Nothing succeeds like success. A short half year ago Joe Gans, like Billy Bailey of coon song memory, was singing:

"Ain't it a shame, a measley shame! to keep your money out in de rain."

Battling Nelson, the durable Dane, ruled the roost in the lightweight division and Jimmy Britt was the next best card. Gans tried in vain to break into the charmed circle. It cut him to the quick to think that men inferior to him in the fighting line were working out the championship problem and ignoring him entirely and that the public turned a deaf ear to his protests and thereby led him to suppose that he was getting his just deserts.

My, how Joe pleaded. He would fight either Britt or Nelson with a jury of sport writers to pass upon the merits of his work and if things looked the least out of line he would be content to have his share of the prize money turned over to charity. He would allow his opponent, be he Britt or Nelson, to take the lion's share of the plunder irrespective of the result of the contest or he would undertake to stop either man within a given time and forfeit everything in case of failure. Any old deal, in fact, so long as he was given a chance to get back into the fold and show that he was the best of the 133-pounders.

When matters looked blackest for Joseph up bobbed Tex Richard with his $30,000 offer. Nelson accepted after insisting upon a lop-sided division of the purse and imposing other hard terms on Gans, and the match was on. Gans won and now the whole aspect of affairs is changed.

Gans is the attraction and the dictator and Britt and Nelson have to do the clamoring. If either of them wants a match he has to abide by Joe's conditions or make room for someone else.

In the two matches Gans has made since he won from Nelson the colored boxer has had his own way as to weight. He fought Kid Herman at 133 pounds "two hours before" and he has signed with Britt on the same terms. This suggests that Battling Nelson will have to knock under on the question of avoirdupois if he really hankers for another bout with Gans. As already stated Joe is the high card, especially in Nevada, where fat purses grow on the sage bushes, and as long as the gold camp matchmakers can command Gan's services they will not delay the game if any prospective opponent of Gans is slow in making up his mind.

But this is dealing in futures. Gans has a pretty stiff fence to climb before he comes to Battling Nelson and if anything I have written so far seems to bear the suggestion that I look for Gans to defeat Britt, the only explanation I can offer just now is that I have been guilty of a failing which is quite common, namely, that of looking past whatever match Gans has on hand and wondering who the next affair will be with.

If Gans and Britt were meeting at ringside weight I'd hesitate about selecting a favorite. After what I have seen Gans do, though, I am satisfied that the two hours' respite gives him as much vim and force as though he were allowed to come in at catch weights. Assuming, therefore, that Gans will be as sturdy and as active in the go with Britt as he was with Herman and remembering the perfection with which he blocked and ducked, and smote and stepped away, I have made up my mind that Joseph should be a 10 to 7 choice over the "native son."

But first choices do not always win and the frequent upsets with which the Queensberry game abounds have put the men who make forecasts to the blush over and over again. Britt has taken time by the forelock in the matter of training. He will be on the ground many weeks before the date set for the contest and this argues grim determination to make this the battle of his life. He is a never-say-die youngster and he has more cleverness to pit against Gans's cleverness than had either Nelson or Herman.

His day dream is another tussle with Nelson, and he knows that to qualify for it he has to step across Joe Gans's prostrate body, as it were. Last, but not least, there is really, truly, bad blood between the chocolate colored fighter and the white skinned boy. Gans said their other fight was crooked and every punch Jimmy will aim at the negro will say "It wasn't." Is a rule there is too much at stake in championship fights to let grudges have sway, but if mutual dislike doesn't add steam to the smashes Gans and Britt will inflict upon each other, I'll miss my guess.

The month of January will not see any glove contests in San Francisco, and it is quite possible that February will be innocent of ring strife, too. Whether there will be anything in the pugilistic line thereafter will depend upon the lawmakers at present in session at Sacramento. It is said that no less than three of the assemblymen are carrying anti-boxing measures in their inside pockets, and while the promoters here affect to believe that all will be well, it is plainly to be seen that they are on the rack.

If threats are kept and a prohibitive measure is passed, McCarry of Los Angeles will go down in the swirl along with Levy, Coffroth and the rest. And if the dark day really comes, how sorry will be Tommy Burns and Jack O'Brien that they didn't accept the $25,000 offered them for a finish mill on Railroad day at Rhyolite. The era of suspense will continue until the second week in March, by which time the assembly and senate will have finished their labors. If before that time the tip is given out that the sport of the mitt is doomed in California here will surely be a wholesale sutting down of purses in Nevada. The Rhyolite boomers, if they do not make their contracts meanwhile, will be in a position to add to the gaiety of the railroad opening at far less cost for pugilistic entertainment.

W. W. NAUGHTON.

NEXT CAPTAIN OF PENNSYLVANIANS

ROBERT C. FOLWELL

New York, Jan. 19.—Next year's captain of the Pennsylvania football team is a brother of one of the most famous half backs who ever played on the red and blue team. The name of the Folwell is conspicuous on the football roster of Franklin Field because of the natural ability to play the game which is possessed by all the family.

Next year's captain has always played in the back field. His strength as a football strategist is based largely upon his skill in running and his ability to dodge.

Pennsylvania, unlike some of the other Eastern elevens, preferred to take a man from the back field for captain rather than a forward. Folwell won out both because of his ability as a player and his proficiency as an executive.

REAL ESTATE MARKET HIT BY STOCK ACTIVITY

Copper Stocks More Inviting to Local Investors at Present Than Real Estate—Many Building Improvements Are Being Planned—J. Uno Sebenius Will Erect a Handsome Home.

The local real estate market was not so active this week. The brokers assert that so long as copper stocks are as active as they are at the present time, real estate does not appeal to local investors who see, or believe they see, an opportunity of turning their money over more quickly in copper than in realty. This has been the case during the past season, to a large extent. Whenever the copper market was active less money has been available for real estate investments. After such activity has subsided, however, past experience seems to indicate that the fortunate investors have always found Duluth real estate something substantial for permanent investment, and a quiet stock market is followed, usually, with an active real estate market. While there may not be much buying just at present for investment, there is a fairly steady home buying on the part of local people, and some few lots are being sold right along for improvement.

John J. Haley, who is an investor in local real estate, has recently returned from a trip to the coast, where he spent some time in Seattle, Portland and Los Angeles, paying particular attention to the real estate situation. He says that a real estate boon is on in all three cities with prices rapidly advancing. He claims, however, that all things considered, there is no reason why property in the three coast cities mentioned should sell any higher than the same class of property in Duluth. Comparing the situation locally with the situation in each of the coast cities Mr. Haley claims that property here is very cheap at present prices. What he has seen has convinced him that Duluth realty offers the best buying opportunities of any of the Western cities he visited and he predicts that when the market starts to go up in Duluth real estate, the buyers who got in on the present prices will be in the best position to realize handsome profits. After looking over the field Mr. Haley has decided to make his investments in his home city.

Although May 1, the official "moving day," is still some time off, a number of business location changes are already being talked about. The lease that J. B. Erd, the jeweler, has had to the store property at 121 West Superior street, for many years past, will expire May 1, and the property has been released to Eischen Bros., the florists, who will occupy the building at that time. Mr. Erd will move his establishment into his own store building, at 29 East Superior street, now occupied by Rathbun, the grocer, and the latter is seeking another location.

The fifty-year lease of the northwest corner of First street and First avenue west, from the Eustis Loan & Realty company to J. D. Zien, was filed with the register of deeds this week. By the terms of the lease Mr. Zien is to pay $2,000 per year, and all the taxes and assessments for the first five years and, thereafter, at 5 per cent on a valuation of not less than $40,000.

Bray & Nystrom, the architects, are preparing plans for a handsome residence to be erected by J. Uno Sebenius, this coming season, on his London road property, adjoining that of Chester A. Congdon. While the details are not yet given out, it is understood that the building will be of concrete and of a style of architecture not hitherto attempted in this city.

The same architects are preparing plans for a Brothers' residence to be erected for Bishop McGolrick, at the rear of the Sacred Heart cathedral school at Second avenue west and Fourth street, the house to be of the same style of architecture as the school building. Plans are also being prepared for a barn to be erected on R. B. Whiteside's farm on Big Island, in the St. Louis river.

• • •

Linden & Danielson have been awarded the contract for the erection of a row of six houses on Second street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth avenues east, for Eastern parties, represented by Whitney Wall. The plans were prepared by A. Terryberry, the architect. The improvement is one that The Herald mentioned some time ago, when Mr. Terrybery began work on the plans. The houses will have pressed brick fronts with brownstone trimmings, and will be modern in every respect.

• • •

Mr. Terryberry is preparing plans for another flat building for Dr. E. A. Lower, to be erected at Fourth avenue west and Fourth street, and to cost about $6,000.

• • •

Architect J. J. Wangenstein has prepared plans for a three-story brick store and hotel building, 60x115 feet, to be erected on Lake avenue, for the Leasehold Investment company. Bids will be taken Jan. 24. Mr. Wangenstein has prepared plans for a building for the First National Bank of Blackduck, Minn. He is working on the plans for the new courthouse. It is expected that work will begin on the foundations as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

The Fitger Brewing company is having plans made in Chicago for its new bottling house on East Superior street.

HELP DIETZ OUT OF TIGHT PLACE

Relief Party Has Returned From Trip to Cameron Dam.

Osceola, Wis., Jan. 19.—A relief party has just returned from Cameron dam, in Sawyer county, the home of the so-called "outlaw," John F. Dietz, having delivered to his family about a ton of supplies raised by friends of the family throughout Northern Wisconsin.

Enough of the necessaries of life are now at Cameron dam to last through the winter, and all danger of suffering is averted. Eight hundred pounds of flour, besides other foodstuffs and a large quantity of clothing, were taken in.

The relief party members encountered no opposition, although it has been learned that a posse of Sawyer county deputy sheriffs endeavored to intercept them. They made three or four trips between the village of Winter and the Dietz home, and spent several days at the log cabin by the famous dam. They found the members of the family in the best of health, still confident that their cause is just.

Lack of news from the Dietz stronghold the last few months has led the general public to believe that the struggle between the defender of his home and the lumber company has been abandoned, but events show that such is not the case. Spies in the employ of the company are watching every movement of the besieged, and the relief expedition went in at the earnest request of Dietz, when he found that his enemies had so arranged matters that he was unable to purchase any provisions or find a market for the products of his farm.

DIES AS JOKER PREDICTS.

Man Taken Ill is Laughed at But in Two Minutes Succumbs.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 19.—Two minutes after being told jokingly by his brother-in-law, Jacob Mayer, "You will die right away," Fred Bellinger expired at a logging camp near this city. He had been suffering from a cold and had decided to lie down for a few minutes to rest. He told those about him that he was "awful sick," but it was looked upon as a joke. After Bellinger's death a bottle of strychnine was found in his pocket, and it has been decided to make an autopsy to ascertain whether he had committed suicide.

She was born in St. George, N. B.

Southwick's general merchandise store at Cream burned, with its entire contents, as the result of an explosion in a soft coal stove which blew the stove to pieces and scattered live coals about the building. Loss, $4,000; insurance on building and stock, $2,600. Southwick will probably rebuild on a site in the new town on the "Alphabet" road, one mile from the present townsite.

WEST DULUTH

CLUB AFTER NEW PLANT

Progress Being Made in Efforts to Get Steel Works.

Committee Will Look Into Ramsey Street Paving Project.

At the weekly meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening, H. H. Phelps, chairman of the committee appointed some weeks ago to make moves to have a steel plant established here, reported that some progress had been made and that the probability of securing such a plant is bright.

The committee called upon T. F. Cole, but he asked the members to gather statistics concerning the city, showing its growth and development, and the amount of business done by the many wholesale houses of the city. The committee has taken up this work and is working in conjunction with other committees from other organizations in Duluth.

According to the chairman of the tax amendment committee, good progress has been made toward getting satisfactory legislation, and the club endorsed the move in favor of a recount.

• • •

The chairman of the committee to investigate the need of a justice court in West Duluth with power to try criminal cases reported that it would be the best plan to wait until a bill was introduced into the legislature by some members of the Duluth delegation. The committee was then discharged from further duty.

• • •

The paving of Ramsay street, at the opening of spring, was again brought under consideration at the meeting and it seems to be the opinion of the club that the street should be paved from Central avenue west to the end of the street and from there the paving should be laid on Oneota street to Forty-sixth avenue. A committee composed of J. J. Frey, W. B. Getchell and J. P. Weir was appointed to investigate the matter and its members will circulate a petition and make a move to have the work commenced early in the spring.

FILIATRAULT WILL SPEAK.

Requested to Deliver Address at Funeral Directors' Convention.

Thomas Davidson of Mankato, who is president of the Minnesota Funeral Directors' association, has sent word to M. J. Filiatrault of West Duluth requesting him to deliver an address to the new members at the meeting of the association to be held at the state university at Minneapolis Jan. 29 to 31.

These conventions are annual affairs, and are attended by the funeral directors from all parts of the state and are very beneficiary to the members. The work of the meeting is composed largely of lectures and demonstrations by eminent professors and doctors from all over the country.

The subjects discussed are generally connected with the work of the funeral director, and the meetings are held as a means of gaining instruction as much as of anything else, although the promoting of good fellowship is one of the objects of the convention.

Mr. Filiatrault will attend the meeting of the convention, and is preparing the address as Mr. Davidson has requested.

CUTS THROUGH EMBANKMENT

People at North End of Portsmouth Forced to Flee for Lives.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Jan. 19. — Back water from the Ohio cause dthe Scioto river to cut through the flood embankment in the North end today. Threatened families had received warning of the impending danger and fled in advance, although the removing of the sick was accomplished upder the greatest difficulties. The break was shortly afterwards followed by the water rushing over the West end dam and the Ohio also invaded the same quarter from the south. The whole downtown district is rapidly filling up and hundreds of houses and stores are under water. It is believed that the Broadway dam will hold out the waters from the East end. The river has passed the fifty-nine foot mark and is still rising an inch an hour.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 19.—The flood situation shows no improvement today, the most serious development being the discovery that the dike which protects the upper East end of the city is weakening slightly. Repairs are being made and men are patrolling the banks. The crest of the flood is not expected before Monday.

District Forecast Official Walz is his statement on conditions today, says:

"The Ohio has continued rising during the past twenty-four hours, throughout its length, but it is falling in its upper tributaries. The rate of rise has also decreased. Quite heavy rains have occurred over the watershed particularly over the Kentucky and Big Sandy sections. The river will rise steadily at Madison, Ind., and Louisville for the next several days and will reach a stage of thirty-eight feet at Lousivlle and fifty-four feet at Madison, Sunday, with a still further rise Monday."

HEIERDAHL IN DEMAND.

La Crosse Binds Him Over---Austin and Preston Want Him.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 19.—Dr. John Heierdahl, alias Dr. Munger, bound over in this city on the charge of larceny of a sealskin coat and other articles aggregating $78 in value, is wanted at Preston and Austin, Minn., and other places in the Northwest on similar charges, according to information received by the local police. It is said that he is charged with robbing an old couple at Preston of $60. His plan of proceedure, it is charged, was to represent himself as a doctor and when he was called to a place he robbed the house. He will be tried in this city.

Despondency brought on by drink, caused Pinophy Burtness, a farmer residing near Chaseburg, to commit suicido by hanging himself to an apple tree.

BITTERN FLIES INTO YARD.

Bird of Kind Usually In South As Late As This.

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 19.—The naturalists at the state normal school are puzzled over a report sent to them that a bittern flew into the back yard of a citizen during the storm Monday night, was found there Thursday morning and was nearly killed. These birds were all supposed to be in the Sunny South, but the season has been so open that the river and even some of the lakes did not entirely freeze over until this week.

PREPARES ITS ANSWER

Sale of Water Bonds Being Negotiated in the East.

President Manley Prepares Statement of Expenditures for 1906.

The board of water and light commissioners, which was requested by the city council, by recent resolution, to show what progress has been made in relation to the sale of the water bonds, also for a statement of the expenditures for water and gas extension, with money paid for the water bonds from the city's sinking fund, has delegated L. B. Manley, president of the water board, to draw up an answer.

Commissioner Manley's answer, which will probably be presented to the council at an early date, will, in general, explain that there is no progress in the bond sale to report just at present. Negotiations are now under way with Eastern parties from which it is anticipated that some definite proposition will be made to take the bonds, but that is about as far as the transaction has gone.

The water board's estimate, made in 1905, for the improvements to be made in 1906, and for which the $375,000 bond issue was authorized, was itemized as follows:

Pump for Lakewood station	$255,000
Ordinary extensions	45,000
General construction	10,000
Lakeside system	70,000
Improvement of old system necessary to supply Lakeside system	10,000
Gasholder	65,000
Hillside system	150,000
Total	$375,000

The board of water and light commissioners, for the purpose of carrying out the plans for improvements made for 1906, obtained the consent of the council to take $100,000 out of the sinking fund for that amount of water bonds. The board also paid $20,000 in bonds for the gasholder, making the total of $120,000 of bonds disposed of.

The expenditures of the water and light department for the past year were as follows:

Pipe lines, including $30,000 for a gas feeder main, under a contract with the Zenith Furnace company	$84,324 96
Duluth Heights water system	18,447 92
General construction	8,184 65
Gas holder	42,817 02
Total	$153,771 55

The estimates and expenditures will be included in Commissioner Manley's report to the council.

The water board paid on the reservoir $26,851.61; for completing the pipe line across the canal, $1,686.11; for pipe line on St. Croix avenue and Park Point, $2,575.65; or a total of $31,113.37, for the reservoir and the Park Point system. The last payment of $10,000 on the gasholder has also been made to the Stacy Manufacturing company, the holder being practically completed.

On account of his absence from the city for some time, Commissioner George Spencer has resigned as vice president of the board and has been succeeded in that capacity by Commissioner T. T. Hudson.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Prices Are Better Throughout Day in All American Markets.

Flax is Weaker at Close of Dull Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 19.—Wheat had a good advance in the American markets today and closed at higher prices. Unsettled weather in the Northwest, which is one of the causes for the continued small receipts was a bullish factor. Liverpool closed ½d to ¼d higher.

The May option closed ¾-⅞c higher in Duluth, Chicago and Minneapolis, ⅞c in New York, ½c in St. Louis and Winnipeg and ⅝c in Kansas City. The July option closed ¾c higher in Duluth and New York, ⅞-1c in Chicago and St. Louis, ⅝-¾c in Minneapolis, ¾-⅞c in Kansas City and ⅝c in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅝-½c higher in Chicago and was ¼d to ½d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ¼-⅜c higher in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 43, against 83 last year, and at Minneapolis 133, against 365 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 176, against 435 last year. Chicago received 50, against 19 last year. Winnipeg received 113, against 159 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 347,000 bus., last year 619,000 bus. Shipments 189,000 bus., last year 115,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 107,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 593,000 bus., last year 547,000 bus. Shipments 539,000 bus., last year 492,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 375,000 bus.

Wheat trading was quiet in the Duluth market, but the tone was stronger. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at 78c, advanced to 79¾c by 11:50 and closed at 79⅝-¾c, a gain of ⅝-¾c over yesterday. July wheat opened ⅛c higher at 80c and advanced by the close to 80⅝c, a gain of ¾c over yesterday. September wheat opened and changed at 78½c and advanced by the close to 79c, a gain of ¾c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¼c higher for the May option and unchanged for durum on track. Cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of ⅛-⅜c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull. January flax was inactive and closed unchanged from yesterday at $1.18½. May flax opened ¼c lower at $1.22¼, advanced to $1.22½, declined to $1.22 and closed at $1.22⅛, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday. July flax opened ¼c higher at $1.25½ and declined by the close to $1.22⅞, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday.

Oats to arrive closed ½c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Strong Owing to Small Receipts and Unsettled Weather.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—The wheat market today opened active and strong because of the continued small receipts in the Northwest, which are expected to interfere with the movement of the crop. Shorts and commission houses were active bidders. May wheat opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 76¾c to 76⅞@⅞c, sold at 77¼@⅜c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 526 cars against 324 cars last week and 454 cars one year ago.

The market was strong all day, the high point for May being 77½c. The close was strong with prices at the top. The final quotations were for May ¾@⅞c higher at 77½c.

The wet weather dominated the corn market and strengthened prices because of a diminished movement which is expected to continue until weather conditions improved. The best buying was in the July option, and the demand came chiefly from shorts. May corn opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 45c to 45⅛@⅛c and sold up to 45¾c. Local receipts were 382 cars, with none of contract grade.

The strong feeling continued to the close. The high point for May was 45½@⅝c. The close was strong with May up ⅝@½c at 45⅝c.

The oat market was firm and trading was fairly active, although in smaller volume than for the last few days. The weather conditions made for steady prices, as with wheat and corn. May oats opened ⅛@¼c higher at 37⅞@38c and for a time held within this range. Local receipts were 148 cars.

The provisions market was quiet and easy because of a 10@15c decline in the price of live hogs. May pork opened 7½c lower at $16.40. Lard was down 2½@5c at $9.40. Ribs were 2½c lower at $9.07½.

Close: Wheat—May, 77⅝c; July, 77¼@¼c. Corn—May, 45⅜c; July, 45¼c. Oats—May, 35@35⅜c; July, 35⅜c. Pork—May, $16.42½; July, $16.57½. Lard—May, $9.42½@9.45; July, $9.45. Ribs—May, $9.10; July, $9.20. Rye—Cash, 67. Barley—Cash, 46@56c.

Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 74½c; No. 3 red, 72@74c; No. 2 hard, 74@75c; No. 3 hard, 67@74c; No. 1 northern, 80@81c; No. 2 northern, 77@80c; No. 3 spring, 71@80c. Corn—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 41@½c Oats—No. 2, 36½c; No. 3, 36¼c.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—Wheat: The one element which enters into the trade at the close is the possibility of decidedly cold weather over the unprotected winter wheat states. Only this week the Northwestern Miller told of advanced and tender condition of plant as result of warm rains. Experienced traders know these conditions furnish an opportunity for a crop scare. Without a scare the influences are about evenly divided. The bear sentiment considerably modified and with any help from crop injury at home or abroad values stand a good chance of hardening.

Corn—It will take normal winter conditions, a big movement of corn to market to offset the better shipping demand and larger export clearances.

Oats—Profit taking on long oats in order on the swells but on good set-back believe scale down buying will be sufficient to start the market up again.

Provisions—If bad roads cause a fall down in hog receipts as some predict, look for buying force to return in products.

SEVERE CLOUDBURST

Does Great Damage to Property at East Liverpool, O.

East Liverpool, Ohio, Jan. 19.—As the result of a cloudburst early today thousands of dollars' worth of property was destroyed in this city and vicinity.

A large portion of the big hill near the East end rolled down on the street railway and it will be hours before the debris can be removed. The building of the Sanitary Reduction company was destroyed. Many streets in the city were torn up and the lowlands of both East Liverpool and Wellsville are flooded. The pottery manufacturers on the river banks are preparing to move. Street car and train service is badly crippled and indications are that the city will be cut off from outside communication by tonight.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Same Strength at Opening But Liquidation Was Renewed.

Bank Statement Was Good One But Had No Effect.

New York, Jan. 19.—The course of prices of stocks in the opening dealings today followed the London lead to a lower level. The declines were mostly fractional, but these extended to near a point in most of the speculative favorites and there were wide breaks in special stocks. There were sales of 2,500 shares of Canadian Pacific at 186 and 186½ compared with 188 last night. Anaconda fell 3½; Great Northern preferred 2½; Colorado Fuel and Colorado & Southern first preferred 1¾; St. Paul rose ⅝; Rock Island a small fraction. These were the only exceptions to the declining tendency. There were evidences of supporting orders in the market after the opening and prices rallied.

The supporting orders that were placed in the market after the initial dip caused a full recovery in most cases and lifted a number of the leaders well over yesterday's closing. The rapidity of the rise induced generous profit-taking again, and some of the favorites fell back to where they commenced. Another rally occurred before 11 o'clock, but some stocks were very feverish. Reading was down 1½ and Union Pacific 1 point.

The market closed very feverish and active but strong at the rallies. Severe selling pressure was renewed after 11 o'clock, following the appearance of the favorable bank statement. Reading, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and St. Paul were the special targets of the selling. Reading was depressed 3⅜, Union Pacific 3 and St. Paul fell back to 1⅜ below last night. There were sales of Colorado Fuel preferred at a decline of 13⅜, Hocking Valley 12, Tennessee Coal 7½, Knickerbocker Ice 6, the preferred 2¾, American Express 4½, Great Northern preferred 4½, Smelting 2⅜, Delaware & Hudson 2, Baltimore & Ohio and National Railway of Mexico preferred 1⅝ each; Southern Pacific 1½, Atchison, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and Brooklyn Transit a point or more each. Supporting orders again rallied the market, St. Paul recovering 2, Union Pacific and Great Northern preferred 1½ each and others a point or more each. Louisville & Nashville rose 1¼ over last night. Tennessee Coal rallied 6.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened nervous and slightly lower. Liquidation was general. Some support was given the list early, but not sufficient to hold prices and the market sagged. The bank statement, which was a good one, had no effect. It was understood before the close that the pool which has been selling stocks had about completed their liquidation and the market was then given some support. We advise conservatism in all operations for the present.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market showed some strength at the opening, but shortly afterwards there was a renewed outpour of long stock and the market broke rapidly. The bank statement had no effect. Just before the close supporting orders were put in and there was some short covering which caused quite a sharp rally. Heavy liquidation is unquestionably in progress. We see nothing at the moment to turn the course of the market other than short covering.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Jan. 19.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market for the week has been normal in tone. Owing to the uncertain movement of trains throughout the Northwest, because of the heavy snow, buyers and shippers have remained at home. Dealers expect a brisk market as soon as weather conditions become more settled. Owing to the light receipts heavy horses are scarce and the supply is not equal to the demand. Buyers report that it is almost impossible to buy horses in the country because farmers are holding them at such high prices as to curtail every possibility of any profit.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co. say: After the first weakness at the opening, supporting orders appeared all around the room, and the majority of stocks held well all day. Copper Range rallied from 93½ to 95¼; Tamarack to 151, but Osceola was weaker at 157 and Quincy at 116. The situation at present seems to be governed by several disturbing factors and we would advise caution in the market at present.

VERDICT OF GUILTY

Of Cowardly Night Attack on Iowa County Attorney.

Nevada, Iowa, Jan. 19.—After several hours spent in deliberation, the jury which has been trying the case of Lester Burrell, charged with assault upon and attempted murder of County Attorney McCall, returned a verdict of guilty of assault and battery.

McCall was attacked one night several months ago as he was coming out of his home. An assailant felled him with a heavy weapon of some sort, knocking him unconscious. Burrell and a man named Harrell were arrested and both held to the grand jury. Harrell afterwards regained his liberty on a promise to turn state's evidence, but failed to do so at the trial.

The assault is said to have grown out of a previous prosecution of Burrell by the county attorney.

During the early hours of Monday morning, while Mrs. Elkan slept, the burglars carried the treasure box from the room. Her dreams were not even disturbed and no member of the household heard a sound.

COLTON CASE GOES OVER

Until March Term Because County Attorney Cannot Prosecute.

Wapello, Iowa, Jan. 19.—The case against W. H. Colton, former cashier of the local bank, on a charge of perjury in making a false affidavit to the auditor of state, has been postponed until the March term of court.

Colton created a sensation here some time ago by confessing to the embezzlement of $20,000 from the bank, and for this crime he has just completed a sentence in the penitentiary.

Judge Withrow refused to permit County Attorney Hale to prosecute the perjury case, because he was a director in the bank, and the necessity of appointing a new prosecutor caused the postponement to the March term.

INDICTMENTS INCLUDE SEVERAL PROMINENT MEN.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 19.—It was definitely stated today that the indictments returned here yesterday included Charles W. Freed, a wealthy furniture merchant of this city, and his son-in-law, Walter J. Filer, an engineer, mining expert and capitalist.

Freed and Filer, in connection with Don C. Robbins and E. W. Senior, who were arrested last night, are charged with defrauding the government in connection with the locating and patenting of large bodies of coal lands, near Huntington, Utah.

BOUNTY GRAFT EXPOSED.

Jackson County and Wisconsin State Have Been Paying on Foxes.

Black River Falls, Wis., Jan. 19.—At the recent meeting of the county board, a member became suspicious about the nature of the scalps upon which a wolf bounty was paid, and the county clerk was instructed to secure an expert opinion as to whether they were wolves or not. A scalp was sent to Prof. Henry of the state university, who turned it over to the professor of zoology and he pronounced it a gray fox scalp.

In 1906 Jackson county paid out nearly $4,000 for these scalps and the state has paid the same, and there is no bounty either state or county on foxes. It is not probable that any of the money can be reclaimed as the scalps were properly certified to by the proper officers, but there will be a much smaller wolf tax allowed the coming year, for no bounty will be allowed unless it is known beyond question that the animals are wolves.

PROPERTIES.

COBALT DISTRICT. This company own 40 acres right in the Cobalt district, described as, the southeast quarter of the south half of lot No. 8 in the first concession of the Township of Firstorook.

LARDER LAKE DISTRICT. In the newly discovered Gold district of Larder Lake, which is located about 70 miles north of the Cobalt district, the company owns 120 acres, consisting of 4 locations all of record in the office of the Register at Haileybury, and described as mining claims Nos. 2244, 2245, 2246 and 2247.

REMARKS.

The marvelously rich strikes of Cobalt-Silver, Cobalt-Copper, Nickel and Arsenide ores in the Cobalt district of Canada have been heralded throughout the world. In less than three years this camp has produced nearly 20 millions of dollars and a number of millionaires "Over night," together with many others who count their profits in large figures and yet, experts tell us, the surface has scarcely been scratched. Ores of the Cobalt are very rich, it is no uncommon thing for shipments to average $2,000.00 per ton, and often twice this value.

The Cobalt property of the Peerless Larder Lake Mines, Limited, company has a well defined vein of Copper-Cobalt Nickel-Silver ore and the surface showings lead the management to believe they will open a large and valuable mine on this property.

The Larder Lake district is gold bearing and it was discovered only last July. The exceptionally rich finds of gold have caused a rush of prospectors and mining men to Larder Lake and though the district is only six months old, already every available location for miles around has been staked. Mining men who are posted are of the opinion Larder Lake will quickly become one of the leading gold camps of the world.

The Larder Lake property of the Peerless Larder Lake Mines, Limited Company was located by one of the directors of the company in July last, shortly after the first discovery of the district was made and a thorough examination of these properties convinces the management they are equal to any in the district and development should prove them to be the most valuable assets of the company.

A force of men are now at the properties making preparations for active developments.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Storm-Bound Man Saved by Cold He Deems Fatal.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Tagus—Wandering alone in a raging blizzard, among the hills south of here, Andrew Christenson spent Saturday night and a portion of Sunday. He was badly frozen and narrowly escaped with his life.

Christenson left town about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon on his way to his claim, seven miles south of town. Darkness overtook him before he reached his claim, and being unable longer to see the road, he let his team take its own way, hoping that their instinct would guide them in the right direction. They wandered from the road, however, and Christenson soon discovered that he was lost.

The snow was coming down in perfect sheets, driven by a fierce wind, the icy particles cutting the face like whip lashes. The team floundered about through the deep snow, at last becoming stuck in an immense drift. Christenson thought of leaving the team and trying to find his shack alone, but the night was so dark and the snow so thick that he was afraid to attempt it. All night long he stayed by his sleigh, getting out occasionally and walking around it to keep from freezing. About midnight he began to feel numb and sleepy, and believing that he could no longer hold out against the cold, he took a piece of paper and by the light of a match scrawled a note to his family, telling them how he came by his death. This done, he lay down and went to sleep. But the intense cold awakened him and he arose and managed to keep in motion until morning, when he found his way to a neighbor's house.

Although badly frozen, Christenson is expected to recover. His horses were frozen stiff in the morning.

Williston—Albert Barry, a homesteader living on a claim thirteen miles northwest of Williston, was found dead in his shack Thursday morning. It was first reported that he had frozen to death, but when a party from here went after him plenty of provisions and fuel were found.

Barry was found in bed with his clothing on, even to a cap. It is thought that he was sick and, being there alone, lay down on the bed and died. His closest neighbor was two miles away. Being so far out of town and with the snow so deep, there was no one passing to render assistance. The coroner says the man had been dead two days before found.

Grand Forks—Oscar Arneson, a laboring man, has brought a suit against S. Larson Obak, proprietor of the Christiana hotel, for damages of $5,000 wanted for language that the plaintiff alleges was defamatory, nd was used when Obak urged the payment of a board bill for three weeks' accommodations.

Rev. William H. Matthews, who recently came here from Chicago, was Thursday night formally installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

A report is in circulation to the effect that John F. Cowan, judge of the Second judicial district, may tender his resignation in order to enter into a partnership with Governor Burke's law firm, Burke & Middaugh, at Devils Lake.

Mrs. Emma Johnson and son, Joseph Johnson, have brought an action against the woman's divorced husband, Daniel Johnson, to recover $840. Mrs. Johnson says that she and her son rented a farm of 200 acres and that her divorced husband confiscated the wheat and oats crop.

Jamestown—A dog poisoner is creating havoc among the valuable dogs owned in this town and those who have suffered by his operations are talking of forming a vigilance committee for the purpose of running down and punishing the offender. The poisoner spreads his deadly mixture upon bits of meat, bones, etc., and these he throws about where the dog he has selected for his victim will be sure to find and eat it. More than a score of valuable hunting dogs have fallen victims to the malicious mischief of the poisoner.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Yankton—Gerhard J. Sanders, a veteran of the Civil war and pioneer of this city, was burned as he slept at midnight in his home here. His body was in plain sight, but could not be reached, as it was balanced o na heavy floor joist in the center of the fire. He lived alone and leaves three adult daughters an done son. An overturned lamp is the supposed cause of the tragedy.

Howard—Peter Schmitz, an old man employed as a farm hand, has been found dead by the roadside half a mile north of town. He had been to church on Sunday, and in returning home became bewildered in the fierce storm which was raging, lost his way and was frozen to death.

Sioux Falls—After having been the greatest sufferer in the state from the raids of cattle and horse "rustlers" during the last few years George R. Brown, Indian trader at Rosebud agency, in the effort to put a stop to the wholesale raids has offered a standing reward of $200 for the arrest and conviction of persons guilty of running off stock.

ACTION IS RESCINDED

County Board Will Not Buy the Cash Property.

Public Sentiment Against Jail in Proximity of School.

The new county jail will not be erected on the northeast corner of Fifth avenue west and Second street, in the vicinity of the Jackson school. The county board has not given out any official information to that effect, but it has taken action which means, practically, the same thing.

Yesterday afternoon, when the board held a meeting to pass on the various bonds presented for the county printing and supply contracts, the commissioners discussed the matter of a jail site, briefly, then voted to reconsider and table the resolution adopted at the last regular meeting of the board, to purchase the 100-foot corner from James Cash, administrator of the Cash estate, which owns the property.

The county had an option to buy the property for $16,500, which was generally considered a very fair price for the location. After the board voted to make the purchase, however, there came a vigorous protest from people who are sending children to the Jackson school, from the local pulpits and from the superintendent of the city schools. Many business men and other citizens joined in the protest and considerable pressure was brought to bear on the members of the county board to reconsider the purchase.

Popular sentiment is said to be so strongly against the idea of building a jail in proximity to a schoolhouse that the commissioners finally agreed to reconsider the action already taken looking toward the acquisition of the Cash property.

The rear of the two lots that it was proposed to purchase is separated by an alley from the rear of the Jackson school. It has been urged by people all over the city that it would be a serious mistake to have two institutions so widely apart in their objects, so close together. It was argued that the presence of the jail building right under the eyes and within hearing of the pupils would exert a bad influence on them, and it was even talked that something would be done to get the school board to take formal steps to prevent the county using the Cash property for jail purposes.

Although the resolution to buy the corner mentioned is laid on the table and could be called up at any meeting of the board in the future, it is understood from reliable sources that further action looking toward the acquisition of the site will never be taken. The option has or will expire within a few days, anyway, and it is not likely that the county could ever again get as low a figure on the corner as it had under the option.

Nothing further is know of the intention of the county board or the courthouse commission as regards a jail site. The idea of purchasing Capt. Alexander McDougall's property at the southeast corner of Fifth avenue west and Second street seems to have been given up by reason of the probable high valuation that would likely be placed on the property were it appraised under condemnation proceedings.

It is thought quite possible that the board and the commission may decide that the county has already acquired enough ground, with the seventy-five feet on Second street recently purchased from J. T. Michaud, and that the courthouse, jail and power house will be erected on the portion of the block already acquired.

FIND ANOTHER PLOT TO KILL KING ALFONSO.

Madrid, Jan. 19.—The police have discovered what they believe is another plot on the life of King Alfonso, and are taking stringent precautions to circumvent anarchist plans against the sovereign and other prominent persons. On Jan. 21, the day fixed for the opening of parliamentary debate on the attempt on the life of King Alfonso, last May, anarchists, it is reported, will again seek Alfonso's life.

In the cases against Editors Nakens and Ferrer, on a charge of regicide, the public prosecutor demanded that a jury be denied the accused. The court reserved its decision for a week.

Friends and supporters of the accused declared that if the cases go to a jury the men will be acquitted.

CUTTING RED TAPE IS THE PURPOSE OF ROOT.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Secretary of State Elihu Root is the guest of Earl Grey, governor general of Canada. All inquiries have been met with the declaration that the visit is purely social and that Secretary Root is merely returning the social call made at Washington last year by Earl Grey. Lasting results are expected in spite of these announcements.

It is known that the official red tape that hinders the settlement of problems confronting the two nations has long been wearisome to the administrations. They would prefer to negotiate directly and avoid the delays under the present system, that sends every question through England.

Questions that originated years ago are still pending as a result of this diplomatic fog, and it is safe to say that several of these will come up for review at the after-dinner session of Secretary Root, Earl Grey and Sir William Laurier. Among those problems are pelagiac sealing, the lakes fisheries, diversion of water power from the St. Lawrence and the diversion of the boundary rivers. A number of other questions of minor importance remain unsettled as a result of the system which officials of both sides brand ridiculous. Sir Mortimer Durand, the recently retired British ambassador, is blamed for the survival of this ancient custom more than any other person.

INDIAN KILLED.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 19.—A full-blooded Winnebago Indian, believed to be James Hall, who was tenting near Minnesota City, was run down by an eastbound Milwaukee train west of Winona Thursday night and instantly killed. He had been drinking in Winona during the day.

DR. MITCHELL'S

Magnetic Treatment Reaches Every Vital Organ in the Body.

And Touches the Root of Disease, However Deep-Seated.

Healer Mitchell, in talking to a reporter said: "I want every person in Duluth suffering with nervous exhaustion, paralysis, locomotor ataxia, Bright's disease, consumption, lack of vigor, rheumatism, throat, lung and ear trouble, to come to my office and learn how they can be cured by the great power nature has given us. Very few people seem to understand that disease of all kinds is nothing but inharmonious magnetic vibrations of the body. Then, if the magnetic vibrations are inharmonious in disease, one must simply restore the vibrations to harmony. Now, how is that done? That is a problem which I have solved. By it I make the cures, and it is this that is making the world stand in wonder; it is this that is causing all classes of people to come to me for investigation and cure. They find that I have solved the problem with my magnetic treatment. I relieve suffering and cure disease. I do this quickly and permanently with my magnetic power. Some people declare that my work is nothing short of miraculous. In taking my magnetic treatment, it adds to the body magnetism and immediately sets all the vibrations of the body into harmony again. The moment the vibrations begin to work in harmony, just that moment the body begins to throw off disease. Hundreds of people here in Duluth, in Superior, and all over the Northwest, testify daily to my wonderful cures. The daily papers have published hundreds of letters in regard to my cures and I have hundreds of letters on file that I have permission to show from grateful patients to those who are sketical. I am curing new patients every day. They return home and send their friends, and that is why I am busy from early in the morning until late at night. I could work the whole twenty-four hours if my strength would permit it, for some days there are many new patients whom I cannot get to see, and I wish to say to any patients coming from out of the city, to please notify me so that I can make arrangements to take their case. It may save their waiting two or three days for consultation. Consultation free all this week.

PASSED A RED LIGHT

Engineer of Ill-Fated Train Failed to Observe Signal.

Official Report Says Fifteen Were Killed in Wreck.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—The following official statement regarding the wreck at Fowler, Ind., was issued from the office of the Big Four railroad in this city:

Train No. 38, known as the Queen City Special, which left Chicago at 11:30 p. m. last night, collided with No. 95, fast merchandise freight train, 500 feet east of the east switch at Fowler, Ind. No. 38 ran by a stop signal at Fowler. This was a telegraphic block signal, and the red light was burning brightly, but the engineer failed to see it and stop, probably on account of the very heavy fog.

The dead are as follows:

J. A. SHANNON, Chicago, died on special train enroute to Kankakee.

CONDUCTOR HIDDINGER, of the passenger train.

BAGGAGEMAN McGEE, of passenger train.

FIREMAN ALCOTT, of passenger train.

Eleven occupants of the combination car, names unknown.

The injured: H. W. Link, Grand Rapids, Michigan., injuries serious; L. S. Lang, Chicago, slightly hurt; M. A. Creeton, 41 West Twenty-first street, New York, left leg injured; D. W. Tripp, La Fayette, Ind., engineer on the passenger train, injuries serious; Minor Griffin, Shelbyville, Ind., fireman, Seidel apartments, Indianapolis, both legs crushed, will die.

It is reported that there were thirteen people in the combination car and all of them were killed with the exception of two who were badly injured. The occupants of this car were either killed outright or so seriously injured as to be unable to escape and their bodies were burned in the car.

As soon as possible after the accident the Big Four private car was run to Kankakee with the injured people, who were placed in the Emergency hospital there.

At the point where the accident occurred there is only a single track, and trains were operated under what is known as the "telegraph block." The red stop signal at Fowler was burning brightly, and the accident was caused by the failure of the engineer of the passenger train to stop in accordance with the signal shown.

La Fayette, Ind., Jan. 19.—The following is the official report of the wreck at Fowler:

Train No. 38, due at Fowler at 2:05 a. m., had orders that No. 38, with Conductor Hiddinger and Engineer Tripp would wait at Fowler until 2:17 a. m. for No. 955. No. 38 ran past the railboard at Fowler and collided with No. 95, 500 feet east of the east end siding. The collision occurred at 2:15 o'clock. Both engines were badly damaged and thrown off the track. No. 38's baggage car was entirely destroyed by fire, which destroyed the rest of the train except the sleeper Tabong, which was injured to the extent of having its trucks knocked off. Eight injured persons were taken to Kankakee, Ill., on a special train in the private car of Vice President Schaff, and cared for at Kankakee hospitals. Engineer Tripp was badly injured, and his fireman was killed. Conductor Hiddinger and Baggageman McGee are supposed to be burned up in the wreckage and cannot be found. Engineer Cobbler of No. 95 was not injured. No one was injured in the damaged sleepers. The engine ran through the combination car.

Owing to the dense fog the engineer of the Big Four Flyer was unable to see the light on the semaphore, which directed him to stop, as a westbound freight had the right-of-way. The train dispatcher, knowing that the dense fog would prevent the trainmen from seeing the block signal, went outside and waved his lantern frantically, and fired at least a dozen shots from his revolver, but the trainmen went crashing by with their train, and a moment later the crash came. The tender of No. 38 telescoped the baggage car, the rear end of the tender cut through to within ten feet of the rear of the smoker.

The firemen of both trains were killed instantly, but the engineers escaped by jumping.

The report of the collision was heard all over the town. Fire bells and whistles called the people to the aid of the injured.

Immediately following the crash the wreckage caught fire, and the bodies were burned before they could be extricated from the ruins. The heat of burning cars was so intense that the rescuers could not get near enough to help. The injured and some of the dead were taken to Kankakee, Ill.

One man, who was pleading for aid, was pinned under a car seat. He was rescued when the flames were within six feet of him. Another man was thrown out of the window of the smoker into a ditch. These were the only two passengers rescued from the smoker.

The killed included men, women and children, and all that could be seen at daybreak this morning was the smoldering skeltons of human bodies and the wreckage of the smoker and the bagge cars. None of the passengers in the sleepers were killed.

Coroner Conley has taken charge, and Prosecuting Attorney Hall will assist the coroner in making an investigation of the wreck.

The sleeping cars were not destroyed by fire as first reported.

General Supt. Houghton of the Big Four, said his information at 10 a. m., was that between ten and fifteen persons were killed, while the list of seriously injured was not large. Indianapolis survivors and injured will reach the city at 1 p. m., he said.

"The Indianapolis sleeper," said Mr. Houghton, "was the last car of the train. No person on it was hurt.

"The survivors were put aboard the next train, for Indianapolis. It was necessary to send this train back to Schaff and over the Lake Erie Western and Chicago & Eastern Illinois to get back to the main line for Indianapolis. Some of the passengers wished to go back to Chicago and were sent there.

"We sent a wreck train from here at 5 a. m., but the train from Kankakee was there ahead of it.

"Our information is that No. 38 ran past the block at Fowler, probably because of the fog."

FINDS LONG-LOST BROTHER.

North Dakota Woman Starts Search Which Ends in Success.

Menomonie, Wis., Jan. 19.—Separated from each other from infancy, a sister has found her brother, or rather, half-brother Albert Malehus, who lives on route 7 from this city. The sister is Anna Horg, who makes her home in North Dakota. Malehus is about 25 years old.

About two weeks ago Marshal Tilleson received a letter from North Dakota with a request for information of the whereabouts of Malehus. Inquiry revealed him living near Cedar Falls. Word was sent to Anna Horg, and she is overjoyed to locate her long-lost brother.

Albert's mother died when he was a mere child, and his father married again in Norway. There Anna was born. She came to this country a few years ago. Albert made his home with the Malehus family near Cedar Falls, and has no recollection of his father. Brother and sister have never seen each other.

VERY SMART IDIOTS IN AN IOWA INSTITUTION.

Glenwood, Iowa, Jan. 19.—Dr. A. D. Scheir, assistant superintendent of the state institution for feeble-minded, has completed his report, showing there are several "learned idiots" among the inmates. One is used as a dictionary, another is employed as a lightning calculator, another is utilized as a calendar and date record.

The most remarkable case is that of John S., who was taken into the institution when 12 years old. He has been here twenty-three years. John can recall instantly the date of the entrance or discharge of an inmate, or the employment of a new hand. He can remember the date and names of visitors to the institution, and can accurately tell the condition of the weather at the time of the visit.

G. F. H., a boy of Danish descent, can multiply three figures by three figures as rapidly as they are written down. His addition, subtraction and division, however, is not correct. Another boy of 16, though unable to read or write, can spell any word, no matter how difficult. He has been tested many times by teachers and never fails to spell correctly.

R. G. L., aged 17, a boy with no education, is able to mold of clay the forms of animals with almost miraculous perfection. Other figures he cannot make.

Cut Your Gas Bills in Two

You are using more gas than you need!
You are breaking too many globes!
You are wasting too many mantles!

because the pressure forces more gas through the pipes than is necessary to give you a steady, full light.

THE NATIONAL AUTOMATIC GAS LIGHT (INVERTED)

has an automatic regulator, which controls this pressure and allows just enough gas (not too much or too little) to pass through at all times to fill the mantle, and prevents the wasting of gas, breaking of globes and mantles, and destruction of burners.

The National Automatic Gas Light gives a steady, full light downward of twice the candle-power at half the cost of any other gas light and five times the light at one-fifth the cost of electricity. Price $1.75, boxed complete.

FREE DEMONSTRATION.

Come in and let us show you by actual scientific tests that your present lights are burning twice as much gas as they ought to and prove to your own satisfaction that the National Automatic Gas Light will do as we claim or your money refunded.

WORK BEGUN ON DAM.

Power to be Transmitted Eight Miles to City of Ellsworth.

Ellsworth, Wis., Jan. 19.—The Ellsworth Heat, Light & Power company has a big crew of men at work on Rush river, clearing the ground for the 180-foot dam, which will furnish power for this city. The building of the dam will use up 175,000 feet of lumber, which will be cut on the spot the power will be transmitted eight miles to this city and the present steam plant will be kept ready for emergencies.

Joseph Wainaius, Jr., a clerk in a grocery store, held a lighted match to the vent hole of a gasoline tank last night to see whether there was any gasoline left in it. The doctors think they can save his eyesight.

FARM SINKS; FEAR QUAKE.

Huge Cavern Opens in Kentucky and People Are Excited.

Olive Hill., Ky., Jan. 19.—On Milton Ewin's farm near here, three acres suddenly sank today. A tract adjoining slipped about thirty feet, leaving numerous fissures, one of which is about forty yards long and fifty feet deep and some forty feet wide. Dirt is thrown in mounds in several places. Two houses were shaken from their foundations.

The district in which the strange prank of nature occured is honeycombed with caverns, which condition with the accompanying deluge of rain is blamed by some for the movement, while more excitable people think it a fag end of the earthquake in Jamaica.

CHARGED WITH SMUGGLING.

Former Minnesota Man Must Appear in Court at Fargo.

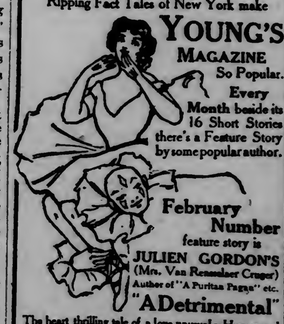

Wadena, Minn., Jan. 19.—Frank P. Hamlin, a prominent grain dealer and elevator man of Broken Arrow, I. T., was arrested last week by Deputy United States Marshal Earl Coulter, charged with smuggling wheat across the line from Canada into the United States. He was given a hearing before United States Commissioner W. R. Hoyt and admitted to bail in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance in Fargo next May. Mr. Hamifin was formerly in the real estate business in this city, and has resided in several other towns in this immediate vicinity. For the last two years he has been living at Broken Arrow, I. T., where he operates a line of elevators along the M. K. & O., between Muskogee and Tulsa.

BOERS' REFRIGERATOR.

The Boers, who live on the high veldt of the Transvaal, have a simple way of preserving perishable provisions in the summer, says Ice and Cold Storage. On the high veldt the weather during the day is extremely warm, but once the sun sets a breeze springs up, and in about two hours' time the cold is intense. This is due to the rarified air.

When the sun has disappeared for two hours or so the vrouw brings out her provisions and wraps each article in a piece of thin sacking and hangs it from the roof of the eaves which run around the outside of the building. In the morning, when the cattle in the kraals proclaim by their lowing that it is time to rise, she comes out and takes the bags in. The butter, if butter is one of the articles, is so hard that you could not spread it; the meat, if it is buck's head, has much the same texture and appearance as buck's meat that has been transformed into biltong by being dried in the sun, though it differs from this in that it can, of course, be cooked, while biltong cannot, and still retains the greater part of its juice; the beef or mutton is frozen.

The bags are taken inside and placed on that side of the house which is "against the sun." When the sun veers around to this side of the house they will be transferred to the other side. Travelers who call at one of these farms on some summer day when the sun is blazing down and there is not a breath of air marvel how the people keep their provisions, shut off as they are from all helpful adjuncts. If they express their surprise to the vrouw she takes them to the front of the house and gravely points out the large hooks, which she will later on in the day call into use again.

STREAK OF FINE COPPER ORE

Struck in the Shaft of the Amazon-Butte Property---Butte & Michigan Looking Well---Another Company to Operate.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 19.—Some fine specimens of copper ore were taken from a stringer in the shaft of the Amazon-Butte property Wednesday. They not only show copper glance, but also native copper, a streak of which runs entirely through them. The stringer was cut at a depth of 130 feet and is about two inches wide. Officers of the company believe it is from one of the large veins for which the company is sinking. The shaft is now 135 feet deep, and is sinking rapidly in ground that has every indication of an abundance of good commercial ore at depth. It is likely that the ground will be crosscut at the 200, for the section in which it is located, that south of the Bullwhacker, is strongly mineralized even on the surface.

The Butte & Michigan company, which is operating near the entrance to Leslie gulch, southeast of the poor farm, has begun raising out another compartment of its shaft. The shaft is now 200 feet deep, but the second hundred is larger than the first. Some silver ore has been struck in t..e shaft. After the other compartment is raised out, sinking will be resumed and carried to a depth of 100 or 200 feet more, which will give the shaft a total depth of 300 feet if 100 is sunk and 400 feet if 200 is added.

George B. Conway, who floated the Jennie Dell group of claims in the East a few weeks ago, received a telegram from Frank W. Child of Chicago a few days ago stating that 400,000 shares of the capital stock of the Butte-Knickerbocker Mining company had been sold at a figure sufficient to place in the treasury of the company a competent working and equipment capital, which means that the Jennie Dell group will again be operated and developed.

The Butte-Knickerbocker was organized to take over the group, which comprises the Jennie Dell, Twilight, October and Lamonte claims, west of the Lexington. These claims were formerly under lease and bond to the Columbus-Butte company. The latter did considerable work on them, but finally abandoned the enterprise because those who comprised the company were not mining men.

It is the intention of the Butte-Knickerbocker to begin operations before the first of the month, with Mr. Conway in charge of the work. The property is good and requires only development, in the opinion of mining men, to make it profitable. It has one shaft of immaterial depth and another 25 or 30 feet deep. The old company sank the latter and was preparing to put up a gallows frame and equip it with heavy machinery when the order to stop work was flashed over the wire from the head office of the company in Columbus.

The directors of the new company are George B. Conway, B. F. White and Edwin L. Norris of Dillon, James Davidson of Butte, Frank W. Child of Chicago, George H. Roberts of Boise, Samuel W. Doty, Arthur W. Hunter and Joseph E. Gillespie of New York, Fred L. Cobb of Yonkers and George Kitchling of Elizabeth, N. J.

The shaft on the property of the Ida-Montana company has reached a depth of 165 feet. So far no water worth mentioning has been encountered, notwithstanding the fact that the shaft is close to the creek that flows through the first canyon south of the entrance to Columbia gardens canyon. Some crosscutting will be done at the 200-foot mark in order to determine the contents of the vein of copper ore opened on the 10, but sinking will be continued. The company is in shape to go deep, having a first-class surface equipment.

The Butte-Milwaukee company, of which the Butte-New York is the holding corporation, is receiving its machinery, a boiler, part of the air compressor and the hoisting engine having been delivered at the site of the new shaft on the Col. Sellers claim. The shaft is about 35 feet deep and is sinking as rapidly as the work can be done under existing conditions. Work on the spur of railroad from the Mountain View line of the Great Northern to the shaft is under way. The grading is finished and only the ties and rails remain to be laid.

Six or seven Eastern men interested in the Butte-New York company will visit Butte for the purpose of looking over the property and other properites. They will leave New York today and arrive here probably on the 23, provided they come direct. The party will include nearly all of the men who are supplying the money for developing the Butte-Milwaukee group, with the possible exception of W. L. Moyer, who was here about two months ago and may not be in position to leave New York this month.

The Davis-Daly Copper company has ordered a new air compressor from the Nordberg Machinery company for use at the Colorado. The machine will have capacity for twenty-five drills and is billed for delivery in five months. Sinking is again in progress at the Colorado, the break in the present compressor having been repaired. The shaft is now a little more than 650 feet deep.

The company intends to equip the Smokehouse with a dry for the men. The

IN THE CANANEA DISTRICT

Highly Encouraging Strike in the Calumet and Sonora Shaft---Deal Pending for the Sale of the San Miguel Mines.

Cananea, Mex., Jan. 19.—The Calumet & Sonora last week made a highly encouraging strike in its shaft. The ore came in at depth of 140 feet and is continuing with the sinking. The indications are very favorable to determining at early date the presence of a large body. Assays made of the ore show value of 5 per cent copper. The vein is coming in stronger as depth is gained. Manager McRae of the company expresses entire confidence that within a very short time the expected ore body will be opened.

At the Ortega mine the incline shaft has now reached a depth of 320 feet. Last month the sinking record at the property was broken by the making of sixty-three feet. At the rate of progress which has prevailed this week the record for January will be better than that for December, it is now being expected that steady work will bring the shaft to the 400 level by the first of February. There have been no recent developments of importance in the shaft. Formation being cut continues favorable to ore at greater depth.

Shaft No. 2 on the Collins claim of the South Cananea has entered ore at a depth of forty-five feet. The ore secured is low grade. The indications present are all favorable to its working into a large body. Belief entertained is that it is the Massey body that is being entered, formation and character of ore that is now in giving strength to this belief.

At the Oro Maximo there are now being worked about forty men, who are carrying on development work which is said to be attended with very satisfactory results. Mr. Clancy is still in Michigan, but is expected back shortly. It is not known yet here through any definite report from the East what future plans have been decided upon for the property, but it is believed that before the end of the month a larger force than ever before employed in the mine will be at work.

It is understood that a deal is pending for the San Miguel mines property, owned by Cananea people, in the vicinity of Bacoachi. English interests desire to take over the ground, including the San Miguel and Dos Na-

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Building of Aerial Tramway From Deadwood to the Mines of Bald Mountain District Being Agitated---Would Cost $150,000.

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 19.—The question of building an aerial tramway between this city and the mines of the Bald Mountain district for the transportation of ore is being agitated by the Business Men's club of this city. With but one or two exceptions the companies operating on Bald Mountain have their mills in Deadwood and pay heavy charges to the railroads to get their ore where is can be treated. With the present freight rates 50 cents a ton for all $8 ore and a sliding scale for the higher grades, it is impossible for many of the companies to make a fair profit. Transportation of the ore over an aerial tramway would reduce the cost by half at least. It would be necessary to build the tramway a distance of about seven miles with spurs running to the different mines, the estimated cost per mile being from $13,000 to $14,000. The total cost approximates $150,000. The closing down of the Bald Mountain mines at present because of their inability to grant the eight-hour day demanded by the labor mine operators, as it is thought that but for the high freight rates the companies would be in a position to grant the demand. The companies that would be directly benefited are the Golden Reward, Mogul, Portland-Clinton and the Dakota. Other properties also could be operated at a profit at the reduced transportation charges.

Of the eight Bald Mountain companies closed down at the first of the year by the strike of the miners and mill men for an eight-hour day, but one has resumed work. The Reliance company after a four-day shutdown announced that on the morning of the fifth they would start work on the eight-hour basis. The Reliance is the only company in this district to have its mill directly contiguous to its mine.

The Gold Eagle company expects to start work in a short time on an extensive scale. The property is located in the Maitland district, contiguous to both the Maitland and the Minnesota mines. The property was recently inspected by the president of the company, Clarence Y. Smith of Lincoln, Neb.; E. M. Stockton of Chicago, who is selling the treasury stock of the company, and Harry Anderson of Chicago, a large stockholder.

The Ohio Beaver Creek Mining company, owing 1,008 acres of placer ground along Beaver Creek, will have a placer dredging machine in operation on the property within a few months. It will have a capacity of 1,000 tons of earth and gravel per day, and the cost of installing it will be in the neighborhood of $7,000. Six men are required to operate it. The machinery is expected this week and work will be pushed rapidly.

Rockford, S. D., Jan. 19.—The Golden West Mining company is preparing to resume work in its mill here, which has been closed down for two months. It has been the custom of this company to operate only during the summer, as a sufficient water supply was not available during the winter months, but with the recent change in ownership it has been decided to make the necessary repairs and improvements to secure a permanent water supply. A force of men is at work on a large open cut on the property preparing to take out a steady supply of ore for the mill. The Golden West has a system of amalgamation and stamps that has been successful in the summer, and there is no reason why it should not be equally successful during the cold months as soon as the necessary measures are taken to prevent the freezing of the water. Work will be started upon the arrival of President Curtis of Chicago, who is expected soon.

Silver City, S. D., Jan. 19.—A large placer dredge is to be installed along Rapid creek, between this place and Pactola by the Redrock Placer Mines company, and it is hoped to have the machinery in operation not later than June 1. The dredge has a capacity of from 2,000 to 2,500 cubic yards daily, and working at that rate for 200 to 250 days a year it is estimated that fifteen years will be required to work out the 129 acres owned by the company. Rapid creek and its tributaries are carrying large amounts of placer gold, but the large volume of water neces-

GREAT ACTIVITY IN ARIZONA

Strike of Phenomenal Values at Shattuck-Arizona—Denn Ore Zone Extensive—Junction About to Enter Ranks of Shippers —Fine Showing at the Globe Consolidated.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 19.—The new year has seen several rich strikes and a steady increase in the output of the producing properties. There was an immensely rich strike recently at the Shattuck-Arizona mine, and the company is now taking out the richest ore in the district. The strike was made in the stope between the 700 and 800-foot level, and the greater part of the ore being taken out is native copper. Supt. Pattison stated that while the stope has been producing exceedingly rich ore right along, that the finding of native copper has greatly increased the values. In speaking of the extent of the native copper find, Mr. Pattison said that chunks weighing from 500 to 600 pounds have been taken East and that likewise some of the most beautiful specimens of crystalized native copper ever found in the Bisbee mines have been found. The Calumet & Arizona has held the banner place for the production of rich ores for a long time, but the Shattuck can now step into first place. The shaft at the mine is now bottomed at the 900-foot level, where a station is being cut and the level will be explored. As soon as this exploration is completed sinking will be resumed, and the shaft sent down to the 1,000-foot level. The policy of the company is to explore each level as it is reached, and after exploring to sink deeper. The shaft is now in sulphide ore and the level will more than likely show up further large ore bodies.

The Denn-Arizona is proving also to be one of the richest properties in the district. All the cross-cuts are in ore still, and the main drift is in a new body of ore, proving the ore zone for over 600 feet.

The Junction mine is the scene of activity at present. A large force of men are employed day and night in erecting the new ore bins, which, as soon as completed, will be used by the company in shipping its ore to the smelter at Douglas. Today the bins look to 8 per cent and there are thousands the workmen will be employed on them for some time. When finished the Junction will be a shipper, as its ore can then be handled at a very small cost. No ore is being taken from the mine at present, but tons upon tons are ready to be hoisted to the surface. The ore is not high grade but runs from 2 has already been placed, the tenth in of tons blocked out.

At the power plant preparations have been under way for the past week for the installation of four more boilers of the marine type, all oil burners. They have also six old Atlas boilers and four of the marine type in use at present the tenth having been installed during the past month. At the north end of the building excavation is being done for an additional boiler, and another will soon be in position.

It was stated by people in authority connected with the Superior & Pittsburg that the Briggs shaft will lose five of its oil burning marine type boilers, the same to be placed in the Junction power plant. As it is one this report, as the sight of the rigging the battery, and the other four will soon be doing duty at the Junction. A visit to the Briggs shaft will confirm this report, as the sight of the riging surrounding the power plant will speak for itself. The Briggs boilers are all 250-horse power, and no doubt some of them will go toward increasing the power at the Junction by exchanging them with the 160-horse power Atlas boilers.

This great activity at the Junction confirms the report, in a way, that that shaft will be the main one of the Superior & Pittsburg company. All the water from the Briggs and Hoatson shafts will be pumped from the Junction, which fact has caused a greater power capacity to be installed.

The surrounding ground at the Junction shaft is being rapidly filled in, and soon the company will have a great amount of yard room for the railroad tracks, which will soon be laid, although a spur from the cut-off already runs to the mine.

With the Junction shipping, the output of the Warren district will be greatly added to.

The Hoatson is also a lively place at present. This shaft is also the property of the Superior & Pittsburg. The space about the shaft, which was a ravine a short time ago, is being rapidly filled in with muck. The new tracks to the mine, two sets, will soon be completed, and the company will then have four sets of rails to the shaft. The shipments are steadily increasing, and this mine will also help to increase the production of the district.

• • •

At the Cochise mine a station is being cut on the 600-level and a drift will be run west. The ground at this point in the shaft is soft and

LARGE GOLD ORE SHIPMENTS

Three Express Cars With Ore Valued at $700,000 Sent From Goldfield and More to Follow—New Smelter of Large Proportions Needed—Fuel Famine Severe.

Goldfield, Nev., Jan. 19.—The largest shipment of rich ore yet recorded from any mining camp has just been sent under heavy guard in thre exepress cars to be conveyed to the Selby smelter for treatment. It is valued at upwards of $700,000. The nearest approach to this record was the famous shipment from the Isabella mine, in the Cripple Creek district, about eight years ago, when a carload of seventy-seven tons was valued at $239,000 was sent out. This latest shipment contained about thirty-five tons, averaging from $18,000 to $20,000 to the ton. It has been closely watched by armed guards both night and day. It is expected that other leases will send out enormous quantities of ore within the next few days. It is these large shipments that furnish the most conclusive answer to the adverse criticisms that have recently been handed about so freely regarding one of the world's richest gold camps.

A new smelter of immense proportions is the next most urgent need of the Goldfield mining interests, according to the opinion of those best qualified to speak. As soon as the mines of the district cease to be free milling such a smelter will be required; and it is generally admitted that copper is the base that will most interfere with amalgamating. There can be little question but that the new enterprise will be highly profitable, especially in case lead and zinc are developed within reasonable distances.

The fuel famine has been severe throughout the district, and fuel of all kinds is now commanding record prices. A carload lot of firewood which had been shipped from Utah, 900 miles away, was recently distributed among needy applicants, and offers of as nigh as $20 for a quarter cord were declined, as under instructions no money could be accepted for the wood. The last quarter cord was given out a stick at a time, and many women with sick ones at home crowded eagerly forward to secure if possible a single stick. The situation is regarded as acute.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 19.—Bert Wilson, formerly well known in Butte, a graduate of the school of mines, is now at Ely, Nev. In a leter to a Butte friend he writes interestingly about the new camp, saying in the course of the letter:

"I wish you could see this country after being in Butte. You could not help saying that Ely will be another Butte. When I first came in here I heard all kinds of stories about the great mineral wealth, but could not imagine one-half of it to be true. While in Salt Lake I found an Ely man at the Knutsford hotel, and he told me one mine had nearly $200,000,000 in copper blocked out at the present price of copper. That seemed large to me, and since coming here believe I can stretch the story a bit myself.

"The ore here lies in huge deposits rather than in veins, as found in Butte. The ore bodies are in a porphyry which has been enriched. At the Ruth mine, belonging to the Nevada Consolidated, there is supposed to be more than 10,000,000 tons of ore blocked out, which is to be mined by the caving system, as used at the Minnesota iron mines. Then at the Copper Flat, or the Eureka mine, belonging to the same company, they have more than 10,000,000 tons of ore developed and intend using the steam shovel. The ore in this locality lies near the surface and can be mined very easily by stripping a few feet of the surface. These are really the only two mines that have development work far enough advanced to safely judge the ore bodies.

"The Giraux company has a great deal of work done on its property, which is the largest in acreage in the camp. They have five shafts with good showings in each.

"The Butte & Ely joins the Giraux, and it also has some very good rock. At the present it is sinking, but before long will be crosscutting and developing the ore body. One might say that more than 100 feet of the Butte & Ely shaft is in ore, but the assay values I know nothing of. Mr. Willoughby, who was formerly with the Granite Bimetallic company, has charge. I go up there quite often, as Mr. Willoughby and I came in here together.

"The Cumberland-Ely company, which joined hands with the Nevada Consolidated, has good showings and probably the richest ore in the camp in what is known as their Veteran shaft. This Veteran property adjoins the Giraux on the west. It has another group near Lane City, four miles from Ely, which has proved to be very valuable.

"I could go on and mention several more real good companies that are certain of success, while scores of others that are mere prospects. I believe after the new smelter has been completed Ely will figure well up in the production of copper.

"The smelter is to be built fifteen miles from Ely townsite, at a place called McGills. As planned, the smelter will be fully as large as the Washoe in Anaconda. The Nevada Northern railroad reached Ely Sept. 29, when the people here had a great celebration. I had the pleasure of seeing a great number of people that had never seen a railroad train. It certainly made the old-timers happy, after living here so many years in the wilderness, as they might have termed it.

"It is rumored that Clark intends building here from Pioche, ninety miles south of here. The Western Pacific will come within fifty miles and will undoubtedly run a branch line in here. There is also a road planned from Salt Lake direct. Also a road to be run from here to Tonopah and Goldfield. Ely will in time be the railroad center of this part of the Southwest.

"I am with the Ely Mines company, having charge of the work at their mines. They have the most of their ground right in what is termed the mineral belt."

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Jackson Mine on Marquette Range May Again Become a Shipper—First Ore Found in Lake Region Shipped From It—Value of the Diamond Drill.

Ishpeming, Mich., Jan.119—(Special to The Herald)—Iron ore was first found in the Lake Superior region in what is now the city of Negaunee, Marquette range, under an uprooted stump, in the summer of 1844, by men associated with William Burt of Detroit, in the original surveys of Upper Michigan, then a virgin wilderness, and even now but sparsely settled. A little exploratory work showed plainly that the iron measures were of large extent, and in 1846 mining operations on the tract were started in earnest by a company organized at Jackson, Lower Michigan, and which in honor of the place of origin of the corporation gave to the property the name of that city. The discovery of this ore led to others of vast importance, and the work of exploitation continued until, years ago, the Lake Superior region had attained its preeminent position as the world's greatest source of ore supply.

From the product of the Jackson was manufactured the first iron produced in Michigan. A small bloomery was built on Carp river, five miles east of Negaunee, and here the first iron made from Lake Superior ore, otherwise than a few pounds smelted experimentally, was made in 1848. The initial shipment of ore consisted of five tons, sent from the Jackson to Newcastle, Pa., where, on being smelted, it amazed the founder by the altogether exceptional amount of iron returned. In 1852 a sample cargo of seventy tons of Jackson ore was sent to Sharon, Pa., and smelted with the most satisfactory results. The first regular shipments were in 1856—the first year after the construction of the Ste. Marie river ship canal—and amounted to 5,000 tons, a very creditable record for those days.

The output of the Jackson steadily grew in magnitude until, when the mine was closed, some years ago, after a continuous operation of upwards of half a century, it had forwarded in the aggregate nearly 4,000,000 tons of ore, the bulk of it high in grade, and of both the hard and soft varieties. The holdings of the Jackson company were purchased a year and more ago by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, which, in 1850, had opened at what is now the site of the city of Ishpeming, three miles west of Negaunee, the second iron mine—the Cleveland—to be developed in the Lake Superior region. However, while the Jackson is inactive at present, the mine is by no means worked out. It at least possesses deposits of lean grade ore in its square mile of ground—it comprises all of Section 1, in town 47, range 27—and with the expectation of locating new bodies of the higher grade material which made the property famous, the present owner is systematically exploring the tract with diamond drills.

Thus, there is a prospect that this old timer, renowned as the pioneer of all the Lake Superior mines, will again be found on the shipping list, supplying its quota of ore for the manufacture of the best grades of iron and steel. The lean ores of the South Jackson, a branch of the Jackson proper, have been well opened up, and a considerable product can easily be secured from this source whenever it is needed. The ore bodies at the old Jackson mine were probably as irregular and erratic as ever have been opened. The only safety lay in following the veins, which narrowed and twisted in and out most surprisingly. It has been said, and so referred to in Michigan official statistics of minerals, that despite the experience gained in two generations of working at the Jackson, none of the superintendents ever learned to predicate future developments at any particular point. The ore was found where it was found, and that is about all that can be said of it, further than that the trend of the deposits is east and west, and that the ore formations appeared to be of comparatively shallow depth. Mining was not carried on below the 400-foot level, and for this reason there is belief that the Cleveland Cliffs stands a good chance of finding bodies of ore of commercial value beneath the old workings. The Jackson was highly

SAN SIMON COPPER COMPANY

Organized In Tucson, Arizona, to Take Over Property of the Old Chiricahua Development Company and Resume Work.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 17.—Capt. James A. Duncan, one of the original owners of the Chiricahua Development company's ground in the Chiricahua mountains, has arrived in the city from Tucson where he had been to attend a meeting of the stockholders of the company, which was held in that city on the 9th inst.

At this meeting the Chiricahue Development company was reorganized, and the name of the new company is the San Simon Copper company with a capitalization of $2,500,000, shares par value $10.

In the reorganization, the old shareholders of the Chiricahua company, who paid $10 per share for their stock, were alloted two and one-half shares in the new company for one in the old. All told, there were about 40,000 shares issued, and the new stock alloted for taking over the old shares of the Chiricahua company was 100,000 shares. James A. Duncan, who, together with Capt. Burns, were the original owners, received 50,000 shares in the new company, and 100,000 shares were placed in the treasury, which will be sold at $10 per share and the proceeds used for development work on the property on a large scale.

The stockholders of the old Chiricahua company who attended the meeting at Tucson included Capt. J. A. Duncan, S. R. Kaufman of Marquette, Mich., and W. G. Rice of Houghton, Mich. After disposing of routine work and discussing plans for the new company, the following board of directors were elected: Thomas F. Cole, N. M. Kauffman, N. W. Haire, J. A. Duncan, W. G. Rice, S. R. Kaufman, Thomas H. Collins. The officers of the new company are: N. W. Kaufman, president; N. W. Haire, vice president; S. R. Kaufman, secretary and treasurer.

The new board of directors adjourned in Tucson to meet again within the next thirty days at Marquette, Mich., at which time the new superintendent will be appointed and the work of development again resumed on a larger scale.

On the property there is machinery sufficient to sink a shaft 1,200 feet. It is estimated that the machinery equipment alone cost the old company not less than $50,000. The deepest workings on the property is 350 feet, and it is confidently expected that with the means that will now be placed at the disposal of the new company, a thorough and systematic exploration of the ground will be made possible, and it is the opinion of mining men in this section, who are familiar with the Chiricahua district, that the efforts of the new San Simon Copper company will be amply rewarded in the end.

ANOTHER BIG COPPER MINE

Made in the Bingham Camp---It is Property of the Bingham-New Haven Company and Adjoins the Utah Consolidated.

Salt Lake, Jan. 19.—Another big copper mine can now be said to have been made in the camp of Bingham. It is the property of the Bingham-New Haven company. It flanks the south side lines of the Utah Consolidated company and the physical conditions, formation and nature of the ore deposits are identically the same. Manager C. H. Doolittle released the information yesterday that the first of four great fault fissures in the lime, that are being reached out for in a deep tunnel started last August, had been passed through. It is 120 feet thick and the heavy sulphide ore which it carries assays 3 per cent copper, $2.50 in gold and two and a half ounces silver per ton. The tunnel is now in a distance of 1,030 feet and second ledge is expected to be reached by the end of the present month. From the upper workings of the property, above the copper sulphide zone, the company has marketed over 40,000 tons of gold-silver-lead-copper ore. This product has paid for development, allowed of the distribution of 20 cents a share in dividends during the last year. The mine is controlled by two or three men in New Haven, who also control the Utah and Eastern company, which is operating the Dixie copper bonanza in the southern portion of the state. The companies are now planning for the erection of smelting works.

The famous Annie Laurie property in the Gold Mountain district, this state, has gone into the hands of a receiver on the application of Frank H. Buhl of Sharon, Pa., and W. S. McCormick, the banker of this city. Mr. Buhl owns nearly 50 per cent of the 23,000 shares of stock in the corporation and he and the bank allege that the company is in debt to an amount approximating $180,000. Six million dollars was refused for this property three or four years ago. Local mining men still contend that the mine is a magnificent one. Since the death of Mr. Kimberly, a year or so ago, there has been more or less friction and this is believed to be the reason why the Annie Laurie is now in the hands of a receiver.

Important changes are now reported to be taking place on the 1,300 foot level of the Silver King Consolidated company's property at Park City. Encouraging assays have been had during the past few days and the management is evidently encouraged.

Reports from the Cactus mines of the Newhouse mines and the Smelter corporation in Beaver county are to the effect that there is apparently no end to the rich copper-silver-gold ores that have been opened in the new channel during the last six or eight months. Supt. A. D. Moffat declares that he has the biggest and best mine in Utah. The company's milling plant is having its capacity increased from 800 to 1,200 tons per day.

The hoisting works and main shaft of the Utah Mine company at Fish Springs, were destroyed by fire during the week. The fire started in the mine and burned up through the shaft, destroying the works. The loss will be $20,000 or more, partially covered by insurance. The company announces that work will be continued through a neighboring shaft and that there will be no reduction in the 3 cent dividend that is paid monthly.

Ernest Bamberger, the new manager of the Ontario and Daly mines at Park City, is laying his plans to hurry the work of draining those properties. It is believed that he is preparing to tank out the No. 3 shaft workings of the mine, in order to relieve the pressure on the tunnel and thus make the task of clearing out the accumulated debris and final opening of the mines less hazardous.

The strike that was reported as having been made in the Mountain Lake Consolidated company's mines, at the head of Big Cottonwood, Christmas eve, is panning out well. The fissure has been found to be six feet wide and is filled with high grade copper-gold-silver ore. Active mining in the vein has commenced,

NEW MINE ON KEARSARGE LODE

Drill Operations North of Seneca Disclose Rich Copper Values---Ojibway Company Formed With Half a Million in Treasury.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 19.—For several months past diamond drill operations have been conducted on the property now known as the Subway, situated between the Seneca and the Cliff, and as a result a company has been formed that will ultimately mean another big mine of the Kearsarge amygdaloid. The drill operations were conducted under the direction of Dr. L. L. Hubbard, and every core disclosed the Kearsarge amygdaloid. Several cores carried copper values of unmistakable richness. The financial responsibility for the operations was assumed by an association of men who are of the highest standing in the copper industry. Thomas F. Cole, John D. Ryan and a few of their friends and business associates of Duluth, New York and the copper country each contributed to the original association.

On the success of the drill operations a mining company, known as the Ojibway, was formed. The stock in the new company is taken by the gentlemen originally interested in the association. Each contributed cash at a basis of $10 a share, and the public will not be offered any of the stock. The new company starts out with about half a million in the treasury.

The property embraces 2,000 acres. It is bounded on the south by the Seneca and on the north by the Cliff, and extends from the line of outcrop of the Kearsarge amygdaloid to the greenstone. It includes the old Manhattan tract, the Paull tract and other portions, making a fine acreage on the line of the lode. The Union Land company's holdings are also included, arrangements for their transfer to the Cole people having been recently negotiated by local people.

The option that Calumet & Hecla has on its undeveloped properties assure that big concern of becoming one of the largest of its kind in the world, and a permanency of operation that will last many generations, but it will gradually turn from a high grade into a low grade proposition, provided that it does not eventually become a part of the great Lake combine that is now being so very evidently planned.

During the fiscal year 1907 the company will earn close to $200 per share on the present price of copper, and its earnings for the calendar year 1907 will be very much larger than the earnings for the fiscal period.

Reports from Boston state that somebody has been buying Mohawk in big quantities and there are some who believe that Thomas F. Cole is after the big property, in order to add it to the new Lake combination that is being formed.

Getting a Stanton property is a pretty ticklish operation. The Stanton following have the peculiarity of owning about all the stock in their companies and one or two have had experience in trying to take away properties without first consulting headquarters.

The Stanton forces, and in fact all of the big copper people stated that they have not been consulted in the matter of the pending corporation. They are telling the truth. Never was a secret better held than the plans of the Cole-Ryan people in regard to the flotation of the present company. The only information that most of the companies that are to be taken in have had has come from their transfer books, and from this source they are

MORIZ ROSENTHAL.
Famous Pianist at Lyceum Wednesday.

The music rose and took its shape, color, and suggestion as by an incantation—the magic of understanding, emotion and expression that are both responsive and controlled. Grave gentleness of mood found utterance in delicate purity tonal outline, translucency of tonal color and softness of tonal shading in the little 'Moment Musical'—the consummate instance in the whole recital of the delicate adjustment and fusion of all essential things. The rapture of the schorzo had the passion that ran deep and strong because it was not frenzy, because it would not do the violence of excess to the beautiful face of the music. 'Butterflies' is a show piece—touched by fancy, and the 'Humoreske' is a show piece—gay with musical and rather ironic wit. It is Rosenthal mocking himself, his own music, and the audience that likes to believe itself transported by both.

"It is not beside the truth to state that the audience was roused to a pitch of uncontrolled frenzy."

CLUBS AND MUSICAL.

Although few people seem to care, judging from the attendance at past entertainments, there will be several more musical attractions at the Lyceum during the season and each of them will be of the sort that should attract much attention and interest.

Wednesday evening of next week Moriz Rosenthal will appear at the Lyceum in a piano recital.

"Mme. Butterfly" will be at the Lyceum, Feb. 8 and 9.

Ellen Beach Yaw will sing here Feb. 18.

Public and critics everywhere, are becoming hard pressed for adjectives sufficiently strong and expressive to give adequate voicing to their impressions and amazement. The music reviewer of the Boston Transcript went into rhapsodies over Rosenthal and wrote, after his appearance in Symphony hall:

"Clearly there are many Rosenthals within the comparatively narrow range of one recital and of the playing of one concerto at a Symphony concert—the Rosenthal, of thought and continence; the Rosenthal of sensuous feeling and poetic sensitiveness; the Rosenthal who takes his own technical mastery, now that he has so long been at the pinnacle of it, a little cynically; and the Rosenthal of the strange wizardy that gave Liszt's first concerto the irridescent glamor of a tale out of the Arabian Nights told in tones. The sum of all these Rosenthals is Rosenthal the pianist. It is the fusion and the adjustment of these qualities in Mr. Rosenthal's playing that make it unique. His was of a tempered and transparent beauty, and the fire was white when it flashed.

Girls' Graduation Frocks

What materials and styles of gowns to select for the mid-year graduation exercises are problems that are already perplexing high school girls who finish their courses the last week in January. White, naturally, is the popular color that all are agreed upon, but as to the kind of materials to choose and the models to use for the frocks there are no such definite rules to follow, and each girl is left to satisfy her own desires and to get what is most becoming and within the limits of her spending money. Since soft, clinging materials are favorites this season, young girls will find that in buying veils, tulle, or net for their dresses they are not only securing sheer weaves that are best suited to their ages, but are also getting those that are most worn now.

The style of a commencement gown should be in keeping with the wearer's height, the fashion of hairdress, and with her age, so that the model suits each young woman.

According to the individual taste, a frock may be exceedingly simple, with long three-quarter length sleeves, and high neck, or it may be quite decorative, provided the trimmings, are girlish and are made of ribbons, sheer lace, pom-poms, or delicate flowers, such as wild roses in light pink, lilies of the valley or forget-me-nots.

Bodices of liberty silk or satin, in white or delicate pastel shades, are worn with the plain as well as the ornate gowns, and are narrow or wide, as is most becoming.

Automobile Scarfs for the Evening

Automobile scarfs of silk chiffon are being worn for evening by many smart women, instead of hats and furs, because they are exceedingly becoming twisted prettily around the head and neck, and, incidentally wrapped about the neck are not clumsy looking when fastened under or over a coat as fur throws usually are.

In any of the pastel shades or white these long scarfs are decidedly attractive. They are large, too, so that they may be wound around the head, twisted around the neck, and will then fall in graceful folds in front or back. One of the most effective ways of wearing these automobile scarfs at night is to drape the center over the head, fold loosely round the neck, and let one end hang down in the back and the other in front.

They may be used as a wrap when the room is a trifle chilly, and are just sufficiently heavy to give the desired warmth when folded over the shoulders and allowed to drop at either side over the arms.

Dress Accessories Needed More Than Elaborate Frocks

By A. T. ASHMORE.

After one visit to a fashionable Southern resort, it is comparatively simple to get together an appropriate outfit, but, like going to any new place, it is almost impossible to buy just the correct costumes. One is so apt to purchase numberless unnecessary gowns and then go without some little accessories of dress that are most essential. Upon the veils, collars, belts, parasols, stockings and slippers so much depends, and yet the average woman will invariably do her economizing on these all important details in order to purchase one new gown or hat that in all probability will not be worn more than two or three times at most.

First, about the veil, chiffon veils are not worn to anything like the same extent as was the case a year or two ago, but in the South a veil is a necessary protection from the hot rays of the noonday sun. A brown veil is naturally most serviceable, but a light pink or blue will answer the purpose, although they will not retain their color very long. Large squares of chiffon are used more than any other style of heavy veil, and these are put on so as to cover the hat, and yet can be thrown back from the face easily if desired. As adornment chiffon veiling is no longer especially in vogue, and for this season the wide veiling is used, as it protects hat and eyes alike, but it is only worn in the blazing sun and dispensed with at all other times. Lace veils are still extremely smart, some of them being large enough to quite cover the hat and fall down some inches below the shoulders in back. They are seen in white, cream, ecru, brown and black, but very little in colors.

It is a mistake to wear too large a lace veil, as anything bordering so closely upon the conspicuous verges toward bad style.

With lingerie waists stiff linens are worn almost altogether. These collars are embroidered with a hemstitched edge and are finished off with a soft silk or ribbon tie of a becoming shade, or with a jabot of lace and embroidered handkerchief linen. There are far more long sleeved lingerie bodices than last year, and for this style of waists long sleeves are increasing in favor every day. Embroidered linen belts are worn a great deal with the lingerie waist and linen skirt. The fashionable belt is from two to three inches in width, the stiff stitched belts being not more than one inch wide.

White stockings of finest weave, either silk, lisle or cotton, are worn altogether with light gowns. The stockings may be embroidered, but not open work, the latter being completely out of favor. Colored stockings with white shoes are worn sometimes, with parasol and ribbon to match, but the fad will never be generally popular, if only because they tend to make the shoe and ankle so large. White canvas and buckskin pumps are worn with the light gowns. They have altered but little in style or shape, save that a soft ribbon bow knot or a stiff mother of pearl buckle is now generally preferred to the flat pump bow. White calfskin looks rather dressier than buckskin or canvas, and is now made up in the pump with thick walking soles.

Embroidered batiste and linen parasols, lined with colored silk, are most attractive. The eyelet hole embroidery that is so fashionable is particularly effective over a bright silk lining, the lining naturally corresponding to the gown or the trimming on a white dress. Embroidered linen parasols are still fashionable in all colorings, as well as in black and white.

"Please" and "Thank You"

There is a word and an expression that Americans do not use enough, and they are "please" and "thank you." They are such short, really one-syllable affairs, that any child might use them but, sad to say, children are not taught them as often as might be, and so men and women have not acquired the habit.

A little politeness is almost as lubricating in daily life as the little tact, and an order is none the less an order when it is given with a "please." Chances are that the injunction will be far more kindly carried out and better done for the "please," and if a "thank you" follow no harm and much good may be done.

Some women have a ridiculous idea that to say "please" to a servant, a shop girl, or anyone rendering them a paid service, is not only unnecessary, but is bad form. On the face of it that is wrong. To say either is simple courtesy and good breeding, and these two are never out of date except through disuse.

The servant and shop girl are both human, and both have ideas of politeness from observation, if not from instinct. It by no means follows that a chambermaid is not a lady in spirt; not the kind of "lady in spirit" that is "too good" to do her work, but the sort that is quiet, conscientious, honest and kind. Certainly an employer is not hurting herself by assuming at the beginning that her maid is such, and addressing her courteously. If the servant is the right kind, she acquires equal courtesy by force of example if she had not it instinctively and it is pleasanter to deal with a polite maid than one who is the contrary.

But it is within reason that a housemaid will not herself have quiet manners and courtesy if she does not receive the same. The woman who is scolded at by an employer is likely to answer back in kind. She is only human, you see. If, on the other hand, she is corrected quietly, she will hear it in the same way. One may be quite as stern with quietness of manner as by raising the voice.

The attitude of the average woman shopper toward girls behind the counter is enough to dub American women as hopelessly impolite. One rarely sees courtesy between them, and the salesgirl, antagonized by the dictatorial, assertive manner of the purchaser, becomes in her turn assertive—and unpleasant. But the shopgirl who is not courteous and attentive when serving a woman who is polite, who puts a "please" into her request and a "thank you", for the service of showing what she wants is the exception. A shopper need only try this to be convinced of its truth, and even if she fails to buy because the article is unsuitable, and puts "I am sorry" with her "thank you" the chances are more than even that she will receive a smile and a word of regret from behind the counter. It is pleasanter to be smiled upon than frowned at, and the momentary courtesy helps the girl with her next customer. That a shopper sometimes runs across a salesgirl who refuses to respond to politeness with politeness by no means dubs them all rude. The later are the exception.

THE STINGIEST MAN.

Kansas City Star: "Talking about stingy, close-fisted people, I found one this morning that was the limit," Dennis Handrahan, clerk of the police department in the West side, said this morning. "I was walking along Minnesota avenue last night and saw a little tobacco sack lying on the sidewalk with something in it. I thought some farmer had lost his pocketbook and picked it up. There was only a piece of chewing tobocco in the sack and a note which read:

"'If I happen to lose this chewing tobacco the finder will please return to my office in the Husted building and receive reward.'

"At first I thought somebody was trying to play a joke, but I decided to take the piece of tobacco to the man's office and see what it meant. When I handed it to him he seemed pleased. He shoved it in his pocket, saying that tobacco costs money these days, and that a fellow has to be very close in order to save money. I reminded him that he had offered a reward for the return of the tobacco, and what do you think he said? He took that piece of tobacco out of the sack and asked me to have a chew."

Smart Fur Turban

Aigrette On Side

Now that furs of all kinds have been reduced for the season one-third or one-half of the original cost, the possession of a small hat of real or imitation skin is within the purchasing power of working women who have the ingenuity to make a fancy toque or "Peter Pan" at home.

As the fur is the essential part of such a headdress, and as it is every person's desire to have as good a skin as is possible, care should be taken in buying pieces—not only in selecting a becoming color, but in choosing a fur that will wear well and that will be of service for more than one season. For a fur hat made now should be in condition, if retrimmed, for use next year.

An advantage in making and wearing hats of fur is that they are at the same time simple enough for morning and business use, and when adorned with a quill, velvet bow or aigrette quite elaborate enough for afternoon or for dressy occasions. Naturally the absence of trimmings lessens the labor in fashioning such a hat, while it makes the actual work more difficult because the sewing, seams, joinings, etc.—must be smoothly finished.

For an inexperienced sewer the plainest model of a round or Glastonberry shape will be easiest to make. And, if a good style wire frame is selected and carefully covered with silk, etc., the putting on of the fur will be decidedly simple. The top, made either plain or in folds, should first be stitched to the lining, so that the edge will be covered by the broad flat piece that forms the sides. The edge of the latter is sewed to the inner side of the hat, so that there are no unfinished joinings visible to display the work of the amateur. A lining of silk neatly put in finishes a toque that is quite smart and is dressy enough for all but special social functions.

If desired a bow of velvet ribbon added to the side will relieve such a hat of the plain tailored appearance that all women do not like, while if several quills in the same shade as the skin used, or in a contrasting color, are attached, they make such a toque quite elaborate. Plumes, bunches of flowers and ribbons are all used on fur hats, but of the various kinds of trimmings, none is more effective or more in keeping with the fur than aigrettes.

Dainty Collar and Muff Smart for Evening Wear

Chiffon and Fur Set

Dainty chiffon collar and muffs sets, of these.

They are comfortable, despite the light materials, of which they are made, for the shoulder capes are lined with silk or satin wadding, and when the collars are turned up around the neck are warm enough even for extreme cold weather, the muffs, too, are made of several thicknesses of wadding covered with satin or silk, and at the wrist the edging of fur makes them quite warm enough for general wear.

White Chiffon Scarf With Smart Silk Leaves

Chiffon Evening Scarf

A scarf of light colored chiffon, with silk leaves arranged in graduated horizontal rows, is one of the smart new evening accessories that has become a favorite with theatergoers, because it is so becoming and so easy to slip in place over the head and around the neck.

These scarfs are decidedly pretty made in any of the light pastel tints and trimmed with rows of petals in a shade to match the material or in white. They are made quite wide in the center so that they entirely cover the head and fall forward over the forehead to protect the hair. From the center the sides taper prettily to the ends, where they form a point that is finished with a cluster of the leaves, or with a pompon of the chiffon.

PLAYS and PLAYERS of the WEEK

BIJOU. REFINED VAUDEVILLE. | THE LYCEUM DRAMA. | METROPOLITAN. BURLESQUE.

AT THE LYCEUM

Next Week Will Witness Many Big Offerings--Francis Wilson Will be Followed by The Pit, Rosenthal, Yankee Consul and Bonnie Brier Bush.

Wright Huntington will come to the Lyceum on Tuesday in "The Pit." This play is not altogether a fictitous narrative of an attempt to corner the world's supply of wheat in the Chicago wheat pit. The story is based on the famous Leiter deal of several years ago. The play is a dramatization of Frank Norris' famous novel of the same name. It is a story of Chicago, of a woman's love and its entanglement in a great wheat speculation. William A. Brady has mounted the play on very elaborate lines, and it is presented in four acts and six scenes. The original company will be seen here, and the company with the supernumeraries will number over 100 people.

The first act opens in the lobby of the Auditorium in Chicago, on the last night of the opera season. The program is a "grande miscellanea," composed of the quartet from "Rigoletto," the "Habanera," from "Carmen," and the full prison scene from "Faust." There is no overture but the quartet is heard before the rise of the curtain. The characters come from the theater to the lobby and the possibilities are indicated by clever bits of dialogue and smart epigrams. Local color is infused. The singing is heard in the distance as the drama proceeds. Sheldon Corthell proposes to Laura Dearborn and is refused. Curtis Jadwin proposes, but receives no definite answer.

The second act is laid upon the lawn of the Cressler mansion on the Lake Shore drive. The amateur theatricals are rehearsed and the comedy and love elements are developed. Cressler is hopelessly involved in a wheat speculation, having joined Calvin Hard Crookes in the bear movement and in in an interview with Crookes he learns for the first time that he has been fighting his friend, Curtis Jadwin. His whole fortune is at stake, and the arrival of a telegram from his partner tells of the complete and irretrievable ruin. He leaves the scene and later, just as Curtis Jadwin wins the girl of his heart, a pistol shot is heard from the house. Cressler has committed suicide, and the pit has claimed its first victim.

The third act shows Laura and Curtis in their beautiful home. The wife is being neglected in the battle for the dollar, with the logical sequence. Laura loves Jadwin, but she is jealous of his infatuation for the pit. Corthell, a former suitor, returned and pleads his cause. Jadwin comes in, happy in the anticipated vacation on his new yacht. A pretty love scene follows. Laura begs for an evening together, chumming along as of old. The curse of wheat breaks the illusion. Sam Gretry, Jadwin's broker, calls with the government report on wheat. Together they plan the big corner, and leave for their office to perfect their arrangements for the campaign, which will begin in the morning. Corthell returns, renews his suit, and is ordered never to return to see Laura again. Just as he is leaving Jadwin comes home, and tells of his plans for the corner, which is to startle the world. He is so tired that he falls asleep in his chair, and Laura, instead of "good-bye," says "good night" to Corthell.

Act four is in three scenes. The first is in the office of Gretry, Converse & Co., where Jadwin makes his headquarters. The panic begins, and Jadwin's madness reaches a climax as wheat falls from $1.20 to 90 cents in a few minutes. Gretry writes an order of suspension, but Jadwin himself rushes to the floor of the pit.

The second scene shows the pit as it is, wild with excitement, mad with anxiety, furious with the lust for gain. A marvelous piece of theatrical enterprise, but very real and exciting. Gretry, Converse & Co. are read out by the secretary, and Jadwin is ruined; his corner is broken.

The last scene is in another room of the Jadwin home. It is Laura's birthday, and she is waiting for her husband. The hours go by and he does not come. Corthell does, and then the tension breaks the girl's heart. Her husband has forgotten her. Corthell's clever, self-interested sympathy wins. She leaves to get her hat and cloak. While she is out of the room the voices of the newsboys crying an extra are heard: "All about the big smashup in the wheat pit—the failure of Curtis Jadwin." Biggs, the butler, in great distress rushes into the room to break the news of her husband's ruin to Laura. Corthell undertakes to do this, and hurries the butler away. Laura enters ready to leave with Corthell. She hesitates for a moment, and then hears the cry of the newsboys. Fate sent Jadwin staggering into the room. "Something has happened," he says; "it's dark, I can't remember," and he sinks into a chair.

"Something has happened," she tells Corthell, "something I must not remember." "But your promise," he says, "I love you." "But he needs me, and I love him," she says, and goes to Jadwin. And then, then in the distance the newsboys can be heard again, still calling extras: "All about the failure of Curtis Jadwin."

POSTY AND THE BAIRNS.

I'VE HALF A MIND TO GIE YE A SOUND THWACKIN'

SCENES FROM THE "BONNIE BRIER BUSH." At the Lyceum Friday and Saturday.

BONNIE BRIER BUSH.

Beautiful Scotch Drama Will be Here Friday and Saturday.

"The Bonnie Brier Bush," that charming story of life in the Scottish glens, will appear at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee.

No introduction is necessary to local theater patrons for this charming dramatization of Ian MacLaren's widely read Scotch tale.

The same complete scenic production seen before—freshly treaded—is promised, and a supporting company such as has always been provided with this attraction. Ian MacLaren's stories were dramatized by James MacArthur, editor of "The Bookman," himself a native Scot, who succeeded admirably in transferring the atmosphere of the heather to the stage, making it a play that not only has much literary value, but also a fidelity of characterization inspired by a simplicity of treatment, which makes the persons of the play appeal to those of the audience in an irresistible manner.

"The Bonnie Brier Bush" is a comedy, which however treats of the "Transformation of Lachlan Campbell," one of the most touching passages of the book, and has in particular two scenes of extraordinary power and pathos.

In one, Lachlan Campbell has brought himself to believe that his daughter Flora has done wrong, and without listening to her protests or explanations, he thrusts her out into the night. It is the hour of his bitter shame, and in his agony he blots her name from the family Bible. In the other scene, grief and loneliness have broken the old man down, for the father's heart throbs for the child, and he prays aloud for guidance in his sore distress. In these scenes and throughout the play, the character of Lachlan Campbell seemingly hard and unbending, nevertheless gets all the sympathy from the audience because the author and dramatist have made it plain that not he but his religuos views, are at fault, and that all the while his heart is overflowing with tenderness and love for his supposedly erring daughter.

FRANCIS WILSON

Will be Seen Monday Night In His New Comedy.

One of the most interesting announcements of the season at the Lyceum is that of the coming of Francis Wilson, in "The Mountain Climber," Monday night

In this comedy, which will be seen here for the first time, Mr. Wilson has been furnished a vehicle admirably suited to his peculiar talents as a mirth-provoker extraordinary. Not in years has Mr. Wilson had a role that gave him one-half the chance as that afforded in "The Mountain Climber." As Montague Sibsey he is irresistibly funny during the entire performance, and as the dramatist has provided a most interesting and novel theme for his story, the comedian is enabled to appear in a complication of amusing situations that create no end of laughter. The story, briefly, is that of a Londoner, who, while spending his holidays in Paris, pretends that he is mountain climbing among the Alps. In order to keep up this deception, he writes glowing accounts of his many adventures, taking the material for his letters from a book that had just been published by an eminent mountain climber, Arthur Lydbrook. This little incident manages to evolve Sibsey in many most amusing situations, which follow throughout the three acts of the play, and from which he emerges at the end triumphantly, without having been caught in his deception.

There are many novel characters introduced, which adds a picturesqueness to the comedy. Mr. Frohman has provided an excellent company for the star, and one which lends support in every climax. Chief among the members of the cast are Miss May Robson, Miss Ellen Mortimer, Joseph Brennen, George Irving and Miss Edna Burns.

THE YANKEE CONSUL

Will Return to Lyceum With Famous Beauty Chorus.

"The Yankee Consul," the satirical opera, which will be the attraction at the Lyceum on Thursday, Jan. 24, is claimed to enjoy the distinction of having the prettiest singing chorus ever seen upon the operatic stage. During the past season a chorus girl famine occurred on Broadway in New York and managers were driven to extreme measures in securing handsome girls for their organizations. Manager John P. Slocum, however, is an impressario, whose choruses have always been noted for their beauty and shapeliness and has engaged forty girls who are conceded to be the prettiest daintiest girls that have ever been seen upon any stage. Twelve dainty blondes are required for "The Mosquito Girls" dance, while twelve tall, brunette "senoritas" will be seen in their Spanish dances during the action of the play.

"The San Domingo Maids," which is one of the principal song numbers in the opera, requires the services of twenty-four charming girls, picturesquely attired in Spanish costumes, wearing wide brimmed Panama hats, making a beautiful stage picture. These girls assist Miss Isabel Carroll, the prima donna, in her rendition of the song hit, "My San Domingo Maid," conceded to be one of the prettiest song numbers in the entire opera.

The costumes, which are Spanish in character, of vivid coloring, and exceedingly picturesque, are gorgeous and in keeping with the magnificent production. The dresses used in the Spanish dance cost $300 each and are marvels of the costumer's art.

News of Attractions Booked for Later in the Winter.

Chamberlin's poster of the stork, bearing a new-born baby in its beak, used to announce "The Heir to the Hoorah," is enlivening the dead walls of London. It does not announce the coming of the Armstrong-La Shelle comedy to the British metropolis, but is utilized by a big installment-plan house to advertise the fact that they are prepared to furnish forthwith chambers, apartments and detached villas for young married couples beginning housekeeping. The "Heir" will be seen in Duluth soon.

Lillian Russell has started on one of the most comprehensive tours of the country ever undertaken by a star of the first magnitude. This tour has been arranged by her manager, Joseph Brooks, so as to present the beautiful actress in as many towns as possible where she has never appeared. The first section of this art pilgrimage will embrace all the important towns in the South and Middle West, and will take Miss Russell to New Orleans for Mardi Gras week. She will touch Duluth.

Eva Tanguay, who will appear at the Lyceum, Jan. 28, is a creature of impulse. Off the stage, as well as on the stage, it is said that she does things with the same physical vehemence.

Lawrence Evart is featured this year in Walker Whiteside's comedy, "We Are King," and will be in Duluth soon.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

The "Rialto Rounders" With Three Racing Thoroughbreds, and Many New Vaudeville and Burlesque Features, Will Open a Week's Engagement.

Not since Lydia Thompson's Blondes were all the rage, has a burlesque show taken the road that is as pretentious in every way as the Rialto Rounders company, which will begin a week's engagement at the Metropolitan with a matinee tomorrow afternoon.

The entertainment embraces almost everything from the best kind of travesty and burlesque, down the line through musical comedy and comic opera, to comedy drama and vaudeville.

Among other things, the Rounders give an after piece called "A Day at Sheepshead Bay," wherein three real live horses—and thoroughbreds too—are introduced, running a race on the stage. Something like thirty-five people take part in this closing skit, for which special scenery and costumes have been provided by a lavish management.

The performance by the Rounders opens with a frivolous frolic which is down on the program as "A Day at Niagara Falls." While it is not claimed that the falls have been dramatized or that the only original, with the name blown-in-the-bottle falls are introduced on the stage, a seemingly truthful press agent states positively that the skit is very funny.

Same Howe, who has been flitting about vaudeville to burlesque during the past few year and who is known as one of the best bets when it comes to Yiddish comedy, is down on the bill as principal comedian and he is said to make good twice over.

Others in the company are Carney and Wagner, Martin and Meek, the Bison City quartet, and as an extra feature is offered some wonderful animated pictures, for which twenty beautiful artists' models pose. This act has been handsomely mounted.

The Rialto Rounders will give the usual matinees tomorrow, Tuesday, Thursday (ladies' day) and Saturday.

AT THE BIJOU

"The Human Top" Will Head the Vaudeville Bill for Next Week---Program Includes Many Other Novel and Interesting Acts.

The different vaudeville artists booked to appear next week at the Bijou will present specialties of all kinds from novelty acts to comedy.

The bill is headed by Omar, an European artist, who is known as "The Human Top," who presents an act entitled "In the Orient at Evening." This act has been featured at the different Keith theaters of the East with great success. Omar was engaged for six months at the Paris exposition. In 1900 he also ran at the Palace theater, London, two months.

The wardrobe used is all made in the Orient.

The Pendletons, who are instrumental and xylophone experts, will offer one of the best musical acts ever seen at the Bijou, playing the most difficult selections upon novelty and standard instruments.

Comedians of considerable note will offer an act entitled "Just Plain Talk," which is said to be very funny.

A pleasing turn will be presented by Lulu Pearl, singing and talking comedienne.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shaw, who bill themselves "Two Singers and Two Dancers," will present an original act different from all others. A special attraction will be the Zolas, who are presenting a Parisian dancing novelty, called "A Reflection," a mystic mirror dance of an original nature.

Isadore Silver will render the latest patriotic song hit entitled "The Stars, the Stripes and You," which is a new soldier song, illustrated.

The moving pictures show a complete film of "The Frolics of Satan," which are a decided novelty.

Matinees are given every day at 2:45 and evening performances at 8:00 and 9:30, the complete show being given at each performance. A special school children's matinee will be held Saturday afternoon, with performances Sunday afternoon and evening.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Two New Plays of Clyde Fitch---"The Truth" Negatively His Best Work---"The Straight Road" is Melodramatic.

New York, Jan. 19.—Whoever will be known to history as the father of the American drama, Clyde Fitch for the present deserves the title of its mother—in fact, its Rooseveltian mother. Long celebrated as the most prolific of our playwrights and already sponsor of two new plays this season, he signalized last week by giving birth to twins on either side of Broadway in Times Square. This was not his fault. He is said on authority to have pleaded long and valiantly with the management of the Astor theater for a postponement. But in vain. Mindful of Annie Russell and the "Midsummer Pump Dream" of last August, Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper were bent on breaking the hoodoo of postponement. So Blanche Walsh appeared in "The Straight Road" simultaneously with Clara Bloodgood in "The Truth," and Mr. Fitch somehow managed to make his curtain speech at both the Astor and the Criterion. The two plays are doing as well as was to be expected under the circumstances—far better, as it appears, than "The House of Mirth" or "The Girl Who Has Everything," and in spite of a pretty severe drubbing at the hands of a portion of the press, it is reported that Mr. Fitch is able to sit up and take nourishment.

The occasion brings up rather pointedly, however, the crucical question with regard to Mr. Fitch's development as a dramatist. It has often been charged, and with abundant show of reason, that he is using his talents for there money making. His answer is that one does as one must. Prodigiously fertile in ideas and facile as a craftsman, he writes as the mood prompts and occasion offers. "If I keep on producing five plays a year," he once remarked in conversation, "I may be written out in a decade. But would the result be any better if I forced myself to only one play a year and kept it up for fifty years?" I was not able to answer that I thought it would be. Any one can tell Mr. Fitch of a dozen defects in any one of his plays, but what is the use if no one can tell him anything? He cannot even tell himself. There is a certain order of genius, as the English biographer of Donizetti remarked, which grows not by reflection, but by incessant creation. In the field of drama Scribe and Labiche are perfect examples. A thing once done is done beyond repair. It is so much easier to do another thing than to do the same thing better! And by and by a particularly happy conjunction of subject, inspiration and technical felicity produces a really good thing.

The pity of it is that Mr. Fitch takes himself very seriously. To what extent he has spent his energies in catering to the public taste I cannot say, but it is far less than the public believes, and probably not more than many an infinitely greater man of the theater has permitted himself—Shakespeare and Moliere, for example. What I do know is that he has persistently tried to develop his talent along original lines and incidentally to raise the level of the American drama. And usually it is his most earnest work that comes in for the soundest drubbing. It is bad enough to be shamelessly and unpretentiously mediocre, but for prolific mediocrity to show flashes or originality and power is unbearable. If he would only write half as much he would, by the easiest mathematics, write twice as well. The flashes of his talent only served to illumine his mercenary waste of it!

To any one who knows the conditions of popularity in the playhouse one of Mr. Fitch's twinborn progeny, "The Truth," can only be an attempt to do a new thing of value. The bane of the merely commercial theater is that all subjects are difficult or impossible which do not make the easiest and broadest bid for popular interest. It takes courage and ability both to conquer new fields for the drama. In "The Girl With the

Week of Jan. 27.....WATSON'S BURLESQUERS

Green Eyes," three years ago, Mr. Fitch gave us a study of feminine jealousy, and relied for success not on any glozing or palliation of this ugliest of passions, but on the appeal of searching and remorseless actuality. At his best he is a true disciple of Henri Bicque—with the added grace of kindly humor and wholesome sentiment. The entire press, with a single exception, condemned the play and Mrs. Bloodgood's impersonation of the heroine. But both made their way with the public. The play, in spite of manifest defects, is now pretty generally recognized as containing perhaps the most brilliant third act and by all means the most original and searching character study in the American drama. Mrs. Bloodgood has taken her true place as the most original and most intelligent of our exponents of the comedy of manners."

"The Truth" treats another feminine foible, lying, and gives Mrs. Bloodgood an almost equally great opportunity. Negatively, this is a far better play. It has none of these little irrelevant genre scenes which Mr. Fitch has done so well—and so painfully often. It avoids all such pathos as Jinny's attempted suicide. Its dramatic complication arises from an easy expedient of weak-kneed villainy. Instead of this, it is unique among Mr. Fitch's comedies in making the action arise spontaneously, as it should always do from the every essence of the given characters. A friend of Becky's has driven her husband to a separation, and Becky, a good sort at heart, though an inspired and constitutional liar, generously undertakes to persuade the man to return to his fireside. Being a true daughter of Eve, however, she delights in her power over the husband, who, in fact, falls in love with her; and so she rouses the jealousy both of his wife and of her own husband. Instead of making a clean breast of an essentially harmless situation—her husband loves and trusts her—she entangles herself in a net of falsehood which ends in her husband leaving her. The final act shows the birth of some sense of reality.

The exploits and catastrophes of the liar afford one of the oldest and most popular themes for farce. It is Mr. Fitch's distinction that he has raised them to the plane of comedy. His portrait of Becky is intimate, salient, delightful. Mrs. Bloodgood has improved in finesse and brilliancy even upon her work in "The Girl With the Green Eyes" and "Man and Superman," while in looks she is a full decade younger and more charming. It is the triump of both actress and author that all women—and not a few men—recognize the subtlety and the truth of this Becky Warder and laugh at it quietly, heartily incessantly. The critical verdict on the play was divided but the demeanor of the second night audience may be trusted—and this is the true test—the play will end, as its companion piece did, by winning out with the public.

In substance, however, "The Truth" is distinctly lighter than its predecessor. Though the ugliest of passions, jealousy is still a passion. Lying is a vice, and not the less so when, as with Becky, it is altogether a vice of the mind and not at all of the heart. In the comedy of jealousy emotion is essential, inevitable. In the comedy of lying it may or may not occur. In "The Truth" Mr. Fitch has striven for the effect emotional and, as I think, without warrant. The severer critics of the play have called Warder impossibly blind even to suspect his wife's honor. Given the husband Mr. Fitch has drawn, simple, unsuspicious, firm in the singleness of his own mind, a sudden and exaggerated conviction of wrong does not seem to me impossible. But at best, being the result of a mere misapprehension, it is scarcely to be taken with any great seriousness. A pretty clear case, this, of the Gilbertian harrydiddle, harrydiddle, tra-la-la!" It is not always so with wifely mendacities. A man's honor—his business or political career—may be at stake. Ibsen's Nora forged a signature, and the result was to raise questions that have shaken society to its foundations. It is, or so it seems to me, an incident of Mr. Fitch's unthoughtful outlook upon life and her uncritical attitude toward his own work that the catastrophe resulting from Becky's mendacity is not more momentous. The play is a comedy of the individual, a portrait of a lady—almost a portrait in miniature.

If Mr. Fitch had been content to abide by the nature of his material the result would have been still fine, though fragile. But he was not. In choosing his theme he has shown courage and originality; but in handling it he has been guilty, though perhaps unconsciously, of the tricky insincerity of which he has so often been accused. By heightening and falsifying the dialogue he has produced the simulacrum of the conventional "great" emotional scene; and, not content with this, he has bidden his actors to exert their voices and actions to "lift" the scene. On the first night the result would have made a judicious cat stick. For the most part Mrs. Bloodgood and Mr. Mack (who played her lying old reprobate of a father) were the very embodiment of fine and artistically restrained veracity, but in the "great" scene they were remorsely led to the slaughter. On the second night the acting was more naturally keyed, and though Mr. Mack was absent from the cast, the result far finer, both artistically and—as far as could be judged—in its effect on the audience.

"The Straight Road" was obviously written as a vehicle for Miss Blanche Walsh, and in spite of unusual skill in the writing has the characteristic defects of the tailor-made play. Houston Street Moll, a drunken and brawling daughter of the slums, is reclaimed by a settlement worker of high society and married to an honest saloon keeper. Incidentally she accomplishes what Pinero's Sophie Fullbarney failed to do. She proves that her protectress's fiance is unworthy of her, and by the same course that Sophie pursued, namely, by compromising him in armorous advances upon herself. The villain of the play is, however, no Gay Lord Quex. He is the usual weak-kneed and vicious cub of Fitch melodrama. As usual, to be sure, he is drawn with skill and his speeches have many fine touches of vernacular, but it is equally unlikely that he should gain the affection of his intended or jeopardize his future on the eve of his marriage by manhandling Moll.

In general the scenes of the play seem less the result of sincere artistic feeling than of a desire to score theatric points. "Every one," as Mr. Fitch quotes from himself on the program, "has his Achilles' heel of goodness." Moll's vulnerable spot is her love of children, and the curtain of the first act shows her the unwilling victim of the appeal of a crippled boy whom she is persuaded to take to her bosom. In the "great" scene of the third act, when her intrigue of self-sacrifice has momentarily failed, she is about to fall off the water wagon; but a light from the street illumines the Sistine Madonna which her protectress has given her, and after apostrophising it in prayer she ends by climbing up with the driver. Both of these scenes are handled with much more than the skill of the melodramatist—without violating truth or probability, and with a very real theatrical effect. It seems to me a gross defect in discernment to liken them to Theodore Kremer and the melodrama of Third avenue. Moll does not sing a Chauncey Olcott song to the child, and her prayer is not accompanied by "Nearer, My God, to Thee" on a bellodion. But it would be an ever grosser defect to regard them as any real expression of Mr. Fitch's original artistic temperament. The play is a skillful, even powerful, piece of theatric carpentry—distinctly more appealing popularly than its predecessor, "The Woman in the Case." But is very little more.

Considerable comment has been caused by the rough house violence of several of the scenes. Such things, it is to be believed, are very well on the outskirts of the theatrical world, but infra dig. on Broadway. To my sorrow I have never been able to grasp the true dignity of the great yellow way. When Moll goes bad she may smash the lamp and generally wreck her bedroom set for all of me. Her fight with Lazy Liz in the first act was a positive delight. It was a matter of beautiful "language," heightened by the butting in of a Bowery mob. Recurrent onslaughts with tooth and nail were checked short of manslaughter only by the barkeep and a cop. It was vitalized with Mr. Fitch's fine imagination for detail, and stage managed with his consummate craft. Chaste souls may object, but the fact remains that it was a perfect bit of acclimatized and dramatized Hogarth—the one thing in the play worthy of the best talent of the author. It is a fashionable fad to seek out the delights of popular melodrama in the purlieus. I hope it is not evcidence of a jaded taste to find Mr. Fitch's imitations better than the real thing.

Miss Walsh's Moll was scarcely becoming enough to elicit the advances of the settlement house villian—I say it in due fear of that lady's prowess. To that fact, perhaps, is due a part of the effect of improbability in the plot. But as an impersonation it was uncompromising and infused the whole with vitality.

It is a comprehensive program that Miss Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern will offer at the Lyric theater when they begin their engagement there next week. Among the plays in which they are to be seen are "John the Baptist," by Hermann Suderman; "Jeanne d'Arc," by Percy Mackaye; "The Daughter of Jorio," by Gabriel d'Annunzio; "Guenever," by H. W. Boyton; "The Sunken Bell," by Gerhart Hauptmann; "Francesca da Rimini," by Gabriel d'Annunzio, and "When Knighthood Was in Flower," by Charles Major. The Shakespearean plays which will be presented are "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Merchant of Venice," "Twelfth Night," and "As You Like It." In addition to this long list one or two new plays now under consideration may be offered. Changes will be offered every week. Next week will be marked with Sudermann's "John the Baptist," a play constructed upon a very moderate amount of Biblical fact and a vast amount of irreverent imagination. As Salome Miss Marlowe is said to display unsuspected prowess as a dancer.

While Charles Frohman, who is now in London, has not come to any positive conclusion as yet, it is likely that when Miss Ethel Barrymore goes to London next spring to appear at the head of an all-American company her first play will be Rachel Crother's "The Three of Us," now running in the Madison Square theater, the English rights of which are owned by Mr. Frohman. Miss Barrymore, who is now on a tour, saw the play several times while she was playing near New York, recently, and liked the role of Rhy MacChesney, now being played by Miss Carlotta Nilson.

The Ben Greet players will be seen in New York during the early spring, but their local habitation is not yet settled. They have just completed a tour of the South and are now visiting the universities and cities of Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and New York states. The whole of "Hamlet" will be given soon at Ann Arbor, and New York or Philadelphia will have it upon Shakespeare's birthday. Mr. Greet is arranging to give a few Lenten revivals of "Everyman" and a revival of "Masks and Faces." The management of the Court theater, London, wish him to handle their Greek productions, and he may undertake this duty.

Louis Mann is going in for the classics at special matinees at the Casino. Among the plays to be produced in this way are works by Sudermann, Hauptmann and Moliere. In the course of his regular work Mr. Mann will appear in a comedy with music, book and lyrics by Roderick C. Penfield, with music by Gustav Kerker and D. W. Brady, which is to follow Paula Edwardes in the "Princess Beggar" at the Casino. The play is an original work, and not, as announced, the adaption of a play from the German entitled "Hensee Klinder."

Maude Adams and "Peter Pan" remain one week longer in the Empire theater. Neither the young folk nor the grown-up local theatergoers seem to have had enough of Miss Adam's wonderful performance. The new chapter of heroic exploits on Marooner's Rock, where the mermaids play, is as charming and fascinating as the other already familiar doings of Peter.

Mr. Edwin Middleton, now appearing in Walter N. Lawrence's production of the musical farce "Matilda" at the Lincoln Square theater, claims the distinction of having played more parts than any other actor on the American stage. Mr. Middleton was for sixteen consecutive years a member of the different stock organizations that played at the Girard avenue theater, Philadelphia. During this time he played more than 800 roles.

Charles Delmores, Mr. Hammerstein's French tenor, claims to have accomplished the feat of adding to his stature after what should have been his normal growth had been acquired. He could hardly be called a tall man now, but when he entered for his term of service in the French army he was just ten centimeters shorter than what he is now. Persistent exercise is what did it. For ten years from the time when as a mere youth he began his required military service, he set apart a little section of each day to stretch and straighten himself and dangle from the ceiling, with such effect that he gained a centimeter in height a year.

This is not all, Mr. Delmores from a comparatively puny man has become an athlete of no mean ability. He boxes well for an amateur and a Frenchman, is an expert fencer, a fine walker, a graceful rider and an enthusiastic boatman and automobolist.

Under the circumstances it is not surprising that "Samson" should be one of his favorite parts.

One fact is proved beyond fear of argument by the success of "The Man of the Hour." It is that the American women of today are interested in public men and their doings. The muckrake articles in the magazines, and the vast amount of space that has been devoted by the press to the exposure of the criminal tactics pursued by some of our leading citizens, have served to educate the American household and to bring about an understanding among young and old, men and women, of the importance of keeping track of current happenings.

From Genoa comes the news of the serious illness of Eleanore Duse, the eminent Italian tragedienne. She is suffering from pulmonary trouble, in the form of a severe attack of pneumonia. About ten years ago it was rumored that Duse had contracted tuberculosis. She has been failing ever since. Her last American tour was in 1903 and she has a contract to tour South America next spring.

Thomas Ross is the latest star to come under independent management. He is to be starred by the Shuberts in Augustus Thomas's "The Other Girl," one of the most successful comedies of recent years. Mr. Ross's first appearance under independent direction will occur at the Studebaker theater, Chicago, on Feb. 11. Mr. Ross made his first appearance as a star in "Checkers," in which he appeared with great success for two years. In "The Other Girl" he will impersonate Kid Garvie, a role particularly well suited to his personality, style and manner. He will be surrounded by a specialilly capable company.

Mr. Schieffman does not know how Mr. Klein got to see his play, of if he ever saw it. The matter is under investigation.

The "Double Life," by Rinehart-Roberts, in which Henri De Vries has been appearing at the Bijou theater, was withdrawn on Jan. 3. Mrs. H. C. De Mille said that the performances of the play had come to a sudden termination on account of her action in demanding that the manuscript, which she asserts was materially altered by Mr. De Vries, be returned to her. A refusal on the part of the producer, Mr. Sire, was to be followed by injunction proceedings to prevent the further presentation of the drama.

Mr. Belasco's recent comments on the commercialism of the stage in Success magazine has aroused a great deal of editorial discussion in the press throughout the country, mostly in the nature of a strong endorsement of his views. The public at large realizes that he speaks in the capacity of a dramatist and an artist in all that pertains to the art of the stage, that he is a master of his craft, and has learned his profession from the ground up. He does not "deal" in plays; he writes them himself, or in collaboration with other talented men, and his wonderful successes are due to that knowledge which is acquired by patient, painstaking application, aided by the genius which gives the theater but one Belasco in a generation.

New York's dramatic critics are still weaving laurels for Henry W. Savage's production of Reginald De Koven's romantic opera, which has scored a tremendous hit at the Garden theater, with Mme. Lina Abarbanell, the prima donna soubrette, in the principal role.

The metropolitan reviewers have hailed the piece as a return to the good, old-fashioned operetta of fifteen years ago, when "Robin Hood" was scoring its great triumph throughout the United States.

In summing up recent productions, William Bullock, dramatic editor of the New York Press, who has assumed the position made vacant by the death of Hillary Bell, said:

"We have been satiated with unadulterated musical comedy, and just at the time when we long for variety, along comes Savage with the romantic glamour of 'The Student King.' The production could not have been more timely. It is a relief to escape for an evening from the circus ring of musical comedy, and happily the operatic factor of 'The Student King' is predominant."

In his review of the theatrical year, Louis V. De Foe, dramatic critic of the New York World, said: "In the case of 'The Student King,' not the opera but public taste will be put to the test. It is now to be seen whether there is still a place in New York for romantic opera built on the discreet, decent lines that prevailed a dozen years ago."

It seems that the public wants something besides slap-stick comics and tinpan jingles after all.

George M. Cohan, author of "Little Johnny Jones" and others, is a living example of the strenuous life. Mr. Cohan plays the year around. In the early spring Eddie Foy is to appear in "The Orchid," a musical comedy which was presented by George Edwardes at the Gaiety theater in London. The book of "The Orchid" was written by James Tanner, who was responsible for "The Cingalee," "The Toreador" and "The Messenger Boy." The score is from the pens of Lionel Monckton and Ivan Caryll. Mr. Monckton and Mr. Caryll composed the music for most of the Gaiety theater successes. Mr. Foy will be seen for the first time in "The Orchid" at the Majestic theater, New York, which theater has housed three of the biggest musical comedy successes of recent years, "The Wizard of Oz," "Babes in Toyland" and "The Tourists."

MINISTERS' SONS WHO HAVE BECOME BIG MEN

Edward H. Harriman and Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver, the Best Known Men of Their Class Today, the First for His Gigantic Railroad Games and the Second for His Eloquence--- Richard Watson Gilder, Who Revolutionized Magazine Illustrations.

Twice in the Republic's History the Son of a Clergyman Has Been the Biggest Man in the Land, for Presidents Arthur and Cleveland Were Both Parsonage - Born --- Henry James, the Famous Novelist---Hornblower, Morton and Dill Are Also Ministers' Sons.

By DEXTER MARSHALL.

(Copyright, 1907, by Dexter Marshall.)

The two most picturesque sons of clergymen now prominent in the eye of the world are E. H. Harriman and Senator J. P. Dolliver of Iowa.

Twice in the history of the Republic a minister's son was the most prominent man in the country. C. A. Arthur, president by reason of Garfield's death, was a clergyman's son, and so was Grover Cleveland.

The father of one Vice President, Levi P. Morton, was a minister. W. B. Hornblower, the clever New York lawyer whom Cleveland vainly tried to make justice of the supreme court, is a minister's son.

Richard Watson Gilder, great editor, and Henry James, famous novelist, are ministers' sons. James B. Dill, the creator of great corporations, is another. You would need to go a long way to find men of greater personal force of more pronounced achievements, of stronger individuality, than these prominent sons of ministers.

In this way Mr. Harriman, the railroad Napoleon, who promised Mr. Roosevelt the other day to turn back the rebellious waters of the Colorado river, is the wonder of his age. When he first appeared in Wall street, as a boy, a good many years ago, he was noted, as he is now, because of his dislike for too many words, his self-reliance and his energy. His independence went almost to the point of surliness. At first he did errands—he didn't "run" them, however; according to a printed statement by James Stillman, president of Rockefeller's city bank, "nobody ever saw Ed Harriman run"—for a small firm of brokers.

He planned to make his own way in Wall street. Although his father was a poor minister "over in Jersey," he had rich relatives, but the boy refused to be beholden to them. From the beginning he was a speculator, and old-timers of the street will tell you that he always won. He seemed to have his own methods of making money, and in 1870, thirty-six years ago, he had enough to buy a seat on the Stock exchange. He was then "about" 25; no body knows exactly; in fact, nobody but himself knows just how old Harriman is today, and he won't tell.

He formed a stock brockerage firm with his brother, and, presently, was a factor in the Illinois Central railroad management out of which he so incontinently pitched Stuyvesant Fish last fall. Mr. Fish's early friendship for Harriman was one of the latter's most valuable assets in his climbing days. It was at about that time that Harriman made his first million, and he has never had a real setback since, although there were a few days about fourten years ago that he came near going under during the "curency famine of '93."

It is often said that no man in finance is more feared today than E. H. Harriman, yet in and about Arden, N. Y., near Tuxedo, his neighbors' children know him as "Uncle Hank," and "Pop" Harriman. Short of stature, lively in his movements, curt of tongue, he is the personal antithesis of Senator Dolliver, with whom I have bracketed him.

HOUSE AT CALDWELL, N. J., IN WHICH GROVER CLEVELAND WAS BORN.

J. F. DOLLIVER
Of Iowa, United States Senator, Good Story Teller, Orator and Old Style Fisherman.

Dolliver is a giant. He is hearty and magnetic. He glories in words. His vocabulary is inexhaustible, and his accent has all the engaging qualities of the South, where he was born, and of the Western prairies, where he has made good.

Dolliver is probably the most engaging story teller of all the ministers' sons now prominent. Forty years ago, among the mountain boys of what is now West Virginia, where his chief distinctions were his good nature and the fact that he was "the minister's boy," he was "Jonty" Dolliver in everybody's mouth, and "Jonty" he remained even after he had entered the University of West Virginia and became famous for his readiness in debate and his love for the classics.

He was still only a boy, however. He was graduated when only 17 and couldn't have been more than 13 or 14 when he entered. As an undergraduate he won repufation for more than a silver tongue and studiousness. Everybody that knew him at all knew him to be about the best fisherman and the most daring swimmer in the whole student body. Whenever he tells his friends how much he enjoyed fishing and swimming in the waters of the Monongahela as a college boy, he does the story so well that you can almost hear the swish of the stream he swam in and see the glistening scales of the fish he drew out of it. He is still as fond of fishing as ever, but his angling is now done mostly upon the Des Moines instead of the Monogahela; "they say" he can catch as many bass with a fish pole and old-fashioned tackle as most any other man can with the finest jointed rod and the most elaborate book of flies.

Jonathan Prentiss Dolliver's father was a Methodist circuit rider. This means, as some of my younger readers will need to have explained to them, that though a regularly ordained minister of his church, his preaching was not confined to one place; he had several "appointments" for every Sunday, mostly in school houses—some of them in the log cabin homes of his people that were scattered over a rather wide area.

He was constantly on the go over his "circuit. In the middle of the last century, when Dolliver pere was at the height of his activity, the roads of the mountain regions of the Monongahela valley were pretty bad and he had to go from appointment to appointment on horseback, hense the term "circuit rider." His horse back excursions were not confined to Sundays; he had the sick to visit the dying to speed on their last long journeys, the bereaved to console and the families of his various little congregations to call upon in order.

That he was in the saddle more than half the time is by no means improbable, and he must have had great physicial endurance. He never shrank from the snows of winter or the torrential rains of spring and fall; storms often delayed but they never stopped him. This fine specimen of an American type that has now all but disappeared, died only two or three years ago, as proud of his eloquent son as he had a right to be.

When is Washington during the sessions, "Father" Dolliver often went to hear the senator speak. When the latter was in the house of representatives it was said that you could always tell when Dolliver was about to cut loose on the floor. Invariably an hour or two in advance, the tall, stalwart son would escort the venerable father, who then had to use crutches from the infirmities of age, to a front seat in the members' gallery. There he would sit and wait for the speech and listene to it with all the interest in the world, never failing to applaud at the right moment. His son never failed to recognize his presence in the gallery by smiling at him two or three times in the course of each speeech.

How Dolliver Struggled.

Senator Dolliver was born in 1858, and so was only 3 years old when the Civil war broke out, and not far from 8 when it closed. He had to pay part of his own way through college, for his circuit riding father's income was no better than the average country minister's. At 17, when the boy had won his graduation diploma, he plunged into the study of law and was admitted at 20.

Even then he was ambitious to become a political figure, and that is, perhaps, one of the reasons why he chose to make his career in Iowa instead of West Virginia, for Iowa was safely Republican, and all his sympathies were with that party. So, as they say in Fort Dodge, "One day he blew into town and settled down." His first office was over a store. For some time he slept and studied, and fought for a practice in the one room, often working till late at night by the light of a kerosene lamp over his law books and his early cases.

Old Fort Dodgers still talk about his first case. It grew out of a horse trade, the details of which would have delighted the lamented author of "David Harum." Dolliver lost, although the courtroom of the justice before whom he made his argument was crowded with his newly made townsfolk to hear him. They were amazed at the young giant's Southern eloquence, which they could not help regarding as spread on a little thick, so luxuriant was it. It was the beginning of his reputation as an orator despite the adverse decision. He got plenty of cases after that, and he soon began to win them, too. Likewise, he soon began to win fame as a political speaker.

It was some time later, however, before he became known to the higher political powers in his state. The Clarkson "regency" was then in its glory. One day in 1882 J. S. Clarkson went to Fort Dolge to talk over that fall's state campaign with Governor Carpenter. The governor told Clarkson about Dolliver and suggested that they call upon him. They found him busy, not in his office, but on the highway, "working out his road tax." Clarkson liked the young lawyer's appearance and talk; a political meeting was hastily arranged for that evening and the courthouse was thrown open. The people of Fort Dodge, who by that time had learned to regard Dolliver's oratory with great respect, turned out to hear him with great enthusiasm. He did himself such credit that Clarkson arranged on the spot for his active participation in the campaign.

From that day to this Dolliver has been a public character. His first election to the lower house of congress—his first political office, by the way—came early in the eighties, and he served as representative continuously till 1900, when Leslie M. Shaw, then governor of Iowa, appointed him United States senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Gear.

At 48 Senator Dolliver is one of the best known men in the country. Quite aside from his prominence in congress, the many addresses he makes every year, especially at the various Chautauqua assemblies, have made his personality familiar to his countrymen and women by the hundreds of thousands.

Strikingly Contrasting Personalities.

It would be hard to find a stronger contrast than that between this senatorial minister's son, tall, dark and suggestive of physical as well as mental force in every movement, and Richard Watson Gilder, the slight, almost shy minister's son, who edits the Century Magazine.

It is hardly possible to speak of these two men in any other terms save those of contrast; though the success of each in his chosen line of endeavor offers one line of comparison. Richard Watson Gilder looks the dilettante, the elegant amateur who has never had a more difficult task in his life than to turn out highly finished verse and decide delicate questions of taste. His speech fits his appearance, often being that of a man who is bored to death by anything less etheral than poetry and high art.

But Richard Watson Gilder's speech and looks are alike deceptive. The years of his boyhood and young manhood were quite as trying as Dolliver's, and his problems as exacting. Only by reason of the most splendid nerve and unflagging tenacity was he able to fight his way to the front, and his fight lasted some years, during which he impressed an acquaintance of mine who knew him well as "a man of chain lightning and steel springs."

Gilder was born in 1844. His father was a Methodist preacher, but not a circuit rider, with so strong an educational and literary bent that he spent most of his life as an editor and a teacher. His editorial chairs were those of the Philadelphia Repository and the Register, both published in the City of Brotherly Love. At the time of Richard Watson's birth the Gilders were living at Bordentown, N. J.; during most of his boyhood they lived at Flushing, N. J., where the Rev. Mr. Gilder carried on a school and wrote editorials and articles without pay for a local paper.

The fact that the father's work for the paper was done gratuitously induced the editor to teach the son how to set type. The boy was so short that he couldn't reach the "case," standing on the floor, and so had to stand on a soap box while being initiated into the mysteries of typography. Nevertheless, he attacked them with such enthusiasm that his boyish pockets generally held half a pound or more of pieces of type.

When 14, he established a paper of his own, which he named the St. Thomas Gazette, after his father's school, setting up as well as writing the matter that appeared in its columns. He was a fragile boy, and had no "school days," actually attending school a single day only. His father attended carefully to his early education, but, like Theodore Roosevelt's father, believed it would be better for his son to spend as much time out of doors as possible and that his mental training could be carried on without much schoolroom confinement during his childhood at least.

Naturally the father saw to it that the boy's literary taste was not neglected. It is not surprising, therefore, to hear that he was fond of "Paradise Lost" before reaching his teens. But his taste in reading was broad and catholic, for he remembers distinctly that at the time of his greatest devotion to Milton's stately lines he was also much wrapped up in a certain dime, novel, lent to him by his uncle's colored coachman and read in the seclusion of the stable.

Gilder's first newspaper venture bore upon its face a motto to the effect that its editorials were meant to "instruct and uplift mankind," but his second, which he set up and edited at 16, was the local organ of the Bell and Everett party, a highly important political organization in 1860, but no doubt never heard of by many of the younger readers of this newspaper. The Civil war, which broke out when Gilder was 17, changed the course of his life completely. His father enlisted as chaplain in a Northern regiment, and died at Brandy Station, Va., of smallpox, in an army hospital which he had entered as volunteer nurse.

Richard Watson had no alternative but to forego college training, though he has since received several honorary degrees. The eldest son in the family had to support the other members—for a while, at least—and he fell to work. Meanwhile, just when doesn't matter, he studied law for a time in Philadelphia and served through the so-called Gettysburg campaign in an emergency organization known as Landis' Battery, raised in Philadelphia, and acted as a railroad paymaster. He wasn't present at the Battle of Gettysburg, which was fought before his battery was sent to the front, but he was under fire in the defense of Carlisle, Pa., and saw other active service.

His experiences as paymaster were confined to the old Camden & Amboy railroad, which now forms a part of the Pennsylvania system. He didn't like the job, and no wonder, among other things for the reason that he used to have to take the money with which to pay off the men over the road on a handcar and at a time when hold-ups along the line were rather frequent.

After the paymaster's job he became a reporter on the Newark (N. J.) Daily Advertiser. Later he was editor and part proprietor of the Newark Morning Register, which has long since passed away. It was while he was running the latter named paper that he did his hardest work. Being fearful of the Register's future, he took the job of editing Hours at Home, published by the Scribners, and divided his working hours between two editorial desks, dropped over t he rail of the bridge, York. The friend who speaks of him as "chain lightning and steel springs" says that no one could tell when he used to sleep in those crowded years.

Gilder began to find himself when Scribner's Monthly—now The Century—was established with the Scribners as publishers, and the late Dr. J. G. Holland as editor, and gave him a department, "The Old Cabinet," to conduct. After Holland's death and Gilder's promotion to the editorship, "The Old Cabinet" was discontinued much to the regret of many readers.

Sitting at his editorial desk one day, Mr. Gilder received a call from "H. H."—Helen Hunt, not yet Mrs. Jackson—the author of "Ramona." With her was a young woman art student—Miss Helen de Kay—daughter of Commodore de Kay and granddaughter of Joseph Rodman Drake, author of "The Culprit Fay." Gilder and the art student fell in love at first sight and in duo time she became Mrs. Gilder.

Everybody knows what a big man he is in the magazine world today, although few remember that it was he who created modern magazine illustration, but it was. As chariman of the New York Tenement House commission in 1894, he was a great factor in the improvement of tenement house conditions everywhere, and the Author's club owes its being to him. He is prouder of his poetry and his "Topics of the Time" editorials in his magazine than of any other of his achievements. One of his first pieces of verse published in Newark told how

The red moon stood in the Sycamore tree, and this led to a reference in a rival paper to "the young poet who has the moon up a tree." But nobody knows who wrote that sarcastic reference.

R. W. Gilder's sister, Jeannette Gilder, one of the Critic editors, and his brothers, Joseph and W. H., have all made names for themselves in the world of letters.

An Expatriated Minister's Son.

The only bachelor among the minister's sons who have become really eminent is Henry James, the expriated American novelist, brother of William James, the Harvard professor of psychology.

Those who do not like Henry as a novelist say that he knows too much about psychology to be a really good story teller; those who decry William as a psychologist say that he knows too much about the novelist's art to be a successful professor, but they have both made good for all that. Their father, Henry James, was a theologian, his specialty being the mystic doctrines of the Swedenborgians, still strong in Philadelphia, though not now in many other places in this country. Henry James, the younger, was born in New York sixty-three years ago. He esteems the town as he knew it half a century back, when a boy, much more than he does the big city to today, with its subways, "L" roads and skyscrapers.

You may remember that he returned to this country last year after a residence abroad of twenty or thirty years, occupied mostly in the production of fiction, most of it rather close to the "edge," but of such persistently indirect style as to lead one critic to speak of "the sheltering vagueness of his voce."

He was received here with the same fall-down-and-worship-the-genius attitude—on the part of certain classes—that is almost universally accorded to him in the literary world of London. Prim Agnes Repplier, Philadelphia's favorite and really charming essayist, said of him the day after he had entertained Philadelphia's Contemporary club from the platform, that "no one is more able to prick us into that mental alertness which leads us almost to the verge of understanding." Wherever he went "the elect" made quite as remarkable comments upon him as those which he emitted concerning the people and the cities of his native land.

Notwithstanding his literary quality, Mr. James looks more like a solid, successful banker, or perhaps a manufacturer, than a literary man. To those who met him during his American visit he seemed personally wholesome, sensible and balanced.

Mr. James lives at "the decayed port of Rye" in Sussex, sixty miles from London, in an ancient tawny, brick structure of the Georgian type, known as Lamb House from the name of the family which occupied it for many generations. He is of middle height, slightly bald, and his once black hair is rapidly turning white. He dresses with the utmost care and gives personal attention to the affairs of his house. He is a great favorite in society and has a large following of society and literary women who are known as "the very elect." Not all of these women are beautiful, but every one of them is clever. Mr. James will not be bothered with stupid disciples, either men or women.

Mr. James has and always has had a competency and needn't care whether his novels sell as books or not. They are always in demand for serial publication.

Presidential Minister's Son.

Grover Cleveland, the only living minister's son who has ever been president of the United States, is also the only living ex-president. His personality is at least as strong and pronounced as that of any other minister's son in the land.

The people of Caldwell, N. J., where stands the house in which he was born, a modest two and a half story frame house—now painted brown, but for half a century the old time, staring white—are duly proud that their town is his birthplace. They have never purchased the house for perservation, however, as was stated in print a few years ago. Mr. Cleveland was born in 1837 and was taken to Fayetteville, N. Y., when 3 years old. He got most of his schooling—for like Mr. Gilder he never went to college—at the Fayetteville district school, and while a pupil there marked his desk with his name so that President Finley of the College of the City of New York, being able to identify it, bought it a few years ago to present to the college.

Mr. Cleveland's uncle, Prof. William Cleveland, was head of the New York Institution for the Blind, when the Rev. Mr. Cleveland died, and Grover, then a boy of 16, went to New York to live for a time. Fanny Crosby, the noted blind hymn writer, was then a teacher in the institution, and she has left a record of how the president-to-be used to assist her by writing out the poems which she composed and could not put on paper because she could not see.

On one occasion the superintendent of the institution, whose accounts the boy was helping to keep, remonstrated against such a waste of time. Grover asked Miss Crosby to tell the superintendent her opinion of him "in plain prose." She did so and no further objections were made. Soon after Grover went to Buffalo to live with his uncle. There he read law in an attic room and ther he remained until elected govenor of New York.

Caldwell is as proud of the old book of records kept by the Presbyterian church of which the Rev. Mr. Cleveland was pastor as it is of Grover Cleveland's birth house. This book was bound to order in New York before 1800, when the present metropolis was only a little town nestling in the point of Manhattan Island. The volume has been used constantly ever since, but its yellow pages are not yet all written upon. It contains many quaint items, among them a letter from the Rev. Mr. Cleveland asking for a $150 increase of salary, which, the records say, he received.

CENTENARIES OF CIVIL WAR FIGURES

By Charles M. Harvey in the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

The hundredth anniversary of the birth of Robert E. Lee, which comes on Jan. 19, reminds us that the centenaries of the greatest figures of the Civil war of both sides will now be frequent for a few years. Lee's is not the first of these birth cycles. A few occurred earlier, but most of the greater ones are still to appear. Taking them in chronological order, these are yet to come: Joseph E. Johnstone's, Davis', Lincoln's, Sherman's Grant's Sheridan's. Lee's old associates in the United States army and in the confederate service, Albert Sidney Johnstone, was born in 1903; and his centenary came four years ago, but it attracted very little attention. Johnstone was a higher officer than Lee in the United States army and he was more prominent in the Confederate forces at the time of his death in 1862, than Lee was at that time. In 1855, when he returned to the army, Lee was lieutenant colonel, and George H. Thomas, a prominent union officer of the latter day, was major. But Johnstone, though a more daring, aggressive and resourceful soldier than Lee, was forgotten in the whirl of events which intervened between his death near, Pittsburg Landing and Appomatox. Lee was in the public eye longer and later than Johnstone, and commanded larger armies. His field, too, in the greater part of the war was Virginia, and as a defender of the Confederate capital he necessarily commanded the country's and the world's attention to a greater degree than did any other officer on the Southern side. Although Johnstone's death was as widely lamented as Stonewall Jackson's was a year later, the hundredth anniversary of his birth passed almost unnoticed.

Lee's centenary, on the other hand, promises to be widely observed in the South. The principal exercises will be held at the Washington and Lee university at Lexington, Va., of which Lee was president from a few months after Appomatox until his death in 1870. During the five years in which he was at the head of that institution it made advances socially and financially, which gave it a high rang among the South's seats of the higher education. Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts is to deliver the oration. Adams is the great-grandson of the president of the United States and the grandson of another. He is the son of the man who held the most important diplomatic position under the United States during the Civil war, that of minister to England, and he himself was a general in the army against which Lee fought. The spectacle which the Lee centenary exercises will afford will show that the sectional line is pretty nearly obliterated in the United States by those old enough to take part in the great scenes of 1861-65. Observances will take place in many other places in the South. Several Southern governors beginning with Blanchard of Louisiana, recommended the observance of the days in their respective states. In Virginia, the two Carolinas, Georgia, Florida and Alabama Jan. 19 has been a holiday for years, and in all of them there will, in 1907, be a special recognition of the day.

Centenary of Lee.

The centenaries of many of the great Southerners who figured in the Civil war in a military or other capacity are still to come, but it is likely that none of them, not even that of Jefferson Davis, will attract the attention which Lee's is commanding. Henry A. Wise, the governor, who hanged John Brown, had his 100th birthday anniversary a few weeks ago, in the early part of December, 1906, but it passed without any public notice anywhere. In the wild days immediately following John Brown's Harper's Ferry raid, in 1859, Governor Wise's name filled a larger place in the newspapers of the North and South than did that of any other Southern man. In the war which Brown hastened, Wise took a moderately prominent part, and after Appomattox he accepted the situation promptly and was as loyal as anybody in either section from that time to the end of his days, in 1876. Even his own state, however, seems to have forgotten him in the lapse of time. In 1908 the Jeff Davis centennial will come, and, while June 3, the anniversary of his birth, is a holiday in several Southern states, his centennial is not likely to be observed with as much heartiness anywhere as Lee's is arousing. Though a man of education, great ability and a very high order of civic as well as physical courage, he lacked the personal popularity of Lee, but, of course, his position as political chief of the Confederacy made him the head and front of that revolt, and gave him a prominence greater than that of any other leader of the lost cause. "Joe" Johnston's centennial, which will arrive in a few weeks, on Feb. 3, 1907, is receiving no mention in the press.

Secession's Morning Star.

Many of those who recall William L. Yancey as the "morning star of secession" will be surprised to learn that his birth centenary will not come for several years after Lee's, Johnston's and Davis', although he figured as a separatist earlier than Davis, and, of course, many years earlier than anybody in or out of Virginia ever supposed that Lee would be placed in antagonism to his government. As a soldier, Lee had no politics, and took no part in the disunion talk which began to be heard with considerable freedom in the South, from the time of the admission of California as part of the compromise of 1850, onward to South Carolina's secession two or three weeks after Lincoln's election in 1860. The same was true of the two Johnstons and of the other military chiefs of the Confederacy. Yancey's centenary will not be here until 1914. Toombs' will arrive in 1910., and Alexander H. Stevens' in 1912. Though, on grounds of expediency, opposed to secession, Stephens followed his state out of the Union, became the second officer of the Confederacy's civil establishment, and took an active part in state and national politics after Appomattox. It is possible that Georgia will recognize his centenary when it arrives, five years hence. Alabama may, seven years hence, take some note of the cycle of its favorite son, Yancey, but the observances, if any take place even there, are not likely to extend far. Beauregard, who fired the first gun in the war, will have his 100th anniversary in 1918, and so will his old associate in war and peace, Jubal A. Early, but there is no longer any magic in their names. Longstreet was born ni 1820, and Stonewall Jackson in 1824. The youngest of the great soldiers of the Confederacy, Stonewall, has a stronger hold on the affections of his section than any other of its military leaders, except Lee.

Of the great unionist chieftians, civil and military, most of them are still to have their centenaries. Lincoln's is two years away. Stanton's is seven years off and Grant's is sixteen years in the distance. But Lincoln was not the oldest of the prominent figures on the national side. Several members of his cabinet were born earlier than he. Edward Bates, Lincoln's first attorney general, and Simon Cameron, his first secretary of war, were born in the closing years of the eighteenth century. Seward, secretary of state; Chase, the head of the treasury; Wells, the secretary of the navy, were all older than the man who appointed them. Seward is said to have a monument at Seattle, but it will not commemorate anything which he did during the rebellion days. It will be erected to him as a memorial of his leadership in the annexation of Alaska in 1867, and will be one of the features of the Alaska-Yukon exposition in Seattle in 1909. Benjamin F. Wade, John Brown, E. P. Lovejoy, the Alton martyr of 1837, were all born before Lincoln. So was John P. Hale, who was the first man chosen to the senate on a platform specifically antagonistic to slavery. It was altogether fitting that the free soil party's nomination for president in 1852 was given to that stalwart anti-slavery crusader. Joshua R. Giddings, an anti-slavery chieftian in the other branch of congress, was born earlier than Hale. The centenaries of all of those statesmen of the Civil war era has passed, but they attracted no attention. Andrew Johnson's cycle will be here in 1908, and so will Chase's, both of them men who deserved well of their country.

The Lincoln Centennial.

But Lincoln's centennial, which will come in 1909, will be the first which will find any wide observance. Bills have been introduced in congress to erect a suitable memorial to Lincoln in that year, but, though no definite action has been taken on any of them, something is likely to be done early enough to take concrete shape at the celebration. In any case, Feb. 12, 1909, will be rendered memorable by the extent and fervor of the observances. In nearly a dozen states, Illinois, of course, being one of them, Feb. 12 is a holiday. In many towns outside of these states there is a recognition of the anniversary in some shape, and the observance is extensive. The centennial habit had not been contracted when the Washington, Jefferson or Jackson birth cycle was completed, but it has grown in recent years to an extent which would insure a widespread observance of Lincoln's day, even if congress should neglect to take action on the memorial project. It is altogether probable that President Roosevelt will issue some sort of a manifesto calling attention to the centennial. He will make an address somewhere on that day, and will say things which the country will read with interest.

The most active and versatile of all the presidents, Roosevelt, has also a better knowledge of American and world politics and history than any of them. In historic imagination none of his contemporaries on either side of the Atlantic surpass him. His written and spoken discourse at the Lincoln centenary—for there is likely to be both kinds—will stand a chance to hold high place in the vast output of his literary activities. Moreover, the Lincoln anniversary is likely to have as enthusiastic observance in the South as it is in the rest of the country. Lincoln had the peculiar fortune of being canonized by his former political enemies earlier than he was by his friends. The reconstruction on the Lincoln plan, which Johnson, without any of Lincoln's tact, or any of his popularity with the Republican party, attempted to put in operation, failed when it had Johnson for a leader, but it might have succeeded if Lincoln himself had survived to the end of his term. In any case, if he had lived, the terms imposed on the South would have been less harsh than were those which were evolved in the fight between congress and Johnson. This is the chief reason why the South appropriated Lincoln's memory, and why, at each recurrent anniversary of his birth, some typical Southern man at a banquet somewhere in the country, says things about him which attract national attention.

Little National Attention.

Probably none of the other great political figures of the war era will receive much national attention when their centenaries appear, a few years hence, though many of these filled a large space in the records of the eleven years between the enactment of the Kansas-Nebraska territorial organization law and Appomattox. Beckley's and Sumner's 100th anniversary will come in 1911, Henry Wilson's in 1912, Fremont's and Douglas' in 1913, Stanton's in 1914 and John Sherman's and Oliver P. Morton's in 1923. The various clubs of Fremont voters, if any of their members are alive six years hence, may be relied on to take some notice of the centenary of the first Republican presidential candidate, but the country, as a whole, has forgotten him, notwithstanding his vast vogue half a century ago. Stanton's memory, on his 100th anniversary, ought to call out some national observance, but probably it will not. Despite the transcendant value of his services to the cause of national unity, Stanton was never popular in the North, while the South hated him with almost as fierce a hatred as it felt for Thaddeus Stevens.

Does anybody remember David Wilmot now? Will his name and his record be recalled in 1914, when his birth centennial comes? Thaddeus Stevens' centenary arrived many years ago, for he was born in 1793, but the memory of this leader in shaping the reconstruction policy which went into operation throughout the South in the act which was passed in 1867, over President Johnson's veto, seemed to have faded by that time. Very little attention was paid to the anniversary. Stevens' name is seldom mentioned today except in connection with plays like the Clansman, and in stories of doings in the South during the state restoration era in that region. Yet the history of the big events between that time and the impeachment of Andrew Johnson in 1867-68 can not be written without giving a large place to Stevens' name and deeds. But Wilmot's birth cycle is still to come, and although he was many years younger than Stevens, his prominence began earlier. Through the anti-slavery proviso which he tacked on as a rider to an appropriation bill at the beginning of the Mexican war, back in 1846, Wilmot's name immediately attained a national vogue. Wilmot was known throughout the country before the name of Lincoln, Seward, Chase, John Sherman, Grant, Gen. Sherman or almost any of the other chieftans in the Civil or military service of the national government in 1861-65 had traveled beyond a very small circle of personal acquaintances. The Wilmot proviso of 1846 became the vital principle in the creed of the free soil party founded in 1848, and in that of the Republican party, established in 1854, yet hardly anybody today, except students of American history know that any such person as David Wilmot ever lived.

The military leaders of the Union were younger than were those of the Confederacy, and the centenaries of all of them are still to come. Winfield Scott is left out of the calculation here because, though the commander of the army at the outset in the war, age quickly sent him into the background. Meade's birth cycle will come in 1915, Thomas' in 1916, Sherman's in 1920, Grant's in 1923, McClellan's in 1926, and Sheridan's in 1931. Sherman's and Grant's will probably be observed, especially Grant's, but the others are not likely to attract muct attention. The round of centenaries which begin with Lee's a few days hence, show that the Civil war era will soon, to the average American, seem almost as remote and shadowy as the War of Independence.

DISCUSSION ON RURAL SCHOOLS

In Reply to Reports Recently Published of Papers at the Minnesota and Wisconsin State Teachers' Associations.

After teaching in rural, village, city and consolidated schools, attending summer schools, institutes and state and national associations, the writer of this article fails to believe that woe would come to the future of the race as predicted by President Rankin of the Educational association in his address at Plymouth church, Minneapolis, "in case the state does not recognize larger duties of the school." If he means by that what he says, in his statements that: "the rural teachers and city teachers need different training" that: "the Normal school trains teachers for the city and villages" and that: "a good beginning for the training of rural teachers is found at the State Agricultural school, and that there ought to be established county branches at the expense entirely of the state for training teachers for rural purposes."

This would seem like returning to the castes of India.

Does it follow, because a child, whether boy or girl, is born on a farm and his parents are farmers, that that child must be a farmer whether he wills it or not, and whether adapted to this line or not, even though he were a cripple or a naturally inclined poet, artist, musician or what not?

Have not some of our most honored positions and places hardest to fill in cities, in various lines, been frequently filled by the "Little Brown Hands" of earlier years?

"The pen of the author and statesman,
The noble and wise of the land,
The sword and the chisel and pallette,
Have been held by the Little Brown Hands."

Could this be contradicted? And should not these receive identically the same opportunities in life regardless of location, if possible? Do they not need the teacher of highest culture and refinement that can be secured for them?

Shall their caste or lot in life as to occupation be selected for them or shall they all be given an equal chance as nearly as possible and as they develop be allowed to decide for themselves?

Shall they be robbed of the individuality which every little soul possesses, and shall we teachers and parents be also robbed of the pleasure and gratification of seeing this develop?

This development of individuality was the life of the school to me and more than half my pay.

The average boy or girl at 12 years, who has grown up on a farm knows much of soil, crops, plant diseases, stock and general information along this line.

I believe the consolidation of schools comes the nearest solving the problem of rural schools where it can be carried out and that where it cannot be carried out the teacher of highest ideals and of education possible, should be secured, with no regard or line drawn simply because the children who come to her are from farm homes.

If Mr. Rankin's theory be right, why not classify in city schools and train doctors' children along the medical lines, the clergy's along that of theology, and what would become of the butchers' children, the barbers', the Jew-peddler's or the child whose mother is a widow, and a milliner, dressmaker or washerwoman?

The rule should hold good with all, nor must the farmer's child be an exception.

The schools of today we all know are a vast improvement on those of fifty years ago, but we all may well admit that there is much yet to improve in many ways. I see many such needs—but there are many children who never will enter village or city schools and are these never to know or to have the opportunity of knowing anything but plowing and planting and reaping or reaping and planting and plowing?

Are they not as apt as a city child and should they not be given as many means for development in every way as nearly as possible?

The one whose name is here appended was born on a farm at the outskirts of a beautiful village and enjoyed the privileges each gave. The old farm is a much loved spot, and though agriculture was never there taught at school, at a very early age I won a prize for butter making and always demanded highest market prices at Chicago. Later was offered good positions in real estate work, because of my knowledge of soils values, etc and as a last fall recently planned every breed of cattle, fowl, sheep and horses on the grounds; and this is only the common property of any rural child without the trying, so why should his time in school in early life be thus monopolized?

The theory seems absurd and I believe it is wholly wrong. It is only last fall on the way to the G. A. R. encampment at Minneapolis, that a graduate of Pratt Institute inquired a number of times, as to what the grains were which she saw in the fields, and various other similar things concerning what she saw along the way. Why not "even up" by teaching a little agriculture as science and nature lessons correlated with language or other work in city schools? For my part I think they need it most, judging from statements made by Chicago teachers.

Nowhere else than in the rural schools will power, leadership, and earnestness of purpose more rapidly develop—the more important qualifications not tested by examinations," mentioned by Mr. Rankin.

With no principal at hand, to direct or assist in any way, they must become wholly self-reliant, and also more independent in every way having the privilege of exerting their own ideas. In this respect the Normal graduate needs the rural school as well as the rural school needs the Normal graduate.

I believe every city and rural school should be well supplied with reference books on agriculture, but if this be made the chief aim and object of the rural school "Dood's" attitude and expression of, "I always knowed that," will often be repeated: e. g to chase and milk cows first thing in the morning, at school read of them, at night milk, and put them in the barn—then dream of them. A more beneficial plan for the book seller than child.

Some, I have no doubt, would grow similar to the character mentioned by Ople Reed in his book "Swanee River" who was a horse trainer and would always use expressions he used in speaking of horses, in common conversation.

I am a hearty believer in agricultural schools just as they have them at present. A year ago I had the pleasure of being shown through this department by Dean Henry at Madison, Wis.

The farmers of today are very few who cannot well afford to give their children a course of this kind if desired when they have grown old enough to make it their choice.

I would say that Supt. C. P. Carey had not gone far enough with the rural school question in saying at the Milwaukee Teachers' association that rural schools have not progressed as they should; that the rural teachers are untrained. The problem may be a little hard to solve but what more, could any one do in any or all of these schools with no more at hand to do with, than has the average rural teacher?

A change in the course of study is not all that is necessary.

If like results are expected from rural schools as from city schools why should they not be rightly supplied with materials as are city schools—Why should not music charts, drawing material and other things be supplied them, and in like manner have a specialist to oversee these subjects, (including writing and physical culture if desired); say one such teacher for every two or three schools who might make about two visits to each school a weekZ

The county superintendent cannot do all this even though he were not "afraid to speak."

Farmers are often in need of their children at home and this causes irregular attendance.

Give the Wisconsin rural teachers the same law Minnesota has for truancy and school attendance, and as strong means of carrying it into effect, then perhaps within the next decade a few of those who hold these higher positions may discover that this lack of progress is not always because the rural teacher lacks training nor is she justified in hearing and receiving such "Happy New Year" literature laid annually at her door.

Many of our most able city teachers of today are those who have taught in rural schools, and to verify this search the lists of critic teachers and principals in the largest cities of the Northwest.

Nothing in many ways equals the school garden and the best feeling of each for welfare of the other is gained by having the garden so that one must guard the interest of the other, allowing a row or two for each child. Often have parents told me of the labor and care given these gardens through the summer.

Much is said of the underpaid teacher yet large sums of money are paid annually by teachers of all classes to teachers' agencies. Why should not the state furnish this class a Free Employment Bureau?

I love to think of those days gone by,
When my duties were oft times told me
And I happily went to my little task,
Not regarding the sort that it might be.

Carrying bundles or gathering corn,
While the delicate town girls
And I happily went to my little task.
Just came to look on.
Standing there in surprise and scorn.
Asking with wonder "must you husk corn?"

Certainly we do,
Drive cows from the pasture
And milk them, too,
And there's nothing about it
That will hinder any one
From rising to be the
Very cream of society.

But were these all the pleasure of my childhood—No!
How often I've gathered the violets,
Crocus and cherry bloom
With heart o'er-filled with gladness
Not a thought of care or gloom.

Our little old sand houses,
Were close by the juniper tree,
Where we strolled, for the pebbles and mosses.
No city child happier could be.

And still my heart clings closely
To that dear old spot called "Home."
I ever will cherish it fondly
Where e'er through this world I roam.

ANOTHER BIG COPPER MINE

while the tunnel is being driven ahead for the main contact ledge, which is over 200 feet wide on the surface. This property and the Big Cottonwood Gold & Copper company's ground adjoining are counted upon to make rich and productive copper mines.

Fifteen feet of fine ore has been encountered in the Quincy tunnel workings of the South Consolidated company at Alta, but the management is reticent in discussing the strike.

All Southern Utah and Southern Nevada camps are in the throes of genuine winter. Heavy snowstorms are reported at Ploche, in the Bullfrog country, Greenwater and elsewhere. Fuel is a scarce article and much suffering is ensuing.

According to the report of the treasurer of the New England Gold & Copper company, this little property in Bingham is making an encouraging showing for the work done during the past seven years. The output from the mine has been more than $100,000, and the property is now in condition to pay all expenses and carry forward development. The property is well located, and with further development should find some of the large bodies of copper ore.

It looks now as if the Utah Consolidated and the Bingham Consolidated would move their smelting plants over to Tooele county. Information was given out last Monday to the effect that the Bingham Consolidated had secured an option for sixty days on the Iosepa farm located in Skull Valley. This is a very valuable tract of land, and is well located for the smelter, in view of the fact of a new property acquired in the western part of the state.

It is understood that the Utah Consolidated is planning to build its new plant in Pine Canon, about four miles from Toele, so that the workmen can reside in the town. There is also a plan to run a long tunnel from the Tooele side to reach the mine, and this will cut the vein at a depth of about 1,000 feet below the present workings. Until this is completed, the ore will be transported over the mountain by an aerial tramway. The moving of these two plants from Salt Lake county means quite a considerable loss to this county in taxes and a gain to the neighboring county.

The Wabash company has been buying, from time to time, several claims adjoining their property. The stock has fallen to a pretty low point, but the assessment has been reduced to 5 cents a share. The Scottish Chief has levied an assessment of 2 cents a share.

The Mountain Lake stock was listed on the exchange last week, and, according to the report of the secretary to the listing committee, the company owns sixty good claims at the head of Big Cottonwood, near Park City. Thirty of the claims are patented. The treasury shows a balance of 265,000 shares of stock and a little over $20,000 in money. During the development recently, a good body of high grade ore has been encountered. The stock advanced rapidly from 50 cents a share to $1.10.

The Frisco Contact company has secured fuel, and the power drills are now in successful operation. The company, however will install at once a larger hoist, and will put the present hoist over shaft No. 2. It is the plan of the company to push the development work now with greater energy.

The Mercur company has started up two of its roasters, and as soon as a larger supply of fuel is obtainable more roasters will be fixed up. Quite a number of men have been restored to the positions in the mine.

WARREN TOWNSITE IS ON SALE

Bisbee and Lowell People Vie With Each Other For Choice Locations, and 275 Applications Received on First Day.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 19.—After many delays, due to the necessity of getting everything in proper shape for the handling of the business, lots in the Warren townsite were placed on sale last week at the office of the company, on Arizona street, in Warren.

Very soon after the office was opened for business, a number of people drove to the townsite from Bisbee and Lowell, and from that time on through the entire day there was a continual stream to the office.

Instead of selling the lots outright, applications for any lot desired were received, and each application was accompanied by a check for $10. In many cases several people selected the same lot, either on account of the location, or the prospective increase in value. In those cases where more than one applied for the same lot, the officials of the company will prepare the list, and the different applicants will be required to bid for the same, the lot going to the highest bidder.

The highest priced lot placed on sale was $1,500, and is located on Arizona street, the main thoroughfare of the new town. The lowest priced lot in the town is $200.

Arizona street, which will be the main business thoroughfare, divides the town—the northeast and northwest sections being reserved especially for residences.

Two blocks on Arizona street, one on the east and one on the west side, have been bought by Thomas F. Cole and John D. Ryan. The Copper Queen company bought one-half of block 12, and as soon as the growth of the town warrants it, a large department store will be erected.

Beginning with The Vista, on the extreme western portion of the townsite placed on sale, the streets are: Powell, Arizona, Campbell, Shattuck, Clawson, Manuelto and Van Dyke, and beginning with Cole street, at the north, the streets are: Oliver Circle, Briggs, D'Autremont, Congdon, Hoatson, Tener and Ruppe.

Sixty-three blocks were placed on sale the first day, and from time to time as the place becomes settled, more lots will be sold.

It is understood that all of the public utility systems will be commenced in the near future.

The public sale of lots closed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and at that time 275 applications had been filed. The selling will go on in the future at private sale, the lots being sold outright to the first applying for them.

BRIDGE AS BAD AS CRAPS.

Georgia Judge Calls on Grand Jury to Indict Society Women.

Cartersville, Ga., Jan. 19.—Society women and their husbands are indignant at the charge delivered by Judge C. W. Fite, in which he practically ordered the jury to indict the players of bridge, euchre, and other society card games for prizes, Judge Fite said:

"All society gambling is gambling, and to my mind a man that gambles in a parlor is just as guilty as a negro that shopts craps. Anyone who plays a game of chance for a stake, be it money or a chafing dish, is as guilty as a negro that plays craps. I want you gentlemen to investigate the question of social gambling closely.

"You have it in your power to require anyone in the town or county to come before you and testify against anyone else, and you can get all the evidence you need. I have brought this matter before several grand juries, but they have either not had the backbone or the witnesses lacked the veracity to get it before the court.

"The gambling that goes on in drawing rooms and in which society women have part, must be stopped in my judicial circuit."

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

Dividend Record of January is Large---Federal Mine at Idaho Springs Bonded for $22,500 by Eastern Capitalists.

Colorado Springs, Jan. 19.—The January dividend record of Cripple Creek public companies as announced to date is as follows: Mary McKinnie, three cents, or $39,127.56, making the company's total $762,637.80; Portland, four cents, or $120,000, making a total of $7,267,080; Vindicator, three cents, or $45,000, total $1,560,000. These are regular quarterly disbursements. The total, $204,127.56, will be increased by other companies.

During 1906, the Marsh-Hodges lease on the Little Clara netted in dividends $400,000. Other leasing firms or corporations brought the total to $2,500,000, as officially reported, the principals being Stratton estate lessees $200,000, Bull Hill Mining & Development company $150,000, Western Investment company, Husted, Lambright & Co., and Doctor-Jack Pot lessees each $100,000.

This source of profit, added to the dividends of public companies, $1,938,010.24, makes a total of $4,438,010.24, exclusive of close corporations and lessees disbursing less than $5,000.

Ore treatment plants disbursed dividends in 1906, as follows: United States Reduction & Refining company $2,600,000; Portland, $220,000; Ironclad, $3,500; Home Run, $8,000; Santa Rita, $2,000; Anaconda, $12,000; Wild Horse, $2,000; total, $2,847,500. The Portland and United States Reduction Works are located at Colorado City. The other mills are cyanide and are located in Cripple Creek.

New York and other Eastern capitalists have bonded the Federal mine at Idaho Springs for $22,500. A shaft 40 feet deep has been sunk in the mine, but no drifting of consequence has been done.

John A. Holmberg has taken a lease and option for $100,000 on the Bellevue group of mines, Idaho Springs district.

The Cardigan Leasing, Mining & Tunnel company has been incorporated to operate the group of seven claims under bond and lease.

The company succeeding the Consolidated Gem mines at Idaho Springs contemplates the erection of a large mill at the mouth of the Newhouse tunnel for treating all grades and characters of ores mined in the various properties.

A carload of ore recently shipped from the Bessie Wilgus mine, Leadville district, netted $20,000, after all expenses were deducted. The ore contained but little gold, the values approximating $1,000 a ton, being silver. The American Smelting & Refining company charged $10 a ton for treatment. The ore is a chloride and came from the vein which traverses the Bessie Wilgus, Reindeer and other mines. More than $14,000,000 has been taken from this shoot. A car of twenty-five tons once yielded $25,000, but that was when silver was worth $1.25, instead of 67 cents as now. The Bessie Wilgus was patented about 1872.

The Colorado Zinc company is enlarging its plant in South Denver to treat the product of the Wellington mine, in the Breckenridge district, where a strike was recently made.

The annual report of Stratton's Independence, Limited, of London, shows its available cash in bank and drawing interest to be $225,000. The regular dividend was passed, as the Earl of Chesterfield says, "in order that as prudent men we may see our way through with the low grade milling problem, on which the future of the company so largely depends." A large mill, possibly a cyanide, will be built on the company's famous Stratton's Independence mine, on Battle mountain, Cripple Creek, to treat the product of the mine not shipped to smelters.

The Cripple Creek District Mine Owners' and Operators' association has appointed an executive committee for 1907 the following: Samuel McDonald, Nelson Franklin, William Bainbridge, E. H. Beebe and L. G. Carlton. Bainbridge may be continued president and A. L. Arnold secretary.

The Stowell Leasing company has started the Beacon-Rhyolite cyanide mill, on the Anna C. mine ore, with forty tons daily capacity. A four-foot vein carries gold, silver and lead values, aggregating $50 to $70 per ton. The vein has been traced from the surface to 200 feet depth. The property is located on the southwest slope of Copper Mountain, Cripple Creek.

President Irving Howbert confirms the reported strike in a winze 1,362 feet below the surface in the famous Portland mine, Cripple Creek. The ore body, which is off from shaft 2, is five to six feet wide and carries $30 gold value per ton. The January output of the mine alone is expected to yield 2,000 to 2,500 tons.

Red Cliff, Colo., Jan. 19.—The car shortage here is causing considerable inconvenience, but is not causing any serious setback to the large mining interests of the district.

Salida, Colo., Jan. 19.—Rich deposits of zinc recently discovered are the incentive of renewed activity in the mining camps of the district. One company is now shipping on an average forty cars of zinc ore each month, besides an additional ten cars of iron. The funnel system is employed.

Breckenridge, Colo., Jan. 19.—A mineral output, valued at nearly $1,000,000, is the record for Summit county for the year 1906. This is an increase of $100,000 over the previous year's record, yet there is good prospect of a doubling of the increase during the coming year. The district is coming constantly into more favorable notice with investors, owing to the increase in the number of its producing mines, as well as to the splendid natural advantages of the region. Timber and water are abundant, and the list of minerals now being mined in large quantities includes gold, silver, lead, zinc, iron, copper and bismuth.

BALLASTED WITH SILVER ORE

Road Through Northern Part of Ontario Runs Over Silver Bloom, Some Containing Values of $600 to the Ton.

Of all the odd chronicles of railroad building told by railroad builders, says the Pittsburg Gazette, chronicles of hardship, romance and adventure, true tales of personal experience brought from all corners in the world and related in the famous rooms of the Western Society of Civil Engineers, the strangest has just been told. It is of a railroad unwittingly ballasted for many miles with silver ore.

The Canadian government built the railroad and is responsible for the ballasting. It now is guarding the roadbed from the cupidity of men who else would defy winter's snow and cold to steal the very rock from beneath the ties.

Government railroad engineers from the Philippines have related their stories of incredible obstacles overcome. Other builders have modestly explained how they chiseled a trackbed from the precarious sides of the Andes. The story of the Florida East Coast railroad, which is now being built for miles out to sea, from reef to reef and key to key, has been told. Now comes Poynter Standly, recently returned to Chicago from British government service among the diamond mines of South Africa, and more recently from the vicinity of the diamond prospects south of Hudson's Bay, and relates the odd good fortune of the Temiskaming & Northern spur of the Canadian Pacific system.

"When that spur was hastily built through the northern neck of the Ontario province," said Mr. Standly, "it was ballasted with what loose rock came first to hand. Much of the surface of the region between Lake Temagami and the Montreal river is covered with a thin soil over Huronian rock, great surfaces of it. It is a desolate land in appearance, although in summer nature does her best to hide the bare, forbidding but treasure bearing rock. Carload after carload of ballast was hurriedly dumped on the sleepers and shoveled into place by laborers who knew silver ore only by name, and who wanted only to get away as soon as possible. They never suspected that much of the rock they shoveled and tamped was silver bloom, and it was not until a few weeks ago that the discovery was made.

"Think of it—length after length of rails were stretched across silver ore, some of which has been found to contain values as high as $600 to the ton. Train after train had rattled over the ore-balasted track, the engineer's gaze fixed on the distance, scorning the dull, seemingly worthless stones, which it proves are worth many times the cost of the railroad, its rolling stock and its gross earnings for many years to come.

"I saw many strange things in South Africa, much of which still remains a land of mystery, but the short stretch of track south of the Montreal river is the most curious thing I have met with. The explanation is not hard to find. The Montreal river is now believed to run in a bed of silver ore and the ballast easiest to secure was doubtless that from the vicinity of the river. That whole region is now found to be veined with rich ore of various minerals, but with silver in greatest quantities.

"Like the great project of the Roman archapologist, Rudolph Lanciani, that of diverting the river Tiber from its bed to recover the submerged relics of days of Roman greatness, is the plan by which it is hoped to recover the wealth in the bed of the Montreal river where that rock ballasted railroad crosses it. The project has been put up to the Ontario government by the Cobalt Portage Mines, Ltd., for the channel of the entire river must be changed. This will require the cutting only of a diversion canal through banks some twenty feet high to flood a basin which has a natural outlet. The company which proposes to do this is a Chicago concern. It has engineering difficulties to overcome, but the project, I undestand, is likely to receive the approval of the Canadian authorities. Meanwhile it is digging out the ore on its 20-acre tract.

"The discovery of the silver ballasted roadbed of the Temiskaming & Northern I found to be typical of the region tapped by it. The discoveries there have been rich and have occasioned the peopling of localities where in summer the sun shone upon gray, lichened rock and infreuent vegetation, and in winter upon a great waste of deep, dazzling snow.

"Two years have seen towns and villages spring up. Energy such as exhibited in the project of the Chicago men in changing the very channel of a swift and deep river to get at hidden treasures, has been manifest in mushroom towns and cities. There have been disasters, notwithstanding the element of insurance to investors comprised in the Ontario province's laws, its rigid inspection and assay, before mining claims can be granted. Some disasters have been due to manipulation, such as the recent slump in the Nipissing stock when the Guggenheims ruthlessly knocked the price down temporarily by ostentatiously refusing to complete its purchase. But the discoveries, as the railroad ballast illustrates, are so numerous that the new mining camps are certain to grow—and even to boom."

BUTTE & ARIZONA COMPANY

Has Completed Payments For Its Property in the Huachuca Mountains, and Jack Hoatson Has Been Appointed Manager.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 19.—Officers of the Butte & Arizona Copper Mining company have received a telegram from A. G. Pohndorf stating that the company now owns a group of copper claims in the Huachuca mountains, which it bonded last year and has been developing since it took possession of the property. Mr. Pohndorf left Butet a few days ago, and arrived in Bisbee late Wednesday night. Tucked away in his inside vest pocket was $50,000, which he carried from Butte to pay for the ground. Yesterday he went to the bank in which the deeds had been deposited, paid the money and took the deeds. As a result of the payment two sturdy prospectors of the Arizona school are $50,000 to the good and the Butte & Arizona Copper company is the exclusive owner of a property the estimated value of which is now about $20,000,000. Application for patents to the entire group of claims has been made, and it is expected that the receiver's certificate will be issued before the expiration of this month, for sufficient development work has been done to entitle the company to the paper.

Jack Hoatson, formerly of Butte, and a brother of Capt. James Hoatson of the Calumet & Arizona Copper company, has been appointed manager of the property. He began his duties yesterday. Thomas Stafford, who has been conducting the work of development since the company bonded the group, will continue as superintendent of operations. A message from Mr. Stafford a few days ago was to the effect that the face of the main tunnel had encountered a better class of sulphide ore than had yet been found in the property and that the entire workings were looking fine.

The property is located about thirty-five miles from Bisbee, and while the closest railroad line at present is the El Paso & Southwestern, the Santa Fe has mapped out a line that will pass within three miles of the mines. Arrangements for building a spur from the Santa Fe to the foot of the mountain on which the mines are located will be made by the company, and the ore will be transported from the mines to the railroad over a tramway.

It is not likely that the Butte & Arizona Copper company will build a smelter this year, for its ore is in demand by other mining and smelting companies in that section. The ore is sulphide, while that of other companies in and around Bisbee is of a different character, and the sulphide brand is desired as an aid in the smelting of the other class.

The Butte members of the Butte & Arizona are highly pleased over the property of the company, and are perfectly satisfied that they will in a few months have one of the greatest copper mines in the land of cactus, horned toad, tarantula, centipede, Gila monster, Apache, Yaqui and greaser.

EAST BUTTE HAS EXCELLENT ORE

Foot of Copper Glance is Struck at the Four Hundred Level---the Vein is Reported Eight Feet Wide.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 19.—The Butte officers and stockholders in the East Butte Mining company are feeling pretty good now, which exuberance is due to the fact that the showing of ore on the 400-foot level of the main shaft, known as Na. 1, is now better than it has ever been in the history of the company's operations. Patrick Wall, manager of the property, and F. M. Sullivan, president, are especially pleased at the showing.

Some time ago the company topped the Symons vein at the 400, since which time it has been drifting east and west on it. At first the vein had in it a stringer of copper glance, the remainder being ore of high grade. This vein, in the west drift, has widened to eight feet, a foot of which is copper glance, the stringer having widened gradually since its intersection. The entire vein, outside of the glance, is first class, and will yield the company considerable revenue.

The main shaft is now 640 feet deep, and is bound for the 800, which point it will reach about the middle of March. Shaft No. 11, located several hundred feet southeast of No. 1, is about 325 feet deep, and when it reaches the 400 a crosscut will be started in the direction of No. 1, with a view of connecting the two at that depth. Crosscuting will also begin from the 400 of the main shaft, and the two horozontial openings will meet face to face about midway of the intervening ground. The number of veins that traverse the property between the two shafts is not definitely known, but it is a sure thing that there are several, all copper bearing. These veins will be intersected by the long crosscut and drifted on east and west.

The lessees who have been working in various places on the property are still busy, and are mining and shipping a lot of good ore. They are working in probably a dozen places. They have a concentrator on the south side of Silver Bow creek and are running their second class through it. This plant was built only a short time ago, and contains five Wilfley tables, together with other machinery necessary in the treatment of the product.

The company has a small concentrator or of its own and sends some ore through it. This plant is known as the Yankee Boy by reason of the fact that it was formerly owned by Charles L. Geyman, who sold the Yankee Boy property to the East Butte company. Mr. Geyman treated his ore in it, but when he sold his mine the plant went with it. Although small, the plant does good work. It contains two Wilfley tables.

The company is figuring on building a 500-ton plant in two units of 250 tons each, following a suggestion made by an engineer who was sent from Boston to inspect the property in the interest of the Boston men who are heavily interested in the company and its property.

If the decision to build the plant is rounded out, work on the structure will probably be launched early in the spring, for it is the intention to finish it and have the wheels turning as soon as possible.

foundation is about finished, but nothing further can be done until the little brick tailor shop which adjoins the frame building on the East is vacated. The frame is empty and the foundation for the dry has been built under it. Crosscutting from the 500-foot station of the shaft will begin shortly, as the work of cutting the station is about finished.

The stockholders in the Pittsburg Gold and Tungsten Mining company will hold a meeting in Gardiner, Park county, on the 16th of February, for the purpose of considering the advisability of increasing the capital stock of the company from $100,000 to $1,000,000, and the further purpose of increasing the number of directors from three to seven and changing the principal office of the company from Gardiner to Butte.

At a meeting of the board of directors, held a few days ago, some work in the direction mentioned was adopted and the stockholders will be called upon to ratify or reject it. The present board comprises G. H. D. Lynch, Daniel Hanley and E. H. Renich. Mr Lynch is also vice president of the company.

The stockholders in the Homestake Mining company held a meeting this week for the purpose of considering the feasibility of making the shares assessable and electing a board of directors. On the former question they found themselves about 100,000 shares short, and adjourned for a month in order to secure the required number, but they elected a board all right, the members being C. F. Chaplin, Dr. J. L. Hamnifan, Per Kendrick, T. M. Haskins and one other man who lives in Wheeling, W. Va. Mr. Haskins is also a Wheeling man. The object in making the stock assessable is to raise money to operate the property, which is located about fourteen miles northwest of Butte. A short time ago, W. H. Snyder of Wheeling, came to Butte with a proposition to the effect that if the company would make the shares assessable the Wheeling stockholders, Snyder included, would finance the company and begin operations.

W. F. Cobban and W. O. Clymo have returned from Beaverhead county, where they passed a few days on business connected with the Park Copper company, of which they are members. While in Dillon they employed Patrick Murphy to take charge of development work at the mines, and operations are now in progress under Mr. Murphy's direction. The position was formerly held by Thomas Judge, but Mr. Judge died suddenly about a week ago. Mr. Murphy is an old Butte miner, having passed more than twenty years in the mines of the district, and he will keep the work moving in good shape.

The property of the Park Copper company is located about fifty miles northeast of Dillon and ten miles from the smelter of the Silver Fissure company at Polaris. The Park company has contracted with the Silver Fissure to treat the ore of the former in the Polaris plant. The character of the ore is such that the Silver Fissure Mining company desires it for mixing with its own ores.

sary to work the lower strata of gravel has prohibited work hitherto, but it is hoped that dredging has solved the problem. The experiment is backed by New England capital, Karl H. Kompfe of New York city being in charge.

Keystone, S. D., Jan. 19.—The operation of the experimental Holy Terror Egyptian mill has has been so satisfactory that the company plans to double the capacity, making it a forty-stamp plant. A good sized cleanup was this week deposited at the United States assay office in Deadwood. The shaft on the Egyptian property has reached a depth of 300 feet and lateral work is in progress at the 250-foot level. Drifts have been run in two directions, and in one of these the vein has been followed for over 100 feet, the ore more than filling the face of the drift. In the opposite direction the vein fills the entire drift and five-foot holes drilled into the sides of the drift failed to disclose the walls of the vein, showing that there is fifteen feet of solid ore at this point. Samples taken from the face of both drifts gave returns of $15.20. The ore is treated cheaply by amalgamation and concentration.

Pactola, S. D., Jan. 19.—A double shift of men is employed in sinking a shaft on the property of the Black Hills Consolidated Copper company, half a mile northwest of this town. The shaft is now down fifty-five of the contemplated 200 feet, which level the company expects to reach by the first of May. A whim will be used for hoisting the ore until they reach the 100-foot level, when a steam plant will be installed. The copper vein which is being worked shows at the surface a width of approximately forty feet, one wall being trachyte and the other black slate. Although the values contained at the surface are largely in the oxides and sulphates of copper, yet at the present depth the more substantial sulphides have been encountered. The company owns a large acreage.

Mystic, S. D., Jan. 19.—The Hymalulu Mining company has decided to begin work at once on a tunnel that will tap their ore vein at a depth of 250 feet. This vein has already been opened by apex workings and by a shaft seventy feet in depth, where a face of ore twenty-eight feet deep and from six to seven feet wide has been encountered, all of which carries good values. With this tunnel it is planned to get a greater depth on the ore body and block out a quantity that will justify the construction of a mill on the property. The Hymalulu ore is a heavy concentrating material, carrying practically no free gold, and shows an average value of nearly $8 a ton. There is a good mill site on the property, a large quantity of timber and a fine water right. The property is but a short distance from the railroad.

shows indications of mineral, and the management is of the opinion that ore will be found a short distance from the shaft. The drift, which was begun recently on the 900-foot level, has been abandoned temporarily. The raise from the 300, which has been continuously in ore, is now up seventy feet, and has about three feet in the back of good shipping ore. Manager C. H. Jones says that the ore in the raise from bottom to top will average 8 per cent.

At the Calumet & Arizona rich discoveries have been made, and an immense amount of development work is going on and heavy shipments are being sent to the smelter.

The Warren shaft is now down 150 feet and is still being sunk with hand drilling. It is understood, however, that in the near future the company will have its water system completed and the steam plant will be put in operation.

• • •

At the Wolverine & Arizona, the diamond drill hole is being cased and when this work is completed and the drill goes into commission something good may be expected to be heard from this property. The recent strike of rich bodies of native copper in the Shattuck has raised great hopes among the Wolverine stockholders as there is little question that the drill on the Wolverine was working in the extension of the Shattuck ore body, when operations ceased on account of the ground being so badly shattered and the drill hole would not hold water. At the time of the cessation of work the drill had penetrated sixteen feet in 6 per cent ore and will begin operations in ore when placed in commission again.

The new Holbrook shaft of the Copper Queen company is fully completed and the surface equipment is nearing completion. It is expected the shaft will go into commission on or about the first of next month. The other Queen mines are also producing the shipping their usual quota of ore and when the Holbrook starts up the output will be materially increased.

Thomas F. Collins of Calumet, Mich., and formerly of Bisbee, arrived early in the week. Mr. Collins is president of the American Saginaw mine, in the same geological formation as the Denn. The gentleman is very conservative in his expressions, and says that his company is not banking particularly, on the findings of the Denn outfit; but their shaft is down 900 feet and they have commenced drifting. Very soon this company will put in a diamond drill at the 900-foot level and get a formation further down. Until the company knows what they have got, very little will be said.

The American and the Saginaw mines, each owning about the same amount of ground, were amalgamated into one proposition about a year ago, and Mr. Collins was made the official head of the company and his head seems to be a good one. Mr. Collins is a positive man and says that his company will go down till they "find something or nothing."

Advices from the Globe district state that the shaft on the Gem claim of the Globe Consolidated is at the 370 mark and is still in diorite. It is expected that the 500 level will be reached in less than a month and from this point lateral development work will begin. It is very probable that before that point is reached, at least one of the several veins which are known to traverse the territory to be explored will be encountered in the shaft.

At the Mallory mine of the company indications point to early shipments of a good grade of sulphide ore. The vein struck on the 460-foot level is being explored at three points with excellent results. Three drifts are being pushed on the vein, two of them in opposite directions from one crosscut, and the other from the crosscut 400 feet distant, on which the vein was encountered several weeks ago. The full face of each of the three drifts has been done along the vein in all. The ore runs from 1 to 5 per cent in copper with a high average of sulphur. General Manager McCarthy is highly pleased with the outlook.

The two new eighty-horse power boilers have been installed at the Gem and Mallory shafts. The old boilers will be retained in position for emergency use.

The recent call of $5 on the stock of the Globe Consolidated is to be paid Jan. 26, which will make the stock fuly paid in. The added capital will place the company in a splendid financial position for the extensive work it has planned and which is now in progress. A considerable part of the funds of the company will be used to develop several other claims in the district and work has already been begun on the California claim, just beyond the Gray shaft of the Old Dominion.

The latest Globe flotation, the Calumet & Globe, will be heard from very soon. Attorneys are busy looking up the titles of the company's property on lower Pinto creek and as soon as they are established development work will be started.

W. E. Carter, formerly shift boss at the Copper Hill mine, has been secured as foreman of the Superior & Boston and Mr. Carter will have charge of the development work on the Great Eastern, Black Oxide and Limestone claims, which has already been started. Mr. Carter is an experienced mining man and is thoroughly conversant with geological and mining conditions in this district.

Orders have been placed for some of the machinery necessary for work on claims of the Superior & Boston, and more will be added as required. This company has made an excellent beginning and much confidence has been expressed in local mining circles that the company will develop a large mine. From a stock point of view, indications are good for a rise as soon as President Chynoweth's report is made public in the North. Capt. Chynoweth and Secretary Rice leave this week on their return to Calumet and Houghton, Mich.

William Kemp of Tucson, expert for the Calumet & Arizona company, was in the city for a stay of several days. Mr. Kemp, who is considered one of the authorities in his line in Arizona, stated that the Arizona will in a few years, with a constant demand for copper, such has been shown in the past few years, be developed to such extent that it will surpass in production both Michigan and Montana.

"I make this statement unguardly and freely," said Mr. Kemp. "I am positive that at present there is around Tucson enough good copper land, although not yet worked to any great extent, to surpass Montana in every particular. I mean, of course, the whole of Pina county.

"That portion of the territory has been neglected shamefully up to this time and except for a few scattered mines where good returns are being made, there are practically no mines in the section. The copper is there—that I know.

"The great trouble is that Eastern people wishing to buy in Arizona send out mining engineers who are unfamiliar with the topography of the country and they turn down good properties on that account.

"Around Tucson at present there is a great deal of prospective work going on, but nothing is being done on a large scale. The whole section with a few rare exceptions, has been badly neglected by capital up to this time. This cannot continue forever though, and some day the merits of the district will be recognized and the story changed."

A meeting of the stockholders of the Paradise Development company was held last week at Douglas. The company has bought the property from the original owners, and now owns the claims of the company outright. During the past year the company was working the property under bond, but the recent trade made by the directors of the company places the stockholders in actual ownership of the property. The company has done $10,000 worth of development work on the property during the past year in drifting and shaft work. They have one shaft down 250 feet, where they encountered black sulphide of copper running $62. Assays have been very good throughout and the owners are arranging to do some extensive development during the present year. A new activity is being shown in the Chiricahua district and greater results are expected during the coming year.

The Blackhawk and Copper Hill mines of the Arizona Commercial company, which have been idle since last Monday, have resumed work, a sufficient quantity of fuel having been secured. Coal has been obtained for the Copper Hill and oil for the Blackhawk mine, and the full force has been put to work. Manager Snell stated that he did not anticipate any further trouble in securing fuel enough to operate the engines at both mines of the company.

The railroad being constructed by the Arizona Commercial to the Copper Hill and Blackhawk is again held up, awaiting material, which is very slow in arriving. Between 4,000 and 5,000 feet of steel have been laid, and as soon as needed material arrives, work will be rushed on the completion of the road.

Winkleman, Ariz., Jan. 19.—Development work is going forward rapidly on the Two Queens, the Ray and the Saddle Mountain mines. The activity in mining circles here has never been equalled in any previous winter.

Jerome, Ariz., Jan. 19.—Work is being vigorously pushed by the recently organized Verde Grande Copper company whose holdings are located on the south side of the Smelter hill, adjoining the United Verde claims. Wagon roads and buildings are being constructed, and a double compartment shaft is now to go down as rapidly as men and power can do the work. The prosperity of the fomus United Verde mine in continuing unabated, with reports of ore enough already blocked out to last for thirty years.

Patagonia, Ariz., Jan. 19.—The mining world is beginning to realize more fully than ever the importance of the Wrightson copper district. The Westinghouse interests have been prospecting the district and locating properties for some time, and now comes Col. W. C. Greene. No sooner did the Standarid Oil crowd force Col. Greene to sell his wonderful property, the Greene Consolidated, at Cananea, Sonora, Mexico than this active, practical miner put his emisaries into the Wrightson district. Col. Greene's brother-in-law, Ramsey, is in charge of the prospectors, who are scouring the district, pegging out claims. In the Patagonia district in Mowery mine is developed far enough to be employing between 300 and 400 miners and the Alto, another developed property, is employing about 250 men. Among the younger patagonia properties, which have made strikes of paying ore, are the Santa Cruz, the Mansfield and the World's Fair.

Wickenburg, Ariz., Jan. 19.—Universal activity is now evident in the mining camps at Copper creek. A large amount of development work is being accomplished throughout the district, and 400 men will probably be at work by next summer. Three bi-weekly stages now leave Hilliside for the camps.

profitable for two decades, after the payment of the initial dividend in 1861, but before that time the proposition was a losing venture, and subsequently the returns became meager again.

The diamond drill has been of great value to the Cleveland Cliffs company. It is by reason of discoveries by this means that the corporation is opening the big Maas mine, also in the Negaunee field, at an expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and it was through this method that the company ascertained the great value of its holdings in the Lake Angeline basin, now and for some years the big end of the Cleveland mine at Ishpeming. This Lake Angeline once spread its placid waters over what are now the Lake mine of the Cleveland Cliffs company, the Lake Shaft property of the Steel corporation and a portion of the Lake Angeline mine of the Jones & Laughlin company.

The deposits of mineral were proved by diamond drills set on the ice in winter, thus by boring of these machines was located one of the largest basins of ore ever discovered on the Marquette range. Mining was begun in 1885, but as depth was attained it was found that the existence of a lake containing in the neighborhood of 750,000,000,000 gallons of water directly over the mines was too great a menace to safety, hence, in 1892, the work of draining the lake was undertaken jointly by the three companies interested. It was a big undertaking, but it was profitable. Today this is one of the most active mining locations on the range, and it will continue as such for many years to come.

At the outset, and for some years subsequently, the silt and mud of the old lake bottom gave much concern. It was a tenacious deposit, too thin to shovel and too thick to pump. The mud would run freely if given a chance, and from time to time, as the ground settled after the ore had been removed, it would flow into the crevices in large quantities, filling up working stopes and putting the companies to considerable extra expense. There was little danger of loss of life from this source, for the material ran too slowly, but when it did make its appearance, the miners, naturally not relishing the glory of drowning in mud batter, would take their departure. Finally the "crust" overlying the ore deposits grew sufficiently thick to prevent the ingress of the mud, and for some time now little trouble from this source has been occasioned.

It was the diamond drill, too, that located the Cliffs Shafts mine on the southern shore of Lake Bancroft, where one of the finest hard ore properties in the district has been developed. The ore was encountered about 600 feet below surface, under a very heavy rock capping. The drifts are extending easterly under the Main street of Ishpeming, but this causes no apprehension for the reason that the openings in this direction are comparatively small and in ground that will never give way. The ore at the Cliffs Shafts also extends beneath the lake, and to the westward drills have been searching for the extension of the formation. In the heart of the city, too, the company has a drill in commission at the corner of Second street and Cleveland avenue. The hole is one of the deepest in the district, and there will be much interest in the announcement of the composition of the formation penetrated.

The Cleveland Cliffs company is the most extensive producer of hard ores on the range. In addition to its Cliffs Shafts product it is also taking ores of this class from its Moro mine, in the eastern part of Ishpeming, and not far from the company's original hard ore openings in that city. There are crushing plants for the reduction of these ores, but latterly consumers are asking for more of the coarse, or lump, ores than formerly. Presumably, the reason for this is that they are wanted for mixture with the very fine-graded ores of the Mesaba, a product which is less liable to give trouble in the furnace stack if associated with a coarser material in the charge. The hard ores produced at the Ishpeming mines of the Steel corporaton are treated in that company's big central crushing plant at Escanaba prior to being shipped from the docks at that port.

The Cleveland Cliffs company's Salisbury mine, located a mile and a half south of Ishpeming, in section 15, 47-27, forms one of the best known properties in the district. The ore produced is a soft hematite running from 60 to 65 per cent in metlic iron. The mine is one of the oldest in the field, and it is one of the deepest as well. The upper levels are pretty well worked out, but the property will still be active for many years. Mining is conducted through one large shaft, more than 1,100 feet deep, 22x11 feet in outside measurements and divided into three compartments. In the early days of its career the mine was operated on the old, so-caled Nevada plan of mining, but as it was impossible to hold up the great mass of surface overburden with timbers forever, the property was permitted to take upon itself the adoption of the caving system of mining.

The mine buildings were transferred from the hanging to the footwall side, and it was necessary to rebuild the shaft and in its upper position connect it with a new incline shaft sunk in the diorite north of the ore measure to a depth of somewhat more than 100 feet. Thus, the ore skip—equipped with eight wheels instead of the usual complement of four—negotiates nearly a right angle at the point of the intersection of the two portions of the shaft, practically turning on its back in rounding the bend. In this particular the shaft is unique in the Lake Superior region. The workings of the Salisbury have gradually been extending westward towards the east line of the Steel corporation's section 16 property. Great surface depressions mark the course of the mining operations.

Albert G. Jones of Iron Mountain, superintendent, and until recently associated in the ownership of the new Emipre mine, in the Cascade district, south of Negaunee, has tendered his resignation to Oglebay, Norton & Co., the present operator of the property, and is proceeding to California to under take the development of a group of gold bearing claims held by him in conjunction with San Francisco capitalists. His successor has not yet been appointed. Oglebay, Norton & Co. have suspended drilling operations at the old Samson property in Iron county on the Menominee. The firm has expended large sums in exploration work in that district—first at the Hungerford and later in the Samson—during the past year, but without results. Fire has destroyed the miners' changing house at the James property, in the Iron river district, and with it the clothing of the men. A second fire, also from an unknown origin, badly damaged a similar structure at the Youngs mine of the Huron Mining company, in the same portion of the Menominee, and has occasioned the miners considerable loss. Probably half a dozen of these mine "drys" have been burned in the Iron county fields within the past year, practically all as a result of fires of mysterious origin. There may be no significance in this, but it is a condition which, at least, appears peculiar.

The Section Six property, in course of development at Quinnesec by the Few Mining company, in which officials of the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad are largely interested, has increased the wages of its employes in keeping with the new scale in effect at other mines on the range. The Few tract is an exploration as yet, but it is said to give promise of development into a producing property. The shaft is down 135 feet, and crosscutting is in progress. It is proposed to increase the working force, which now numbers twenty-five men. The Loretto Iron company, which recently took over the old Appleton property, adjoining its Loretto mine, east of Norway, has installed a diamond drill there and evidently proposes to give the tract a systematic test.

Revised figures give the Pewabic Mining company's property at Iron Mountain a production of 493,867 tons last season, of which 29,000 tons were forwarded by rail.

Oglebay, Norton & Co. of Cleveland have mapped out considerable exploration work for the coming season in the Penokee district of the Cogebic range. Shaft sinking will be undertaken at the old Hopenvan property, where a building program is in progress this winter.

NEW MINE ON KERSARGE

wondering whether they still have the control or not.

The combination is on just the same, and when the stockholders and copper companies are told about it, they will be given the opportunity to come into the new concern, trading shares of old issues for shares of the new at a given ratio.

There are to be two big combines at first, it is reported, one comprising the mines lying on the old north range, including the Kearsarge lode mines and the other to include the South Range properties such as Copper Range, Isle Royale nd others. It is easy to see that a $100,000,000 company would be none too large to take in these properties.

The Centennial property was never in such physical shape as at present. The deep workings are showing increased copper values, and the company is constantly getting its No. 2 shaft down deeper and deeper, while the surface equipment is rapidly being brought to the condition where it will become an active producer, and thus almost double the company's output, besides reducing costs quite considerably.

Allouez's operations are confined to one shaft and for this reason it is sending rock to the surface just as it comes from the mine.

All the levels in the mine are run as drift stopes 12x15 and thus it is impossible when traversing lean ground to reduce the workings to the regular 6x6. All this rock is brought to the surface, and so the mineral percentage varies directly as the ground.

The present rock now opened up in the property guarantees one of the richest propositions at the entire Lake.

With hope at a low ebb over the discouraging conditions of things, a very promising vein has been tapped in the Adventure mine. A crosscut, which was being pushed north from No. 4 shaft, has penetrated at a distance of sixty feet a vein having good width and containing excellent stamp rock. It has not been opened sufficiently to definitely determine its value, but is regarded as the most promising ground which has been opened in the mine in a long time, says the Ontonagon Herald.

No. 4 is the furthermost shaft to the east. It has been sunk by the present management and it was supposed to be on the Knowlton lode. The indications were fairly good at first, but as depth was attained the values did not hold out and as a last resort it was decided to do a little exploring by the means of crosscuts.

The vein which has been opened has the characteristics of the Knowlton, and there is a possibility that this may be its true identity. No. 4 shaft is located some distance to the east of No. 3 with a ravine intervening and this fault may have caused a warping in the general trend of the vein.

The exploration of the new find is being pushred vigorously and if it continues as promising as shown at present, Adventure will have a new lease of life.

Queens of England

A SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF ANNE OF BOHEMIA.

Anne of Bohemia, queen consort of Richard II. of England, was born in 1367 at Prague, in Bohemia. She was in her thirteenth year when the English ambassador, Sir Simon Burley, journeyed to Prague to negotiate for her hand in marriage with the King of England, who was then in his minority.

Something occurred then which seems rather extraordinary to us of the twentieth century. The imperial court at Prague had vague ideas about the location and importance of England, and the Empress sent the Duke of Primislaus of Saxony to ascertain the geographical position of England and what sort of a country it might be before she would consent to bestow her daughter on Richard in marriage.

Whatever the Duke's discoveries were

it is evident that his reports of England and Richard were most satisfactory to the Queen of Bohemia, for the following letter from her to England's ambassador reads:

"I, Elizabeth, Roman Empress, always Angusta, likewise Queen of Bohemia, empower the Duke of Primislaus to treat with Richard, King of England, concerning the wedlock of that most excellent virgin, the damsel Anne, born of us, and in our name to order and dispose, and as if our own soul were pledged, to swear to the fulfilment of every engagement."

Anne was in her fifteenth year when she became the wife of Richard and Queen of England. She came to him not only portionless, but cost him the pretty sum of 10,000 marks, which were paid to her brother according to the marriage contract. Besides this sum England had to defray the expenses of the Princess' journey from Prague to England—no small amount, seeing that she traveled in most regal style, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Saxony and a "goodly number of knights and damsels."

Chroniclers of those times assert that Richard "loved his own Queen Anne even to madness," and when she died suddenly in 1394 his grief was wild and unconsolable. They were a most happily united pair, and Anne, "the good and virtuous" had held the heart of her royal spouse secure. She was also well beloved by her subjects, "very precious to the nation, continually doing some good to the people and acting in many instances as mediator between her King and their subjects." She was surnamed "The Good."

How the Snow Man Got a Heart. By Maud Walker.

All night the snow had fallen heavily, being swept about by the furious wind. And at last, when morning came, the sun peeped through the frosty air to look upon a strange and shivering world. Many gates were made fast by heaps of drift piled against them, and walks were under two feet of snow that was packed so firmly and frozen so solidly that the workman's spade made slow progress in cutting it away.

Loyd and Dan Cummings looked from their bedroom window with great rejoicing. "Ah, now we'll have a snow fight at school," cried Loyd. "Gee! what a fort we can make on the south side of the schoolhouse, for there the drift always piles higher than anywhere else."

"Say, we haven't built a snowman yet this winter," said Dan. "Suppose we go at it tomorrow—Saturday, eh? A day of sunshine on this fine supply of building material will get it seasoned to the right consistency. Let's make a big fellow—a regular football athlete."

"All right," agreed Loyd. "But how cold it is—I can see my breath here in the room; what do you suppose it is outside?"

"Not too cold for me to enjoy myself out of doors," replied Dan. "I'd like being a Laplander, I would."

Then the boys fell to dressing for breakfast, discussing the unusual snowfall of the previous night. After breakfast they went to school, a mile distant (for Loyd and Dan were country boys, being the sons of a farmer), to meet with a cold reception there. The furnace would not "draw," so the boy who acted as janitor declared, after vainly trying for an hour to get the schoolhouse warm enough to permit of the children removing their wraps. And the teachers had lent their assistance in vain. The fire smouldered and smoked, but would not send heat into the pipes. Then the teachers held a council and agreed it was useless—even dangerous to the health—to remain in the cold rooms all day. To the joy of every pupil present school was dismissed and a messenger sent to town for a man to come out to overhaul the furnace, which would not be in working order that day. Thus the pupils would have two holidays that glorious weather, when it was such a delight to be out in the snow.

Loyd and Dan started for home full of anticipation. The snowman should be commenced that very day. And so he was, too, within half an hour after the boys arrived at their own farm.

"Now, to save time," suggested Loyd, as preparations were going forward for the great work contemplated, "suppose we take that old feed box from the stable—the one that is no longer in use—and stand it on end for a foundation and prop to build on and around. It will be a big help. We'll heap the snow over it and make a sort of pedestal for our snowman."

The suggestion met with Dan's approval, so the old feed box was brought from the stable and placed as a foundation for their work. Soon three of its sides were covered thickly with snow, the fourth side, being open, was left unfilled and unbanked, it being placed in such a position that it did not show from the main viewpoint—namely, the front yard. And behind it rose a small drift, which shut the open space from sight should anyone pass round to make an inspection from the rear.

All day Loyd and Dan worked, stopping only at intervals to run into the house in answer to their mother's call that it was time to warm fingers and toes and once to eat their dinner. In the afternoon one of the neighbor boys came to pay them a visit and gladly lent a hand to the building of the snowman. So, when the sun dropped behind the western line of timber Loyd and Dan saw with pride their work complete. Gaily they called to their parents to come and inspect the work. Their mother, smiling and paying her congratulations, declared the snowman looked for all the world like a "real, live human," telling her sons that she feared when they awoke in the morning they would find their statue gone, he having come to life in the night and walked away to some more congenial clime.

"We'll take our chances," laughed Loyd. "But isn't he a finely formed fellow? Just see what a chest!"

"You chaps will become sculptors yet," grinned their father. "I've seen many a marble statue with a less human figure than your snowman's. Proportions perfectly natural, I declare! Now, just look at the way that arm falls by his side! Yes, sir, boys, he's a great snowman."

That evening the subject of conversation at the supper table was the many uses of snow, the boys' minds constantly reverting to their "great masterpiece," as their mother was wont to call the huge, white, silent figure in the yard.

And, of course, Loyd and Dan dreamed that night about their snowman. The former dreamed that it had really come to life and the latter dreamed it had in some way become a great general, mounted on a snow-white horse. On waking the boys told each other of the strange fancies that had taken possession of their sleeping minds, and anxiously they leaped out of bed and hurriedly dressed that they might pay their morning respects to their snowman before any other member of the family had done so. Somehow, they both felt that some great change had taken place in their image of snow during the night, and they must be the first to behold it—whatever it might be.

But there he stood, the cold, solitary occupant of the front yard, just as they had left him the evening before. After all, nothing but a pile of snow in the shape of a living——

But what was that! A strange sound came from the snowman's inside! It did not sound like a human voice—but—but—undoubtedly it was made by something alive. Loyd looked at Dan and Dan looked at Loyd. Then they began to examine their "masterpiece" closely. They tapped him from his head down to his feet, going around him. Then Loyd stepped to the huge figure's back and gave a little startled exclamation; then he laughed outright. Dan quickly joined him, and, stooping, looked inside the box which served as the pedestal on which the snowman stood. "Gee whiz!" was all Dan said. Then he laughed with his brother. "Say," he went on, "don't let him come out till we have some fun out of it. I'll wager mother and father that the snowman has life inside him—a heart, a heart! Won't that be great? Come, let's go to the house at once."

"Stay where you are, fellow," said Loyd, shaking his head at someone inside the box. "You'll be taken care of later, as you deserve, you poor half-frozen creature." Then he followed his brother into the house. Their parents were in the big, cosy kitchen, their mother preparing the breakfast and their father mending a piece of harness.

"What'll you wager that the snowman hasn't a heart inside him this morning," broke forth Loyd, speaking to his parents.

"Yes, a real heart with blood in it, a heart that beats and a stomach that eats and feet that walk," declared Dan.

Both parents were amused, the mother saying: "Well, sons, if you can prove to me without a surgical operation that there is a real, living and throbbing heart inside your snowman I'll give you a party next Saturday night to which you may invite all your friends."

"And I'll give you a new cutter," added their father. "But it's got to be a r-e-a-l heart and no make believe, you know."

Loyd and Dan danced for joy. "Make preparations for the party, mother," Loyd cried merrily. And Dan said to his father, "Order the cutter right away, for we want it before this fine snow is melted. But, come and see if our snowman has not a heart beating within him."

The parents, laughing indulgently at their boys, followed them to the spot where stood the snowman. "About as lifeless a chap as I ever saw to have a heart," said the father.

"Oh, you may judge for yourself," said Loyd in an offhand manner. "Look, Madam and Sir!" And he led them to the back of the snowman, pointing within the box, which formed in truth a part of the figure. There, curled up to withstand the cold lay a fine big dog, a friendly fellow to judge by the expression in his pleading eyes.

"Well, well," said the father. "A heart and stomach and feet—just as you both declared. And what a fine fellow, too. But—come, let's have him in the kitchen for his breakfast. Poor fellow looks both hungry and cold. He's a blooded animal, sure as I'm born." And the good farmer coaxed the stray dog from the box, leading him to shelter and food.

Followed them to the spot where stood the snow man.

"You shall have the party, sons," laughed the mother. "There was a heart in the snowman—but hardly in the right place."

"It couldn't have been far wrong," declared Loyd, "for a heart that dictates taking care of the outcast on a stormy night usually lies in the right place."

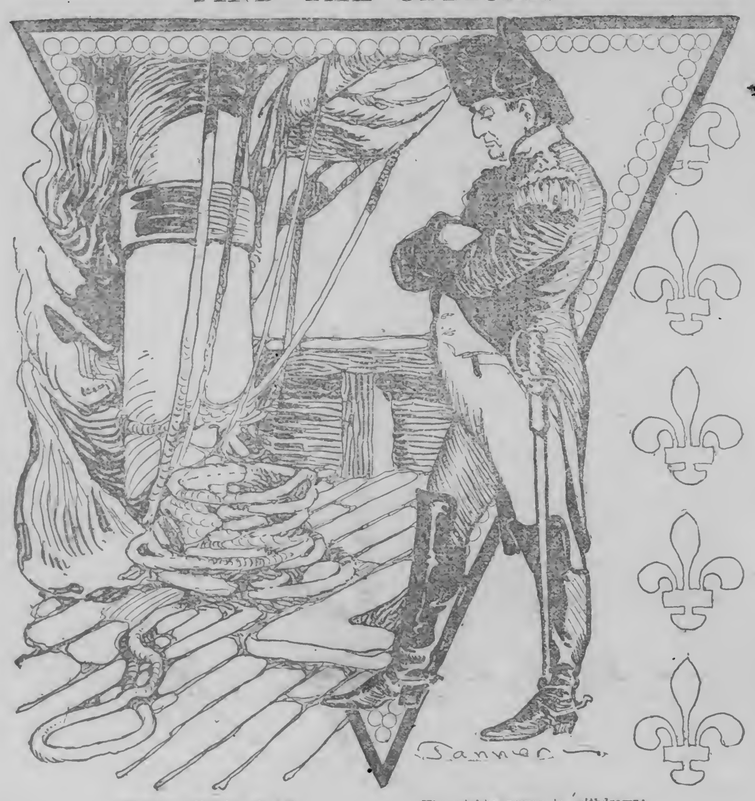

And they all gathered in the great, warm kitchen to watch the "snowman's heart" enjoy a good breakfast. And long after the snowman was melted to the ground the old dog remained at the Cummings farm, becoming one of the family and much beloved.

IRISH WIT.

An Irishman having been told that marriages were made in heaven felt some doubts on the subject, and taking pencil and paper he wrote the following:

"Though matches are all made in heaven,
they say,
Yet Hymen, who mischief oft hatches,
Sometimes deals with the house t'other side of the way,
And then they are Lucifer matches."

At last he knows defeat;
And he in exile must abide
In far-away retreat.

His mighty power is withdrawn;
Honor in dust does lie.

Bricktop and the Twins Have a Narrow Escape.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

It was a beautiful Saturday morning. The snow was packed as hard as flint and as smooth as glass. The sun shone genially, but accomplished very little thawing. There was no wind, thus making the weather ideal to be out in if one loved coasting and skating and did not mind a taste of frost.

Soon after breakfast Bricktop and The Twins decided to go to the river skating. As the finest surface on the river was about two miles from town by road, the children decided to make a short cut through a big cattle pasture that bordered the river. Several times lately Bricktop, in company with other boys, had gone through this same pasture to shorten the distance to the river, and, as he told The Twins, not a cow nor a calf had they come in contact with. So there was no danger of meeting with formidable horns—The Twins being so afraid of cattle—Bricktop declared.

He felt that he must be calm and keep his wits.

Half a mile from town they left the river road and climbed over the high board fence that inclosed the pasture. Walking was rather difficult here, for the tall grass has caught the snow in little reefs, making it deep in places and shallow in others. And, as the crust was not everywhere frozen sufficiently to support the children's weight, their progress was rather slow.

"I guess we'd have made time by following the road," said Bricktop. "Shall we go back and continue that way?"

"Oh, I like this pasture," cried Lettie, her face shining from the cold nips it was receiving. "See, yonder goes a rabbit. What fun to be in the country, where there is no road nor travelers."

"Yes, I think the same, sister," declared Bettie, her rosy face full of happiness.

"All right, kiddies," said Bricktop. "If you don't find the road too heavy it's good enough for me. And we'll see a lot of squirrels in that bunch of timber yonder at the foot of the hill. The last time I was through here I counted five bushy tails on one tree."

"They must have been having a party," suggested Lettie. But just as she finished speaking a strange and dreadful noise fell on their ears, and, turning their eyes in the direction from which it came, the three little Perkinses saw to their horror a great bull, head down and pawing the earth, some quarter of a mile distant. He was giving vent to short snorts and furious bellows, and the children could see that his eyes were fixed upon them.

The Twins grasped their brother's arms, gasping out: "Oh, Brick, what shall we do—what shall we do?"

The color left Bricktop's face, but his nerves remained steady. "We must reach that tree at the foot of the hill," he said calmly, but hurriedly. "You Kiddies go ahead of me—run as fast as ever you can—drop your skates and fly. I'll be with you, but I must remain behind you to keep an eye on that bull who is preparing to come for us. We've got the advantage in our favor if we don't stumble. Now, go and climb that low tree—the first one to your left!"

The Twins, as well as Bricktop, threw their skates to the ground and started for the tree, Bricktop remaining behind the girls to watch the bull. They hadn't taken many steps when, with his head to the earth, the bull bellowed more fiercely than before and came towards them with all his speed. But, to Bricktop's relief, he saw the bull flounder in a snow drift, which retarded his progress. "Hurry, Kiddies, hurry!" he urged, himself running with them. "He's in a snowdrift, which will take him a minute or so to get out.

The three ran with all their might, but as has been told, walking was somewhat difficult over the uneven snow, which in places let them through the crust. So, if the bull was delayed by the drift, the children were also prevented from making great speed. And as they ran for their lives they could hear the bellowing and snorting coming closer and closer behind them. Once Bettie's fear almost mastered her and she must have fallen in the snow and become a victim to the raging animal so close behind had it not been for Bricktop, who grasped her hand and fairly pulled her over the ground, calling out words of encouragement whenever he could get his breath to do so.

At last they reached the tree, but the bull was coming at full tilt close upon them. Bricktop lifted Bettie in his arms, telling her to grasp the lower limb and drag herself up. She was quick to obey and was soon climbing on up to give her sister room below her. The same way Lettie was helped to mount to a safe limb, fully eight feet from the ground. But she had scarcely reached safety when the snorting, bellowing bull was so close that, had Bricktop at the moment attempted the tree he must have been fixed against its trunk with the long, sharp horns. Realizing his awful danger, the boy turned quickly and menaced the animal with his overcoat, which he had pulled off as he ran. For a moment the bull, as if surprised at his conduct, stopped, head up, and looked at him.

Then Bricktop knew there was but one course to pursue. He must in some way keep up these surprises to the bull, for only about 20 feet now separated him from the ferocious animal. Should he try to climb the tree he would be lost, for two bounds of the beast would bring him upon the boy, who now faced death, but faced it without a quiver. He felt that he must be calm and keep his wits, otherwise he would be a dead boy within a few seconds. He waved the coat again, but this time the bull prepared for an attack. Then Bricktop hurled the coat into the air in such manner that it came down full in the bull's face, sticking on his horns and covering his eyes.

"Now! Now!" cried Lettie and Bettie, in one agitated but hopeful voice. "Come up, brother; for heaven's sake, be quick!"

But Bricktop did not need the Twins' urging. Like a cat he went up the tree, and when half a minute later the mad bull had tossed the coat from his horns and looked for his prey, he found it gone. With blazing eyes he looked up at the three children, who were for the present perfectly safe, being comfortably seated among the great, closely interwoven limbs fully 10 feet above ground. For a little while the defeated animal showed his resentment by pawing the earth and bellowing. Then he would dash at the tree as if to hook it; but knowing full well that such contact would only injure himself, he would withdraw some few feet away again and resume his pawing and snorting.

"I hope he won't keep us up here all day," said Lettie, shivering with the cold.

"I'll keep a close watch of the road," said Bricktop, "and will signal the first person I see."

"But the road is so far away, brother," sighed Bettie, also becoming numb with the cold, which was quite intense up in the tree.

"But look at brother," exclaimed Lettie, suddenly realizing that he was without his overcoat. "If we're cold, what must he suffer?" And she was for having him take her warm fur boa to wrap about his neck, which, of course, Bricktop only smiled at, declaring he was not so cold as he was impatient to get down to earth once more.

"Ah, there comes a man on horseback!" Bricktop cried, pointing down the road toward the town. "I'll have to use my lungs now to some advantage. And you, Kiddies, must help me. We'll all cry 'Help! Help' as soon as the horseman gets opposite us in the road."

They did not have to wait long, for the horseman was coming at a brisk trot. When at the point in the road nearest to the little ones in the pasture he was hailed by three lusty voices. Help! Help! Help!" came the cry, and looking across the pasture the horseman saw, to his great wonderment, a boy and two girls leaning forward from the bare branches of the tree and calling out at the tops of their voices, the while waving their handkerchiefs.

It took only one look for the man to realize the situation. "Three children treed by a mad bull," he said, under his breath, for the bull was still lingering near the tree, continuing to bellow and paw at intervals to keep his little prisoners informed of his nearness.

The horseman signaled to the children that he would have them liberated from their unpleasant predicament as soon as possible. Then he rode off at a gallop toward the house of the farmer who owned the pasture. Pretty soon the three Perkinses, to their great delight, saw two horsemen coming across the pasture and within a very short time the bull was driven away, his owner coming back to assist the children from the tree and to ask them to his house to get warm and have some refreshment before returning to town. Bricktop thanked him and their kind deliverer and was glad of the opportunity to go to the farmer's house for food and warmth. Getting his overcoat—which was not much the worse for having been tossed by the bull's horns—he and the Twins set off across the pasture with the farmer, who walked beside them, leading his horse. Their skates were found where they had thrown them half an hour before.

"I don't think we'll care for skating today, shall we, brother?" asked Lettie as they went along.

"Why not?" laughed Bricktop. "We aren't hurt in any way, and I don't see why we should miss our skating on account of that old bull's bad disposition."

"You're a brick, young man," said the farmer, slapping Bricktop on the shoulder.

"Well, that's my name, and I can't help being one," Mr. Perkins, Jr., replied with a smile.

"He's a hero," declared Bettie, proudly, to which Lettie nodded her head emphatically.

THE HIDDEN POET.

One word of four letters appears in each sentence, which, if rightly chosen and written one above the other in the order of their writing, their initials will spell the name of a great poet.

From fright her face was as white as milk.

Into the darkness the child went, fearing no evil.

Take not the life of the meanest thing wantonly.

A tear shed when the heart is heavy will lighten the burden.

The great blue heaven is over all the earth.

It is blessed to be so near Nature's heart that one may hear her songs.

NONSENSE RHYMES.

There was a small fish gave a wail;
At the same time a switch of his tail;
As he swam in the water
Just as he had orter,
But the water was some in a pail!

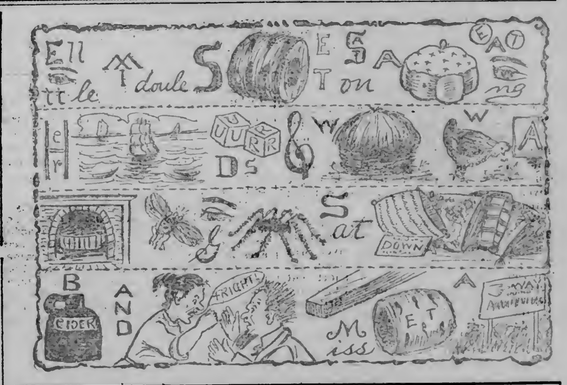

There was a young boy rode a mule
Each morning as he went to school;
But he kicked the mule's side;
Mule kicked back and cried:
"With me, young kid, you can't fool!"

There was a bad boy who did fight
The small boys with all of his might;
But a big boy one day
For the fighter did lay,
And he left him in pitiful plight.

LITTLE MISS PRUE.

Well, what is the matter with little Miss Prue?
I'm sure I can't tell what it is, can you?
Ah, what was that, my dear, you just said?
Little Miss Prue has got the big head!
